Impressive Pageant

Miss Thief River Falls pageant of 1986 was an impressive event in at least two ways — the extremely high caliber of the competition and the capacity crowd in attendance. This year's edition did nothing to diminish the status of the pageant as one of the outstanding events of the summer season.

What we found to be particularly appealing about the event this year was the large percentage of local candidates participating in the event. It is to the crdit of the sponsors, the community and the girls themselves that the local turn-out of participants was so good.

For a time in the history of the pageant the participation involved a number of candidates provided by other area communities who sent their local winners on to compete here. They were excellent representatives of their communities and a number of them wore the Miss Thief River Falls crown with grace and distinction.

As a result of having a number of "guaranteed" candidates available, however, local sponsors did not recruit as aggressively for local qualified candidates. Similarly, local girls may have felt at a disadvantage in competing against previous contest winners. And for a time there was a popular tendency to discredit or look down on so-called "beauty" pageants.

Miss Marshall County competition may have done the Miss Thief River Falls contest a favor by providing another pageant for local winners to enter. Several of the community winners who formerly came to Thief River Falls were entered in the county-wide contest instead, and were thus eligible to earn their way to the Miss Minnesota pageant. With fewer guaranteed entries, local pageant sponsors again turned to greater emphasis on local contestant recruiting.

We would hope that the Women of Today have, with this year's pageant, begun to reestablish a tradition of primarily local involvement. They should certainly continue to offer competition to other area community winners who wish to get into the Miss America Preliminary program and its scholarship offerings, but not to lose emphasis on the value of local participation. Such value can probably be seen in the capacity crowd at this year's pageant and the overall community interest in the program.

We commend all the candidates who particpated this year, and extend special congratulations to Debra Erickson as the 1986-87 Miss Thief River Falls. Having worked with the pageant in one capacity or another for a quarter of a century (that's only 25 years, folks!), we know that the values and experiences gained by all of the contestants far outweighs any short term disappointments they may have felt in not winning the crown.

It is not out of line, we believe, to ask a favor of them. They should share their experiences with others and encourage greater participation in the pageant in future years.

Nothing could make the scholarship pageant blossom more than a positive attitude among potential participants. Nothing could hurt it more than an attitude of negativism or indifference. Support and encouragement from the public will help that positive attitude, and it will also make available the scholarship dollars which set this pageant apart from some others. We think things are headed in the right direction.

Five Billionth Child

While driving on the metropolitan area freeways during our vacation period a week ago, we could not help but wonder at the number of people who apparently had to go from where they had been to where they needed to be. The mass of vehicles and humanity, while probably minor compared to major thoroughfares in larger or more congested cities, is certainly impressive.

Upon our return, we read again that the world's five billionth person was believed by demographers to have been born recently, and that number of people defies comprehension. More amazing is the fact that a billion people have been added to the world's population in the last dozen years and that there are three times as many people on the face of the earth as there were a century ago.

An editorial in the Bemidji Pioneer speculates on the situation for that five billionth child, depending on its place of birth.

"If it was born in China," the Pioneer states, "he is likely to get most of his parent's attention and money. China is trying to prevent famine and control its population growth by limiting families to one child. While some Chinese officials complain about the new generation of spoiled 'little emperors', this child is likely to grow up with a strong scholastic background and a desire to achieve.

"If the five billionth child was born to an average middle class family in the United States, he may have one or two siblings. He's likely to get a good education and never experience hunger.

"If the five billionth child was born to an Indian family in rural Ecuador, he could have eight or nine sisters and brothers. This child has enough to eat today, but hunger and disease are never far off. His parents will send him to work in the fields at the age of five and give him a rudimentary education at best. They hope that their large brood will work together to produce more to eat, but the more farm hands there are, the more food they must produce.

"If the five billionth child was born in a famine-stricken region of Ethiopia, he will endure a Malthusian nightmare. He might be the 11th or 12th child, but many of the others probably have gone to their graves. He may only live to be three years old himself, succumbing to malnutrition or sickness. We don't like to think about this suffering, but that is nature's way of controlling population.

It may seem like half of the world's population is driving on the metro freeways, but that exaggeration is obvious. We who live in the relative bounty of the United States may count our blessings. The expansion of world population has not been felt here to any extent. How long the world can tolerate such growth is a matter of conjecture, but it is reason to worry.

Farmer Is Not Alone!

According to Ray Karnes, executive vice president of the Oil Jobbers of Wisconsin, there may be less similarity than some people think between small family-owned businesses and family farms. Karnes said that the idea that similarities far outweigh the difference ". . . ain't true a'tall."

Karnes continues with his opinion as follows:

Don't string me up. I was raised in a small farm town, worked most of my summers on farms, drove the tractors: The old kind with steel seats, no cab, hot engine and furrow alignment on the big oak stump at one end of the field against the granite rock at the other. When the only time you sat straight in the seat was on the way in from or out of the field. I like farms, especially family farms and appreciate their contribution to me and mine. However, I am still convinced that their public relations are a heckuva lot better than that of small business.

For instance:

It is imperative that the family farm be protected against the depredations of corporate farms. Does anyone really give a hoot about the family pharmacy, petroleum marketers, corner grocery, mower repair? Not really. "Let 'em compete in the free enterprise system," say the defenders of the farm. If some large corporations sell below cost to drive out the family-owned small business, it's okay — but f'god's sake let's save the farm.

Let us help the farmer out of his sometimes self-imposed debt obligations, but let us not interfere with small business. Let 'em die. Large corporate businesses under absentee ownership are good for the consumer, but large corporate farms are not.

The family farm is a tradition worth saving, but the family business is not.

Competition among family businesses (and huge corporations) is good, for it weeds out the incompetent, inefficient, unwise and poorly managed operations. (It also weeds out those without upstream profits and huge capital resources, but who cares.) But it is in the public interest to protect the family farm.

A ruined businessman is acceptable, whatever the cause. A ruined farmer is not.

There is something saintly about the concept of the family farm, but not the family business..

As I said, I'm not against the farmer. I'm for the family business. Why is there a double standard applied? Why are predatory practices good and fine in business if the consumer benefits in the short run, but not in agriculture?

U of M Offers Scholarships To Eligible Farmers

Financially troubled farmers and their families will be eligible to take classes free at the University of Minnesota starting this fall.

Recipients of the Regents' farm family scholarships will be able to take up to six credits a quarter, for a maximum of three quarters over two years. Students enrolled for more than six credits aren't eligible.

Chancellor Edward Frederick of the university's Waseca campus proposed the idea to university administrators as a way of helping financially stressed farmers who want to pursue their educations. The board of regents approved the proposal July 11.

"With the severe financial problems confronting many Minnesota farm families, there is a special need for the university to recognize the seriousness of the situation and to respond in a constructive fashion," said Richard Sauer, vice president for agriculture, forestry and home economics. "This program would specifically help those who are interested in getting their feet wet regarding a possible new career that requires further education."

Scholarship applicants must be able to document that they are in imminent danger of losing their farms through foreclosure or repossession, that they face debt restructuring or that they have lost their farms. Spouses or dependent children who live at home also are eligible.

County extension agents can recommend qualified candidates for the tuition waiver program.

The scholarships shouldn't cost the university any money because recipients will be able enroll in previously scheduled classes on a space-available basis, university officials said.

Surplus Food To Be Distributed In East Marshall

Surplus commodities will be distributed on Thursday at the following sites: Gatzke senior citizen center, Grygla community center, Holt senior center and Strandquist community center, all from 2 to 4 p.m. and Middle River community center, 10 a.m. to 12 noon. Expected commodities are cheese, flour and milk.

Those who do not have a commodity card and are interested in securing one may call Karen Skadsem at 874-8011 or Northwest Community Action Inc. at 528-3258. A card is required in order to pick up the commodities or applicants may bring proof of income so a card can be issued.

Beltrami county residents who live in the Grygla area may pick up their commodities in the Grygla community center.

Today announced its Policy for Free and Reduced Price Meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals served under the National School Lunch Program. The following household size and income criteria will be used for determining eligibility:

Household Size	FREE MEALS Yearly	Monthly	Weekly	REDUCED PRICE MEALS Yearly	Monthly	Weekly
1	$ 6,968	$ 581	$134	$ 9,916	$ 827	$191
2	9,412	785	181	13,394	1,117	258
3	11,856	988	228	16,872	1,406	325
4	14,300	1,192	275	20,350	1,696	392
5	16,744	1,396	322	23,828	1,986	459
6	19,188	1,599	369	27,306	2,276	526
7	21,632	1,803	416	30,784	2,566	592
8	24,076	2,007	463	34,262	2,856	659
For each additional household member add	2,444	204	47	3,478	290	67

Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians and an income scale. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the form and return it to the school. Additional copies of the application form are available at the principal's office in each school. Households should answer all questions on the form. An application which does not contain all of the following information cannot be processed by the school: (1) the total household income and the amount and source of income received by each household member (such as wages, child support, etc.), OR just the household's food stamp case number if the household is currently on food stamps; (2) names of all household members; (3) social security numbers of all household members 21 years of age or older or the word "none" for any adult household member who does not have a social security number; and (4) the signature of an adult household member.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility and verifying data. Applications may be verified by the school or other officials at any time during the school year.

If children are approved for free or reduced price meal benefits, the household must immediately report any increases in household income over $50 per month ($600 per year) and decreases in household size to the school.

Households may apply for benefits at any time during the school year. If a household is not currently eligible but has a decrease in household income, an increase in household size or if a household member becomes unemployed, the household should fill out an application at that time.

In certain cases foster children are eligible for free or reduced price meal benefits regardless of the household's income. If a household has foster children living with them and they wish to apply for free or reduced price meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

Under the provisions of the Policy, Kathryn Kinsman will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of that official may wish to discuss the decision with that official on an informal basis. The household also has the right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing the following official: Mr. Frank Homerlinck, District Service Center, Thief River Falls, MN 56701; (218) 681-2700, ext. 386. Each school and the District Service Center have a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

In the operation of our child feeding programs no child will be discriminated against on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, sex or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250.

Featured speakers at the general sessions were Dr. Donald Clifton, founder of selection research academies in Lincoln, NB, Patricia Koppman, reading expert and vice president elect of the international reading association; and Judith Barr, teacher of the year from North Dakota, a humanist and musician.

Absentee Voters Should Apply For Ballots Now

Secretary of state Joan Growe is urging relatives of servicemen and servicewomen and other persons living overseas to encourage them to send in their applications for absentee ballots as soon as possible. "This will minimize the chances that their ballots won't be returned in time to be counted," she said.

Ballots will be available no later than 30 days before the election and persons who have applied by that time will have a good chance of receiving their ballots in time to return them by election day. One application can request both the primary and general election ballots and the county auditor will send each ballot as it becomes available. The federal government distributes a postcard application form (FPCA) for military and overseas voters. This form is available from the voting assistance officer at all military bases and from U.S. consulates.

An alternative to having the servicemen or servicewomen or person living overseas send in the application would be, Growe pointed out, for a relative of the voter to make the application for them. Minnesota law allows the voter's parent, spouse, sister, brother or child over the age of 18 years to make application on behalf of the absent voter if the voter is in the military, is a spouse or dependent of an individual in the military, or is temporarily or permanently living outside of the United States.

An absentee application does not need to be an official form, but it must contain the following information:

(a) The voter's name, birthdate, and present address of residence in Minnesota or former address of residence in Minnesota if the voter is living permanently outside of the United States.

(b) A statement indicating that the voter is in the military, or is the spouse or dependent of an individual in the military, or is temporarily outside the territorial limits of the United States, and voting under federal law.

(c) A statement that the voter expects to be absent from the precinct at the time of the election.

(d) The address to which absentee ballots are to be mailed.

(e) The voter's signature or the signature and relationship of the individual authorized to apply on the voter's behalf.

(f) The voter's military identification card number, passport number, or, if the voter does not have a valid passport or identification card, the signed statement of an individual authorized to administer oaths or a commissioned or non-commissioned officer of the military not below the rank of sergeant or its equivalent, certifying that the voter or other individual requesting absentee ballots has attested to the truthfulness of the contents of the application under oath.

These provisions do not apply to non-military voters living in the United States. Those persons may apply for their ballots at any time up to the day before the election, however, their procedures and requirements are somewhat different than military-overseas voters and these voters cannot have a relative make application for them.

Persons needing more information about absentee voting should contact their county auditor.

U of M Receives $30,000 Grant In Ophthalmology

Research to Prevent Blindness (RPB) has granted $30,000 to the University of Minnesota's ophthalmology department to support research into the causes, treatment and prevention of blinding diseases.

"We can't emphasize enough the importance of these grants," said Donald J. Doughman, ophthalmology chair at the university. "They provide freedom for our scientists and their impact is felt at every level of our research program. We've received $288,000 from RPB over the past 27 years, and this year's award is 20 per cent greater than last year's. This type of support is especially welcome now during these times of federal budget cuts."

RPB is the world's leading voluntary organization supporting vision research. It has given more than $60 million to promote research on the eye and its many diseases. Grants are made annually to more than 50 ophthalmology departments nationwide to assure the continued progress and vitality of eye research.

Delorme, Pfann And Suprenant Win Gold Medals

Patty Delorme, Penny Pfann and Janet Suprenant, Red Lake Falls, recently participated in the STAR events recognition program at the national leadership meeting of Future Homemakers of America in Orlando, FL, earning three-star gold medals.

Four hundred and forty young men and women were chosen to participate in this national level program in six major categories: job application and interview, chapter activities, illustrated talks, food service, child care businesses and community service projects for children.

Patty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Delorme and Janet the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern Suprenant, both enrolled in food occupations in Red Lake Falls. Penny, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Pfann, was enrolled in child care and education occupations in Red Lake Falls. The medals were presented at a recognation session at the Marriott Orlando World center.

The food service event is designed to replicate an authentic work environment where persons work together to produce a meal. Participants demonstrated versatility in the preparation of foods, ability to work in teams to create food products within a time limit and knowledge of industrial food service techniques.

The job interview event is designed to allow an individual the opportunity to demonstrate the ability to complete a job application form, participate in an interview and communicate a personal understanding of and ability to perform home economics job requirements.

The girls are enrolled in vocational programs offered through Pine to Prairie cooperative center, made up of Ada, Borup, Erskine, Fosston, Gary, Halstad, Hendrum-Perley, McIntosh-Winger, Mahnomen, Oklee, Red Lake Falls, Twin Valley and Ulen-Hitterdal school districts.

Red Lake County July DHIA Report Lists Top Herds

David E. Kabes, county extension agent, Red Lake county has released the July Red Lake county Dairy herd improvement association report.

During the month of July the 305-day lactation records for cows producing more than 22,000 pounds of milk or 750 pounds of fat included the following: Northwest agricultural experiment station, 24,382 and 800; Mrs. Jean Beyer, 22,530 and 815; Northwest agricultural experiment station, 22,471 and 862 and 23,121 and 771.

Mrs. Jean Byer, 21,784 and 764; John W. Malwitz, 22,862, and 746; Conrad Zak and Sons, 21,385 and 723; Roger Odegaard, 19,898 and 750; Conrad Zak and Sons, 20,589 and 764; Northwest agriculture experiment station, 20,445 and 770; Roger Odegaard, 17,839 and 771; Northwest agriculture experiment station, 19,041 and 684 and 19,041 and 775.

Arden Lundeen Dairy Herd Tops Pennington DHIA

Arden Lundeen herd from the Oklee area gained first place during the month of May in the Pennington county dairy herd improvement association testing. The herd of 43 cows averaged 61.2 pounds of milk and 2.08 pounds of butterfat per day during the month.

Other herds in the top 10 included the following with number of cows in the herd, pounds of milk and pounds of butterfat listed respectively: Hanson Heritage, 66 cows, 59.7 pounds of milk and 1.98 pounds of butterfat; Pearson Bros., 39, 59.5 and 2.13; Steve Gast, 31, 58.8 and 1.98; Mylo Carlson, 61, 57.1 and 2.44; Walter Bros., 80, 56.6 and 2.05; Duane Valsaas, 49, 53.5 and 1.96; DKG Lundeen Farms, 42, 53.4 and 1.89; Lyle Swanson, 41, 52.8 and 1.92; and Don Fulton, 34, 52.1 and 2.05.

Herd averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd since production is averaged over all cows, including those not currently in production. Even if milking cows have high production, the number of dry cows will reduce the average.

During May the Pennington DHIA had 24 herds in full test and one on owner sampler for a total of 25 herds on test.

Talent Contests At State Fair Have $6,000 Purse

Winning participants in the 1986 Minnesota state fair's amateur talent contest will share record prize money totaling nearly $6,000. Cash awards have been increased by $1,000 for this year's amateur talent showcase.

The top finisher in the senior division (ages 16 and over) will win a grand prize of $1,500, plus a chance to perform at the 1987 state fair.

All amateur entertainers are eligible to enter the talent competition. The contest will be a featured attraction at the 1986 state fair, August 21 through Labor Day, September 1.

Auditions for the contest are held at the state fair bandshell and at many county fairs throughout the state. From the auditions and county fair contests, semi-finalists will be selected to perform during the state fair. Semi-finals will be held the first 11 nights of the fair with winners advancing to the finals on Labor Day.

Entry forms are available by writing: Talent Contest, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, MN 55108; phone (612) 642-2218. Entry forms must be submitted along with a $10 entry fee by August 1.

Brian Krinke, a 17-year-old classical violinist from St. Paul, won the 1985 fair's senior division competition and will perform nightly at the 1986 fair with Ray Komischke's state fair orchestra. In 1981, Krinke won the contest's junior division, competing as a pianist.

During the past 13 years, acts appearing in the amateur talent contest have included vocalists, instrumental soloists, rock bands, barbershop singers, comedians, trained animals, ventriloquists and a musical saw player.

Marshall-Beltrami SWCD Receives Cost-Share Funds

This year the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district will receive $5,700 in state cost-share funding, of which 20 per cent or $1,140 will be used for technical and administrative expenses, leaving $4,560 for cost-share projects.

"This figure is down from the $7,000 we encumbered last year," states district secretary-manager Cheryl Sistad, "but the state mixed up the figures for our district and the Marshall SWCD last year so actually we received more than we should have. Since we have less monies to work with this year, we urge you to contact us if you have a cost-share project in mind as money will be encumbered on a first-come first-served basis."

Eligible projects are erosion control structures, stripcropping, diversions, stormwater control systems, field windbreaks, animal waste control systems and critical area stabilization.

"Another program we are getting involved with is the Reinvest in Minnesota or the RIM Program," Sistad said. "We are in the process of setting up our advisory committee. This group will assist the district in reviewing eligibility requirements and setting priorities. The committee is scheduled to meet the end of August. Board members will also attend an informational meeting on RIM August 26 and the staff will be attending one in September. The RIM sign-up is tentatively set for the end of September or the beginning of October."

Persons with questions on any of these programs may contact the district office in Grygla at 294-6144.

Kuznik Is Named New Provost At Hibbing College

Anthony Kuznik, vice chancellor for student affairs at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC), has accepted the position of provost at Hibbing community college. He began his new job August 4.

Kuznik, 46, joined the UMC staff in 1972 and coordinated the offices of admissions and financial aid; special student services; athletic department and intramurals; residential life; student activities; and counseling, career planning and placement services.

Before coming to UMC, Kuznik taught instrumental music in Ada from 1961 to 1969, was special research assistant in student personnel at the University of Iowa, 1969-1971, and was associate director of test administration and special services with the American College Testing program, 1970-72.

As provost of Hibbing community college, Kuznik will have the opportunity to fulfill his desire to be the chief executive officer of a two-year college.

Sonstelie Says Soviet Wheat Sale Falls Far Short

Offer of subsidized wheat to the Soviet Union to fulfill the terms of the U.S. and U.S.S.R. long-term grains agreement is a good move, but falls far short of solving any of the problems of U.S. agriculture, according to Gordon Sonstelie, Winger, president of the Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers.

If the Soviets accept the United States' offer for the 150 million bushels of subsidized wheat under the export enhancement program, it will be a significant sale, but not necessarily any new business as it was all within the terms of the five-year agreement, Sonstelie said. In addition, it would only put a small dent in the almost two billion bushels of wheat stocks currently held in the United States, he added.

According to Sonstelie, the most significant part of the Soviet offer is that it opens the door a little for possible future expansion of the export enhancement program to other countries, including more sales to the Soviet Union. "If we were noncompetitive in the Soviet market, which is one of the reasons administration officials gave when they aproved the offer, then we are not competitive in many other markets either," he stated.

An expansion of the export enhancement program to all countries will help the United States compete effectively and will move forward the time when stocks can be reduced to raise prices for American farmers, he said.

According to Sonstelie, a very large percentage of U.S. wheat farmers are not satisfied with the management and effectiveness of the current farm program.

Land O'Lakes Has Pre-Tax Margins Of $10.3 Million

Land O'Lakes, Inc., a farm supply, dairy processing and food marketing cooperative based in Arden Hills, reported six-month pre-tax margins of $10.3 million, up 47 per cent from the same period in 1985. Land O'Lakes foods and animal feeds produced strong profit increases during the period.

Land O'Lakes sales for its first six months of 1986 totaled $1.2 billion, an amount almost identical to the same period in 1985. Product price decreases in several major areas contributed to the flat growth in sales volume.

"The earnings increase is directly attributable to our diversified operations. Continuing difficulties in the agricultural economy is preventing growth in the cooperative's farm supply business but our food marketing operation is showing very favorable results," said Charles Fagin, Land O'Lakes vice president and chief financial officer.

"Continued management efforts to control costs, improve efficiency and maintain current sales with lower net assets, also contributed to the $3.3 million gain in earnings," Fagin said.

Land O'Lakes, with assets of $645 million, is owned by more than 1,100 member cooperatives and 9,000 direct member-patrons. In total, Land O'Lakes is owned by 325,000 farmers from throughout the Midwest. The cooperative's agricultural supply products are distributed in an eight-state region and its foods are markefed nationally.

U of M Seeking Info On Artist John E. Anderson

University of Minnesota art museum is seeking information from anyone who knows of or possesses works by Minnesota-born abstract artist John E. Anderson. Information supplied will be included in a catalog of Anderson's work being prepared by the museum.

Born in Mankato, Anderson grew up and attended high school in South Dakota. He graduated from the Walker art school in Minneapolis, studied and exhibited in Paris in the late 1940s and went on to critical success in New York. He then returned to Minnesota, where he died in 1971. Although he remained active in the Minneapolis art scene, Anderson moved to Battle Lake in 1961 and created a huge number of paintings and drawings on such colorful themes as carnivals and kites, as well as more abstract pieces.

His works range from abstract paintings in bright colors, expressive line drawings and paste-up collages to sculptures in bronze and tin cans. Anderson may be best known for the 6-by-48-foot mural "Carousel," commissioned for the Southdale shopping center in 1956 and now hanging in the lobby of the Brookdale mall.

The museum is preparing a comprehensive illustrated listing of all Anderson's works and a scholarly essay examining his life and art. Any information that might help should be sent to University Art Museum, 110 Northrop Auditorium, 84 Church St. S.E., Minneapolis, MN 55455, or call Sheila McQuire at (612) 624-7332.

Voting Pamphlet Available From Sec. of State

A pamphlet called "Election 86 Register and Vote" and which has answers to the public's questions about voting has been prepared under the direction of Secretary of State Joan Growe. Voters can obtain answers about eligibility, how to register, what offices will be on the ballot, how to vote by absentee ballot and much more.

The pamphlets can be obtained without charge by request to the Secretary of State, Room 180 State Office Building, St. Paul, MN 55155-1299 or from both political parties and the League of Women Voters.

Minnesota is always one of the nation's leaders in voter turnout which Growe attributes in large part to successful bi-partisan get-out-the-vote efforts.

"Our goal is to do everything that we can to encourage voters to inform themselves about the candidates and the issues and to go to the polls on election day," Growe said. The general election is November 4 and the state primary is September 9.

"I Didn't Realize My Daughter Could Enroll In Another Public School District!"

Children are different. Sometimes the right choice for your child means enrolling in a different school or school district.

You may find your child needs more specialized courses. This may mean a larger school district.

Or you may want more supervision. Smaller classes. Or more opportunities to participate. This may mean a smaller district.

Many people assume a change means a non-public school. This is one option. But you also have available all the schools of all the other public districts nearby!

Here's How To Find Out

Look over these choices. Call these phone numbers.

✓ The schools of another district, at no charge to you.
If your local board agrees to send along the state aid there will be no charge to you. To get the application form call Ron LaLiberte, Department of Education: (612) 296-1382.

✓ The schools of another district, if you pay tuition.
If your board declines, you may enroll in another public district by paying tuition. Your district's permission is not required. The tuition is deductible on your Minnesota income tax.

✓ Certain Minnesota colleges, universities and technical/vocational institutes.
Students in 11th and 12th grade may enroll full- or part-time, at no charge, and receive credit toward high school — and, later, college — graduation. Call (612) 296-4900.

✓ "Programs of Excellence"
High school students may enroll in outstanding science, math, language or other programs in public schools throughout the state. No tuition is charged. Call (612) 296-6999.

✓ The Minnesota School of the Arts
A new statewide high school, specializing in the arts, will open in 1988. Call (612) 296-1302.

For more information, or if you have other questions, call Public School Incentives (612) 339-2054.

Agassiz Refuge Features Diversity Of Waterfowl

by Jim Mattsson
Refuge Biologist

"I had no idea there were so many different kinds of birds in northwest Minnesota. I thought that all you raised at the refuge were gooses, mooses and mosquitoes." These and similar statements by area residents reflect a general lack of awareness of the wildlife treasure that exists in their own backyard at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge in eastern Marshall County. However, once exposed to the refuge's interior haunts, most visitors are impressed by the great number and kinds of birds that inhabits the area.

Known principally as a waterfowl production and migration area, Agassiz, located 25 miles northeast of Thief River Falls, is one of more than 420 national wildlife refuges administered by the U.S. Department of Interior. The 100-square mile refuge, hosting more breeding birds species than any other area in Minnesota of comparable size, has recorded over 265 bird special of which more than 140 are known to nest.

A drive through the refuge in summer offers the casual observer good viewing of some of the more conspicuous birds such as white pelicans and great egrets, large white marsh birds that catch the eye even at great distances. About 2,000 non-breeding white pelicans summer amid the refuge's 40,000 acres of marshes and are easily observed on man-made rockpiles or soaring effortlessly on warm air thermals. The refuge's nesting colony of great egrets, heron-like birds that stand about three feet tall, is the northernmost nesting site in the state and perhaps in the entire country.

More discerning observer will spot other species of aquatic wading birds, many of which are difficult to see due to their stand-still behavior or cryptic coloration. This group of birds consists of great blue and black-crowned night herons, American and least bitterns, and possibly such southern rarities as snowy and cattle egrets, or little blue and tricolored herons. The most abundant member of this group is the black-crowned night heron, named for its black head feathers and nocturnal feeding tendency. About 400 pairs annually build nests in colonies in dense marsh vegetation.

Most impressive breeding bird is clearly the Franklin's gull. In Minnesota, these birds usually nest only at Agassiz where 50,000 adults build nests in huge marsh colonies. This is the same species of gull that swarms behind tractors in the spring, gleaning earthworms from the freshly turned soil. Viewing the colony in the spring, one is awed by the sight and din of thousands of these white birds with black heads milling over the marsh engaged in nest building and territory establishment.

Five of North America's six species of grebe nest at the refuge. These are slender, duck-like birds with pointed bills that often submerse by sinking rather than diving. The species most sought after by bird enthusiasts is the western grebe, the showiest of the group. This bird is known for its long-necked, graceful appearance and for its animated courtship display which peaks with an enamored duo wind sprinting in perfect synchrony across the water surface. Nests are built in colonies and are constructed of algae and other aquatic vegetation. In summer, newborn grebes ride gondola-like on one parent's back while the other parent feeds them small minnows and invertebrates. This piggyback behavior is also exhibited by red-necked, eared, horned and pied-billed grebes, all which are visible from refuge tour roads.

What makes Agassiz refuge such a mecca of wildlife diversity? Actually, three factors play a role: geography, geology and hydrology.

Geographically, the refuge is centrally located in North America and thus is visited by many species whose normal distributions are restricted (eg. north, south, east, west) in the continent and barely extend to include northwest Minnesota. This zone of species overlap is enhanced by the merging in northwest Minnesota of three major plant ecosystems: prairie, coniferous forest and hardwood forest. Each of these vastly different vegetative communities hosts uniquely adapted species of which some are represented at the refuge. Western grebe, Franklin's gull, great egret, least bittern, bufflehead, black-billed magpie, American avocet and sharp-tailed sparrow are names of just some of the birds whose normal breeding ranges are stretched to barely include the refuge. Each spring and fall, great waves of migrating birds stop at the refuge as they pass through the central continent en route to and from breeding areas to the north, a tradition established in ancient times.

Geologically, the refuge lies in the basin of glacial Lake Agassiz, a vast inland sea that receded 9-10 thousand years ago, leaving behind slightly alkaline and quite fertile clay sand mineral soils covered by peat. Ancient fires removed large areas of peat forming lake basins such as Mud, Green Stump and Elm lakes as well as numerous smaller basins. These fertile basins and their associated river systems set the stage for the third and most important contributor to Agassiz' wildlife heritage — water.

Movement of water over and through the soil (hydrology) influences the vegetation and ultimately the wildlife species that occur in an area. This is a complex and dynamic relationship that is the focus of management at Agassiz. It is not enough to say that wetland adapted wildlife need water. That is like saying farmers need water. Certainly they do but too much or too little at inappropriate times yields disasterous results. The same devastating results to wildlife production also occur. For example, too much water may flood nests and burrows whereas too little water may leave shallow depressions dry and unattractive to certain animals such as water birds and muskrats. The result is poor production. In the cases of crop and wildlife production, effective and wise management provides the key to success — with a little help from Mother Nature.

AS MANY as 50,000 Franklin's gulls nest at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, their only regular nesting site in Minnesota. During nesting, adults spend considerable time defending nests using specialized vocalizations that proclaim "this is my territory," explained refuge biologist Jim Mattsson.

FORMERLY COMMON American avocet, an 18-inch tall member of the shorebird family, today rarely nests in Minnesota, but in 1985, seven pairs of this western species nested on the mudflats at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge's Parker Pool during a prescribed drawdown.

To maintain productive marshes at Agassiz, water levels are periodically fluctuated to simulate natural conditions.

Worldwide, the most productive wetlands undergo a cycle of drying and reflooding. Drying increases mineral concentrations in soils and allows non-aquatic annual plants, some producing tremendous crops of seed, to flourish. When shallowly flooded in late summer, these plants grow vigorously and the nature seeds are lavished by carbohydrate-seeking water fowl.

Additionally, rails, shorebirds, marsh wrens and other wetland birds utilize this habitat type for nesting and feeding. These moist soil plant species do not tolerate deep (6-12 inches) flooding and gradually are replaced by perennial marsh plants as water levels rise during the successive years. These marsh plants will themselve yield to yet deeper flooding (3-4 feet), resutling in open water, during the wet portion of the cycle. During this open water phase of the cycle, submergent plants dominate the marsh. These are plants that grow below the water surface and, in addition to producing seeds, provide a substrate for millions of aquatic invertebrate animals to thrive on. It is these invertebrates that provide the protein needed by most nesting water birds and their offspring.

Armed with the knowledge of natural wetland cycles, managers at Agassiz manipulate 18 water impoundments to insure that all phases of the wet-dry cycle are represented annually to maximize wildlife production. Annually, one or more impoundments are totally or partially dewatered so that each will undergo a full cycle during a 7-10 year period.

Partial dewatering is practiced in late summer to concentrate plant and animal food resources in shallow water for waterfowl and other birds. Research has shown that areas dryed in this manner and reflooded the following spring produce enormous populations of invertebrates important to early migrating waterbirds.

Other management techniques such as burning and discing are used during draw down cycles to control undesirable vegetation and to speed up plant succession.

Refuge staff is continually seeking new and imaginative methods to maintain its productive marshes for a remarkable diversity of birds and other marsh wildlife faced elsewhere with continuing widescale loss of habitat. The public is invited to witness firsthand the wildlife diversity at Agassiz and to discuss with the staff the active management and biological programs.

City Track Meet Scheduled Aug. 26

Final Thief River Falls summer track meet, originally announced for August 19, will be held Tuesday, August 26, at Prowler Field, it was reported this week by Lynn Dyer, meet director.

The event is open to the public. A $1 entry fee covers all of the events, open to participants of all ages.

Meet time is 6:30 p.m.

Football Meeting

Jeff Mumm made a commitment at the end of the 1985 football season that he would do everything in his power to turn the Thief River Falls football program around.

Mumm, named new Lincoln High School head football coach just prior to the start of the 1986 season, watched the Prowlers struggle through an 0-8 campaign last fall. Enough of that, he said, and immediately set out to lift up the sagging program.

Stressing off-season work-outs and a serious weight training program, Mumm hopes to field a stronger, better conditioned football team this fall. He has also been doing things that he hopes will make the Prowlers feel good about themselves, like sprucing up their practice attire, coming up with new helmet decals and installing some personal pride that he feels will carry over on to the playing field.

Mumm has been working hard at improving Thief River Falls football, but now he needs help. The kind of help that comes from a support group like the newly-formed Touchdown Club, designed to promote and assist the Thief River Falls football program at the high school, middle school and elementary school levels. Without the support from that kind of organization, the program may never reach its full potential.

An important general membership meeting of the Touchdown Club will be held Thursday, August 21, beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln High School cafeteria.

A number of topics will be discussed, including the new elementary school flag football program that will be introduced this fall, possible scheduling of a fan bus to follow the Prowlers out of town, potential fund-raising activities and program promotions and the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Pigskin Preview, scheduled to be held Saturday, August 23.

The meeting is open to everyone interested in the Thief River Falls football program. Club organizers say it's necessary to have a good turnout for the meeting. If that doesn't happen, they said, chances are the plans for the club will be scrapped, leaving Mumm and the Prowlers on their own again this fall.

Miscellaneous

+ Park Rapids' long battle to install an all-weather track finally met success when a special meeting of the school board accepted a bid for the new facilities that will replace the present cinder track around the Park Rapids football field. The new seal-flex track is expected to be in place this fall and ready for the 1987 high school track season. Thief River Falls' track program has long been held back because of poor facilities. Runners, jumpers, throwers and vaulters have virtually no proper practice facilities throughout almost the entire spring sports season.

State Waterfowl Opener Set Oct. 4

Minnesota's 1986 waterfowl hunting season will open at noon Saturday, Oct. 4.

Roger Holmes, DNR Wildlife Chief, said the opening date and other regulations are subject to final review by the Secretary of Interior in Washington D.C., but that no changes are expected.

States and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service agreed on the regulations at a meeting in Washington, said Holmes, and only some unexpected opposition within the Department of Interior could change them.

Duck season will run 40 days, closing on Nov. 12. The goose season will open on the same day as the duck season, Oct. 4, and will close in most of the state on Nov. 22. Southeast goose zone will remain open through Dec. 12.

There will be no hunting of canvasback ducks in Minnesota or any other of the states in the Mississippi, Central or Atlantic flyways this year.

Shooting hours, after the first day of the season, will start at one-half hour before sunrise. Shooting hours will end at 4 p.m. through Oct. 17 and at sunset thereafter.

Bag limit on ducks will be four daily and eight in possession. The daily limit may not include more than two mallards (only one of which may be a hen) one blackduck, two pintails, two wood ducks and one redhead.

Possession limit may not include more than four mallards (only two of which may be hens), two blackducks, four pintails, four wood ducks and two redheads.

Bag limit on geese will be five daily and 10 in possession; however, there will be special limit restrictions again this season on Canada geese and white fronted geese. Throughout most of the state, hunters will only be allowed one Canada goose daily with two in possession. In the southeast goose zone, however, hunters may take two Canada geese daily and have four in possession. The statewide limit for white-fronted geese will be two daily and four in possession.

A quota of 4,500 has been established for the Lac qui Parle goose zone in western Minnesota and the season will be closed there before Nov. 22 if the quota is reached prior to that date.

Steel shot regulations will be the same as last year. Hunters will be restricted to the use of steel shot within the boundaries of state wildlife management areas, federal waterfowl production areas and on the waters of Swan and Middle lakes in Nicollet County, North and South Heron lakes in Jackson County, Pelican Lake in Wright County, Bear Lake in Freeborn County, Christina Lake in Douglas and Grant Counties, Tamarac National Wildlife Refuge in Becker County, Sherburne National Wildlife Refuge in Sherburne County and within the Mississippi River bottoms between Hastings and the Iowa line.

Again this season, decoys may be left out over night in public waters only if the adjacent land is privately owned and there is no natural growth of vegetation in the water capable of concealing a hunter. Otherwise, the usual restrictions apply to the placing of decoys and blinds, and hunters should read the regulations carefully to avoid violating them.

Any blind on public land or in public waters, when not in use, is considered public and not the sole property of whoever built it. Any use or threat of force against another to gain possession of the blind is unlawful.

Holmes reminded hunters that a number of lakes have been designated as waterfowl feeding and resting areas and that the use of motorboats on those lakes is prohibited. A complete list of feeding and resting areas will be found in the waterfowl regulations.

Copies of those regulations should be available from state license agents about September 20, said Holmes.

As for hunting prospects this season, he said the fall flight in Minnesota will be about the same as last year. The flight in the Mississippi Flyway, in general, will be up slightly.

Thief Lake WMA Has Goose Hunting Sign-Up

Goose hunters will have to apply earlier than usual this year to reserve a hunting station at the Thief Lake and Lac qui Parle Wildlife Managerment Areas, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Applications must be postmarked no later than Sept. 15. Applications will be accepted on the basis of the earliest postmark but must not be postmarked earlier than August 22. Failure to comply with these requirements will result in rejection of the application.

Goose season is scheduled to open with the duck season on Saturday, October 4 at noon.

Hunters may aply to reserve one of the stations within the controlled areas of Thief Lake and Lac qui Parle. Applications must be made on a standard 3½ by 5½ inch postcard bearing the applicant's full name and address and listing first, second and third choice dates. Applicants should indicate whether they will accept any other date if none of their choices are available.

At Thief Lake, the reservation system will be in effect only through October 20; after that date stations will be available on a first-come, first-choice basis. The system will be in effect at Lac qui Parle for the entire seson.

Goose bag quota for the special Lac qui Parle goose zone is 4,500 — the same as the last two years. The hunt will be closed in the zone before the end of the season if the quota is reached before that date.

Only one poastcard per hunter may be submitted to each area, and only successful applicants will be notified. They will receive reservations by mail, designating the day of their hunt. Those submitting more than one application per area will have all of their applications rejected.

Applications should be sent to Controlled Hunt, Thief Lake WMA, NE Star Route, Box 17, Middle River, MN 56737; or Controlled Hunt, Lac qui Parle WMA, Watson, MN 56295.

Hunters with reservations will be assigned shooting stations through a drawing held at 5 a.m. on the morning of the hunt. Successful applicants may be accompanied by one or two guests.

At Lac qui Parle, all hunters 10 years of age or older will be charged a fee of $3 on the day of their hunt to partially cover special expenses of the hunt.

Hunters participating in these hunts will be limited to three trips to the stations, either as guests or successful applicants, unless all other hunters have been accommodated.

Six-shell limit and steel shot regulations will be strictly enforced, said DNR wildlife officials.

RIM Program

Minnesota's new Reinvest In Minnesota (RIM) program, passed at the recent legislative session and signed into law by Governor Rudy Perpich, "will help protect state lands from erosion, improve water quality, benefit fish and wildlife, and provide additional income to hard-pressed farmers," according to Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander.

Alexander was the keynote speaker at the first annual Minnesota Sportsmen's Convention held at the St. Cloud Holiday Inn Saturday, July 19.

The convention was hosted by the Fish and Wildlife Legislative Alliance, an association of sportsmen's groups created to support the RIM program.

Alexander said the innovative legislation "goes to the heart of the problem of creating habitat on marginal agricultural lands without requiring a financial sacrifice from farmers.

"Farmers today find it necessary to cultivate marginal lands having light soils, steep slopes and a history of poor crop production because of the need to squeeze out every dollar of income," he said.

But through the sale of $16 million in state bonds authorized under the RIM bill, said Alexander, the Commissioner of Agriculture will be provided $10 million to acquire easements from farmers that will take marginal, highly erodible cropland out of production.

Lands must be seeded down to provide vegetation that will protect the land from erosion and provide food and cover for wildlife. Farmers will receive $75 per acre for seeding and for planting trees.

The bill also provides $2.5 million to the Commissioner of Natural Resources for improvements to fish and wildlife habitat and for land acquision. Another $1 million is earmarked for a program to recycle aspen forests in northern Minnesota to improve both the forest economy and habitat for deer, grouse and other woodland wildlife.

The bill appropriates $2.5 million for the acquision of "critical natural habitat", but such expenditures must be matched by private contributions or funds from the state's nongame wildlife management account.

Said Alexander, "The RIM program, together with the new federal Conservation Reserve program, is the most significant effort to protect the fertility of our land and quality of our waters, reduce crop surpluses, provide fish and wildlife habitat and assist financially troubled farmers since the Soil Bank program of two decades ago."

Sale of bonds is expected to take place sometime this year. Officials of the Department of Agriculture's Soil and Water Conservation Board estimate that up to 500 farmers will participate in the RIM program and that between 25,000 and 50,000 acres will be placed under easements.

DNR's Fish and Wildlife Division has a list of planned projects to be accomplished under the RIM program. Among them are included the following:

1. Improvement of sharp-tailed grouse habitat in northwestern Minnesota through cutting of over-mature trees, and possible prescribed burning in selected areas. Loss of habitat has resulted in a sharp decline in sharp-tail numbers in recent years;

2. Development of a fish and wildlife improvement project in southern Carlton County that will include better access to the Blackhoof River for trout fishermen, hunting opportunities through acquisition of private lands, and management of the habitat to increase wildlife populations;

3. Creation of a sharp-tail demonstration area in northeastern Minnesota to illustrate the benefits resulting from vegetation management in an area that once supported substantial sharp-tail populations;

4. Construction of a dam at Swan Lake, Nicollet County, so the 9,000 acre lake can be managed to its full potential for production of waterfowl and furbearers;

5. Renovation of an environmental education area at the Carlos Avery Wildlife Area north of the Twin Cities to demonstrate wildlife management principles and techniques;

6. Construction of rough fish control facilities at four sites in Douglas and Pope counties;

7. Installation of an aeration system on Maple Lake, Polk County, and Pine Lake, Clearwater County, to maintain a gamefish population that would otherwise be lost through winterkill;

8. Construction of fishing piers at Birch Lake, Cass County; Cass Lake Beltrami County and Long Lake, Otter Tail County;

9. Control of beach erosion on Lake Winnibigoshish that will provide protection of walleye spawning sites;

10. Acquisition of stream easements on Hay and Bangs Creek in Pine County to provide access for trout anglers and to allow control of beaver which are damming the streams, destroying trout habitat;

11. Installation of rock rip and rap and other measures to control stream bank erosion and improve trout habitat on several streams in southeastern Minnesota.

DNR Payments Go To Minnesota Counties

Payment totaling more than four million dollars were issued to Minnesota counties recently by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR). Property tax reductions for Minnesota citizens and increased local resource development will be the result.

When added to funds distributed earlier this year from taxes paid on public hunting lands, state park lands, sale of state timber, agriculture, mineral and miscellaneous leases, the DNR's in-lieu-of-tax payments total $5,914,511.

A total of $4,453,113.00 has been distributed by the DNR to 76 counties in the six regions of the state.

"Too often the Department is accused of taking productive land off county tax rolls," said DNR Commissioner Joe Alexander. "In fact, considerable sums of money are generated each year through the in-lieu-of-tax payments procedure."

Local dollar distribution is based on the total acreage of state and county-owned land within a given county, Alexander said.

By law, counties are required to deposit 40 per cent of the funds received in the county general fund. Another portion must be deposited in a county resource development fund for use in forest management, game and fish habitat improvement, recreational development and maintenance of county-administered natural resources land. Organized townships also receive funds for road and bridge projects. With 76 counties receiving checks, payments range in size from the $920,111 sent to St. Louis County in northeast Minnesota to the $88 sent to Dodge County in the southeast. The remaining 11 counties received payments from other funds for eligible DNR lands.

Payments are calculated based on the following formula:

1. Three dollars multiplied times the number of acres of land acquired by the DNR through purchase, condemnation or gift, which was taxable at the time of acquisition;

2. 75 cents multiplied times the number of acres of tax-forfeited land owned by the state and administered by the county;

3. 37.5 cents multiplied times the number of acres of other land owned by the state and administered by the DNR, which was not taxable at the time of acquisition.

Individual payments to counties in the DNR's six administrative regions are as follows:

Becker $115,931, Beltrami $375,375, Clay $17,419, Clearwater $140,124, Douglas $16,078, Grant $10,471, Hubbard $243,624, Kittson $[illegible],905, Lake of the Woods $274,750, Mahnomen $31,233, Marshall $91,180, Norman $16,735, Ottertail $48,819, Pennington $11,220, Polk $47,330, Pope $12,290, Red Lake $6,470, Roseau $175,367, Stevens $8,005, Traverse $367, Wilkin $16,004.

Deer Hunting Rules, Licenses Available

Deer hunting regulations, licenses and antlerless permit applications are now available from state license agents, the Department of Natural Resources has announced.

Wildlife officials emphasized that the deadline for applying for firearms antlerless permits and special area permits this year is a week earlier than usual — on Sept. 8. An exception is application for permits to bow hunt in the Camp Ripley Military Reservation where the deadline is August 29.

DNR is forecasting a somewhat lower deer harvest this year and is making available 128,825 antlerless permits — a 23 per cent decrease from last year's 167,725.

In Zone 4, as last year, antlerless permits will be issued for both the first and second seasons. The permits will be allocated as usual for each permit area and will be valid in which ever season option the hunter chooses when purchasing his license. Therefore, the odds of obtaining a permit will be the same whether a hunter applies for the early or late season.

Permits will be mailed by October 25. Applicants are urged not to call the DNR officials, applicants should have received their permits if they were drawn. After that date, the DNR will be able to check permit status for those who feel they should have received one but did not.

Application for antlerless and special area permits must be made on the form issued with a firearms deer license.

Hunters age 18 or over must provide a drivers license or official Minnesota I.D. card number on their application or it will be rejected.

Hunters under the age of 18 who do not have a drivers license or Minnesota I.D card may use their Firearms Safety Training number to enter a special non-preference youth drawing. All youth choosing this option will have an equal chance of being drawn within their permit area, but no preference will be gained.

Bowhunters are cautioned that special area permits for bow hunting have different applications procedures and deadlines from those given above, and officials urge all hunters to read the regulations thoroughly and carefully.

Secretary of the Interior Don Hodel recently announced a national awards program to recognize individuals and groups that conduct outstanding public land and resource stewardship activities as part of the "Take Pride in America" campaign.

"We have just celebrated an outstanding example of citizen participation in caring for America's most prominent public property — the Statue of Liberty," Hodel said. "I challenge all Americans to carry the pride manifested in that restoration to touch all public lands, from national and state parks, wildlife refuges, forests and shores, to inner city playgrounds and open spaces."

Hodel said that "Take Pride in America" seeks to reduce careless and abusive activity such as littering, vandalism, theft and wildlife poaching. "Public lands encompass over one-third of America. It takes the commitment of individual citizens to care for these lands — because these lands belong to each and every one of us," Hodel noted.

"Recognition is a key motivator in this campaign," said Hodel. "The campaign and awards program will serve as avenues to encourage wise land use and promote grassroots involvement in the care of America's natural and cultural resources."

Hodel and other federal officials are working together to promote the "Take Pride in America" campaign. Joining in this effort are Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng, Education Secretary William Bennett, Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lee Thomas, Under Secretary of Commerce for Travel and Tourism Donna Tuttle, and Assistant Secretary of the Army for Civil Works Bob Dawson.

A national campaign of public service announcement is being prepared by The Advertising Council, Inc., and is expected to be released later this year.

Awards program is open to any individual and to public and private sector groups that have contributed to increased awareness and wise use of public or Indian lands and resources. Forty states and two U.S. Territories are participating in the awards program this year.

First national awards will be presented in January 1987.

Award categories include constituent organizations; businesses and corporations; youth groups; civic and citizen organizations; media; educational institutions; individuals; public-private partnerships; local and state governments; and, federal agencies. To participate in the national awards program, interested persons should write: Take Pride in America, Washington, D.C. 20240.

The ordinary farmer would soon be out of business if he did not use his land over and over again. Forest acres must be used in the same intelligent way, say Minnesota Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry officials.

To keep a forest growing vigorously, trees that crowd each other, are decayed, deformed, or mature should be removed. Such trees will eventually die if left, if for no other reason, because of old age.

Harvesting utilizes these trees and gives young trees more room, nutrients and sunlight, which helps them to grow. This puts land on a continual yield, providing several tree crops, one after another.

With over-production of farm crops, this may be the time to consider putting highly erodable farm land into trees. There are programs that will cost share on site preparation and tree planting expenses.

U.S.D.A.'s Conservation Reserve Program (C.R.P.), Agricultural Conservation Program (A.C.P.), and Forestry Incentive Program (F.I.P.), are programs designed to assist the private land owner with the expense of establishing trees for tomorrow. The weeks of August 4-9 and 11-15 have been designed for CRP sign-up at all county ASCS offices. At each office a forester will be on hand on Friday of each week to answer questions or assist you. The programs are also designed with special provisions to improve wildlife habitat.

For more information about tree planting, contact a local DNR Forester, Wildlife Manager, or ASCS office.

PIPING PLOVER recently was designed an endangered species by the federal government. In Minnesota only 25 pairs are known to nest at [illegible] two locations — Lake of the Woods and Duluth. In 1986, four pairs were found nesting at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge's Agassiz Pool during a prescribed drawdown.

Student Insurance

Parents of school-age children in School District 564 have the opportunity to sign the students up for Mutual of Omaha student insurance, reports Lincoln High School athletic director Mike Novak.

Students in grades 1-5 will bring the insurance information home from the schools, said Novak.

Students in grades 6-8 must pick up their forms at the Franklin Middle School principal's office and students in grades 9-12 must pick up their insurance forms at the Lincoln High School athletic director's office.

It is a $25 deductible policy, notes Novak.

Canoe Trip

Teenagers may still register for a Boundary Waters canoe trip sponsored by the Lake Agassiz Camp Fire Council.

Canoeists will depart Camp Trowbridge the week of August 24 for a week on the northern Minnesota lakes out of Ely.

Contact the Camp Fire office in Moorhead for further details at 236-1090.

DNR Forester Notes Change In Seasons, Has Fire Warning

It's a beautiful day. Let's go for a hike in the woods.

We can say this to one another in Minnesota because we are fortunate to have woods close at hand. We can experience the fun of hiking and seeing all the wonderful forms of nature, writes Gordon Saul, Department of Natural Resources Division of Forestry forester in Grygla.

"It's fun to see new things in the woods and forests that we haven't seen before," notes Saul. "It's not difficult to see things that remind us of the beauty and bounty of the forests. As we look, we observe and we question and we learn; How did this clump of trees or this forest start? What will they be used for? Where will we find the animals in the forest? Are we using our blessings wisely? Who will protect the forest and animals?

This responsibility belongs to each and every one of us."

Soon we will be getting frost and succulent vegetation will die, become dry and burn readily. This is the time of the year when we have to take extreme caution with fire, that is, if we are going to continue to enjoy our forests.

Days when humidity is low and winds brisk, set the stage for wildfire. "Please be careful with fires," reminds Saul. "Never start a fire if you question your ability to control it. Never leave a fire until it is completely out."

Current burning regulations restrict burning to the hours between 6 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Prepare Dogs Now For Upcoming '86 Fall Hunting Season

Hunting dog owners need to take steps to prepare their dogs for the vigors of hunting this fall. Terry Correll of the Minnesota Horse & Hunt Club offers the following tips to get your hunting dog in shape:

— Preparation should begin with physical conditioning. Dogs need 30 to 60 minutes per day of vigorous exercise to tone muscles and build stamina for a full day afield. Physical conditioning should start no later than three weeks before the first hunting outing and continue through the season to ensure peak performance.

— Hunters should modify the dog's diet as necessary to provide additional protein for the extra energy required of an active dog. A veterinarian can help tailor diet.

— Good grooming is important to a hunting dog so that the dog's coat protects properly. A hunting dog must be healthy, inside and out.

— Review general obedience and hunting commands to sharpen skills and break poor habits which may have developed during the off-season.

— Ideally, expose the dog to live game birds prior to a major hunting trip through a short hunt, with birds you buy or at a preserve. This allows the dog to "warm up his nose" and allows the hunter to preview dog performance.

Dogs need to have regular check-ups with a veterinarian.

According to Correll, a good hunting dog is invaluable. "By ensuring that your dog is mentally and physically prepared for the hunting season, you can increase your enjoyment and your success," he says.

Wildlife Workshop For K-12 Teachers

A Project WILD Workshop for K-12 teachers and camp counselors, and youth leaders will be held from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursday, October 2, at the Red River Valley Natural History area in Crookston, and again Friday, October 3, at Lake Bronson State Park.

Project WILD is a set of over 80 interdisciplinary activities which serves as teaching aides about wildlife. It features activities which focus upon the use of direct experience and skill building, increasing a young person's understanding of wildlife concepts.

Workshop participants will receive a Project WILD elementary or secondary activity manual, a wide variety of additional resources.

Cost of the workshop is $5. Preregistration is required by September 29. Please make checks payable to Friends of MEEB (Minnesota Environmental Education Board), DNR/MEEB, 1201 Hwy. 2 East, Grand Rapids, MN 55744; or call 327-1745. Optional continuing education credit is available.

This program is sponsored by the State Department of Education, the Department of Natural Resources, and the Agassiz Environmental Education Council. The Agassiz Environmental Education Council is one of 13 such councils in the state established by the legislature in 1973 to bring environmental information to citizens in each region.

For more information, call Peggy Henry at 281-1877 or at Highland Elementary School in Crookston, 281-5600, or write to her at Rt. 2, Box 198, Crookston, MN 56716.

Counties Receive Funds

Department of Natural Resources has sent checks totalling $641,743 to Minnesota counties to compensate the counties for loss of tax revenues during fiscal year 1985 on lands purchased for State Wildlife Management Areas (WMAs).

Payments are made annually from the state game and fish fund. Receipts into the fund are primarily from the sale of hunting, trapping and fishing licenses, and federal aid monies appropriated to the state for fish and wildlife restoration projects.

Payments to the individual counties are calculated based on the following formula, using whichever amount is greatest:

(1) 35 per cent of the gross receipts from all special use permits and leases of lands acquired for WMAs; or

(2) 50 cents per acre on land actually used for WMAs; or

(3) Three-quarters of 1 per cent of the appraised value of purchased WMA lands.

By law, the county treasurer is required to distribute the payments among the county and the respective towns and school districts where the wildlife lands are located — on the same basis as if the payments were received as property taxes.

Appraised value of the acquired wildlife lands is considered the purchase price for the first five years following acquisition. After five years (or in the case of lands acquired prior to July 1, 1974), the appraised value is set by the appropriate county assessor.

In addition to these payments, the DNR also makes in-lieu of tax payments to counties for natural resource lands from the general fund, amounting this year to more than $4.3 million dollars. Payments for wildlife lands are deducted from next year's in-lieu of tax payments made from the general fund.

Division of Fish and Wildlife currently manages 529,000 acres in 1,000 Wildlife Management Areas. WMAs are managed for wildlife production, habitat protection and enhancement, public hunting, trapping, and other compatible uses.

Following is a list of counties and the payments they received for wildlife lands for the period July 1, 1984-June 30, 1985:

Aitkin $4,170.90; Anoka $25,973.19; Becker $6,521.40; Beltrami $780.15; Benton $2,616.00; Big Stone $9,567.33; Blue Earth $10,840.39; Brown $3,445.55; Carlton $85.93; Carver $595.50; Cass $6,216.90; Chippewa $.00; Chisago $44,016.47; Clay $2,854.50; Clearwater $1,973.06; Cook $.00; Cottonwood $9,426.75; Crow Wing $1,036.33; Dakota $5,028.14; Dodge $720.00; Douglas $7,160.31; Faribault $2,549.58; Fillmore $1,292.25; Freeborn $5,355.00; Goodhue $1,356.75; Grant $6,200.63; Hennepin $1,522.35; Houston $.00; Hubbard $8,817.75; Isanti $4,575.00; Itasca $62.25; Jackson $11,006.89; Kanabec $4,084.50; Kandiyohi $8,103.50; Kittson $19,815.02; Koochiching $.00; Lac Qui Parle $27,121.99; Lake $7.00; Lake of the Woods $585.00; LeSueur $2,254.17; Lincoln $22,128.54; Lyon $31,472.63; McLeod $4,836.55.

Turkey Hunt

A record 333 turkeys were bagged by hunters this season, the Department of Natural Resources reports. The season was held during April and May in southeastern Minnesota, the ninth year the state has had a hunting season on wild turkeys.

DNR offered 2,500 permits to hunt this spring and 2,250 licenses were issued. Approximately 19 per cent of the hunters were successful in bagging a turkey.

Officials said the record success of the hunt was achieved despite the closure of the Whitewater Wildlife Management Area and portions of Zone 2 and 5 to turkey hunting this year.

These areas were closed to protect recent transplants made to rectify a sharp decline in the area's Merriam turkey population.

Whitewater was the first site in Minnesota to be stocked with wild turkeys. Stocking was carried out with the "Merriam" strain, but they proved unable to cope with the harsh climate conditions found in Minnesota.

Department has been restocking the area with the more hardy "eastern" variety and believes this strain will be able to survive the winters and reproduce.

DNR turkey biologist Gary Nelson said, "Closing the Whitewater to spring hunting in 1986 to protect transplanted turkeys was necessary but not an easy decision. It is one of the most popular turkey hunting areas in the southeast and provides recreation in spectacular surroundings.

"The results of the spring turkey hunt plus the number of favorable comments received from hunters who did not take a gobbler, yet heard and saw several, makes the Whitewater closure somewhat easier to accept. Seeing broods from the transplanted stock makes me confident that the Whitewater will reopen soon."

Jon Cole, Area Wildlife Manager for Whitewater, shares Nelson's opinion. "It was a hard decision to close a great public hunting area to turkey hunting, particularly because it was in the Whitewater area that wild turkey releases were first successful.

"The failure of the Merriam strain turkey should be reversed by the success of the more hardy eastern variety. We released 55 easterns into the Whitewater from Houston county last winter. The growing turkey harvest and the success experienced by hunters in other zones gives me hope for the future."

Dick Kimmel, a biologist with the DNR's Farmland Wildlife Research Group at Medelia is equally enthusiastic about the future of the turkey program.

"We have been transplanting wild turkeys obtained from New York in the Minnesota River Valley during the past two years. We want to provide turkey hunting elsewhere in the state while expanding the quality of the hunt in southeastern Minnesota.

"In 1985 we released 13 birds from New York in the Seven-Mile Creek area near Mankato. The flock is growing, and this year another 49 New York birds were transplanted to the Rapidan and East Union areas. We are indebted to the financial support from local sportsmen for this project."

Howard Shepperd, the Regional Wildlife Supervisor at Rochester, feels that the success of the wild turkey program is closely linked to annual contributions the DNR receives from the Minnesota Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation, a private group.

"1986 was our best year for transplanting," said Shepperd, "and we could not sustain our transplanting efforts without the Minnesota Chapter of the National Wild Turkey Federation's support. Of the $17,000 the Federation gave us for turkey management, we spent $7,300 for transplanting. This amounts to about $76 a bird, but the cost per bird transplanted is actually low compared to other states."

Applications for the 1987 spring hunt will be available the first week of October at most license dealers and county auditor offices. The deadline for submitting applications for the computerized drawing will be mid-December.

Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Orrin Christenson, who passed away Aug. 10, 1963.

After each storm comes sunshine
After darkness light
After winter's cold, comes blossoms fair and white
Surely it's God's wisdom that after an aching heart
There shall be life eternal
Where loved ones never part

Sadly missed by mother,
Hazel Christenson and family

In Re: Estate of Albert M. Dumler, Deceased.

ORDER AND NOTICE OF HEARING ON PETITION FOR PROBATE OF WILL AND APPOINTMENT OF PERSONAL REPRESENTATIVE IN SUPERVISED ADMINISTRATION AND NOTICE TO CREDITORS

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS:

It is Ordered and Notice is hereby given that on the 28th day of August, 1986, at 1:15 o'clock P.M., a hearing will be held in the above named Court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the formal probate of an instrument purporting to be the will of the above named decedent, dated June 1, 1981, and for the appointment of Ruth Dumler Dietz whose address is 1326 North Brooks, Russell, Kansas, as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent in supervised administration, and that any objections thereto must be filed with the Court. That, if proper, and no objections are filed, said personal representative will be appointed to administer the estate, to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes and expenses, and sell real and personal property, and do all necessary acts for the estate. Upon completion of the administration, the representative shall file a final account for the allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the Court, and close the estate.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Court Administrator within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

RAILROAD crossing work on Eighth street in Thief River Falls should be completed within the next two weeks, maybe even sooner. The crossing is being replaced by a new section similar to the crossing near Third Street bridge. The rubberized crossing will take some of the bumps out of traveling over the crossing.

Family Farm Law Project Opens Moorhead Office

The family farm law project, which was authorized by the 1986 Minnesota Legislature to provide legal assistance to farm families having financial problems, is now operating, according to Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer.

The legal assistance program was an important part of the 1986 omnibus farm act, he said, and one of the project's statewide offices will be located in northwestern Minnesota. That address is: Northwest Minnesota Legal Services, P.O. Box 714, 403 Center Avenue, Moorhead, MN 56560, phone (218) 233-8585.

"In addition to the Moorhead office," Stumpf said, "farmers may also call 1-800-452-3625, or the state's central hotline at 1-800-233-4534.

"The family farm law project is designed to give general legal advice to farmers. However, cases involving foreclosure on family farms and repossession of farm machinery, equipment and livestock will be given a top priority."

Rachel Ness Is Among Finalists For Senate Page

Rachel Ness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ness of Thief River Falls, was among 20 finalists for the job of U.S. Senate Page, according to Senator Rudy Boschwitz. Teena Garbrielson of Dassel was appointed as Minnesota's page for the fall semester. Dean Fugleberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Fugleberg of Thief River Falls, was also interviewed.

Boschwitz, who appoints three pages each year, said that the caliber of students interested in the page program was as high as he has ever seen it.

"It reflects well not only on the students, but on their parents and their schools that the level of excellence is so high," he said. "Students showed outstanding academic performance and a strong involvement in their school and community, Boschwitz said.

"They are an amazing group of young people," Boschwitz said. The selection committee was especially impressed with Rachel's strong academic achievement and great interest in government. About 150 students interviewed for the page job.

Committee OKs Bill To Provide Funds In State

Minnesota would receive more than $7 million in funding for fiscal 1987 under a bill approved Thursday by the Senate subcommittee on interior appropriations, according to Sen. Dave Durenberger.

The Minnesota Valley national wildlife refuge would receive $1.5 million to continue land acquisition. Located adjacent to the Twin Cities, it provides a sanctuary for a large number of migratory waterfow, fish and other wildlife, while offering educational and recreational opportunities. Prior to the allocation of $1 million in fiscal 1985, the project had not received funding since 1978.

Voyageurs national park would receive $1.43 million for road construction to its Black Bay visitor center and $2 million to complete restoration of the Kettle Falls hotel.

The boundary waters canoe area would receive $2.8 million for the state grant program. Authorized under Public Law 95-495, these funds are used for state and county forestry programs.

Michelle Jelle To Reign At Grygla Harvest Festival

Newly-crowned Miss Grygla, Michelle Jelle, will preside over the annual harvest festival to be conducted in Grygla this weekend with events scheduled for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Michelle, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jelle, was crowned Friday evening at the pageant conducted in the Grygla school gymnasium by Laura Carlson, reigning Miss Grygla. Miss Carlson was advanced to the position in June when Derel Engelstad won the Miss Marshall County title.

First runner-up Friday night was Tamera Schulz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Schulz, and second runner-up was Patti Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Rogers. Miss Jelle won the on-stage personality (evening gown) and tied for swimsuit division titles. Patti Rogers won the talent division and tied with Cindy Larson for Miss Congeniality. Tami Schulz won the personal interview division and tied for the swimsuit division.

A carnival will set up in Grygla to operate this Friday and Saturday with ride tickets available in advance at Grygla, Gatzke, Goodridge and Skime locations. A teen dance will be held Friday evening at the community center with music by "After the Fact".

Saturday events include a horseshoe tournament, mixed softball tournament, kiddies races, parade at 1 p.m. and street dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sunday attractions will be highlighted by a demolition derby at 2 p.m., following a Lions club breakfast from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Roy Hope gospel concert at 10 a.m. Softball tournaments will continue and a lip sync contest will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. at the Grygla school.

People to contact for the various events include: Wayne Larson, horseshoe tournament; Phyllis Wikert, softball tournament; and Bob Thompson or Rick Kiesow, demolition derby.

Grygla senior citizens will take care of an exhibit at the community center and everyone is invited to bring items for display at 9 a.m. Saturday. Members of 4-H clubs are welcome to bring fair exhibits and related items.

Expect Enrollment Gain At Newfolden

Slight enrollment increase to about 490 students is expected when the Marshall county central school district opens its 1986-87 term Tuesday, September 2, at Viking elementary and Newfolden elementary and high schools, Supt. Gene Busch said.

Families new to the school district are advised to contact the principal of the school for details about registration and bus routes before the first day of school arrives. Bus routes will remain the same as they were last year.

Two new teachers will be in the Newfolden high school classrooms this year. David Schroeder of Perham, a Concordia college graduate, will teach social studies and replace Lucille Tunheim who has retired. Lonnie Myrom of Moorhead will teach in the special education department in a position which has been added this year. He is a recent graduate of Moorhead state university. Becky Pribula returns as sixth grade teacher in Newfolden after a one-year absence.

Students in the elementary school will be working with new science equipment and new clay models will be used in health classes. New science textbooks also will be used this year and the fifth grade room in Newfolden has new carpet. A new computer system will be used in the high school and new mathematics textbooks for seventh and eight grade have been ordered for use this year. Tickets for the school lunch program remain unchanged at 95 cents for students and $1.50 for adults, Supt. Busch said. Student reduced price meals will be 40 cents and parents are asked to return the application for free or reduced price meals before school begins September 2. Forms for that purpose were mailed this week.

Supt. Busch also reminds parents of the board decision that all previous lunch bills must be paid before students will be allowed to eat hot lunch on the first day of school. Free or reduced price meals will not be allowed when an unpaid balance remains from the past school year.

Admission prices for athletic contests have also been set by the school board at the same rate as last year. Students will pay one dollar per game

Workshops For Teachers Start Next Tuesday

Public school teachers in Thief River Falls will begin reporting for duty next Tuesday in preparation for the opening of school for students on Tuesday, September 2, according to Frank Hamerlinck, assistant superintendent of School District 564.

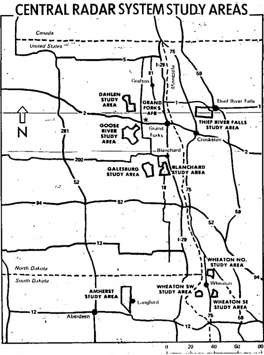
Teachers at Lincoln high school, Knox and Mark Twain elementary schools will be in workshop sessions Tuesday through Thursday, August 26-28. Those at Franklin middle school, Northrop and Washington elementary schools will be in workshop sessions Wednesday and Thursday.

At 7 a.m. Wednesday, August 27, a breakfast will be sponsored by the education committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce at the American Legion club rooms. All teachers and administrators from the community's public and private schools, including Northland community college, the AVTI, Our Saviour's Christian academy, St. Bernard's Catholic school and the Seventh-day Adventist school are invited to participate.

A noon luncheon for the public school faculty will be conducted at Franklin middle school cafeteria from 11:30 to 1 p.m. Thursday, August 28.

TRF Area Ranks Well In Study For OTH-B Radar Receiver Site

CENTRAL RADAR SYSTEM STUDY AREAS



Thief River Falls area as a receiver site for the U.S. air force Over the Horizon Backscatter (OTH-B) radar system ranks well among all sites being considered, according to the draft environmental impact statement released this week by the air force systems command electronics systems division.

The statement summary describes the proposed system, public concerns, biophysical and socioeconomic effects, radiofrequency radiation, human health, electromagnetic interference and hazard effects, and alternatives. The full draft study itself is a volume 8½x11 inches in size and about an inch thick.

A meeting with area land owners regarding potential purchase of land or leasing of land for use by the system has been set for Thursday morning in Thief River Falls (see accompanying item).

The receiver site for which the Thief River Falls area is in contention would require a minimum of 2,400 acres to be enclosed by an exclusion fence surrounding buildings of about 5,000 square feet, 65-feet tall backscreen and groundscreen antennae. One building would house receiver equipment and the other would be used by the staff of approximately 50 (10-12 per shift) to operate and maintain equipment and provide security. Fencing around the site would be close to the structures since radiofrequency radiation is not a concern.

Public concerns about the project were received at a series of 10 "scoping meetings" in communities near the areas studied in Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota. Sites in the Wheaton (MN) area and Amherst, SD, area are being considered for transmitter location. After the scoping meetings were held, air force personnel have conducted telephone conversations and held additional meetings regarding the concerns.

Concerns expressed and listed in the draft environmental impact statement are as follows:

(1) The impacts of construction and operation, particularly on property tax revenue; on the infrastructure (especially roads) and on birds and their migration;

(2) Land requirements for sites and the process and basis for acquiring land;

(3) Biological effects of radiofrequency radiation (RFR);

(4) Use of land already in federal control;

(5) Electromagnetic interference, primarily with radio and television;

(6) Loss of agricultural land;

(7) Superior alternative surveillance systems;

(8) Restrictions on aircraft operations;

(9) Increased aircraft or ground vehicle traffic;

(10) Site selection and environmental analysis processes;

(11) Job opportunities and required training;

(12) OTH-B as a military target

Biophysical Effects

The study report notes that areas studied for both transmit and receive sites are largely farmland. Generally the areas have poorly drained soils and are characterized by numerous temporary and permanent streams and potholes. Wetlands frequently surround the streams and potholes and provide shelter and breeding grounds for wildlife, primarily birds.

"Because the study areas are located in the Central flyway — the major bird migration route in North America," the report states, "and because food in surrounding grain fields is abundant, the incidence of birds and their habitats is high and thus of importance."

The study notes that Dahlen and Goose River study areas (see accompanying map) in North Dakota

Goodridge Girl Drowns In Cattle Stockpond Monday

Amy Schroder, nine-year-old daughter of Bruce and Kristi Anderson of Goodridge, drowned Monday evening while swimming with friends in a stockpond.

Marshall county sheriff's department received a report at 7:20 p.m. Monday of a possible drowning six and one-half miles north and one and one-half miles east of Goodridge at a cattle stockpond. Amy Schroder was transported by Lifestar ambulance to Northwest Medical center.

Court Of Appeals Reverses District

Minnesota court of appeals reversed a district court decision which had reversed the decision of a police commission ruling on the case involving Thief River Falls police officer Allen Melbye. The court of appeals upheld the police commission board ruling which demoted Melbye from sergeant to patrolman. A review of the court of appeals decision will be in Monday's edition.

Kid's Day To Be At TRF Sports Arena On August 23

Kid's Day in Thief River Falls, an event sponsored by the Thief River Falls Women of Today, will be held from 1 to 4 p.m. August 23 outside of the Thief River Falls sports arena.

Main events of the day include a bubblegum blowing contest at 1:15 p.m.; a pet contest at 1:30 p.m.; hot wheel races at 2 p.m. (bring own hot wheels); and a special appearance by Ronald McDonald from 3 to 4 p.m.

Other activities going on during various times of the day will be running races, sack races, treasure hunt, shoe kick contest, cupcake walk, lollipop wheel, pick a duck booth, water balloon toss and popcorn stand. Tickets will be five for $1 with all proceeds going to the March of Dimes and Muscular Dystrophy. Every event will be in age groups.

Local donations for Kid's Day were made by Pamida, Kmart, Pepsi, McDonalds, Hardees and Godfathers Pizza. For more information about kid's Day contact Kathy Nyland, 681-1613, or Peggy Genereux at 681-8493.

Air Force Meet With Farmers Thurs. Morning

An informational meeting for area farmers on the Over the Horizon Backscatter (OTH-B) radar system is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Best Western in Thief River Falls. The September 9 meeting reported in the Monday edition of the Times is for an impact study hearing in Grand Forks, ND. Farmers interested in submitting to negotiations with the air force, which may include selling property, leasing or a combination of both, should bring a legal property description with them to the Thursday morning meeting.

Century Farms From Area Get State Citations

Several farms in the Times area have been designated as Minnesota Century Farms by the Minnesota state fair and the Farmer magazine, sponsors of the program. A total of 279 farms earned the designation this year.

Listed among the Century Farms in this area are the following: Engvald Dahl, Newfolden, 1881; Herb Torstveit, St. Hilaire, 1883; Ray and Kathie Ulrich, Thief River Falls, 1882; Betty Johnson Hoff, James W. and Roger W. Johnson, Clearbrook, 1886; Allen and Lorraine Love, Euclid, 1876; and Ole E. Vigoren, Gully, 1884.

Ceritificates and plaques will be awarded to those applicants whose farms are at least 50 acres in size and have been in continuous family ownership for at least 100 years.

Keith Konickson Still Critical In Fargo Hospital

Keith Douglas Konickson, 21, St. Hilaire, is listed in critical condition at Dakota Hospital in Fargo following a motorcycle accident on August 16 at 1:18 a.m. The state patrol reported that Konickson collided with the rear of a car in Red Lake Falls on highway 32 that was being driven by Sheila Marie Knott, route 3, Red Lake Falls. Both vehicles were southbound. Konickson was transported to Northwest Medical center with severe head injuries and then transferred to Dakota Hospital in Fargo. The accident is under investigation.

Times To Publish Events Calendar Starting Aug. 27

Beginning with the Wednesday, August 27 edition, the Times will publish a community events calendar. The calendar will be a regular feature of each Monday and Wednesday issue and is intended to be a convenient way for the public to become aware and be reminded of local and area events.

The calendar will include only brief information on events and is not intended to replace news stories when additional information is in the public interest. Cooperation of Times readers is requested in making the calendar as complete and useful as possible.

Officers of area organizations are encouraged to bring or send to the Times notices of their upcoming meetings and events to be listed on the calendar. Because of the time involved in preparing the schedule, telephone calls with calendar items can not be accepted. Items must be received prior to 5 p.m. Tuesday for the Wednesday edition and prior to 5 p.m. Friday for the Monday edition.

Label items "Community Calendar" and drop them off at the Times office from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or mail them to Thief River Falls Times, P.O. Box 100, Thief River Falls, MN 56701. Inclusion of detailed information for headlined news stories is also encouraged. There is no charge for news stories or the calendar listing.

Emergency 911 Reaches Out

SHERIFF CHUCK RICHARDS and Scott Peters, dispatcher-jailer at the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls, look over the new radio console and emergency 911 phone. The 911 emergency phone number will be completely operational by September 15.

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Emergency telephone number 911 will soon be operating in Thief River Falls, Goodridge and St. Hilaire. Pennington county Sheriff Chuck Richards said 911 will be completely operational by September 15 at the law enforcement center in Thief River Falls for the area served by the 681, 378 and 964 telephone prefixes in Pennington county.

After a testing period which will involve emergency services in the area, the system will be fully operational, Richards said he is happy to see the system finally in place. It has been a long time in coming.

Under a Minnesota law passed in 1977, emergency 911 telephone operations must connect Minnesotans to emergency services by December 15, 1986. As of August there were 56 counties and eight city systems in operation in Minnesota. This means that 80 per cent of the polulation, or 3.26 million people are now connected to 911 services.

The Pennington county law enforcement center has two 911 dedicated telephone lines for Thief River Falls and one each for Goodridge and St. Hilaire. The new 911 system is not designed to replace the 681-6161 number at the law enforcement center, but to enhance the law enforcement center's capabilities.

Only emergencies should be called in on 911. Richards said he does not want to discourage anyone from making a call on 911 if they perceive the situation to be an emergency; but, common sense should tell them that a locked car door or dog calls are not the type of calls to be made on 911. Richards also asks the public not to call on 911 just to test the system. "Let us do the testing," he advised.

When someone calls on 911 he or she will be greeted with "Pennington county 911" and the dispatcher's name. The dispatcher will obtain information on the type of emergency and mark the date, time and address. Lightning last year made it necessary to replace the damaged radio at the law enforcement center with a new one. With the new radio, the dispatcher has only to touch a button especially designated to an emergency ambulance service, which enhances the effectiveness and purpose of 911. The radio also sends a signal to a beeper carried by someone with the ambulance service, and is done while the dispatcher talks to the caller. All of this can happen in the blink of an eye.

Dispatchers are also trained to give assistance over the phone. They can give instructions for CPR or other help over the phone that may save lives. In case emergency instructions need to be given over the phone they like to keep the caller on the line until the proper authorities have arrived at the scene. Because of the speed in

Society and Clubs

Lori Rae Swanson - James Rygg United In Marriage June 14

Lori Rae Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Swanson of Thief River Falls, became the bride of James Luther Rygg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rygg of rural Portland, ND, June 14 at a 5 p.m. ceremony at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Richard Larson of this city and Rev. George Hooper of Portland officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Phyllis Dalager provided organ music and accompanied Wayne Torgerson, cousin of the bride, as he sang "The Wedding Song." She also accompanied the groom's parents in their rendition of "The Lord's Prayer." Wayne Torgerson sang "Follow Me" during the lighting of the unity candle, with guitar accompaniment by Roger Kolden, cousin of the bride.

Ushers Clyde Craig and Brad Thykeson lit candles on the altar and candelabra at the front of the church; Dale Brown placed the aisle cloth; and Wayne Thuen escorted the mother of the bride, mother of the groom, and grandparents. All are friends of the groom.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white taffeta featuring a sweetheart neckline and bishop sleeves forming a point at the ring finger. The fitted bodice was enhanced with Venise lace, pearls and iridescents, and a deep V back accented the basque waist. A full skirt was trimmed with hand clipped Venise lace appliques, flowing into a cathedral-length train. Her satin hat was trimmed with Venice lace medallions and seed pearls with a bridal net pouf and fingertip veil with wired hem. To compliment her gown, the bride wore pearls that had belonged to her great-grandmother.

Maid of honor was Jan Swanson, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Jill Wahl, friend of the bride; Condetta Ness, sister of the groom; Karla Thykeson, friend of the couple; and Melissa Arveson, cousin of the bride. All wore royal blue, floor-length gowns of talique taffeta featuring a taffeta ruffle-trimmed sweetheart neckline and softly pleated surplice bodice with balloon sleeves. The natural waistline of a full skirt was accented with a spaghetti tie belt.

Megan Torgerson, cousin of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a white, floor-length gown of taffeta. She carried a basket of silk flowers. Michael Ness, nephew of the groom, served as ring bearer. His attire matched that of the groom.

The groom wore black tails, cummerbund and tie, with a white shirt. Marius Rygg served his brother as best man. Other gentlemen attendants were William Rygg, brother of the groom; Randy Ness, brother-in-law of the groom; Roger Evenson, friend of the groom; and Trevor Swanson, brother of the bride. They wore black tails with royal blue cummerbund and tie and white shirts. Ushers and fathers of the couple wore black tuxedos, cummerbund and tie and white shirts.

Guests of honor were grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Verner Arveson and Mrs. Katherine Swanson; great-grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Hannah Arveson; godparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Lenord Swanson; grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Peaethel Fugleberg; and godfather of the groom, Richard Fugleberg.

A reception for the guests was held following the wedding with Mr. and Mrs. Loren Arveson, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Fugleberg, aunt and uncle of the groom, as host couples. In charge of the guest book was Nadine Rygg, sister of the groom, with Laurie Eide, Sue Eide and Dawn Brend, friends of the bride, serving punch.

A three-tiered wedding cake with flowing fountain highlighted the serving table, decorated with white icing and blue string-work. Tiers were divided by bells and topped with a Precious Moments miniature bride and groom. Mrs. Rupprecht baked and decorated the cake. Lillian Richards and Alvina Hanson, aunts of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring for the guests were Lorraine Rygg and Lorraine Fugleberg, aunts of the groom.

The bride's cousin, Pam Kolden, was kitchen hostess. Waitresses were Stephanie and Michelle Swanson, cousins of the bride, and Jesse and JoDee Braaten, nieces of the groom. Curtis Ness, nephew of the groom; Paul Arveson, cousin of the bride; and Kala Torgerson, cousin of the bride, were gift carriers. The groom's sister-in-law, Peggy Rygg, was flower hostess.

A dance was held in the evening at the Thief River Falls Country club. The couple is at home near Portland, ND, where the groom is engaged in farming.

Former Resident Heads Church Women United

Mrs. Dewey (Ardith) Force, former resident of Thief River Falls, was recently elected president of the state unit of Church Women United (CWU) at a leaders' council in St. Paul. An active member of Hamline United Methodist church, St. Paul, she has held various state-wide offices in United Methodist Women and Church Women United. She is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Schultz of this city, and is a graduate of Lincoln high school.

CWU is a movement that brings together Portestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox women into one community of prayer, advocacy and service. In Minnesota, 19 denominations participate in the movement. Celebration days -- World Day of Prayer, May Fellowship Day and World Community Day are the most widely recognized activities of the group. However, CWU also has deep concern for the issues of peace with justice, child care and the pauperization of women.

Lori Bakken To Wed Robert Jorgenson

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Bakken of Goodridge announce the engagement of their daughter, Lori Jo Marie Bakken, to Robert Joseph Jorgenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jorgenson of Tuxson, AZ.

The wedding is planned for August 30 at 4 p.m. at Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Brickzin - Stevenson Engagement Announced

Tammy Sheridan Brickzin and Kenneth Stevenson announce their engagement. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. David Sheridan of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stevenson, East Grand Forks.

Brickzin graduated from Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls and the East Grand Forks AVTI. She is employed by Lumber Dealers supply, East Grand Forks. Stevenson graduated from East Grand Forks senior high school and North Dakota state university. He is employed in the waste water department for the city of Grand Forks.

A September 20 wedding is planned in Family of God church.

Henry Pulsifer To Appear At Life Line In Newfolden

Henry Pulsifer of Kilm, MS, will be appearing at the Life Line Christian center in Newfolden Saturday at 8 p.m. He will share his experiences as he carried a cross on his back. Refreshments will be served; everyone is welcome.

Rooker And LaFriniere Wed At Redeemer Lutheran Church

Janeen Rooker and Ted LaFriniere were united in marriage at a 3 p.m. ceremony at Redeemer Lutheran church in this city. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rooker of Thief River Falls and Mr. and Mrs. James LaFriniere of Cass Lake.

Rev. Luther Anderson officiated at the ceremony. Acolytes were the bride's brother, Jim Rooker, and the groom's brother, Brad LaFriniere. Karen Barron of Hankinson, ND, served as organist and pianist and also sang with Deb Panek, Bemidji. Both are friends of the couple. Selections were "The Gift of Love" and "God, A Woman and A Man." Deb Panek sang the prelude of "Evergreen" and "The Lord's Prayer." Processionals were "Trumpet Tune" and "Bridal Chorus," with "Trumpet Voluntary" as recessional.

The bride was escorted by her father to an altar graced with white candelabra decorated in white bows and greenery, and rose-colored candles. For her wedding she chose a gown of white organza with fitted bodice of Chantilly beaded lace enhanced with crystal pleated ruffle trim at neck and basque waist. Puffed Juliet sleeves of organza and Chantilly beaded lace came to points at the wrist. The full chiffon shirt was drawn up in tucks to reveal the Chantilly ruffle which flowed to a semi-cathedral train. A fingertip veil trimmed in Chantilly lace fell from a circlet of roses in her hair, the shaded roses matching those in her bouquet, which was accented with babies' breath, greenery, and matching rose satin ribbon.

Renee Heiskala, Cloquet, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. Cousins of the bride, Laurie Walker, Thief River Falls, and Kristell Bugge, St. Hilaire, were bridesmaids. All wore identical floor-length, rose gowns with lace flounce creating a capelet effect. A lace stand-up collar and ruffle accented fitted bodice and empire waistline. They carried rose-covered lace fans, and wore gold bracelets with a heart pendant, their gifts from the bride.

Flower girl was Michelle Bugge, St. Hilaire, cousin of the bride. She wore a rose-colored gown similar to those of the other bridal attendants, and a wreath of roses in her hair, along with her gold heart bracelet, gift from the bride. She carried a basket of roses matching those in the bride's bouquet. The groom's nephew, Joe LaFriniere, Cass Lake, was ring bearer, wearing a suit identical to that of the groom. He carried a white satin pillow with rose-satin ribbon trim.

The groom was attired in a black stroller suit with pinstripe trousers, black vest, white ruffled shirt and black bow tie. His brother, Doug LaFriniere, of Destin, FL, served as best man. Attendants were Kelly Brown, friend, Fargo, ND, and Dennis Heiskala, the groom's brother-in-law, Cloquet.

Ushers were Jim Rooker, brother of the bride, and Mike Tollefson, friend, both of Thief River Falls, and Bryan LaFriniere, Fort Walton Beach, FL, and Brad LaFriniere, Cass Lake, brothers of the groom. Gentlemen attendants wore charcoal gray stroller suits with pinstripe trousers, dove gray vests, white ruffled shirts and black bow ties. Fathers of the bride and groom wore dove gray stroller suits and vests with pink ruffled shirts. All wore rosebud boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length mauve gown with stand-up collar, tucked front bodice and skirt, and long sleeves. The groom's mother was attired in a long burgundy gown with a matching jacket. Their corsages were of shaded rose and pink roses and babies' breath.

Honored guests were grandparents of the bride, Frank Srnsky, St. Hilaire, and Hazel Rooker, Thief River Falls; and grandmother of the groom, Delphine McArthur, Mahnomen. Their boutonniere and corsages were similar to those of the parents of the couple. Kimberly Bugge, St. Hilaire, was flower hostess; and Deb Rooker, East Grand Forks, was in charge of the guest book. Both are cousins of the bride.

A reception was held for the guests in the fellowship hall of the church, which was decorated in the wedding colors of rose and dove gray. Hosts and hostesses were John and Sharon Bugge, St. Hilaire, aunt and uncle of the bride, and Everett and Lisa Johnson, Bemidji, cousins of the groom. Jerry and Deb Hemsted of Bemidji, friends of the couple, served punch; and Chad and Sean Heiskala, Cloquet, nephews of the groom, were in charge of the gifts.

Rose and white centerpiece of the serving table was the three-tiered wedding cake, topped with two large wedding bells and doves. Matching side cakes were also decorated in rose and white. Cakes were baked and decorated by Pat Srnsky, Thief River Falls, aunt of the bride. Jean Walker, Baudette, and Darlene Rooker, Grand Forks, ND, aunts of the bride, cut and served the cake. Pouring were Alice Srnsky, Zimmerman, aunt of the bride, and Joyce Kron, Newfolden, friend of the bride. Waitresses were Kimberly and Shannon Bugge, St. Hilaire, cousins of the bride, and Stephanie and Samantha Borgen, friends of the bride.

The bride designed and fashioned all flowers and floral arrangements for her wedding.

The couple is at home in Bemidji where the bride is employed at Credit Bureau Inc. and the groom is a partner in The Headquarters Barber shop.

Area Volunteers Attend Training Session Here

American Cancer society recently held a specialized certification and re-certification training session at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. The session was held for volunteer workers in the area and coordinated by Sharon Russell, in-service director, and Reach-to-Recovery coordinator, Vivian Brekke.

The Reach-to-Recovery program is a rehabilitation program for women who have had breast cancer. Trained volunteers assist in the physical and emotional rehabilitation of the patient who has had a mastectomy.

Attending for certification were Sr. Elaine Dufrese, Hubbard county; Shirley Humerick, Lake of the Woods county; and Orpha Holmgren, Kittson county. Recertified were June Bergen, Beltrami county; Evelyn Jasme and Betty Dally, Lake of the Woods county; Marlys Oien, Polk county; and Gloria Bugge, Marie Engen and Vivian Brekke from Pennington county. Also present was Edith Harrington, Beltrami county, who is the volunteer trainer for Reach-to-Recovery; Clarice Anderson, Minneapolis, state service director; and Kari Woessner, Bemidji, regional director.

The American Cancer society expressed appreciation to Northwest Medical center for the generous hospitality and all the women who participate and volunteer their time in the support program.

Kassandra LeAnn Panek Born August 12 In Fargo

Kassandra LeAnn Panek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Panek of West Fargo, ND, was born at 1:28 p.m. August 12 at St. John's hospital in Fargo, ND.

Grandparents are Marti Kron of Wannaska, Larry Kron of Newfolden, and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Panek of Goodridge. Great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kron of Newfolden, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. McGlothlin of Denver, CO, and Mrs. Frances Panek of Thief River Falls.

Odegaards Feted At Surprise 25th Anniversary Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Odegaard of Arizona were surprised by relatives and friends at a potluck supper August 3 at their summer home in Hazel to celebrate their 25th anniversary. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Odegaard, Gordon Odegaard of Washington, DC, Dolly Odegaard, Mr. and Mrs. Don Jorstad, Jean Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Nelson and boys, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hutchinson and Vickie, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Helgeland and family, Ethel Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Knutson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nelson and boys, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Johnson and family, Jim Bimbler and Wes Johnson.

Koropatnicki-Sagstuen Plan Sept. Wedding

Koni Koropatnicki and James Sagstuen, together with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Koropatnicki of Goodridge and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sagstuen of Newfolden, are pleased to announce their engagement and forthcoming marriage.

The bride-to-be is a 1986 graduate of Lincoln high school. Her fiance is a graduate of Newfolden high school. Both are employed at Marvin Windows in Warroad.

The wedding will be September 20 at 4 p.m. at Bethany Lutheran church, rural Thief River Falls. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

Grief Support To Discuss Topic, Children And Grief

Walking through the grief experience with a child or a teenager will be discussed at the monthly grief support meeting at the United Methodist church fireside room Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Judy TeBeest will lead the discussion on helping a child or teenager deal with healthy and unhealthy feelings associated with death of a grandparent, parent, sibling or friend. Those who have coped with these feelings are encouraged to come and share their experience.

All meetings are open to any area man, woman, or child who is experiencing a form of grief in any phase. A tape, "Understanding Sibling Grief," and books are available from our loan library. This library is possible through a United Way allotment. For further information or a ride, call Cathy Spengler, 681-1483; Dorothy Bergman, 681-5992; or Ellen Spray, 681-2370.

Campanula Garden Club Met At Pioneer Village

The August meeting of the Campanula garden club was held at the Pioneer village schoolhouse the afternoon of August 14. Nine members were present. Business was conducted with president Ruth Holmes leading the meeting. Secretary's report was given by Viola Koglin, treasurer's report by Ellen Peterson, and good cheer report by Bernice Knutson. A report was also made on the July trip on the Dakota Queen river boat.

Members informed the group of items taken to the Pennington county fair and prizes received, and on the condition of their flower and vegetable gardens. Everyone enjoyed a sack lunch and tour of the village. Inga Geving was a special guest at the meeting.

Also, Myles Hogenson, Middle River; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Olson and family, Minneapolis; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Huot and Roy Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Laursen, all of Red Lake Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Emil Harbott Sr. and Emil Harbott Jr. and David, all of St. Hilaire; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kopp, St. Louis Park; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Larson, Shoreview; and Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Sorenson, Stillwater.

Mr. and Mrs. Obert Lindland recently returned from Coon Rapids where they attended the wedding of their granddaughter, Jennifer Lindland, and Jeffrey Hertz. She is the daughter of Arnold and Bonnie Lindland.

Doran Family Holds 3-Day Reunion In Brainerd

The Doran reunion was held August 15 through 17 at the Tom Doran home in Brainerd. The reunion began with a dinner Friday evening at Kavanaugh's. Saturday a potluck dinner was served on the deck at Tom Doran's and Sunday was spent playing golf and visiting at the home of Bill and Jo Svendsen in Nisswa.

Attending were Ruby Doran, Detroit Lakes; Rodney, Winnie and family, Buffalo, NY; Myrna Doran, St. Anthony Village; Bill and Jo Svendsen and family, Nisswa; Esther Miller, Thief River Falls; Richard, Jan and Jeff Miller, Maplewood; Kathi, Lisa and Christy Miramontes, Fifield, WI; Elmer and Grace Doran, Greenbush; Dennis, Kathy and family, Moorhead; Bud and Del Haywood, Hammond, IN; Wally and Marcy Eskierka and Karen and Adam Birr, Minneapolis; and Tom, Marguerite and Kathy Doran, Brainerd.

Plummer Legion Auxiliary Hears Girls' State Rep

Plummer American Legion auxiliary met August 14 in the clubrooms. 1986 girls' state representative, Robin Brantl, was a special guest, reporting on her trip in June.

Business discussed included 51 paid members to date; Hillcrest games and the need of a leader, with decision tabled until the September meeting; $100 donation toward July 4 fireworks; $500 donation to Legion club for use of facilities and rent; Blast to Brooks September 6 in which auxiliary color bearers will join Legionnaires in the parade.

Esther Walter, Bunny DuChamp and Bernice Peterson will provide the lunch in September, and the door prize will be $8.

Empty Arms Support Group Meeting Thursday At 7:30

Empty Arms Support group will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Crossroads center in Thief River Falls. Anyone experiencing the death of a baby through miscarriage, stillbirth, ectopic or molar pregnancy, or newborn death is invited to attend. Support and comfort are offered by parents who have also suffered such a loss.

M. Reierson Bridal Shower Will Be August 27

The bridal shower for Marcy Reierson has been changed to Wednesday, August 27 at 8 p.m. at Nazareth church in Holt, and not Thursday, August 21 as previously stated. All friends and relatives are invited.

Baby Shower Friday For Mrs. Tony And Deven Burda

A baby shower will be held for Mrs. Tony Burda and infant son, Deven, at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Beito in Strathcona. All friends and relatives are welcome.

Baby Shower In Oklee For Kyla Joy Lundeen And Mom

There will be a baby shower Friday at 8 p.m. at Oak Park Lutheran church, rural Oklee, for Mrs. Kelly Lundeen and baby daughter, Kyla Joy. All friends and relatives are invited to attend.

BPO Does Will Meet Tuesday, August 26

BPO Does will meet August 26 at the Elks lodge with supper at 6:30 p.m. and regular meeting to follow. All members are urged to attend.

HOLT . . .

On Wednesday evening the Nazareth Ladies aid presented a program at the Zion Lutheran ladies aid in Viking.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gerszewski motored to Grafton, ND on Sunday afternoon and viewed the museum and antique place at the Sig Jagielski farm.

On Friday Jeanette Reierson and Clara J. Reierson went to Hibbing where they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Syl Grabanski. On Saturday they were among those who attended the wedding of Ronda Williams and Paul King at Mountain Iron and also attended the reception at Aurora. On Sunday they stopped at Grand Rapids and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Norman Olson and Norman was a patient in the hospital.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday Orvis and Aileen Benitt attended the Farm Fest at Lake Crystal. On Sunday they attended the "Kicks in '86" at Detroit Lakes.

Jeremiah and Andrew Coykendall attended the vacation Bible school at the Nazareth Lutheran church last week. On Sunday Lloyd and Harryet Larson attended and enjoyed the program presented by the Bible school.

On Monday afternoon Irene Bukowski of Maple Lake visited with Harry and Josie Engen.

On Monday Gary and Chris Iverson of Goodridge visited at the Henry Schwartz home.

On Tuesday afternoon Junis Tanner was among the many that attended the funeral for Lisa Sorter at Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls.

Karen Skadsem of Newfolden was a Tuesday visitor and coffee guest of Hilma Horien.

A week ago Wednesday Alfred Hanson of Moorhead and Clarence Hanson of Fargo visited at the Earl Hanson home.

On Thursday afternoon Irene Reese of Roseau, Karen Davidson and Norman of St. Louis MO visited at the Milton Davidson home.

Aaron and Karlene Coykendall, Jeremiah and Andrew left for their home in Aurora, CO after spending some time visiting at the Lloyd Larson home and with relatives in the area. Jeremiah had been visiting with his grandparents since June 1.

Selmer Sorter was among the many who attended the funeral for Lisa Sorter at Trinity Lutheran church in Thief River Falls on Tuesday afternoon.

On Thursday afternoon Junis Tanner attended the funeral services for Iver Iverson at the First Lutheran church in Middle River.

On Wednesday Lori Henrickson of Thief River Falls visited with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Swenson, and also picked lots of cucumbers.

Mr. and Mrs. John Sorenson and Matthew of Thief River Falls were Saturday evening visitors at the Peter Battelion home and enjoyed a potluck supper.

On Sunday Millie Olson and Hilma Johnson visited with Edna Everson of Thief River Falls and enjoyed birthday cake with her. They went to the Pioneer Village and toured that. In the afternoon they were among those who attended the 40th wedding anniversary open house for Pastor and Mrs. Floyd Dalzell at the Evangelical church in Thief River Falls.

On Monday afternoon Lloyd and Harryet Larson visited with Hans and Gladys Haarstad at Newfolden.

Gerry Nelson of Thief River Falls visited briefly at the Harry Engen home.

On Thursday afternoon Selmer Sorter attended the funeral services for Iver Iverson at the First Lutheran church in Middle River.

On Wednesday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Swenson visited with Oscar Swenson in Newfolden.

On Thursday evening Christ and Irene Saustad of Thief River Falls visited with Rudy and Marge Christenson.

Larry and Ione Schiltz, Tim and Kersten of Minnetonka were visitors at the Olga Erickson and Virgil Erickson homes on Saturday.

On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Benitt of Goodhue were supper guests at the Rueben Benitt home.

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Selmer Sorter were among those who enjoyed the supper served by the Life-Line center in Newfolden.

Herbal Medicine From China Studied In U of M Laboratories

From the mountains of southwestern China, to the clinics of Beijing, to the laboratories of the University of Minnesota, a Chinese herbal medicine has shown the potential for preventing damage from reduced blood flow to tissues.

The herbal medicine was originally obtained from a plant that grows only in the Chinese mountains near Tibet. Its active ingredient, anisodamine, has been synthesized and is widely used to treat various states of shock in China, the only country in which it is used.

Anisodamine may turn out to be an invaluable gift from East to West, thanks to a rare collaboration between a Chinese physiologist and an American cardiologist.

Chinese medical workers and Dr. Shu-Lun Zhang, director of the laboratory of microcirculation at the Capital Institute of Pediatrics in Beijing, China, have already seen the clinical value of anisodamine. In China, it has reduced mortality from meningitis from 67 per cent to 12 per cent, and from 25 per cent to one per cent from toxic dysentery. For his work in microcirculation and oxygen transportation to tissues, Zhang has received several scientific achievement awards from the Chinese Academy of Medical Sciences and was named "Model Medical Science Worker" in 1985.

Meanwhile, similar research on tissue oxygenation was being conducted at the university by Dr. Stanley Einzig, associate professor of pediatric cardiology. Einzig uses a technique to measure tissue blood flow in which microspheres - tiny beads slightly larger than red blood cells - are tagged with radioactive isotopes. The oxygen content of blood is measured, and the amoung of oxygen that has been carried by blood flow to a specific area of the body is determined.

Zhang's sister visited Einzig in 1984 while she was a research associate in the university's oncology department. She suggested that the techniques used in Einzig's laboratory would be ideal for investigating Zhang's use of anisodamine. With support from the Women of Variety, Zhang was offered a two-year position as visiting professor of pediatric cardiology at the university's Variety Club Cardiovascular Research Center.

The first year of that collaboration has yielded data on anisodamine's effects and possible applications. Zhang presented some of these results at the annual meeting of the Society for Pediatric Research in Washington, D.C., in May.

In one research project, Zhang, Einzig and colleagues used the microsphere technique to test the hypothesis that anisodamine's therapeutic benefits were related to reversal of hypoxia, a deficiency of oxygen reaching body tissues. Five lambs were studied in five different physiologic states each: during normal breathing, after 15 minutes of breathing a reduced-oxygen mixture to induce hypoxia, after 30 minutes of recovery from hypoxia, 10 minutes after receiving anisodamine and 15 minutes after receiving anisodamine and breating reduced-oxygen air. Each lamb served as its own control for the study, and none appeared harmed by the treatments.

The study shows that anisodamine does improve blood flow and oxygen delivery to certain tissues during hypoxia, Zhang and Einzig said. "It is especially effective in increasing oxygen to the heart, brain and gut, which suggests that it may be effective in reducing damage from a heart attack or other causes of reduced blood flow to vital organs," Einzig said.

No similarly acting drug is available in the United States, he said.

The researchers' experiments show that anisodamine can even increase blood flow above normal in some tissues. This was especially evident in capillaries of the pancreas and retina, which are especially susceptible to damage from diabetes.

"I hope that anisodamine will be studied as a treatment for diabetes, especially for diabetic retinopathy," Zhang said. Diabetic retinopathy, damage to retinal capillaries, is a major cause of blindness.

Zhang and Einzig are willing to let others pursue the possible medical application of anisodamine; they are now collaborating on more basic research and have turned their attention to studying oxygen free radicals, which are unstable molecules involved in oxygen metabolism. They hope to find clues to explain tissue damage when oxygen metobolism is impaired.

Deaths And Funerals

E. Barr, 87

Services for Elizabeth Barr, 87, former Viking resident, were held at 1 p.m. Monday at the Green Funeral chapel. Elizabeth Barr died Thursday at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. Interment was in the Viking cemetery.

Rev. Paul Bortnem officiated at the service. Soloist was Jan Peterson, with Grace Hammer serving as organist. Musical selections were "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Pallbearers were John Johnson, Al Magee, Rick Wojtowicz, Tom Keim, Camilo Carreon and Michael Barr. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Elizabeth Sindelir was born Nov. 19, 1898, in the village of Zic, Bohemia (now Czechoslovakia), to Frank and Katherine Pavek Sindelir. She immigrated with her mother, brothers and sisters to this country in 1903. They settled in the Olivia area where she grew to adulthood. She married Maynard Schafer there and the couple had two children, Ralph and Pearl.

After moving to Viking around 1920, she married Wilsie W. Barr. They had three children, Betty, Charles and Philip. The couple farmed near Viking until 1931, and then moved to Alexandria where they lived until 1936. They moved back to Viking and lived there until her husband's death Jan. 31, 1956. She then moved to Thief River Falls where she lived until her death. She was a resident at the Skylight apartments and the CNC unit of Northwest Medical center.

Elizabeth Barr is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Melvin (Pearl) Johnson, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Joseph (Betty) Covey, Tenton, WA; two sons, Charles Barr, Thief River Falls, and Philip Barr, Grand Rapids; 13 grandchildren; and 18 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her husband and eldest son, Ralph, who died in 1975.

Amy Schroeder, 9

Amy Schroeder, 9, rural Goodridge, died Monday as the result of a drowning accident. Visitation will be at the Green Funeral home in Thief River Falls today (Wednesday) from 7 to 9 p.m. and at the church for one hour prior to the service. Burial will be in the Goodridge cemetery, with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Funeral services for Amy Schroeder will be held Thursday at Faith Lutheran church in Goodridge at 10:30 a.m., with Rev. Jay Borchert officiating. Joy Nordby will serve as organist at the service and sing, with Marie Anderson, "How Great Thou Art" and "Have No Fear, Little Flock." The congregation will join in singing "Children of the Heavenly Father" and "Jesus Loves Me." All friends, relatives and classmates attending the service will be considered honorary pallbearers. Active bearers will be David Hoppe, Thomas Kostick, Curtis Olstad and Steven Saurdiff.

Amy Kristin Schroeder was born July 24, 1977, in Minneapolis. She was baptized in the Christian faith as an infant, and attended schools in Minneapolis and Goodridge.

She is survived by her parents, Bruce and Kristi Anderson, rural Goodridge, a brother, Jason; grandparents, and several aunts, uncles and cousins. She was preceded in death by her father and grandfathers.

L. Dougherty, 85

Funeral services for Leonard S. Dougherty were held Monday at 2 p.m. at St. Bernard's Catholic church with Rev. Gerald Ruelle officiating. Leonard Dougherty died Thursday at Northwest Medical center at the age of 85. Burial was in the church cemetery with the Green Funeral home in charge of arrangements.

Organist for the service was Christie Flatland, with special music by the Resurrection choir. Pallbearers were William Ruelle, James Ruelle, Hubert Gonsorowski, Conrad Gonsorowski, Leonard Dammann and Vernon Oklerlund.

Leonard Stanislaus Dougherty was born Aug. 13, 1901, at Conway, ND, to Michael and Mary Ellen Crowley Dougherty. He grew to adulthood there and attended the Dakota Business college in Fargo, ND. Dec. 30, 1930, he married Ella Molstad at Fort Frances, Ontario.

They lived there for several years and later moved to Thief River Falls. They also lived in Stephen and Warren before retirement in 1968 to Glendale, CA. In 1972 they moved back to Thief River Falls where they have since resided. Ella Dougherty died June 1, 1984. He was a member of the St. Bernard's Catholic church, the Knights of Columbus and Eagles lodge.

Leonard Dougherty is survived by two sons, Raymond, St. Paul, and Michael, Cincinnati, OH; two daughters, Mrs. Curtis (Sharon) Erickson, Tampa, FL, and Mrs Burton (Barbara) Bergeron, Baudette; and six grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his parents; wife, Ella; and three sisters, Ada, Hazel and Anna.

Ed Bruggeman, 92

Mass of Christian Burial was held Monday at 10 a.m. at St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls for Ed Bruggeman, 92, local retired veterinarian, who died Thursday at Northwest Medical center.

Rev. Dave Super and Rev. Stan Bourassa concelebrated the mass, with Christie Flatland serving as organist and music by the Resurrection choir. Dale, David, Donavon, Kenneth, Larry and Richard Bruggeman served as pallbearers.

Edward John Bruggeman was born Apr. 27, 1894, near Fairfax, to Henry and Grace Olinger Bruggeman. He attended school and grew to adulthood in the Bird Island area. Nov. 6, 1917, he was united in marriage to Blanche Derocher there.

The couple lived at Bird Island for four years, then moved to Brooks. They lived there for several years and then in Geddes and Jefferson, SD, returning to Plummer in 1935. They moved to Thief River Falls in 1943. He was a member of St. Bernard's Catholic church and a former member of the Knights of Columbus.

Ed Bruggeman is survived by his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gresmond (Alfreda) Bruggeman, Williston, ND; two daughters, Mrs. Geraldine Nance, Austin, TX, and Mrs. Ken (Norma) Bercaw, Freer, TX; two daughters-in-law, Helen Bruggeman of Thief River Falls and Margaret Bruggeman of Billings, MT; 22 grandchildren; 30 great-grandchildren; and one brother, Herman, Mentor, who is the last survivor of the family.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Blanche, Jan. 16, 1976; two sons, Sidney and Clayton; one granddaughter; his parents; eight brothers, Henry, Phillip, John, Albert, Joseph, Frank, Fred and George; and a sister, Agnes.

Area Ranks Well In Site Studies For Radar System

have land area that would require more than two million cubic yards of grading per sector. Galesburg area has intermediate grading requirements while Blanchard, Thief River Falls and all of the transmit areas are flat enough that grading requirements and erosion concerns are minor.

Surface water is extensive at the Dahlen, Goose River, Galesburg and Wheaton SW study areas but present to a lesser extent at Blanchard, Thief River Falls (western portion), Wheaton N, Wheaton SE and Amherst study areas. Presence of surface water is likely to require rerouting of permanent and seasonal drainage features and the filling of potholes and ponds, disrupting the associated wetlands habitat.

Construction of the groundscreens (wire mesh lying on or near the ground, forming part of the transmitter circuit) would cause some agricultural land to revert to natural grasses, an action which the impact statement terms "a positive ecological impact." Only the eastern half of the Thief River Falls study area has much wooded area and it is believed no federally listed threatened or endangered species occupy any of the study areas.

"Birds may be significantly impacted because of the loss or disruption of habitat and breeding grounds and the possibility of collisions with the antennas," the report states. "The proximity to wetlands, preserves, the Central flyway and grain fields increases the likelihood of collisions."

Potential for wildlife impacts is listed as greatest in the Dahlen, Goose River, Galesburg and Wheaton SW study areas. The eastern portion of the Thief River Falls area contains important wildlife areas and the western portion borders on or contains important wildlife areas. Potential for wildlife impacts exists if the central radar system is built near these areas, according to the report.

Wildlife impacts at Amherst would depend on the specific location in the study area; Blanchard, Wheaton N and Wheaton SE could satisfy the central radar system requirements with minimal wildlife impacts.

Since greatest risk to birds is from collision with the backscreen while flying low between shelter, breeding and feeding areas, collision risk could be mitigated by increasing the visibility of the structure to avoid creating visual attractions or confusing navigation. Other measures involve use of sound to enable birds to sense the antenna arrays. Frequent collisions have not been reported at existing tower structures or similar height in the area.

Socioeconomic Effects

Significant adverse socioeconomic effects are not anticipated at any of the nine areas studied. Population increases from operations, even in the most sparsely settled study areas, would be less than one per cent, the report states. During operation, 390 people would be required for the operations center at the Grand Forks air force base with 50 each for the transmit and receive sites.

Central radar system operations would reduce local unemployment by about one to three percentage points when both indirect effects and the effect of non-local hiring are considered. Construction employment would average about 100 workers each at the operations center, transmit and receive sites over the three to five years of construction.

Most significant socioeconomic impact would be removal of land from agricultural use for the transmit and receive sites. Net loss of farm income of less than $100 per acre would be more than offset by the total wages paid to the operational personnel at the sites. Tax loss resulting from removal of land and buildings from the tax base would be less than one per cent for a county, but more significant to townships or tax districts which contain large protions of the selected area.

"Some landowners would welcome the sale of their property, expecially in light of falling real estate values for farm acreage," the report states. "Others would regard sale of the family farm as a personal loss. From an agricultural resource point of view, the central radar system would affect less land than has been removed from production annually in recent years from every county in the study areas except Traverse...."

Roads typically criss-crossing an area in one-mile grids would have to be re-routed in some cases due to the length of land required for the antenna arrays. Roads remaining near the sites would be improved and maintained.

Relatively few archeological sites are known in the study areas and are not considered a problem, nor is effect of the antenna arrays on the scenery since man-made features such as farm buildings and transmission towers already stand out in the area landscape.

Radiofrequency radiation is a concern in the transmit site area but not in the receive site areas. Exclusion fence in the transmit area would be located so that the average power density at ground level outside the fence would be well below the levels designated by the American National Standards institute for occupational and general public exposure.

Human Health

Because radiation safety is of paramount importance, an in-depth, critical review of the available literature on the biological effects of radiofrequency radiation was carried out. In sum, the review indicates that no reliable scientific evidence exists to suggest that chronic exposure to radiofrequency radiation from the OTH-B radar outside the exclusion fence would be deleterious to the health of even the most susceptible members of the population such as the unborn, infirm or aged.

Electromagnetic Interference And Hazard Effects

The radar system would operate within what is commonly called the high-frequency band. It can operate on a large number of channels and its frequency would depend on changing ionospheric conditions and frequencies used independently by other occupants of the bands — frequencies that the radar would attempt to avoid. Modulation has been carefully designed so as not to interfere with reception on the adjacent bands.

Measurements and experience at the environmental radar system in Maine suggested that harmonic interference with low-band VHF land mobile radio was unlikely at distances greater than about three or four miles, and a similar prediction applies for the central radar system.

Operation of the OTH-B radar is not expected to interfere with reception of broadcast radio beyond about one to two miles of the transmit site. It would not be a threat to fuel-handling operations nor constitute a threat to cardiac pacemakers outside the exclusion fence.

Alternatives

Airborne or satellite surveillance systems could be used in place of the central radar system. However, airborne systems are prohibitively expensive and satellite systems require additional development.

No alternative locations to those identified as study areas have been considered. Operational requirements defined an optimal siting region. Additional operational criteria identified the environmental impact statement study areas and excluded the remaining portions of the siting region.

In conclusion, the summary states the following:

"Significant long-term biophysical impacts from CRS construction and operation are possible, but their occurrence depends on the sites selected. Carefully planned and executed mitigation measures would reduce the likelihood and severity of potential problems.

"Selection of less environmentally favorable sites would result in some significant short-term impacts and require stronger mitigation measures. No significant adverse socioeconomic impacts would occur."

which the proper authorities can now be notified, Richards believes response time will also be faster.

The 911 system gives the law enforcement center the ability to do several things not ordinarily possible on telephone lines. Obviously it speeds up everything, but it also has other features. Most of the 911 services in Minnesota have three main features — forced disconnect, automatic recall option, and automatic hold.

Forced disconnect allows the dispatcher to disconnect calls and prevents prank callers from keeping the line busy by calling and then leaving the phone off the receiver; an automatic recall option allows the dispatcher to ring a phone even if it is off the receiver; and an automatic hold feature does not allow a caller to hang up and disconnect. All these features, and other features like a tape recorded connection and the radio, are designed to assist emergency teams to provide the best possible service.

"It is possible that all four lines will ring at the same time," Richards said. "Say for example, in case of a severe weather warning or tornado sighting, all four lines could light up at the center at the same time. But we plan to keep at least one open all the time, even if it means telling a person to call back on another line. We want to keep one open for emergencies with priority."

The center could put in more lines but it would probably cost a substantial amount. The state of Minnesota determined how many lines were needed for each area and is subsidizing the costs in implementing the 911 phone service.

According to Jim Beutelspacher, state 911 project coordinator, there are three main elements to the cost of the system: (1) The telephone company system modification for the central office in the area; (2) purchase and installation of network and equipment; and (3) the rental cost of the dedicated lines. The state decided in 1978 to pick up the cost of the modification and rental. The county picks up the cost of network installation and equipment.

For Pennington county the modification at the central office was $11,600 and the rental of the dedicated lines is $400 per month. Beutelspacher said the costs from other offices has varied. In some communities the cost has been as high as $30,000 for the modification. The cost of network installation and equipment for Pennington county was $1,560.

Starting in January, however, state costs will be offset by an increase of 14 cents on everyone's telephone bill. Beutelspacher said there has been some concern stated by government and especially county officials that the cost to maintain 911 might be dropped in their lap. The increase seen on phone bills will help maintain 911 and keep it from being a public burden.

Police Solve Auto Theft Cases In TRF

Police in Thief River Falls received many reports of theft and vandalism during the past week, and three auto theft cases were solved when a 16-year-old juvenile admitted taking the cars.

On August 13 a local youth, age 16, was contacted regarding the recent cases of auto theft. He admitted having taken the LeRoy Nabben car, the Dawn Nelson car and also a car from Connie Skibicki. Charges are pending in juvenile court.

Thefts. On August 12 Betty Molstad reported a bike taken from the 100 block of North LaBree. The bike, a 26-inch red and white Husky, was valued at $50. It was located on August 13. On August 12 Gary Flynn, Thief River Falls, reported a stolen bike from the Pamida parking lot. The bike was a 20-inch black Huffy racer. It was valued at $110. On August 12 a bike reported stolen by Dana Jenkins was recovered. On August 13 a local resident reported a garage entered and a bike taken. The bike was a white 20-inch Huffy BMX. It was valued at $110.

On August 14 a local resident reported the theft of a number of canning jars from her garage. The value of the jars was estimated at $86. On August 15 a local resident reported tools taken from a garage sometime in the last month. Items taken included vice grips, crescent wrenches, socket sets and other tools. It is under investigation.

On August 17 Todd Cameron, Thief River Falls, reported the theft of four lug nuts from the rear wheel of his car. The loss was estimated at $6 and repair at $10. It is under investigation.

On August 18 Betty LaCoursiere, Thief River Falls, reported two tires and mag rims taken from a car parked in the Northland village parking lot. The car was jacked up and wheels taken. The loss was estimated at $210.

Vandalism. On August 11 Mrs. Hazel Melvin, Thief River Falls, reported that during the night someone broke her mail box off the post. The cost to repair was estimated at $5. On August 13 John Furuseth, Thief River Falls, reported a windshield damaged with a BB gun. The cost to replace the windshield was estimated at $100. A local youth is making restitution.

On August 17 the city sewer department reported damage to the gate at the lagoon west of the city. Someone pushed over an angle iron post with a brace on it. Damage was estimated at $25.

Accidents. On August 14 at 6:45 p.m. a car owned by Larson Music company and driven by Valerie Larson, Thief River Falls, was going north in the alley between Main and Knight avenue at Third street and a bicycle ridden by Renae Erickson, Thief River Falls, age 14, was headed west on the sidewalk, when the two collided. No damage was reported to the car or bicycle. Renae sustained a minor cut on her left hand.

On August 18 at 1:37 p.m. a car driven by Eric Hammershoy, Thief River Falls, and a car driven by Thomas Ingval Gullikson, route one, Middle River, collided at the entrance to the Northland Plaza parking lot and highway 59. Damage was estimated at $400 to the Hammershoy car and $250 to the Gullikson car.

On August 18 at 6:43 p.m. Becky Leander, Thief River Falls, age 16, was riding her bicycle east on Third street in the crosswalk when she was struck by a dark green car that was headed west and had made a right turn onto Atlantic avenue to go north. Becky was not injured and the bike had only minor damage. The driver of the car stopped and spoke to her and then left.

Other. On August 14 following an investigation into several false alarms from someone requesting emergency assistance from the state patrol, a 10-year-old girl admitted to making the calls.

On August 16 a local resident reported that someone had attempted to enter their home. Marks on the entrance to the home appeared to have been made with a screwdriver. No entry was gained.

SHERIFF NEWS: Several accidents were reported in Pennington county sheriff news in the past week.

Accidents. On August 11 at 8:30 p.m. Curtis Rude, Thief River Falls, was traveling south on county road 72, two miles north of highway one when he lost control of his car and it rolled into the ditch. The car was totaled but no injuries were reported.

ROY HOPE, Gospel concert and recording artist, will share a program of sacred song and testimony at Our Saviour's Lutheran church, 401 St. Paul avenue South, 7 p.m. August 24. The concert is free and open to the public, and a freewill offering will be received. Roy Hope has performed as many as 200 concerts a year for the past 14 years and has produced 38 record albums. His work has also taken him throughout the United States, Norway and Canada.

On August 13 at 3:25 p.m. an International Scout driven by Raynold Ulrich, Thief River Falls, was traveling east on Pennington county state aid highway three, about four miles west of highway 32 when the trailer he was towing started to fishtail. Both the Scout and trailer went into the ditch and rolled over. Damage to the Scout was estimated at $400 and $2,500 to the trailer and its load of furniture.

On August 14 at 8:15 p.m. a three-wheeler driven by Lynell Armstrong, Thief River Falls, was involved in an accident in Rocksbury township. A passenger, Virginia Armstrong, jumped from the ATV and sprained her right wrist. The machine was not damaged.

On August 15 Harvey Langness, Grygla, reported that his vehicle was backed into while it was parked at Anderson Power and Equipment in Thief River Falls. He was parked facing east and the damage was to the driver's door. Damage was estimated at $300. The other vehicle left the scene.

On August 17 at 1 p.m. a car driven by Richard Dahlman, Lancaster, was going west on county road 8 when it hit a large rock in the roadway. The road is under construction. Damage to the vehicle, owned by Dale Hanson of Thief River Falls, was estimated at $300.

Other. On August 17 Penford Roisland, Goodridge, reported that someone had run over his mailbox on August 10. Damage was done to the post and the loss was estimated at $5.

On August 11 Johnson Greenline reported that someone had vandalized two tractors by shooting out the windows. It appeared that the windows were shot with a BB or pellet gun. The amount of damage is unknown at this time.

Booklet Offered For Inventors, Entrepreneurs

"A Guide to Intellectual Property Protection" is the title of a new publication prepared by the Minnesota small business assistance office and a St. Paul law firm to alert inventors and entrepreneurs on protection of new ideas and the products which result from them.

The booklet familiarizes the inventor, creator or developer of a new idea with the basic legal framework that is available to protect that idea and help him or her decide which, if any, type of protection is available for a particular idea and worth obtaining.

Copies of the publication are available free of charge from the Minnesota Small Business Assistance Office, 900 American Center, 150 East Kellogg Boulevard, St. Paul, MN 55101.

Fee for the blood pressure clinic is $1. Appointment for the foot care clinic should be made by calling 681-5950.

PTA Encourages Parents To Share Child's Education

Many parents want to be involved in their children's education, but they often don't know what to do or how to get started. The national PTA has developed suggestions for parents as they prepare themselves and their children for the coming school year.

"One study after another has verified that the most successful students are those whose parents become actively involved in the educational and decision-making process," says Ann Kahn, president of the national PTA. "There is no doubt that parent involvement represents a powerful way of making schools more effective, and of dramatically enriching children's academic experience."

In a recently published guide "Parent Involvement: What Your PTA Can Do," the national PTA has divided parental involvement into three areas: Parents acting as participants in their children's education at home, as school volunteers and supporters, and as participants in school decision making.

Kahn noted that "parents are the first and probably the most important teachers their children will ever have. In the early years, parents prepare their children for later teaching by a professional," she said.

Parents have contact with their children for much of the 92 per cent of the time they are not in school, Kahn added. Among the areas where many parents like to help their children is homework. A 1985 study on effective schools found that students whose parents help them with homework do better in school and have a more positive attitude toward education than students who do not receive such assistance.

Among the suggestions the PTA makes to parents is that they establish homework routines early and distinguish between showing an interest in a child's homework and actually doing it for him or her. Some ways parents can establish a homework routine for their child are to:

(1) Set a regular time and place for studying. In the primary grades, take 10 minutes daily to read and talk to your child before doing homework. In the upper elementary grades, set aside a half hour for studying and reviewing.

(2) If the homework includes directions, read them or have your child read them aloud. Make sure your child is following the directions. If not, demonstrate an example, try one together, then have the child try one alone.

(3) When your child is finished, check the work and circle errors to be corrected. Sign the homework. This will help foster the home-school connection.

(4) If you don't understand an assignment your child has received, ask the teacher for clarification. Write notes to teachers from time to time indicating what you've observed about your child's homework progress.

"Parent Involvement: What Your PTA Can Do" offers specific suggestions to parents about how to get involved in their children's education. The guide is available for 50 cents from the Publications Department at National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, IL 60611.

Third Of All New Homes Sold Are Manufactured

Almost a third of all new single-family homes sold in America last year were manufactured homes. The cost per square foot of new manufactured homes has decreased slightly in the last two years (from $20.29 in 1983 to $20.19 in 1985), while the average per square foot cost of site built homes increased from $41.65 in 1983 to $45.[illegible] in 1985.

These are just a few of the statistics contained in the 1986 edition of "Quick Facts About the Manufactured Housing Industry," published by the Manufactured Housing Institute (MHI).

Some of the highlights contained in this year's edition are the following:

Manufacturers sold 283,489 new homes in 1985.

Of the new manufactured homes sold in 1985, 33 per cent were multi-section homes, up from 29 per cent in 1984 and 27 per cent in 1983.

The average sales price of a manufactured home in 1985 was $21,800, compared to $80,720 for a site-built home (both excluding land).

Ninety-five per cent of manufactured homes are not moved once transported to a homesite.

Some 72 per cent of new manufactured home buyers are under age 40 and their median household income is $19,800.

Voting System To Be Demonstrated At State Fair

A new voting system will be demonstrated to the public at the Minnesota state fair. The system, which incorporates some of the most advanced technology available, is being examined by the office of secretary of state to be certified for use in Minnesota elections.

The new system will be set up in the secretary of state's booth in the education building, where fairgoers are encouraged to stop and cast a sample ballot. Voters will receive a version of the paper ballot currently used by many Minnesotans on which votes are marked using an ordinary pencil. Ballots are then read and tabulated automatically by the system.

Sample ballots used in this demonstration will allow voters to express their preferences for presidential and vice presidential candidates in the 1988 national elections. The ballots will also contain questions regarding the precinct caucuses, and the possibility of conducting a Presidential primary election in Minnesota.

The demonstration will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on each day of the state fair.

Teens At Risk In Minnesota's Traffic Mishaps

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death of teenagers with nearly 10,000 dying in crashes each year, according to national statistics.

Teenagers in Minnesota are also at a high risk in traffic crashes with over 100 15 to 19-year-olds killed last year alone, according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

"Of any age group, 15 to 19-year-olds were most likely to be killed or injured in traffic crashes last year, but the least likely to wear safety belts," state Paul Tschida, public safety commissioner.

Fifteen to nineteen-year-olds were also the most likely to be killed in alcohol-related accidents, accounting for one-fourth of all alcohol-involved traffic deaths in 1985, added Tschida.

As drivers, teens are again over-involved in traffic crashes. Sixteen to 20-year-old drivers are involved in more traffic crashes than any other age group, according to the department of public safety. While they account or less than 10 per cent of all licensed drivers, they have been involved in 16 per cent of all crashes and 21 per cent of all night time crashes (6 p.m. to 6 a.m.) so far this year.

A higher percentage of 16 to 20-year-old drivers killed in Minnesota last year had been drinking than any other age group. Of those tested, 67 per cent had alcohol in their systems at the time of the accident. Nationally, drivers under 21 account for one-fourth of all alcohol-related fatalities although they constitute only 10 per cent of the drivers.

"Lack of driving experience, experimenting with alcohol or drugs and failing to wear safety belts is a lethal combination for our teens," said Tschida. "We expect the new drinking age law to help reduce these accidents, but we must continue to educate teens on the importance of buckling up and refraining from drinking and driving."

Young adults, age 21 to 25, are also over-represented in traffic crashes. They are the second most likely age group to be killed or injured in all traffic crashes and in alcohol-related crashes. Although they constitute only 13 per cent of the licensed drivers in Minnesota, they were involved in 18 per cent of all fatal crashes so far this year.

Young adult drivers were also over-involved in alcohol related crashes. In 1985 62 per cent of the drivers killed between ages 21 and 25 had been drinking.

Children's Book Authors Evaluate Writers' Stories

Three well-known children's authors will evaluate story manuscripts submitted prior to the seventh annual Writers' Conference in Children's Literature Oct. 30-31 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Authors attending the conference who will evaluate manuscripts are:

Joan Blos, author of "Brothers of the Heart: A Story of the Old Northwest, 1837-38"; Elizabeth Levy, author of the "Jake and Jody" mysteries and the "Something Queer" stories; and Barbara Williams, author of "Albert's Toothache," Kevin's Grandma" and "Tell the Truth Marly Dee."

Also attending the conference is Emily Rhoads Johnson, author of "Spring and the Shadow Man." She is the originator of the UND children's literature conference.

The authors will discuss the manuscripts in private sessions held during the conference. Each manuscript of 1,000 words or less must be typed, double-spaced and mailed by October 10 to Faythe Thureen, route 2, East Grand Forks, Minn. 56721. The fee for each manuscript is $12.

The conference will highlight workshops about writing the junior novel and magazine articles, and review children's books. Other activities are panel discussions, public lectures, a book sale and an autograph party.

For more information, contact the conference directors, Martha Meek or Norton Kinghorn, UND department of English, Box 8237 University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58202, or call (701) 777-3321.

Garr To Become Dental Assistant

Jennifer Garr of Thief River Falls has been accepted for training in the dental assistant program beginning August 25 at the Minnesota Institute of Medical and Dental Careers, Inc. She is scheduled to complete the program in April of 1987 with skills to assist dentists with all chairside and patient care procedures.

Social Security Men Here Tuesday

Ted Hoverston and Neil Rowe, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office, will be in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium on Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

STUDENTS from Thief River Falls schools recently attended Legionville school patrol training camp near Brainerd. Both groups were sponsored by Thief River Falls Legion post 117 and auxiliary. Training for the students included how to work a crossing and first aid. Students also participated in canoeing, swimming and other camp activities. Some of the campers are pictured above. Those attending camp were Heather Shafland, Heather Hedlund, Michelle Lampe, Charity Peterson, Sara Tyler, Karla Fredrickson, Stephanie Swanson, Angie Goulet, Jenny Saustad, Donna McGeary; Bradley Svir, Joby Looker, Kyle Golby, Erick Dahl, Robert Blumke and Mark Tangquist.

Leisure Time Is Major Cause Of Teenage Obesity

Teenage obesity has increased by 40 per cent in the past 20 years. That translates to 4.5 million 12 to 17-year-olds who are at least 20 per cent overweight.

Many factors have contributed to the rise in teenage obesity. One factor is the increase in leisure time. The American Demographic magazine reports that in 1974, 50 per cent of the U.S. teens had after school jobs; now only 30 per cent do.

"Kids have more leisure time, but they aren't as physically active," says Janie Cooperman, registered dietician at Children's Hospital of St. Paul. "They use the time to watch T.V. or talk on the phone."

Television itself is a big factor in teenage obesity. On the average, teenagers spend 25 hours a week watching T.V. which requires no energy and reduces the amount of time that could be spent exercising. Another disadvantage of television is that one of the products most heavily advertised on T.V. is food. And the food advertised is high in calories — sugared breakfast cereals, candy bars, cakes, cookies and carbonated beverages.

Another factor that has affected teenagers' weight is the change in family structures. Karen Clapper, also a registered dietician at Children's Hospital of St. Paul, feels that an increase in divorce has led to an increase in child and teenage obesity. "When the child is with one parent during the week and with the other parent on weekends, each parent tries to buy the child's affection with food and good times," says Clapper. "I've noticed it more and more recently."

Growing up in a two-career family can also affect teenagers' eating habits. "Kids at a younger age are responsible for their after school snacks and evening meals," says Clapper. "They're more likely to look for something that they can prepare fast." Clapper also feels that sometimes working parents feel sorry for their child. "They compensate for it (their working) by providing treats rewarding the child with food."

Teenagers who are overweight tend to have a very poor self image. That sense of worthlessness leads to feelings of rejection, withdrawal, isolation, depression and boredom. And those feelings lead to an increase in eating.

If your teenage son or daughter is overweight, consult your family physician. The physician may refer your teenager to a weight control program run by a hospital or community agency. These programs emphasize that the way to control weight is to change eating and exercise habits. There are many things parents can do to help their teenagers lose weight, such as:

— Avoid purchasing high calorie, hard-to-resist snack items.

— Purchase ample supplies of lower calorie, nutritious snacks.

— Don't leave food on kitchen counters or other redily accessible areas.

— Eat meals in the same place and at the same time every day.

— Stress the importance of not eating while watching T.V., reading a book or doing other activities.

— Encourage physical activity. Find family activities that involve exercise.

It's important that obese teenagers get the help they need to change their eating and exercise habits. The younger they start, the better their chances of losing and controlling their weight. Without help, 80 per cent of obese children and teenagers will become obese adults.

IRS Materials To Help Teachers In Classroom Work

High school teachers and administrators across the country are again being offered teaching aids and materials from the Internal Revenue service to help inform their students on how our nation's tax system works.

The free instructional program reaches millions of students each year. The program typically lasts four to six weeks. The IRS says students can be expected to finish the course with an understanding of how to handle their own tax matters and a clearer concept of the economics of our tax system.

Study guides, teacher's manuals and films are supplied by the IRS free of cost to schools participating in the program. School personnel interested in presenting an understanding taxes program should call their IRS office.

DOT Paves Way For Recreation In Road Planning

"We're laying the groundwork for recreational enhancements to our state's trunk highway system and neighboring public lands," states Carol Braun, project coordinator for the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

This action, mandated by the 1986 Minnesota transportation act, calls for the development of a statewide plan in cooperation with the Minnesota department of natural resources to identify opportunities and standards for state highways in areas of unusual scenic interest. Comments from the general public, private organizations and public agencies will be obtained in a series of statewide informational meetings to be held in September. Mn-DOT will use the comments to expand on aspects of the law which would best serve the state as a whole.

A brochure has been developed that outlines the planning process, quotes the law and encourages comments.

For a copy of this handout or additional information contact Carol Braun, Room 704 Transportation Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 or phone (612) 296-3042.

Devise System To Profile Strength And Endurance

A computerized system that can profile the strength and endurance of all major muscle groups and accurately and safely evaulate the abilities of the severely disabled and the strongest athletes has been developed at the University of Minnesota.

The System for Isometric Muscle Strength (SIMS), developed by the university's Rehabilitation Engineering Center, is a significant advance in rehabilitation technology because it provides full-body isometric testing in one chair-like unit. A physical therapist can be taught in a few lessons to monitor the tests, which require less time and are less tiring for patients than testing devices now used.

Most muscle-testing systems evaluate strength and endurance while the patient moves the muscle-joint unit through its full range of motion. The systems consist of several separate units, each designed to evaluate a few muscle groups.

SIMS' design is clean and efficient-looking. The person being tested sits in a chair and is stabilized by an adjustable chest pad and leg and waist straps. The chair converts to a table for tests that require a prone position. Load cells and cables connected to pads or cuffs register the force and length of time the person can push or pull with each muscle group. That information goes to a personal computer and a graph shows muscle strength and endurance.

SIMS can be used to measure the isometric strength and endurance of 23 hand, elbow, shoulder, hip, knee, ankle, trunk and neck actions. The project is the result of teamwork by physical therapists and engineers at the Rehabilitation Engineering Center. Center director Robert Patterson, a biomedical engineer, computerized the system, which is a combination of separate muscle-testing systems developed by physical therapists Tanya Baxter and Glenn Scudder. The design of a single versatile unit was accomplished by a team led by co-investigators Louis Amundsen, a physical therapist, and Patterson. The Researchers developed SIMS under a five-year grant from the National Institute for Handicapped Research.

SIMS' accuracy has been tested and the results presented at national conferences, including the ninth annual Conference on Rehabilitation Technology, held in Minneapolis in June. Medical evaluations on the system are being performed at the university's Children's Rehabilitation Center. SIMS has been used to evaluate patients undergoing therapy for muscular dystrophy, polio and traumatic and athletic injuries.

Rights to produce and market SIMS have been purchased by Twin City Surgical of St. Paul, Minn.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

For five years I have been on a fast track, even using my "between school quarters" periods for two and three-a-day workshops in other states. To regain a perspective, I have done some traveling, including this period of almost two weeks in the southeastern United States. I listened to concerns and opinions, and here's what I heard:

Americans are still sensitive to those in need. They feel that individuals with problems should get help if they are willing to help themselves. One young businessman pointed out that three welfare mothers were picketing for better benefits for their children and themselves. Each woman, when interviewed, admitted having three children, each fathered by the same three men, but the fathers assumed no responsibility for their children.

The young man couldn't understand why he should pay child support for these kids or welfare benefits for their mothers. He also didn't believe that these children were getting the right upbringing. There was general agreement when he said that those in need of jobs or welfare whould be willing to earn a living, even if the available job was neither perfect nor paying in the upper brackets. He believed that welfare and unemployment benefits should never be high enough to discourage anyone from accepting work.

We are living in an era of big personal and government debt. Getting what we want without paying cash up front has put us into hock. Big credit demands have boosted interest rates. Many Americans are worried about their debt loads. They are so worried that lower interest rates and reduced pricing will not influence them to take on more debt.

Americans are not willing to reduce their standard of living to support government programs deemed worthy by those who get the checks. Most Americans seem to figure that their personal and family lives are equally worthy, and government should learn to live within its means. When mayors and governors threaten higher taxes to make up for less federal revenue sharing, many said, "Let's get ourselves new mayors and governors who can learn to live within what we can afford."

There is a latent "generation war." Senior citizens have organized to retain and expand their benefits. They are not willing to pay for these benefits, nor are they desirous of helping the nation solve the financial problems arising from government spending beyond its means. They assume the young will take on the massive national debt burden they helped to create. The younger generation with whom I spoke want "their day" and are not willing to accept a lower standard of living than their high-flying grandparents and parents.

World-wide competition means that American products must be a real value in both price and quality. That converts into a need for higher productivity to keep costs down and maintain earnings levels. There is a growing understanding that earnings may have to be cut, along with our standard of living, to maintain our jobs. Better educated Americans are beginning to cut through the hot air and hokum of those who promise something for nothing, lying better than they can tell the truth.

Walter Mondale saw Americans as "selfish" because they aren't stupid enough to sign blank checks on taxes. He's wrong! Years of education, even under those with biases, have produced inquiring minds that are not easily stifled. Our people are not cattle, easily stampeded with fancy slogans. They want the truth. They want results.

The more I heard, the more confident I became that we are no longer a nation of suckers for a "new deal," a "fair deal," or a "great society," or other meaningless phrases from leaders who have little confidence in our people. Our people want to know the what, the why, and the price they will have to pay. That's not "selfish," it's smart. We wouldn't owe trillions of dollars if we had demanded that kind of information from our leaders, most of whom, including Mr. Mondale, seem to have taken much better care of themselves than the American people they served.

That's Straight Talk!

Millions of Americans are confronted, each year, with the simple decision to retire or not retire. I spoke to many who were considering this decision, some who had already decided and others who were unhappy with what they had done. This retirement question is not simple. The quality of life and available income are just two factors to consider. There are many more.

Quality of life translates into having a reason for living, getting up in the morning and doing something from which you can take some pride. Many assume that an expansion of their vacation activity from two and four week sessions to 52 weeks out of the year would be fun. Fishing, golfing, hiking, gardening, picture taking, travel and visits to relatives and friends on a perpetual basis with no boss, no schedule and no obligations sounded like fun. Many were trying to work at some part-time job or volunteer function that had some meaning. Some had even become full-time Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary, Optimist, Toastmaster and other service club members.

Hitting a small ball around a golf course may have been fun as a hobby, but many said that it wasn't a satisfying full time occupation once they retired. In discussing the quality of their lives, many indicated they believed they had more aches and pains in retirement than when they were full-time workers. Yet, visits to doctors didn't seem to confirm the existence of many of the illnesses they presumed they had. It appeared that a lack of productive activity may contribute to a greater awareness of health problems, actual and imagined.

Living in retirement communities had appeared to offer interesting life opprotunities with people who had similar interests and problems. I was impressed by the Sun Cities and other leisure villages for seniors when I was in my 30's, until I spoke to citizens of such communities. I found that most older folks seem to like living in a mixed age society, even though it means noise and problems from those with families. Prying into this, I heard one sentence, repeatedly, "The big excitement in a retirement community is watching the hearse go by, giving thanks it didn't stop at your home that day."

A number of people contemplating retirement also planned to sell their lifetime business. Each admitted that a good deal, price-wise, had been negotiated. I asked one question, "What are you going to do for the rest of your life now that you have sold your business?" Most responded that they had not explored the answer to that question during the time when they were deciding to sell out. Quality of life is a very important factor that potential retirees must consider, and that gets back to having something worthwhile and satisfying to do.

Another factor is retirement income. This deserves real attention at a very early age, because the availability of an income adequate to enjoy our later years requires planning and sacrificing current consumption for savings decades ahead of those later years. An IRA, Individual Retirement Account, at $2,000 per year, not only can save you taxes, but could be $14,000 in five years, $41,000 in 10 years, $91,000 in 15 years, $182,000 in 20 years, $340,000 in 25 years and more than $600,000 in 30 years, based upon compounding. Sure there will be a social security program that will provide a nice base income for subsistence. If you want more than a subsistence income, you need to start your financial planning early.

Financial planning, which produces both an IRA and a house that is free and clear by your intended retirement date, can convert 10 to 20 years of retirement into an enjoyable experience. Of course this financial planning means learning to save, spending less now, giving up some of those desires you may have in anticipation of a better and fuller life tomorrow. There is no magic wand or secret beyond self discipline, and the happiest retirees I met were those with the money to enjoy their retirement.

A happy retirement doesn't just happen. It takes a lifetime of thought and preparation.

Elder Don Keele To Speak At SDA Day Of Dedication Sat.

Elder and Mrs. Don R. Keele

Seventh-day Adventist church is sponsoring a special day of dedication for its elementary school, teachers, students and parents on Saturday. The day of dedication is being held just prior to the school's opening for the 1986-87 school year on Monday.

Elder Don Keele of Lincoln, NE, will be the keynote speaker for this special event. He will speak at the church's 10:50 a.m. worship service. Elder Keele is the education director of the Mid-American Union of the Seventh-day Adventists. Before his present position in the Mid-America Union, he was the director of the department of education for the Arizona conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Elder Keele and his wife, Della, have four children.

Following the day of dedication, a fellowship potluck meal will be held at noon. Elder Keele will speak again at the 2 p.m. adventures in family living program at the church. His subject will be "Family-oriented Education." The community is welcome to attend. There will be a special program for the children.

PERA Hearing To Close Loophole On Buy Back System

For the first time in its 55-year history, the Public Employees Retirement association (PERA) will conduct a public hearing on a proposed rule designed to close a pension "loophole." The public hearing is set for 9 a.m. September 3 in Room 15 of the State Capitol in St. Paul.

The loophole was created by past agency interpretations of PERA law governing county and local elected officials' exercise of the option to become PERA members. Under these interpretations, elected officials, when exercising their membership option, were allowed to purchase or "buy back" pension credit for years of service in previously held elected offices.

As a result, it was possible for an official to serve for many years in an elective office and contribute nothing to PERA. Then, simply by opting to become a member and paying contributions for prior years of service, this same official could purchase an annuity payable for life at a cost (i.e., the aggregate amount of contributions) that is a fraction of the annuity's actuarial value.

Since the buy back of prior service inflates lifetime pension payments at great cost to the PERA funds, PERA's proposed rule would ultimately end this practice, according to officers of PERA in St. Paul.

A "worst case" example of what has happened under the past interpretations involved a public official who bought back almost 24 years of prior service at a cost of $3,600. Without the buy back, the official's pension would have been $57 per month; after the buy back, the monthly payment increased to $707 — an increase of $650.

The effect on the PERA fund was just as dramatic. Before the buy back, PERA would have had to set aside the sum of $6,500 to support the monthly benefit of $57. After the buy back, the sum required increased to $80,112.91. Thus, at a cost of only $3,600, the annuity's lifetime actuarial value was increased by almost $74,000.

State Fair Notes New Contests And Special Displays

Competition at the 1986 Minnesota State Fair will be highlighted by several new contests and special displays in the livestock, creative activities and education categories. The '86 State Fair runs Aug. 21 through Labor Day, Sept. 1.

Two new features of the fair's open class sheep show are a wool contest and a special display of a breed of sheep rare to North America.

Winning exhibitors in the wool contest will share $500 in prize money. Prize-winning fleeces will be on display throughout the fair in the Sheep Barn.

Also on display will be a flock of Romanov sheep, a prolific Russian breed imported five years ago to Canada on a trial basis. Romanov lambs are born with black wool that turns light gray when the sheep reach maturity. The State Fair display will be the first showing of the breed in the United States.

The State Fair's cattle exhibition will include a special display of Texas Longhorn cattle. The legendary breed is now extremely rare; only one per cent of all cattle in the country are Texas Longhorns. The J5 Cattle Company of Hutchinson, Minn., will show the Longhorns.

The exposition's draft horse show is already the largest of its kind in the nation, and the competition will receive an added distinction this year. The State Fair has been designated as one of several sites for the National Belgian Association's prestigious centennial show. An additional $2,000 will be added to the purse for Belgian draft horse classes.

Roman rider Tad Griffith will make his first State Fair appearances when he performs during the fair's English horse shows. Griffith's act includes a variety of stunts performed in the classic Roman style — astride two bareback horses. Griffith will be featured at paid English horse shows Aug. 22-26.

For the first time in decades, the State Fair's creative activities competition will feature a pie-baking contest. Crisco shortening and Family Circle Magazine are sponsoring the contest, which is part of a nation-wide competition to select each state's best home-baked pie. Minnesota has been chosen to produce chocolate pies.

In the education department, the individual exhibits categories have been increased for the '86 State Fair, giving students in kindergarten through high school a wider range of areas in which to compete. Included are categories for artworks, photography, creative writing, research papers and computer-generated graphics.

For complete information on the State Fair's competitive events, write Entry Department, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, Minn. 55108; phone (612) 642-2217.

Strandquist

Mrs. Irene Larson, Strandquist
436-2690

Wayne and Dona, Donavon and Kellie and Don Donarski Jr. were Sunday visitors at the Walter Donarski home and helped Frances celebrate her 70th birthday.

Pat Larson and Toni Kleinwachter visited with Selma Kleinwachter a week ago Monday.

Boyd and Virginia Sihlberg of St. Paul are spending a few days of their vacation at the parental Earl Sihlberg home. Others visiting Sihlberg's have been Leslie and Jean Maurstad of Argyle, Gene and Dianne Kleinwachter, Vance, Margaret and Lisa Lefrooth, Donovan and Kellie Donarski and baby, Alvin and Delores Erickson, Harold and Doris Walz of Aurora, David and Mickey Epstad of Grand Forks.

Shirley Lefrooth spent Monday through Thursday at St. Paul attending life insurance classes. Ricky Anderson Jr. returned home with grandma Shirley and spent some time here.

Ernie and Vi Erickson left for their home in Washington last Monday after spending about six weeks in this area. They arrived home safely according to word received by sister Ebba Sihlberg.

Mildred Nelson and Ida Bruce accompanied Irene Larson to visit Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Annie Rood and enjoyed lunch with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Tim Hansen, Gretchen and Markus of Thief River Falls were also visitors at the Rood home Sunday.

Myrtle Holmstrom of St. Paul, here for a visit, visited with Shirley Lefrooth Saturday evening. Stanley Larson visited with Shirley Lefrooth Sunday evening.

Jim Stalock visited Sunday at Richard Weiler's.

Bev and Jerry Rux and Samantha and Erica Lefrooth were camping at Lake of the Woods over the past weekend.

Ben Larson visited with Andrew at the Robert Thompson's on Tuesday. Josh and Jerod Britten visited with the Thompsons Wednesday and Thursday and Nicole Thompson was a Saturday afternoon visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyrud and boys of St. Paul spent the past weekend at the Paul Flaten and Harvey Dyrud homes.

We have some new people in our town. Mr. and Mrs. Randy Bengtson and two children have purchased the Dolly Larson home and are now residents of our city.

James Westman has purchased the Audrey Berg home and are also settled here in Strandquist.

Henry and Vanette Pettis and two children have moved their mobile home onto the lot where the Mission Church (now demolished) sat for years.

John and Linda Bodell and children have their movile home in back of the cafe.

Our newlyweds, Loyal and Shelly Lefrooth, are settled in the mobile home vacated by the Lillicos who moved into a mobile home on the Eldor Westman farm.

Pamela Grochowski, Carla and Tiffany of Drayton were Friday visitors and noon luncheon guests at Mildred Nelson's home. Evelyn Kline and Linda Howard visited and were lunch guests Friday afternoon.

Adeline Stennes visited Anne Hansen at her Riverside Terrace apartment at Thief River Falls Wednesday afternoon.

Sterling and Gayle Haugard and boys, Donny and Kari DeLisle of Stephen drove to Brainerd for the North Star national drag races Friday, returning home on Sunday.

Sunday Roger and Judy Larson drove to Erskine to attend a wedding.

Gladys Wilkes of Dixon, MO, arrived from Minneapolis Thursday and is a houseguest at the Kimbrough home.

Saturday the Kimbroughs and Gladys visited with Marion Nyflat at Lake Bronson, later calling at the KMNC to visit Bertha Holmstrom and Sara Wikstrom. Saturday evening Elmer and Anna Holmstrom visited the Kimbroughs and their guest.

Visitors this past week at the Elmer and Anna Holmstrom home have been Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Myhrer, Aaron and Blanche Waterworth, Alvin Holmstrom, Ernest and Gladys Holmstrom, Myrtle Holmstrom, Rose Roslund, Viola Fredricks and Carol Thompson. Saturday evening Elmer and Anna enjoyed pizza supper at Karlstad and later visited with Bertha Holmstrom at the KMNC.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Anderson drove to Thief River Falls on Tuesday to get acquainted with their new granddaughter born August 12th to Keith and Kathy Britten of Karlstad. Congratulations to the grandparents, Morris and Hazel Anderson and Marge Britten and to the proud parents, Keith and Kathy Britten.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson visited at Morris Anderson's Sunday afternoon. In the evening they visited with Donny and Marlys Lefrooth. David Larson of Napa, CA, was also a visitor at Donny Lefrooth's.

For available water supplies to be of any worth to us, they must be usable — clean, drinkable water. Unusable water is the same as no water at all.

In response to growing concerns about the potential for contaminated water supplies, more people are looking to water filters as one way to ensure water quality.

Water filters have specific purposes. It is important to understand those capabilities. It is also important to fully understand the limitations of water filters. Water filters can only do what they are supposed to do.

Water filters filter water. That's all they're meant to do: filter out of water that which is filterable. As water passes through a honeycomb of channels in activated carbon, any contaminants that can be absorbed (taken up and held) will stick to the walls of the channels, and the water becomes filtered.

According to a study by Consumers Union published in the February, 1983 issue of Consumer Reports, water filters do help against three things: (1) Many objectionable tastes and odors, (2) sediments, and (3) organic chemicals.

Water filters do not help against these four things: (1) Hard water, (2) dissolved minerals, (3) the taste and odor of rotten eggs, and (4) bacteria.

A water filter is effective at doing what it is meant to do, but that's all. If you're considering buying a water filter, first find out if there is something wrong with your water and why you wish to treat it.

If necessary, have the water tested. Then be sure that a water filter is capable of doing what you want done. Understand both what a water filter can do as well as what it cannot do in helping to improve water quality.

Water filters are one limited response to dealing with the much larger issue of declining water quality. They are not the answer to water pollution.

No better way to say, "Forever."

Voting System To Be Demonstrated At State Fair

A new voting system will be demonstrated to the public at the Minnesota state fair. The system, which incorporates some of the most advanced technology available, is being examined by the office of secretary of state to be certified for use in Minnesota elections.

The new system will be set up in the secretary of state's booth in the education building, where fairgoers are encouraged to stop and cast a sample ballot. Voters will receive a version of the paper ballot currently used by many Minnesotans on which votes are marked using an ordinary pencil. Ballots are then read and tabulated automatically by the system.

Sample ballots used in this demonstration will allow voters to express their preferences for presidential and vice presidential candidates in the 1988 national elections. The ballots will also contain questions regarding the precinct caucuses, and the possibility of conducting a Presidential primary election in Minnesota.

The demonstration will be conducted from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on each day of the state fair.

Teens At Risk In Minnesota's Traffic Mishaps

Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death of teenagers with nearly 10,000 dying in crashes each year, according to national statistics.

Teenagers in Minnesota are also at a high risk in traffic crashes with over 100 15 to 19-year-olds killed last year alone, according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

"Of any age group, 15 to 19-year-olds were most likely to be killed or injured in traffic crashes last year, but the least likely to wear safety belts," state Paul Tschida, public safety commissioner.

Fifteen to nineteen-year-olds were also the most likely to be killed in alcohol-related accidents, accounting for one-fourth of all alcohol-involved traffic deaths in 1985, added Tschida.

As drivers, teens are again over-involved in traffic crashes. Sixteen to 20-year-old drivers are involved in more traffic crashes than any other age group, according to the department of public safety. While they account or less than 10 per cent of all licensed drivers, they have been involved in 16 per cent of all crashes and 21 per cent of all night time crashes (6 p.m. to 6 a.m.) so far this year.

A higher percentage of 16 to 20-year-old drivers killed in Minnesota last year had been drinking than any other age group. Of those tested, 67 per cent had alcohol in their systems at the time of the accident. Nationally, drivers under 21 account for one-fourth of all alcohol-related fatalities although they constitute only 10 per cent of the drivers.

"Lack of driving experience, experimenting with alcohol or drugs and failing to wear safety belts is a lethal combination for our teens," said Tschida. "We expect the new drinking age law to help reduce these accidents, but we must continue to educate teens on the importance of buckling up and refraining from drinking and driving."

Young adults, age 21 to 25, are also over-represented in traffic crashes. They are the second most likely age group to be killed or injured in all traffic crashes and in alcohol-related crashes. Although they constitute only 13 per cent of the licensed drivers in Minnesota, they were involved in 18 per cent of all fatal crashes so far this year.

Young adult drivers were also over-involved in alcohol related crashes. In 1985 62 per cent of the drivers killed between ages 21 and 25 had been drinking.

Children's Book Authors Evaluate Writers' Stories

Three well-known children's authors will evaluate story manuscripts submitted prior to the seventh annual Writers' Conference in Children's Literature Oct. 30-31 at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks.

Authors attending the conference who will evaluate manuscripts are:

Joan Blos, author of "Brothers of the Heart: A Story of the Old Northwest, 1837-38"; Elizabeth Levy, author of the "Jake and Jody" mysteries and the "Something Queer" stories; and Barbara Williams, author of "Albert's Toothache," Kevin's Grandma" and "Tell the Truth Marly Dee."

Also attending the conference is Emily Rhoads Johnson, author of "Spring and the Shadow Man." She is the originator of the UND children's literature conference.

The authors will discuss the manuscripts in private sessions held during the conference. Each manuscript of 1,000 words or less must be typed, double-spaced and mailed by October 10 to Faythe Thureen, route 2, East Grand Forks, Minn. 56721. The fee for each manuscript is $12.

The conference will highlight workshops about writing the junior novel and magazine articles, and review children's books. Other activities are panel discussions, public lectures, a book sale and an autograph party.

For more information, contact the conference directors, Martha Meek or Norton Kinghorn, UND department of English, Box 8237 University Station, Grand Forks, ND 58202, or call (701) 777-3321.

STUDENTS from Thief River Falls schools recently attended Legionville school patrol training camp near Brainerd. Both groups were sponsored by Thief River Falls Legion post 117 and auxiliary. Training for the students included how to work a crossing and first aid. Students also participated in canoeing, swimming and other camp activities. Some of the campers are pictured above. Those attending camp were Heather Shafland, Heather Hedlund, Michelle Lampe, Charity Peterson, Sara Tyler, Karla Fredrickson, Stephanie Swanson, Angie Goulet, Jenny Saustad, Donna McGeary; Bradley Svir, Joby Looker, Kyle Golby, Erick Dahl, Robert Blumke and Mark Tangquist.

Leisure Time Is Major Cause Of Teenage Obesity

Teenage obesity has increased by 40 per cent in the past 20 years. That translates to 4.5 million 12 to 17-year-olds who are at least 20 per cent overweight.

Many factors have contributed to the rise in teenage obesity. One factor is the increase in leisure time. The American Demographic magazine reports that in 1974, 50 per cent of the U.S. teens had after school jobs; now only 30 per cent do.

"Kids have more leisure time, but they aren't as physically active," says Janie Cooperman, registered dietician at Children's Hospital of St. Paul. "They use the time to watch T.V. or talk on the phone."

Television itself is a big factor in teenage obesity. On the average, teenagers spend 25 hours a week watching T.V. which requires no energy and reduces the amount of time that could be spent exercising. Another disadvantage of television is that one of the products most heavily advertised on T.V. is food. And the food advertised is high in calories — sugared breakfast cereals, candy bars, cakes, cookies and carbonated beverages.

Another factor that has affected teenagers' weight is the change in family structures. Karen Clapper, also a registered dietician at Children's Hospital of St. Paul, feels that an increase in divorce has led to an increase in child and teenage obesity. "When the child is with one parent during the week and with the other parent on weekends, each parent tries to buy the child's affection with food and good times," says Clapper. "I've noticed it more and more recently."

Growing up in a two-career family can also affect teenagers' eating habits. "Kids at a younger age are responsible for their after school snacks and evening meals," says Clapper. "They're more likely to look for something that they can prepare fast." Clapper also feels that sometimes working parents feel sorry for their child. "They compensate for it (their working) by providing treats — rewarding the child with food."

Teenagers who are overweight tend to have a very poor self image. That sense of worthlessness leads to feelings of rejection, withdrawal, isolation, depression and boredom. And those feelings lead to an increase in eating.

If your teenage son or daughter is overweight, consult your family physician. The physician may refer your teenager to a weight control program run by a hospital or community agency. These programs emphasize that the way to control weight is to change eating and exercise habits. There are many things parents can do to help their teenagers lose weight, such as:

— Avoid purchasing high calorie, hard-to-resist snack items.

— Purchase ample supplies of lower calorie, nutritious snacks.

— Don't leave food on kitchen counters or other redily accessible areas.

— Eat meals in the same place and at the same time every day.

— Stress the importance of not eating while watching T.V., reading a book or doing other activities.

— Encourage physical activity. Find family activities that involve exercise.

It's important that obese teenagers get the help they need to change their eating and exercise habits. The younger they start, the better their chances of losing and controlling their weight. Without help, 80 per cent of obese children and teenagers will become obese adults.

Wedul Attends Career School

Kay L. Wedul, Thief River Falls, was among a group of Lutheran Brotherhood district representatives who successfully completed one of the fraternal insurance society's career schools, August 4-7 at St. Olaf college in Northfield.

Career IV school topics included creative selling ideas, charitable giving techniques, investment planning strategies, ways of coping with death and a tax law update.

IRS Materials To Help Teachers In Classroom Work

High school teachers and administrators across the country are again being offered teaching aids and materials from the Internal Revenue service to help inform their students on how our nation's tax system works.

The free instructional program reaches millions of students each year. The program typically lasts four to six weeks. The IRS says students can be expected to finish the course with an understanding of how to handle their own tax matters and a clearer concept of the economics of our tax system.

Study guides, teacher's manuals and films are supplied by the IRS free of cost to schools participating in the program. School personnel interested in presenting an understanding taxes program should call their IRS office.

DOT Paves Way For Recreation In Road Planning

"We're laying the groundwork for recreational enhancements to our state's trunk highway system and neighboring public lands," states Carol Braun, project coordinator for the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT).

This action, mandated by the 1986 Minnesota transportation act, calls for the development of a statewide plan in cooperation with the Minnesota department of natural resources to identify opportunities and standards for state highways in areas of unusual scenic interest. Comments from the general public, private organizations and public agencies will be obtained in a series of statewide informational meetings to be held in September. Mn-DOT will use the comments to expand on aspects of the law which would best serve the state as a whole.

A brochure has been developed that outlines the planning process, quotes the law and encourages comments.

For a copy of this handout or additional information contact Carol Braun, Room 704 Transportation Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 or phone (612) 296-3042.

Devise System To Profile Strength And Endurance

A computerized system that can profile the strength and endurance of all major muscle groups and accurately and safely evaluate the abilities of the severely disabled and the strongest athletes has been developed at the University of Minnesota.

The System for Isometric Muscle Strength (SIMS), developed by the university's Rehabilitation Engineering Center, is a significant advance in rehabilitation technology because it provides full-body isometric testing in one chair-like unit. A physical therapist can be taught in a few lessons to monitor the tests, which require less time and are less tiring for patients than testing devices now used.

Most muscle-testing systems evaluate strength and endurance while the patient moves the muscle-joint unit through its full range of motion. The systems consist of several separate units, each designed to evaluate a few muscle groups.

SIMS' design is clean and efficient-looking. The person being tested sits in a chair and is stabilized by an adjustable chest pad and leg and waist straps. The chair converts to a table for tests that require a prone position. Load cells and cables connected to pads or cuffs register the force and length of time the person can push or pull with each muscle group. That information goes to a personal computer and a graph shows muscle strength and endurance.

SIMS can be used to measure the isometric strength and endurance of 23 hand, elbow, shoulder, hip, knee, ankle, trunk and neck actions. The project is the result of teamwork by physical therapists and engineers at the Rehabilitation Engineering Center. Center director Robert Patterson, a biomedical engineer, computerized the system, which is a combination of separate muscle-testing systems developed by physical therapists Tanya Baxter and Glenn Scudder. The design of a single versatile unit was accomplished by a team led by co-investigators Louis Amundsen, a physical therapist, and Patterson. The Researchers developed SIMS under a five-year grant from the National Institute for Handicapped Research.

SIMS' accuracy has been tested and the results presented at national conferences, including the ninth annual Conference on Rehabilitation Technology, held in Minneapolis in June. Medical evaluations on the system are being performed at the university's Children's Rehabilitation Center. SIMS has been used to evaluate patients undergoing therapy for muscular dystrophy, polio and traumatic and athletic injuries.

Rights to produce and market SIMS have been purchased by Twin City Surgical of St. Paul, Minn.

STRAIGHT TALK

Albert D. Hattis, Associate Professor of Business and Holder of the Schwan Endowed Chair for Free Enterprise, Southwest State University, Marshall

For five years I have been on a fast track, even using my "between school quarters" periods for two and three-a-day workshops in other states. To regain a perspective, I have done some traveling, including this period of almost two weeks in the southeastern United States. I listened to concerns and opinions, and here's what I heard:

Americans are still sensitive to those in need. They feel that individuals with problems should get help if they are willing to help themselves. One young businessman pointed out that three welfare mothers were picketing for better benefits for their children and themselves. Each woman, when interviewed, admitted having three children, each fathered by the same three men, but the fathers assumed no responsibility for their children.

The young man couldn't understand why he should pay child support for these kids or welfare benefits for their mothers. He also didn't believe that these children were getting the right upbringing. There was general agreement when he said that those in need of jobs or welfare whould be willing to earn a living, even if the available job was neither perfect nor paying in the upper brackets. He believed that welfare and unemployment benefits should never be high enough to discourage anyone from accepting work.

We are living in an era of big personal and government debt. Getting what we want without paying cash up front has put us into hock. Big credit demands have boosted interest rates. Many Americans are worried about their debt loads. They are so worried that lower interest rates and reduced pricing will not influence them to take on more debt.

Americans are not willing to reduce their standard of living to support government programs deemed worthy by those who get the checks. Most Americans seem to figure that their personal and family lives are equally worthy, and government should learn to live within its means. When mayors and governors threaten higher taxes to make up for less federal revenue sharing, many said, "Let's get ourselves new mayors and governors who can learn to live within what we can afford."

There is a latent "generation war." Senior citizens have organized to retain and expand their benefits. They are not willing to pay for these benefits, nor are they desirous of helping the nation solve the financial problems arising from government spending beyond its means. They assume the young will take on the massive national debt burden they helped to create. The younger generation with whom I spoke want "their day" and are not willing to accept a lower standard of living than their high-flying grandparents and parents.

World-wide competition means that American products must be a real value in both price and quality. That converts into a need for higher productivity to keep costs down and maintain earnings levels. There is a growing understanding that earnings may have to be cut, along with our standard of living, to maintain our jobs. Better educated Americans are beginning to cut through the hot air and hokum of those who promise something for nothing, lying better than they can tell the truth.

Walter Mondale saw Americans as "selfish" because they aren't stupid enough to sign blank checks on taxes. He's wrong! Years of education, even under those with biases, have produced inquiring minds that are not easily stifled. Our people are not cattle, easily stampeded with fancy slogans. They want the truth. They want results.

The more I heard, the more confident I became that we are no longer a nation of suckers for a "new deal," a "fair deal," or a "great society," or other meaningless phrases from leaders who have little confidence in our people. Our people want to know the what, the why, and the price they will have to pay. That's not "selfish," it's smart. We wouldn't owe trillions of dollars if we had demanded that kind of information from our leaders, most of whom, including Mr. Mondale, seem to have taken much better care of themselves than the American people they served.

That's Straight Talk!

Millions of Americans are confronted, each year, with the simple decision to retire or not retire. I spoke to many who were considering this decision, some who had already decided and others who were unhappy with what they had done. This retirement question is not simple. The quality of life and available income are just two factors to consider. There are many more.

Quality of life translates into having a reason for living, getting up in the morning and doing something from which you can take some pride. Many assume that an expansion of their vacation activity from two and four week sessions to 52 weeks out of the year would be fun. Fishing, golfing, hiking, gardening, picture taking, travel and visits to relatives and friends on a perpetual basis with no boss, no schedule and no obligations sounded like fun. Many were trying to work at some part-time job or volunteer function that had some meaning. Some had even become full-time Lions, Kiwanis, Rotary, Optimist, Toastmaster and other service club members.

Hitting a small ball around a golf course may have been fun as a hobby, but many said that it wasn't a satisfying full time occupation once they retired. In discussing the quality of their lives, many indicated they believed they had more aches and pains in retirement than when they were full-time workers. Yet, visits to doctors didn't seem to confirm the existence of many of the illnesses they presumed they had. It appeared that a lack of productive activity may contribute to a greater awareness of health problems, actual and imagined.

Living in retirement communities had appeared to offer interesting life opprotunities with people who had similar interests and problems. I was impressed by the Sun Cities and other leisure villages for seniors when I was in my 30's, until I spoke to citizens of such communities. I found that most older folks seem to like living in a mixed age society, even though it means noise and problems from those with families. Prying into this, I heard one sentence, repeatedly, "The big excitement in a retirement community is watching the hearse go by, giving thanks it didn't stop at your home that day."

A number of people contemplating retirement also planned to sell their lifetime business. Each admitted that a good deal, price-wise, had been negotiated. I asked one question, "What are you going to do for the rest of your life now that you have sold your business?" Most responded that they had not explored the answer to that question during the time when they were deciding to sell out. Quality of life is a very important factor that potential retirees must consider, and that gets back to having something worthwhile and satisfying to do.

Another factor is retirement income. This deserves real attention at a very early age, because the availability of an income adequate to enjoy our later years requires planning and sacrificing current consumption for savings decades ahead of those later years. An IRA, Individual Retirement Account, at $2,000 per year, not only can save you taxes, but could be $14,000 in five years, $41,000 in 10 years, $91,000 in 15 years, $182,000 in 20 years, $340,000 in 25 years and more than $600,000 in 30 years, based upon compounding. Sure there will be a social security program that will provide a nice base income for subsistence. If you want more than a subsistence income, you need to start your financial planning early.

Financial planning, which produces both an IRA and a house that is free and clear by your intended retirement date, can convert 10 to 20 years of retirement into an enjoyable experience. Of course this financial planning means learning to save, spending less now, giving up some of those desires you may have in anticipation of a better and fuller life tomorrow. There is no magic wand or secret beyond self discipline, and the happiest retirees I met were those with the money to enjoy their retirement.

A happy retirement doesn't just happen. It takes a lifetime of thought and preparation.

Elder Don Keele To Speak At SDA Day Of Dedication Sat.

Elder and Mrs. Don R. Keele

Seventh-day Adventist church is sponsoring a special day of dedication for its elementary school, teachers, students and parents on Saturday. The day of dedication is being held just prior to the school's opening for the 1986-87 school year on Monday.

Elder Don Keele of Lincoln, NE, will be the keynote speaker for this special event. He will speak at the church's 10:50 a.m. worship service. Elder Keele is the education director of the Mid-American Union of the Seventh-day Adventists. Before his present position in the Mid-America Union, he was the director of the department of education for the Arizona conference of Seventh-day Adventists. Elder Keele and his wife, Della, have four children.

Following the day of dedication, a fellowship potluck meal will be held at noon. Elder Keele will speak again at the 2 p.m. adventures in family living program at the church. His subject will be "Family-oriented Education." The community is welcome to attend. There will be a special program for the children.

PERA Hearing To Close Loophole On Buy Back System

For the first time in its 55-year history, the Public Employees Retirement association (PERA) will conduct a public hearing on a proposed rule designed to close a pension "loophole." The public hearing is set for 9 a.m. September 3 in Room 15 of the State Capitol in St. Paul.

The loophole was created by past agency interpretations of PERA law governing county and local elected officials' exercise of the option to become PERA members. Under these interpretations, elected officials, when exercising their membership option, were allowed to purchase or "buy back" pension credit for years of service in previously held elected offices.

As a result, it was possible for an official to serve for many years in an elective office and contribute nothing to PERA. Then, simply by opting to become a member and paying contributions for prior years of service, this same official could purchase an annuity payable for life at a cost (i.e. the aggregate amount of contributions) that is a fraction of the annuity's actuarial value.

Since the buy back of prior service inflates lifetime pension payments at great cost to the PERA funds, PERA's proposed rule would ultimately end this practice, according to officers of PERA in St. Paul.

A "worst case" example of what has happened under the past interpretations involved a public official who bought back almost 24 years of prior service at a cost of $3,600. Without the buy back, the official's pension would have been $57 per month; after the buy back, the monthly payment increased to $707 — an increase of $650.

The effect on the PERA fund was just as dramatic. Before the buy back, PERA would have had to set aside the sum of $6,500 to support the monthly benefit of $57. After the buy back, the sum required increased to $80,112.91. Thus, at a cost of only $3,600, the annuity's lifetime actuarial value was increased by almost $74,000.

State Fair Notes New Contests And Special Displays

Competition at the 1986 Minnesota State Fair will be highlighted by several new contests and special displays in the livestock, creative activities and education categories. The '86 State Fair runs Aug. 21 through Labor Day, Sept. 1.

Two new features of the fair's open class sheep show are a wool contest and a special display of a breed of sheep rare to North America.

Winning exhibitors in the wool contest will share $500 in prize money. Prize-winning fleeces will be on display throughout the fair in the Sheep Barn.

Also on display will be a flock of Romanov sheep, a prolific Russian breed imported five years ago to Canada on a trial basis. Romanov lambs are born with black wool that turns light gray when the sheep reach maturity. The State Fair display will be the first showing of the breed in the United States.

The State Fair's cattle exhibition will include a special display of Texas Longhorn cattle. The legendary breed is now extremely rare; only one per cent of all cattle in the country are Texas Longhorns. The J6 Cattle Company of Hutchinson, Minn., will show the Longhorns.

The exposition's draft horse show is already the largest of its kind in the nation, and the competition will receive an added distinction this year. The State Fair has been designated as one of several sites for the National Belgian Association's prestigious centennial show. An additional $2,000 will be added to the purse for Belgian draft horse classes.

Roman rider Tad Griffith will make his first State Fair appearances when he performs during the fair's English horse shows. Griffith's act includes a variety of stunts performed in the classic Roman style — astride two bareback horses. Griffith will be featured at paid English horse shows Aug. 22-26.

For the first time in decades, the State Fair's creative activities competition will feature a pie-baking contest. Crisco shortening and Family Circle Magazine are sponsoring the contest, which is part of a nation-wide competition to select each state's best home-baked pie. Minnesota has been chosen to produce chocolate pies.

In the education department, the individual exhibits categories have been increased for the '86 State Fair, giving students in kindergarten through high school a wider range of areas in which to compete. Included are categories for artworks, photography, creative writing, research papers and computer-generated graphics.

For complete information on the State Fair's competitive events, write Entry Department, Minnesota State Fair, St. Paul, Minn. 55108; phone (612) 642-2217.

Wayne and Dona, Donavon and Kellie and Don Donarski Jr. were Sunday visitors at the Walter Donarski home and helped Frances celebrate her 70th birthday.

Pat Larson and Toni Kleinwachter visited with Selma Kleinwachter a week ago Monday.

Boyd and Virginia Sihlberg of St. Paul are spending a few days of their vacation at the parental Earl Sihlberg home. Others visiting Sihlberg's have been Leslie and Jean Maurstad of Argyle, Gene and Dianne Kleinwachter, Vance, Margaret and Lisa Lefrooth, Donovan and Kellie Donarski and baby, Alvin and Delores Erickson, Harold and Doris Walz of Aurora, David and Mickey Epstad of Grand Forks.

Shirley Lefrooth spent Monday through Thursday at St. Paul attending life insurance classes. Ricky Anderson Jr. returned home with grandma Shirley and spent some time here.

Delphine Braff visited with her mother Sara Wikstrom at the KMNC Sunday afternoon.

Ernie and Vi Erickson left for their home in Washington last Monday after spending about six weeks in this area. They arrived home safely according to word received by sister Ebba Sihlberg.

Mildred Nelson and Ida Bruce accompanied Irene Larson to visit Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Annie Rood and enjoyed lunch with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Tim Hansen, Gretchen and Markus of Thief River Falls were also visitors at the Rood home Sunday.

Myrtle Holmstrom of St. Paul, here for a visit, visited with Shirley Lefrooth Saturday evening. Stanley Larson visited with Shirley Lefrooth Sunday evening.

Jim Stalock visited Sunday at Richard Weiler's.

Bev and Jerry Rux and Samantha and Erica Lefrooth were camping at Lake of the Woods over the past weekend.

Ben Larson visited with Andrew at the Robert Thompson's on Tuesday. Josh and Jerod Britten visited with the Thompsons Wednesday and Thursday and Nicole Thompson was a Saturday afternoon visitor.

Mr. and Mrs. Dyrud and boys of St. Paul spent the past weekend at the Paul Flaten and Harvey Dyrud homes.

We have some new people in our town. Mr. and Mrs. Randy Bengtson and two children have purchased the Dolly Larson home and are now residents of our city.

James Westman has purchased the Audrey Berg home and are also settled here in Strandquist.

Henry and Vanette Pettis and two children have moved their mobile home onto the lot where the Mission Church (now demolished) sat for years.

John and Linda Bodell and children have their movile home in back of the cafe.

Our newlyweds, Loyal and Shelly Lefrooth, are settled in the mobile home vacated by the Lillicos who moved into a mobile home on the Eldor Westman farm.

Pamela Grochowski, Carla and Tiffany of Drayton were Friday visitors and noon luncheon guests at Mildred Nelson's home. Evelyn Kline and Linda Howard visited and were lunch guests Friday afternoon.

Adeline Stennes visited Anne Hansen at her Riverside Terrace apartment at Thief River Falls Wednesday afternoon.

Sterling and Gayle Haugard and boys, Donny and Kari DeLisle of Stephen drove to Brainerd for the North Star national drag races Friday, returning home on Sunday.

Sunday Roger and Judy Larson drove to Erskine to attend a wedding.

Gladys Wilkes of Dixon, MO, arrived from Minneapolis Thursday and is a houseguest at the Kimbrough home.

Saturday the Kimbroughs and Gladys visited with Marion Nyflat at Lake Bronson, later calling at the KMNC to visit Bertha Holmstrom and Sara Wikstrom. Saturday evening Elmer and Anna Holmstrom visited the Kimbroughs and their guest.

Visitors this past week at the Elmer and Anna Holmstrom home have been Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Myhrer, Aaron and Blanche Waterworth, Alvin Holmstrom, Ernest and Gladys Holmstrom, Myrtle Holmstrom, Rose Rosland, Viola Fredricks and Carol Thompson. Saturday evening Elmer and Anna enjoyed pizza supper at Karlstad and later visited with Bertha Holmstrom at the KMNC.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Anderson drove to Thief River Falls on Tuesday to get acquainted with their new granddaughter born August 12th to Keith and Kathy Britten of Karlstad. Congratulations to the grandparents, Morris and Hazel Anderson and Marge Britten and to the proud parents, Keith and Kathy Britten.

Isaac and Betsy Thompson visited at Morris Anderson's Sunday afternoon. In the evening they visited with Donny and Marlys Lefrooth. David Larson of Napa, CA, was also a visitor at Donny Lefrooth's.

For available water supplies to be of any worth to us, they must be usable — clean, drinkable water. Unusable water is the same as no water at all.

In response to growing concerns about the potential for contaminated water supplies, more people are looking to water filters as one way to ensure water quality.

Water filters have specific purposes. It is important to understand those capabilities. It is also important to fully understand the limitations of water filters. Water filters can only do what they are supposed to do.

Water filters filter water. That's all they're meant to do: filter out of water that which is filterable. As water passes through a honeycomb of channels in activated carbon, any contaminants that can be absorbed (taken up and held) will stick to the walls of the channels, and the water becomes filtered.

According to a study by Consumers Union published in the February, 1983 issue of Consumer Reports, water filters do help against three things: (1) Many objectionable tastes and odors, (2) sediments, and (3) organic chemicals.

Water filters do not help against these four things: (1) Hard water, (2) dissolved minerals, (3) the taste and odor of rotten eggs, and (4) bacteria.

A water filter is effective at doing what it is meant to do, but that's all. If you're considering buying a water filter, first find out if there is something wrong with your water and why you wish to treat it.

If necessary, have the water tested. Then be sure that a water filter is capable of doing what you want done. Understand both what a water filter can do as well as what it cannot do in helping to improve water quality.

Water filters are one limited response to dealing with the much larger issue of declining water quality. They are not the answer to water pollution.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

"The income tax," Will Rogers said, "has made more liars of the American people than golf has."

Rogers made that wisecrack back in 1924 when the tax code was relatively simple by modern standards. Today it is much more complex, so intricate, in fact, that no mortal human can pretend to understand it all. If you take your tax returns to five different accountants, chances are you will get five different results.

It now appears Congress will enact a major overhaul of our tax system that presumably will eliminate many loopholes, lower basic tax rates, and reduce complexity. The sociological implications of such reform would be profound. It could bring taxpayer honesty back into fashion.

The economic repercussions are less clear and will depend to a large extent on what the House-Senate conferees agree to. They must reconcile the differences between their competing versions of tax reform, and the decisions they make will guide our nation's economic performance for a long time to come.

Of the two, the Senate version is vastly preferable, and even it has some serious flaws. In the long term, it would foster economic growth through: lowered individual tax rates that would reduce the bias against work, savings and investment; lowered corporate tax rates that would reduce the after-tax costs of capital investment and doing business; and maintenance of accelerated capital cost recovery allowances over short lives for most plant and equipment.

Unfortunately, in the short term the Senate bill could have an adverse impact on the economy because it: retroactively repeals the investment tax credit in 1986 with no compensating rate reductions; does not fully phase in the tax rate reductions until 1988; and raises the government's tax take by over $30 billion in the next 18 months.

Business will seek improvements in the reform bill during the Conference Committee sessions, but our task will not be easy. House conferees will be fighting to preserve key elements of their bill, many of which would impede economic growth. Senate conferees will have their work cut out for them obtaining a final product that will both simplify the tax code and spur business investment.

In this contest of wills, much is at stake. This tax reform initiative may determine our country's economic performance well into the next century. There is no valid reason why this bill cannot simplify the tax system, reduce tax rates and encourage long-term investment all at the same time. If our elected representatives have their wits about them, we may yet have our cake and eat it too.

The essence of tax reform was best defined by Senator Russell Long 10 years ago: "Don't tax you, don't tax me, tax that fellow behind the tree."

In the current quest for tax reform, it is beginning to look more and more as if that fellow behind the tree is wearing a business suit. The House bill would raise corporate taxes almost 45 per cent and the Senate bill, including the latest corporate tax increase offered by Senate conferees, would raise corporate taxes about 30 per cent.

This is a surefire prescription for economic disaster. At a time when business is striving to modernize and improve its competitive position in international commerce, Congress is considering a draconian raid on corporate treasuries.

The basic concepts of tax reform — wholesale elimination of loopholes and reduction of basic rates — are sound. They would have a dramatic effect on the economy, spurring investment and consumption, providing groundwork for long-term economic growth.

But not if Congress first pounds business on the head with a sledgehammer of massive tax increases. The very possibility of this is already shaking financial markets. Our nation is at a crossroads that will determine our future for a long time to come.

This crisis stems from Congress' failure to comprehend the implications of what it is doing. This is no routine tax reform, shifting goodies around among competing interest groups. Rather, it is an attempt at fundamental change of the very concept of taxing; change that would radically alter the way businesses and individuals work, invest and spend.

But Congress refuses to consider this in its projection of revenues. Using traditional assumptions, it concludes it is facing a major shortfall. Having erected this straw man, it is now scrambling to swat it down by hiking taxes on business.

This approach will surely make prophecy of a revenue shortfall self-fulfilling. It will avail us little to reduce tax rates if, at the same time, we launch a massive assault upon the financial base of business. Capital will flee our shores like rats from a sinking ship. And I hasten to add that we all have a vested interest in the structural integrity of this particular vessel.

Long before he got to the White House, John F. Kennedy wrote "Profiles In Courage," an inspirational book about politicians who sacrificed careers for the sake of principle.

If one were to write a book about Congress today, an appropriate title would be "Profiles In Pandering." In a time when our country is beset by runaway budget deficits, Congress is scrambling to make the problem worse in a transparent attempt to buy votes with money it doesn't have.

At issue are Social Security benefits, which for more than a decade, have been indexed to increases in the cost of living. The law says that if inflation is less than 3 per cent, no increase is triggered. Mind you, retirees do not lose ground against inflation; benefit increases would merely be deferred until the following year.

Well, it now appears inflation for 1986 will come in under 3 per cent! This is — or at least should be — a most favorable development, knocking billions off the deficit at a most opportune time.

But Congress cannot abide good fortune. It is determined to raise benefits despite the law, and the Reagan administration has indicated it will not stand in the way.

Some members of Congress contend that an increase this year will actually save money in the long run, but this is political doubletalk. The so-called "savings" would come out of the pockets of taxpayers who would pay Social Security taxes on a larger proportion of their income.

If Social Security recipients were in dire need, an increase might be justified. But the fact is senior citizens are better off economically than any other demographic group, and for good reason. For more than 10 years, they have been made whole against the ravages of inflation. In the same period, working people who pay the tab have seen their inflation-adjusted earnings decline by 9.4 per cent.

But one-seventh of the population receives Social Security benefits, and this is an election year. Conventional wisdom says anyone who obstructs an increase is a political dead meat.

The conventional wisdom is wrong. The elderly know full well that they are least impoverished of any age group and that they, like the rest of us, have a vested interest in fiscal responsibility. They care about our country and its future, and understand the danger of runaway deficits more than most.

But no one is asking their advice. Rather, Congress is falling all over itself to pander to the elderly, assuming all they care about is their benefit checks. This dreary spectacle is not only bad for our country, it is an insult to our senior citizens.

Sometimes it seems as if life is governed by some immutable law of unintended consequences.

Congress has encountered this phenomenon time and time again, enacting legislation to deal with one problem only to see it used in totally unexpected ways.

A case in point is the Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO). Adopted in 1970, it was meant to protect business from infiltration by organized crime. RICO made it unlawful for any business employee to engage in a "pattern of racketeering activity," which was defined as two offenses in a period of 10 years.

For the first 10 years or so, RICO was generally applied according to its intent. But a few years ago some enterprising attorneys discovered an angle that enables them to use the law for clearly unintended purposes.

You see, RICO permits private suits against any firm alleged to be engaged in racketeering activity, and provides for treble damages to victorious plaintiffs.

Now, waving the prospect of treble damages in front of a lawyer is like waving a red flag in front of a bull. There has been a flood of litigation under RICO in recent years, and precious little of it has anything to do with organized crime.

Just about anyone with a complaint against a business these days seeks redress under RICO, even though the vast majority of suits are against legitmate firms with no ties to organized crime. Indeed, the American Bar Association reports that only about 9 per cent of RICO cases involve activity typical of the criminal underworld.

For example, an insurance firm in California was sued as a racketeer when it refused to make payments under a liability policy on the ground there were misstatements in the application for the policy. In another case, a disagreement over a bank's method of computing its "prime interest" rate metamorphosed into a RICO treble damage action for alleged mail fraud. Similarly, disgruntled securities customers, dissatisfied with the performance of their investments, have constructed private RICO actions against their brokers.

RICO was never intended to serve attorneys as a private hunting license to harass legitimate businesses. Senator Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) and Patrick Leahy (D-VT) have proposed legislation, S.1521, to prevent abuse of RICO. This measure warrants prompt attention and ratification by both houses of Congress.

Tour Group Views Prairie Sites In Area Counties

(Editor's Note: The following summary of the northwest prairie tour sponsored by several participating agencies two weeks ago is reprinted from the Warren Sheaf.)

From the prairies of central Marshall county ridges, to the forested prairies of Polk county, and on to Huot in Red Lake county, by way of 17 miles on the historic Pembina Trail, Sunday was an educational day.

It was the final day of the Northwest Prairie Tour, which began Friday afternoon in Hayes Lake state park in Roseau county. Lake Bronson state park and Skull Lake wildlife management area were toured Saturday.

The tour group of 25 gathered at the Nyed Pioneer cemetery in the northeast corner of Foldahl township, Marshall county, just east of the Old Mill. Over 200 original native plant species are found in this "real mature prairie," according to Paul Rundell, regional resource coordinator of the Department of Natural Resources with offices in Bemidji.

There are between 600 and 700 different species of prairie flowers in Minnesota. They vary according to the part of the state you are in, informed Rundell. On a scale of one to 10, he rated the Nyed cemetery as being a 10 plus. Instead of mowing the cemetery for upkeep, the pioneers burned, which is what kept the vegetation original over the past 100 years.

Fire does not hurt native plants, rather, it helps them, as it frees the elements locked in the dead stems and puts these nutrients back into the soil. Fire also releases the seal on seeds to reseed themselves, explained Mr. Rundell.

The unique grass plant, the Stoney Hill Muhly, was pointed out in the cemetery. It gives the ground a rough, "stoney" effect, because this grass catches dirt from the wind and holds it, raising the plant above the surrounding earth. Mr. Rundell pointed out that most of the growth on prairies is underground, with plants having four to five times the amount of root mass as compared to the plant we see above ground.

Some other plants found in this 1¼-acre Nyed cemetery area, which was set aside when Foldahl township organized in 1882, are: wild onion, lead plant, purple prairie clover, little blue stem grass, green needle grass, wild crocus, hairbells, sage, rose bushes, wild asparagus and wild sunflowers.

Moving to Old Mill State Park, the group heard manager Leonard Anderson explain the "true brush prairie," south of the park entrance, where willow brush is an important component. Most of this area has never been broken and is managed by burning every three years. Fall burning is most effective. Mr. Anderson pointed out the tremendous number of flowers in this area.

Inside the park, over the past six years, a successful effort has been made to restore native prairie by bringing in seeds and plants. Mr. Anderson told how the pioneer Larsons, known as "The Old Mill Larsons," brought Scots Pine cones from Sweden and planted them on the west edge of the park. These original trees have reseeded a large area.

Much work has been done to restore the entrance areas to Old Mill state park to native prairie. Until 1982 the areas were mowed. Manager Anderson hopes visitors appreciate the wild beauty and that this will draw people's attention to the native prairie. North of the entrance is an area of big blue stem grass which is coming back nicely after burning several times. Mr. Rundell rated the Old Mill prairie 7½ on his scale.

Next was the Broten prairie area on the west side of the NW¼ in Section 2, Comstock township. This two-acre patch between trees is "wet mesic prairie" and has never been disturbed by a plow. "It is a dense, unique area for plants you don't find other places. There are some endangered species growing here," informed Rundell, who rated this area slightly under his perfect 10.

At the Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon sanctuary southeast of Warren, Manager Jay and Anne Newell and Eldor and Stella Ondahl had lunch ready. On the tour Newell showed the work being done to restore native prairie on many acres of the 600-acre sanctuary. After herbicides were used to kill weeds, native grass seed, which was secured from Fergus Falls, was seeded. The grasses are coming. "Once you plant prairie, continual management is necessary to keep the weeds under control," explained Newell.

BUFFALO STEAK was served during the Northwest prairie tour at the Old Crossing Treaty state wayside park. Mrs. Al Gjerde of Thief River Falls is shown at left as she and her husband catered the cookout which also included corn on the cob, cole slaw and baked beans.

Waterfowl were observed on Goose Lake, Pennington county's only lake in Section 20, Bray township. The group stopped on state land in the NE¼ of Section 5, Bray township, Pennington county, at the north end of a nearly eight-mile stretch of various types of state-owned lands known as the Goose Lake area. We traveled southward for four and one-half miles on the historic Pembina Trail before coming to Goose Lake where everyone turned out to look at birds and plants. For another two and one-half miles southward along the famous Pembina Trail, many areas were observed in which digging for gravel is encroaching right up to the trail, leaving high gravel ridges which will eventually wash out, destroying the trail.

The trail then crosses Polk County 21 and continues its meandering way through three miles of the northeast corner of Belgium township, past more large piles of gravel the county is taking out after reserving gravel rights to the land it turned over to the state. This area is the Pembina wildlife management area. The Pembina Trail then swings back into Pennington county for almost a mile before it joins with Red Lake County 1 and continues past Dorothy and then five miles more to Old Crossing Treaty state wayside and the Red Lake river, where a stone marks the spot worn down by ox carts as they wended their way down the banks to cross the river.

In the Pembina wildlife management area in Polk county, Belgium township, Section 1, timber is an important part of the prairie, explained Manager Terry Wolfe, especially where there is moisture. The group walked into the dense forest, which is ideal habitat for ruffed grouse. In the marshy part of this wildlife area, several members of the group hiked to see the beaver dams.

Final tour stop was the Huot Wildlife management area, where different forest areas were explained as the group hiked along the Black river before it flows into the Red Lake river. Corridors along rivers are good travel areas for wildlife. Hikers are educated as to the effects floods, chainsaw cutting and beaver activities have on forests.

Al and Orlette Gjerde of Thief River Falls prepared the cookout dinner featuring buffalo steaks. Minnesota's Official Voyageur John T. Rivard of St. Cloud, dressed in his voyageur's outfit, presented the program to about 60 people.

For 200 years, the only business and industry in Canada and the central United States was the fur trade, state Voyageur Rivard. Voyageurs made fur trade possible. The word means traveler. They provided the transportation of goods and people on the water route down the St. Lawrence river and across the Great Lakes.

Fourteen voyageurs were required to paddle the 40-foot-long Montreal canoe, patterned after the smaller Indian canoe, which would be loaded with up to four tons of goods. These brave, young and durable Frenchmen, and French-Indian half-breeds called Metis, learned how to survive in the forest from the Indians. To keep in rhythm while paddling the heavily loaded canoe, voyageurs sang a great number of songs, some of which the Voyageur sang for the group and got them singing also.

"Indians were ingenious," informed Rivard, who demonstrated the making of a canoe and showed stone tools and a variety of furs. Everything the Indians used was made from nature.

Indians introduced the white man to 150 new things to eat, including corn, potatoes, pumpkins, squash, wild rice, maple syrup and many berries, to name a few. They also showed the whites 175 medicines from nature. Europeans had mainly a cereal diet before learning about and obtaining North American plants.

For 150 years, beaver skins were the most popular fur in Europe. The first item of trade goods the Indians wanted was the axe, followed by guns and gun powder, knives and traps. Indian women wanted pots and pans, informed Rivard, who is a descendant of the French voyageurs and a retired Minnesota Historical society sites manager.

Everything transported was tied in 90-pound packs or bales. Falls and rapids in the water route necessitated many portages, which the voyageurs hated, as it meant carrying the packs on their backs. Competition was high among the proud, strong men and a voyageur never carried less than his own weight and, often times, far more. Dried peas and salt pork were standard diet. Voyageurs loved to smoke; in fact, a pipe break was taken every hour and distance was measured by the number of pipe breaks, explained Voyageur Rivard.

Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians and an income scale. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the form and return it to the school. Additional copies of the application form are available at the principal's office in each school. Households should answer all questions on the form. An application which does not contain all of the following information cannot be processed by the school: (1) the total household income and the amount and source of income received by each household member (such as wages, child support, etc.), OR just the household's food stamp case number if the household is currently on food stamps; (2) names of all household members; (3) social security numbers of all household members 21 years of age or older or the word "none" for any adult household member who does not have a social security number; and (4) the signature of an adult household member.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility and verifying data. Applications may be verified by the school or other officials at any time during the school year.

If children are approved for free or reduced price meal benefits, the household must immediately report any increases in household income over $50 per month ($600 per year) and decreases in household size to the school.

Households may apply for benefits at any time during the school year. If a household is not currently eligible but has a decrease in household income, an increase in household size or if a household member becomes unemployed, the household should fill out an application at that time.

In certain cases foster children are eligible for free or reduced price meal benefits regardless of the household's income. If a household has foster children living with them and they wish to apply for free or reduced price meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

Under the provisions of the Policy, James Hodny will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of that official may wish to discuss the decision with that official on an informal basis. The household also has the right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing the following official: David Bakke, School Board Chairman, Rt. 2, Box 100, Newfolden, MN; telephone 874-3352. The MCC schools each have a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

In the operation of our child feeding programs no child will be discriminated against on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, sex or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250.

Common Science

by Joe Jeffers, Ph.D.

Forty-one years ago this month the world entered the nuclear age with the bombing of the Japanese cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Since that time immense arsenals of nuclear weapons have been built. More peaceful uses of atomic energy have also been demonstrated. Just what is meant by atomic energy and what does it have to do with radioactivity?

To understand these terms we must look at the atom. All materials are composed of atoms or combinations of atoms. An atom is the smallest part of any chemical element. Carbon is an element; so are uranium, iron, hydrogen and oxygen. All together there are (or have been) 92 naturally occurring elements. Other chemical materials exist by the combining of elements into compounds.

All atoms are composed of even smaller particles. In the center of the atom, the nucleus, there are protons and neutrons. At varying distances from the nucleus, there are electrons. Since a proton from carbon is just like a proton from oxygen, atoms differ from one another in the number of protons they have. For example, carbon has 6 protons. No other element has 6 protons. There are three different forms (isotopes) of carbon depending on how many neutrons are present. The protons and neutrons are bonded together in the nucleus by a special force peculiar to atoms.

Some of these combinations are very stable; others are unstable. Radioisotopes have unstable nuclei and will break down (decay) into more stable combinations by emitting particles or energy. The rate at which radioisotopes break down is measured in half-lives, the amount of time it takes for one-half of the material to decay. Half-lives range from less than one billionth of a second to more than a billion years.

Radioactivity, then, is the decay of an unstable nucleus of an atom. This decay is accompanied by the release of energy (atomic energy). If the energy release can be controlled, it can be harnessed for useful purposes. For example, one gram of uranium could release as much energy as the burning of one ton of coal. Nuclear reactors use uranium-235 or plutonium-239. These radioisotopes can be bombarded with neutrons.

When a uranium nucleus captures an extra neutron, it becomes very unstable and breaks into two parts (fission). The breakdown releases energy and 2 or 3 new neutrons. These neutrons, in turn, can be captured by other uranium nuclei and a chain reaction can occur. If the chain reaction happens very rapidly with enough uranium, an atomic explosion occurs. On the other hand, if the chain reaction is controlled, the energy release can be harnassed to produce steam that drives turbines which produce electricity. Control rods of cadminum or boron can capture excess neutrons and control the reaction.

Since radiation from radioisotopes is hazardous to living creates, there are dangers even in the peaceful use of this power from the nucleus of the atom. The recent loss of control at the Chernobyl facility in Russia illustratrates the danger.

Pesticides create more problems than they solve. Farmers use some 2.3 billion pounds of bug killers annually. Some are suspected carcinogens; most are toxic. Half of the food we eat contains pesticides. Add to that the fact that the percentage of crops lost to pests today is three times what it was in the 1940's when all of this started and the need to wean ourselves from their use is obvious.

The problem with pesticides is that they cause a greater kill of predators and parasites of pests than they do of the pests themselves. Some small percentage of the pests is resistant to the pesticide and these resistant insects survive to reproduce and pass on their resistance to their offspring. The farmer then must come back with larger doses of more potent pesticides and the cycle repeats itself.

What is needed, of course, is a pest control measure that is selective. Only a particular pest should be killed, not its natural enemies. Several such selective methods are in use or under development. The most obvious of these selective methods is the use of natural predators. Often a major problem occurs when a pest insect is accidently imported and its natural enemies are not around. If these predators are also imported the pest is often brought under control.

For example, the Colorado potato beetle causes tremendous damage to crops. The introduction of the Columbian wasp can control the beetle by reducing its population by 80 per cent. The wasp lays its egg inside the egg of the potato beetle. When the wasp egg hatches, the larva feeds off the beetle egg, killing it. This one natural predator could replace $120 million worth of chemicals. Similar wasps can be used to control cotton boll worms, Mexican bean beetles, cereal leaf beetles, Japanese beetles and several others.

Bacillus thuringiensis (BT), a bacterium that grows a protein-like crystal, can be used to control several types of caterpillars. The crystals are sharp and slit open the gut of a pest, killing its appetite and causing it to develop a fatal infection. Yet it is harmless to predator insects, birds and mammals.

Sterilization of insects can be also be used. Consider the screwfly, which lays its eggs in the open wounds of livestock. The larva, once hatched, feeds on the animal's tissues. If large numbers of male screwflies are exposed to radiation in a laboratory, they are sterilized. These males are then released into an infected area. If they mate with a female, the eggs she lays will not be fertile and will not hatch. Since each female mates just once, she is much less likely to mate with a regular male in the infected area.

Sex attractants can also be used. A female insect releases a chemical scent that attracts a male to mate. The chemical can be isolated and identified by scientists who make the chemical synthetically. If is is used to bait traps in the fields, the males rush to the traps, and the farmer can then dispose of them. Boll weevils are currently controlled this way. The sex attractants for virtually every major pest in the world have already been identified. It is known that male insects detect these sex attractants using receptors in their antennae. Scientists are studying ways to block these receptors so the males will not be stimulated to reproduce.

Scientists have also identified juvenile hormones for many insects. These hormones keep an insect in the larval form. When the insect ceases to make the hormone, metamorphosis occurs and it goes into the pupa stage and then on to the adult. If artificial hormones are sprayed in a crop area, the insects cannot leave the larval stage. After a while they will die. If they cannot reach the adult stage, they cannot reproduce.

For many of the methods presented here, some small percentage of the insect pests will not be affected. These resistant pests will gradually increase in number until the pest control measures will no longer be effective. At this point the method will have to be revised to match the new variety of pest. It is important to remember that these methods control pest populations, they do not eliminate them. The war against the bugs is an ongoing one that will require constant monitoring and change.

Millions of persons every day use some sort of perfume or cologne to give themselves an agreeable or perhaps even enticing odor. One can smell spicy, sweet, fresh, woodsy or floral. If we believe television commercials, we can't possibly be attractive to the opposite sex unless we wear just the right fragrance.

Perfumes have been around for centuries. Our ancestors, of course, had a more compelling reason to use them, since they did not bathe very regularly. Today we can spend from a few cents to hundreds of dollars for a quarter ounce of perfume. In addition to the personal application of perfumes, they are used in industry in a variety of products to improve odors of everything from soaps and paints to raincoats, insecticides and toys.

A perfume is a blend of several perfume ingredients. One perfume may contain as few as 10 of these ingredients or as many as 200. A highly trained perfumer can recognize a thousand different perfume ingredients and can tell something about their quality and perhaps where they came from. He also knows how one ingredient affects another; that is, he knows how they blend together. Since the final quality of a perfume is determined by how it smells, the work of a perfumer is a blend of art and science.

Some perfume ingredients are natural materials. Ingredients like lavender, rosewood, sassafras, peppermint, sandalwood, cloves and citrus oils are essential oils. They are found in seeds, fruits, stems, roots, grasses, woods, barks, leaves and flowers. The essential oils are usually obtained by steam distillation. The plant materials are heated with steam. The steam which now also contains the essential oils is condensed to water. Since the essential oils float on top of water, they are easy to separate.

Usually the most expensive ingredients in perfumes are the floral oils. Jasmine, rose, hyacinth, carnation and orange blossom are examples. They are obtained by a more involved process. The flowers are mixed with a solvent like petroleum ether. It dissolves the oils and waxes of the flowers. Alcohol is then added. It does not mix with the petroleum ether. The floral oils and some waxes dissolve in the alcohol. The alcohol solution is separated and chilled to a minus 20 degrees to precipitate the remaining waxes. The alcohol is distilled off, leaving behind the pure flower oil. In some cases only one pound of floral oil is obtained from a ton of fresh flowers.

Some perfume ingredients come from animals. Castor from the scent glands of the Canadian beaver, civet from the civet cat of Asia and Africa, and musk from the male musk deer of the Himalayas are all used. Oddly enough, at the high concentrations of these materials in the live animal, all are unpleasant odors. Once they are diluted, however, they become rather pleasant.

By studying the structures of natural perfume ingredients, chemists have been able to make many new synthetic ingredients that closely resemble natural ones. With an arsenal of natural and synthetic ingredients, the perfumer is ready to make his perfume. He begins with a base that will set the major odor of the perfume. It may be one of the several essential oils, floral oils or synthetic chemicals. Smaller amounts of others are added to blend the ingredients of the base or to add a bouquet to the perfume.

Finally a fixative must be added to bind the ingredients and make the odor more permanent. Without a fixative, a perfume odor would gradually change with time. The perfume is then diluted with alcohol and chilled for several days to allow any insoluble materials to precipitate. After it is filtered, the perfume is allowed to age for a year or so before it goes to market. Aging allows time for the ingredients to interact in case changes in odor might take place.

Whether a perfume or cologne results depends on the final concentration of perfume in alcohol. A perfume contains from eight ounces to three pounds of perfume per gallon of alcohol; a cologne contains only two to eight ounces.

Geologists often talk of certain rocks as being millions or even billions of years old. Archeologists tell us that an ancient ship wreck happened 5,000 years ago. How do they know these ages? They use a technique called radiochemical dating. It uses the natural decay of radioisotopes to measure time.

Different forms of the same element (isotopes) exist and some may be radioactive. The radioactive ones decay at a measurable rate. The amount of time it takes for one-half of the material to decay is one half-life. Take carbon-14 (C-14) for example. Its half life is 5,730 years. That means that if one had one million atoms of C-14 today, 5,730 years from now only 500,000 atoms would exist. After another 5,730 years, there would be 250,000 atoms, and so on.

When plants and animals are alive, they tend to have a rather constant amount of C-14 compared to the amount of the very stable non radioactive carbon-12. C-14 is continuously made in the atmosphere by the bombardment of nitrogen by neutrons produced by cosmic radiation. Since this C-14 in the air will become part of carbon dioxide CO2), it will enter plants through photosynthesis.

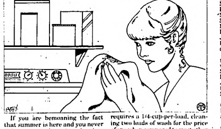
Animals get the C-14 (and C-12) by eating plants and other animals. Living creatures also put CO2 back into the atmosphere through respiration, so the ratio of C-14 to C-12 in the air is the same as it is in living creatures. Once a creature dies, it no longer exchanges CO2 with the atmosphere, so the C-14 level begins to change as it undergoes radioactive decay back to nitrogen. C-12, however, is stable and does not decay.

By comparing the amount of C-14 to C-12 in ancient articles and knowing the rate at which C-14 decays, a scientist can calculate the approximate age of once living materials. C-14 dating has its limits. If an item is older than 40,000 years or so, there isn't enough C-14 left to be accurate.

Rocks millions of years old can be dated by comparing the amounts of potassium-40 (K-40) and argon-40 (Ar-40). K-40 is radioactive and decays to produce Ar-40. When rock is molten, any Ar-40 already present escapes as a gas. Once the rock cools, the only Ar-40 that will occur must come from the decay of K-40. Knowing that K-40 has a half-life of approximately 300 million years will allow the age of the rock to be determined.

If, for example, the amount of Ar-40 found in a rock is exactly the same as the K-40, the rock must be 300 million years old. Dating the oldest rocks depends on the use of radioisotopes with even longer half-lives. Uranium-238 with its half-life of 4.5 billion years can be used for the really old ones.

NEW CLEANING TECHNIQUE MAKES HOUSEKEEPING EASY
Tips To Save You Time and Money



If you are bemoaning the fact that summer is here and you never did a mammoth spring cleaning, don't fret. It's not done anymore. We don't mean that cleaning isn't done, but just that life doesn't stop for it. The days are long gone when all normal activity ceased for a week while the house was turned inside-out. And good riddance. Who wants to spend a week with a vacuum as a sole companion—especially when it's sunny and fragrant outside?

A new technique has emerged which is smiled on by efficiency experts, and found tolerable by all those who can hardly bear to think of cleaning at all. The method is to periodically clean one room thoroughly, and then just do the basics throughout the rest of the house. Forget the seasons, do this all year round, and rotate the rooms of course. This way each room gets a turn at being utterly sparkling, and before it can slip into dusty oblivion, its turn comes around again.

As explained by Deniece Schofield, home management consultant, mother, and author of Confessions of a Happily Organized Family, the technique is simple. First, assemble all your supplies and equipment in the room you are going to clean. Carry the supplies in a plastic pail, so you can move them easily from place to place. Next, remove all washable items from the room — curtains, bedspreads, slipcovers and the like—and take them straight to the washing machine. When faced with large amounts of laundry, choose an economical product such as ERA Plus liquid detergent, which only requires a 1/4-cup-per-load, cleaning two loads of wash for the price of one when compared to most other liquids which require a 1/2-cup-per-wash.

When you begin cleaning, start at the top, vacuuming or dusting top moldings, door frames, curtain rods, etc., and then work down. Don't forget books, picture frames, lampshades and bric-a-brac—the idea is to clean those nooks and crevices you usually skip. Weather permitting, throw open the windows and air the room. Vacuum the furniture. Turn over cushions and mattresses.

Cleaning the room of an adolescent can be tricky and interesting. Prepare yourself for a few surprises, like items of clothing which you thought were stolen by the Martians months ago. No doubt they are not only crumpled, but dirty. For problems like this, Schofield recommends a laundry product such as ERA Plus liquid detergent, which can be applied directly to soils for easy pretreatment, and then used as a through-the-wash cleaner.

When everything is dusted, then polish. Polishing has to be the pleasantest stage of cleaning—everything shines back to you, and you feel virtuous. Finally, vacuum the bottom woodwork, floors and rugs—or mop floors if they are washable.

Jot down the time it takes you to clean each room. As you get better at the job, you can cut down the time. Efficiency is a game you can play with yourself, and the prize is your own satisfaction. When you give top grades to yourself, you've finally tamed housework!

STRANDQUIST...

Irene Nelson visited Mildred Nelson Sunday evening and brought her some goodies from her bake sale at Karlstad Saturday. They enjoyed coffee while they visited.

Eddy Nelson came home from Montana Thursday and spent a long weekend at his home. He returned to work on Monday. While home he and Marcy visited at the children's homes, Tim and Hugh Nelsons and with Ernie and Patti Woinarowicz at Newfolden.

Recent visitors at the Henrickson-Johnson home have been Mr. and Mrs. Donny Henrickson and Mickey; Karen and Willis Skadsem and Jason, Matt Henrickson, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Skadsem of Grand Rapids, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wayne, Larry Henrickson, Brian and Julie Nelson, Brian Jr., Jonathan and Brittany, Leonard Barsvold, Sara and Melissa Johnson of Thief River Falls.

Audrey Setten, after being home at the Alfred Setten home for a couple of weeks, left for his home in Alaska Saturday. Grace and Jessica Grams left for their home at Westbrook and Julie Ann Engler, Justin and Michelle to their home at Heron Lake also on Saturday.

Elsie and Ivan Kimbrough and Gladys Wilkes visited at the Raymond Haugard home at Stephen Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Koechelie and son Brent and daughter Tanis from Edmonton, Alberta, Canada, were Friday overnight guests at the Isaac Thompson home.

Art and Alyce Anderson, Isaac and Betsy Thompson were Sunday evening visitors at Morris Anderson's.

Eunice Lofstrom visited Mildred Nelson on Saturday morning and had coffee with her.

Tuesday supper guests at the Peter and Pearl Thompson home were George and Olga Rasmussen of Karlstad, their daughter Carol and her daughter Kari and son-in-law Phillip all from California and Roy Vogle and Debbie Grandstrand from Canby.

Sunday dinner guests at Peter Thompson's were Mr. and Mrs. David Stromlund of Thief River Falls and Elsie Lefrooth.

Sunday evening Pearl and Peter visited with Leo and Mary Renstrom and Donna.

A week ago Monday afternoon Evelyn Kline mowed Mildred Nelson's lawn. Tuesday she came and raked the lawn and had coffee with Mildred.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thompson and girls and Kristine Brevik visited at Isaac Thompson's. Nelson LeDoux also visited Isaac Saturday.

LaVoi Thun visited with Anne Hansen at Thief River Falls Friday afternoon.

Eva Nelson had surgery on her shoulder at Grand Forks after she fell. She is home again now and doing well. Eddy and Marcy Nelson visited there this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Setten visited with Synneva Rokke at Stephen Saturday afternoon.

Anna and Lorraine Setten visited with Annie Rood at her home Thursday.

Thursday dinner guests at Shirley Kilen's at Holt were Gladys Chwialkowski, Rita Sollund and girls.

Adeline Stennes visited with Gladys Johnson Sunday afternoon.

Bernice Westman and Adeline Stennes were at Stephen Thursday and visited with Lorraine Setterholm and Gladys Lunde. Bernice was an overnight guest Thursday at Adeline Stennes'.

Jack Weaver of Brainerd visited and was a coffee guest at Kline's Thursday.

Tuesday Iola Rokke visited with Ruth Holmstrom at the Oakwood apartments at Karlstad.

Goodridge School Board Proceedings

August 20, 1986
SPECIAL MEETING
Ind. School District No. 561
Goodridge, Minnesota
August 11, 1986

Members present: Norma Hanson, Richard Parnow, Rodney Wayne, Larry Vigen, Harold Nething, Marlin Kotrba.

Also present: Don Langan, Superintendent, Gordon Henrickson, Ad. Asst.

The meeting was called to order by Norma Hanson, Chairperson at 7:30 a.m., in the high school home economics room.

Wayne moved, Nething seconded, to waive the three-day notice. Carried.

Agenda for special meeting was accepted by consensus.

Langan reviewed two capitol project proposals (1) replacement of sidewalks, (2) replacement of elementary roof. Langan explained that he had secured the sidewalk proposal prior to receiving the evaluation report on the elementary roof. Consensus of the Board and recommendation of the superintendent was to proceed with the elementary roof project. Wayne moved, Parnow seconded, to proceed with the roof project with quotation review and decision to be made at the August 18, 1986, regular meeting. Carried. (See Report No. 3.11 and No. 3.12 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

Langan reported on the status of the old gym roof with recommendation that no attempt be made to improve the old gym condition at this time. (See Report and Resolution No. 3.13 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

Capitol expenditure fund balances were reviewed. (See Report No. 3.14 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

Applications for current staff openings were discussed. Langan reported that all effort would be made to recommend contracts in the best interest of the District. Interview procedures would hopefully be completed prior to the August 18 regular Board meeting. Should this not be practical, hiring recommendations would be made at an August 22, 1986 Special Board meeting. (See Reports No. 3.21 to No. 3.24 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

August in-service schedule was reviewed by Mr. Henrickson. (See Report No. 3.31 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

Parnow moved, Kotrba seconded, to change the 1986-1987 school calendar to accommodate August 25-28 in-service. Carried. (See Report No. 3.31 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

Langan reported on District insurance program. (See Report No. 3.5 attached to the Official Board Minutes.)

Meeting adjourned at 9:20 A.M.

TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS AND CREDITORS

It is Ordered and Notice is hereby given that on the 26th day of August, 1986, at 10:30 o'clock A.M., a hearing will be held in the above named Court at Thief River Falls, Minnesota, for the formal probate of an instrument purporting to be the will of the above named decedent, dated April 5, 1983, and for the appointment of Mary Ann Myhrer and Ernest C. Morben whose address is 109 W. Greenwood Blvd., Thief River Falls, MN, and 107 Jerome Street, Thief River Falls, MN, respectively, as personal representative of the estate of the above named decedent in supervised administration, and that any objections thereto must be filed with the Court. That, if proper, and no objections are filed, said personal representative will be appointed to administer the estate, to collect all assets, pay all legal debts, claims, taxes and expenses, and sell real and personal property, and do all necessary acts for the estate. Upon completion of the administration, the representative shall file a final account for the allowance and shall distribute the estate to the persons thereunto entitled as ordered by the Court, and close the estate.

Notice is further given that ALL CREDITORS having claims against said estate are required to present the same to said personal representative or to the Clerk of the Court within four months after the date of this notice or said claims will be barred.

Boosters Sponsor Events

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club will help kick off the 1986 fall sports season this week by sponsoring a pair of events.

Sports Boosters Invitational tennis tournament will be held Thursday beginning at 10 a.m. Girls from Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Thief River Falls will participate in the early-season gathering. The Prowlers opened their tennis schedule Tuesday with a dual meet outing at Roseau.

Saturday's schedule features the Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview. Varsity and junior varsity teams from East Grand Forks, Lake of the Woods, Roseau and Thief River Falls will gear up for the high school football season with scrimmage encounters beginning at 12:30 p.m. at Prowler Field. A barbecue dinner will be served beginning at 5 p.m., a traditional serving of roast pork buns and corn-on-the-cob. Dinner tickets, priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students, will be sold at the field Saturday.

A Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational cross country meet is also on the fall schedule, set for Tuesday, September 30, at the Thief River Golf Club.

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club is kind of like the grandfather organization of the various athletic groups in the city that center around specific sports, like the Blue Like Club for hockey, the Backcourt Club for basketball and the Touchdown Club for football. There's also the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association, which operates the youth hockey program in the city.

Each of those groups serves a definite need, and membership is encouraged, but not at the expense of the Sports Boosters Club, which helps support all of the Thief River Falls athletic programs in a variety of cost-saving measures for the programs — like buying awards for the tennis and cross country meets, and staging football scrimmage. The Pigskin Preview is a major fund-raising effort by the Sports Boosters, who are hoping to draw a large crowd for the event in order to produce the type of revenue they would like to contribute to the various programs.

NCC Football Reunion

A 10-year reunion is being planned for the first two Northland Community College football teams in conjunction for the school's homecoming activities, it was announced by Northland athletic director Rick Nelson.

Northland fielded its first intercollegiate football team in 1976, promptly opening with a 7-2 victory at home over Fergus Falls under coach Chet Engelman. (For the record, let it be known that was the only time in history Northland has been over the .500 mark in football)

Both the 1976 and 1977 teams will be involved in the reunion, which includes a banquet Friday, September 26, at the Best Western Inn. All members of the classes of 1976 and 1977 are also invited to the reunion program. The reunion committee hopes to have a highlight film from that program-opening upset win over Fergus Falls, along with some film clips of other encounters in which the Northmen — now the Pioneers — didn't fare as well.

Anyone who would like to help plan the reunion and its activities are asked to contact Nelson by calling 681-2181. The Pioneers' 1986 homecoming football game will be a Saturday, September 27, assignment against Itasca, a 1:30 p.m. contest that will double as the annual Northalnd Pepsi Bowl.

Miscellaneous

+ Plans continue to be made for the scheduled Saturday, September 27, appearance of the University of Minnesota hockey team at the Thief River Falls Sports Arena. The 7 p.m. intraquad scrimmage, preceded by a picture and autograph session and a clinic, will be sponsored by the Thief River Falls Amateur Hockey Association. Advance sale tickets will be priced at $4 for adults and $2 for ages 14-below. Tickets will be priced $1 higher at the door.

+ Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer noted that Bemidji's post-season Sixth District tournament performance was hampered when several players decided to concentrate on football conditioning drills and a couple of other starters opted to miss the final day of the district tournament to attend a hockey camp. Bemidji lost to Waite Park 13-2 in opening round district play, and after beating Pierz 16-2, fell to Cold Spring 5-0 to bow out of the double-elimination event. Bemidji had beaten Cold Spring 5-0 two months earlier in the Region 8AA high school baseball tournament finals. Waite Park went on to win the state American Legion title. Bemidji wound up at 29-7 this summer, a team-record number of victories, noted Carrington.

+ Mark Lundin, who served as Lincoln High School head baseball coach last spring and coached the Thief River Falls American Legion and VFW baseball teams this summer, begins a full-time teaching position this fall in Warren. He worked as a substitute teacher in the Thief River Falls school system last year.

+ Glenn Chiodo and Tracy Wensloff are new additions to the Thief River Falls football coaching staff.

Area Sports Briefs

Football Meeting

General membership meeting of the new Thief River Falls Touchdown Club will be held Thursday, August 21, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln High School cafeteria.

All those interested in the Thief River Falls football program at the elementary, middle school and high school levels are invited to attend.

Franklin Volleyball

Franklin Middle School seventh and eighth grade volleyball players are asked to pick up their eligibility forms in the Franklin office this week.

Completed forms should be returned Thursday, August 28, at 1 p.m. when a short team meeting and practice sessions will be held in the Franklin gym.

For additional information contact eighth grade volleyball coach Peggy Lawrence, telephone 681-7154, or seventh grade coach Joann Fletcher, telephone 681-1082.

Trappers To Meet

Minnesota Trapper's Association District 2 meeting will be held Saturday, August 23, at 1 p.m. in the Senior Citizen Building at Plummer.

Election of a district director will take place. Guest speaker will be Dan Croke of Duluth, Minnesota Trapper's Association president.

Volleyball Meeting

Women's city league volleyball program meeting will be held Tuesday, September 2, at 7 p.m. at Washington Elementary School.

Captains, and anyone interested in forming a team, are asked to attend the meeting.

League play will start September 16-17.

Women who would like to join a team may contact Cindy Vennes at 681-6852.

Winners of the summer volleyball league playoffs at the Family Bowl was the Schmidt team, a 2-0 winner over Brite Spot in the finals. Team members included Sally Wiltse, Cindy Vennes, Roxie Nicholson, Peggy Lawrence, Chris Lawrence and Lisa Jobin.

Pigskin Preview Starts Football Season Saturday . . .

Offense Is Key To TRF Improvement

Saturday's 13th annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Pigskin Preview will offer fans an early look at the 1986 Lincoln High School football team, but second-year head coach Jeff Mumm, while looking forward to the four-team scrimmage session, says the Prowlers won't be ready to display much of their new offense they hope will help turn things around for the struggling program this fall.

An 0-8 season that produced just one touchdown all year obviously necessitated changes in the Thief River Falls attack, and Mumm has come up with the wing-T set. It's a multiple-formation offense, he explained, featuring numerous shifts and mis-direction plays that is designed to open up both the running and passing games.

"It's a wide-open offense," pointed out Mumm. "No doubt about it, we'll score with it this year."

But it takes some learning to master the wing-T, and there hasn't been enough practice time to put the entire offense in place, so the Prowlers will use a pretty basic attack in the preseason Pigskin Preview outing, according to Mumm. "What you see in the pigskin Preview is not what you'll see during the season," he said."

Thief River Falls will be joined by East Grand Forks, Roseau and Lake of the Woods for the controlled scrimmages. Junior varsity teams will be on the Prowler Field beginning at 12:30 p.m. and the varsity teams will take over beginning at 2:30.

A barbecue-style meal featuring roast pig-on-a-spit and corn-on-the-cob will be served starting at 5 p.m. by the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club. Dinner tickets, priced at $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students, are being sold by members of the football team, and they will be on sale Saturday at the field. It's a major fund-raising effort by the organization that aids the entire Thief River Falls athletic program through a variety of contributions.

A squad of 50 is currently going through daily morning drills, including 17 lettermen. Eleven seniors were lost to graduation off the 1985 team.

"It's been excellent," said Mumm about the early-season work-outs. "We haven't been easy on them. We've been working them really hard, much harder than last year, but their attitude and enthusiasm is just outstanding. The kids are really enthused about the season."

Lettermen on hand include seniors Jon Erickson, Derek Fessler, Dan Richter, Joe Drevlow, Rod Hinrichs, Terry Hawk, Paul Brandt, Nate Dalager, Rick Rosetta, Kyle Kisch, Tony Rondorf, Mark Peterson and Elliot Baker, plus juniors Chris Bjorgaard, Mike Bendickson, Bill Dicken and Chris Nelson. Erickson and Baker are serving as co-captains.

"We've got a lot of competition for jobs," said Mumm. "The juniors are really pushing the seniors. That'll make us a much better football team."

Along with the wing-T, the offense produces preseason optimism because the backfield, in particular, features both talent and experience. Brandt, who spent time at both runningback and flanker a year ago, had an outstanding spring track season, emerging as one of the best sprinters in the area. His size and speed should make him an outstanding football player, believes Mumm.

Bjorgaard took over the quarterbacking duties after the start of his sophomore season, and his strong athletic ability is expected to surface this fall.

Bendickson was a starter at fullback as a sophomore, and he's fighting the challenge of several players, including Rosetta.

That crew will operate behind a line headed by Jon Erickson at center and Drevlow and Hinrichs at the tackles.

While the offensive switch draws most of the attention and will be most noticed by the fans, a change on defense will also be made this fall as the Prowlers leave a 4-4 set (four down linemen and four linebackers) in favor of a five-man front. Baker and Dicken will provide the Prowlers with a couple of strong defensive tackles, and Halling has looked good at defensive end in early drills, said Mumm.

Thief River Falls will skip a Friday, August 29, regular-season-opening date used by most teams in favor of a Tuesday, September 2, visit to Grand Forks Red River, unusual mid-week outing made to accommodate the Roughriders.

It'll be a double-duty season-opening week for the Prowlers, who also play Saturday, September 6, at Detroit Lakes. The Prowlers will continue a four-game season-opening string of road games with trips to Bemidji and Valley City before finishing the regular season with four straight home games against Crookston, Grafton, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks. The home opener is Friday, September 26, vs. Crookston. Homecoming will be Friday, October 3, vs. Grafton.

All Thief River Falls games start at 7:30 p.m.

Dorn Wins City Trap Title

Tony Dorn Jr. emerged as the overall city champion Monday during the annual Thief River Trap League class shoot.

Dorn, Fran Johnson and Orren Bendickson were all deadlocked at 49 after a regulation 50-bird round was completed, and in a 25-bird shoot-off, Dorn was the winner with a 24, while Bendickson had a 23 and Johnson 22.

In the five classes, Dorn was the Class AA winner, Al Steinhauer was the Class A champion, Bendickson was the Class B titlist, Gary Lane was the Class C winner and Troy Hanestad was the Class D champion.

Dorn won out over Johnson for the Class AA prize with that shoot-off.

Steinhauer, Al Boughton and Mark Mattson all tied for Class A honors at 48, but in the shoot-off, Steinhauer had a 24, Mattson 22 and Boughton 21.

Bendickson took the Class B title with his 49, Lane won in Class C with a 47 and Hanestad out-shot Daryl Myers 19-18 in a Class D shoot-off to break a tie at 44.

Peter Tri, who did not participate in the class shoot, carried the highest league average for the 1986 season with a 24.4 figure on a 25-bird round. Dorn carried a 24.2 average, Howard Thorsen and Johnson were both at 24.0, Dennis Zulawski and Sandy Wilson both averaged 23.7 and Pat Fischer averaged 23.5.

Class AA

Tony Dorn Jr. 49, Fran Johnson 49, Stan Sjoberg 48, Bob Mattson 48, Paul Cyr 48, Dennis Zulawski 47, Sandy Wilson 46, Pat Fischer 45, Howard Thorsen 44, Karl Bjorkman 43.

Oklee, Plummer, Marshall County Central, Middle River, Goodridge-Grygla...

Area Nine-Man Teams Preparing For Season-Openers

A couple of changes will present a little different look to the area nine-man high school football conference alignments for the upcoming 1986 season.

Most of the changes center around the North Tri-County Conference, where an Erskine-Mentor cooperative venture will be expanded to include the consolidated McIntosh-Winger program to form a Class B ball club. The league will also lose the Goodridge-Grygla cooperative program to the Top of the State Conference, but will gain Red Lake as a new member.

Oklee, Plummer, Fisher-Climax, Gonvick-Trail, Gary and Clearbrook return intact for a seven-team North Tri-County Conference.

Goodridge-Grygla joins holdover members Argyle, Marshall County Central, Hallock, Tri-County-Strandquist and Stephen in the Top of the State Conference.

Northen Lights Conference remains unchanged with Middle River, Kennedy, Lancaster-Humboldt-St. Vincent, Badger and Oslo-Alvarado as members.

Oklee

Coach Dale Svaren will have a solid group of seniors and good size to build his 1986 Oklee team around, but he voices concern about the Bobcats' lack of speed and quickness.

Svaren, who had the opportunity to serve as a coach for the recent Minnesota High School All-Star football game, has eight seniors on hand, and five players who weigh in at 200 pounds or more, headed by 6-1, 275-pound Dale Olson and 6-3, 240-pound Arlan Hofstad, a pair of seniors.

There's also 6-1, 200-pound senior Kim Vettleson, and a pair of 200-pound juniors in 5-10 Duane Olson and 6-0 Jeff Johnson.

"This is the biggest team we've ever had," acknowledged Svaren, "but we've got to get their feet moving."

Duane Baker, named the top back in the North Tri-County Conference in 1986, is one of four all-conference players lost to graduation of last year's co-champion 7-0 team that lost to Stephen in the opening round quarterfinals of the Section 8 nine-man playoffs. Quarterback Richard Hendrickson and lineman David Cote and Steve Olson were also all-conference picks as seniors last fall.

But the Bobcats do return 5-7, 170-pound senior Greg Bishop in the backfield, where he starred along side of Baker a year ago en route to all-conference honors.

Rest of this year's seniors include 5-5, 125-pound quarterback Todd Bergeron, 6-1, 175-pound lineman Jeff Nelson, 5-9, 180-pound runningback Kyle Cantwell and 5-9, 150-pound runningback Jeff Hamm.

Svaren is hoping to get good leadership out of those eight seniors, a must if the Bobcats are to have a successful season because they have only four juniors and three sophomores on the roster, plus six freshmen.

In addition to Duane Nelson and Jeff Johnson, the juniors include 5-11, 160-pound runningback Peter Bronken and 5-10, 150-pound receiver Chris Lindquist.

Sophomores reporting for preseason drills include 5-5, 120-pound runningback John Olson, 6-1, 150-pound receiver Chris Solien and 5-5, 165-pound lineman Jason Magnell.

Freshman recruits include Isaac Melby, Todd Nelson, Ron Hamm, Steve Westlund, Chad Hammer and Shannon Brekke.

Oklee shared the North Tri-County Conference title with Fisher-Climax a year ago. Svaren rates the Bobcats a "darkhorse" candidate this time around, giving the favorite's role to Gonvick-Trail and Fisher-Climax.

A pair of nonconference games will begin the 1986 season for the Bobcats, who host Ulen-Hitterdahl Friday, August 29, and will visit Nevis Friday, September 5.

Oklee will also serve as the host site for the annual preseason North Tri-County Conference football jamboree Saturday, August 23. Gary will be the only conference team missing that night, and Goodridge-Grygla and Nevis will be on hand to fill out an eight-team field beginning at 6 p.m.

Oklee

Friday, August 29 — Ulen-Hitterdahl, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 5 — at Nevis, 3:30 p.m.; Friday, September 12 — Gary, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 19 — at Gonvick-Trail, 3:30 p.m.; Friday, September 26 — at Plummer, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, October 3 — vs. Fisher-Climax at Fisher, 4:15 p.m.; Friday, October 10 — vs. Redlake (homecoming), 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 14 — Clearbrook, 7:30 p.m.

Plummer

Gary Brantl has half the puzzles put together, but the Plummer coach will have to find the rest of the pieces if the Cardinals are to improve upon last year's 2-6 finish in the North Tri-County Conference.

Five starters are gone from 1985. Graduation took Gary Torkelson, Jeff Engesether, Tom Braaten and Chad Nelson, while a 1986 senior, Wayne Erickson, will be missing because of a family move. Torkelson will be a tough one to replace, admitted Brantl. He was a three-time all-conference selection and a five-year starter for the Cardinals. Erickson was to be one of the Plummer captains this fall.

"We'll miss those kids," acknowledged Brantl, "but we still have some good kids coming back."

Those returning include the entire right side of the Plummer offensive line — 5-8, 150-pound center Tom Hesse, 5-10, 165-pound tackle Neil Huotari and 6-4, 205-pound end Shane Freyholtz. Huotari, an all-conference pick a year ago, and Hesse are seniors. Freyholtz is a junior.

"We'll have to fill out the left side of the line," explained Brantl. "We can't run to the right all the time."

Brantl will also have to find a couple of new runningbacks. "We'll be small back there, but the kids seem to have pretty fair quickness and foot speed," he said.

That may lead to an increase in the number of pass plays being called in the Plummer huddle as 6-4, 175-pound junior Wade Grinde, who took over the quarterbacking duties midway through 1985 season, looks to Freyholtz. That combination proved effective last fall and should be productive this time out, too, said Brantl.

John Fisher, a 5-7, 140-pounder, and Dan Wichterman, a 5-8, 135-pounder, are a pair of runningbacks who round out the four Plummer seniors on hand. Huotari and Fisher will serve as co-captains.

Rest of the juniors include 5-5, 145-pound receiver Joe Peters, 5-9, 170-pound lineman Tony Jaeger and 6-0, 200-pound lineman Steve Pahlen.

A good-size sophomore crew includes 5-7, 125-pound runningback-quarterback Craig Brantl, 5-8, 126-pound runningback Stuart Nelson, 5-6, 160-pound runningback Jim Skjerven, 5-6, 130-pound receiver David Gerardy, 5-7, 140-pound runningback Lonnie Longtin, 5-6, 160-pound lineman Kelly Bechard, 6-0, 175-pound lineman Steve Eakell, 5-7, 175-pound lineman Billy Treitline and 6-0, 160-pound lineman Jon Grove.

Roger Carlson, a 6-2, 165-pound receiver, is the only freshman on the squad that also includes Yochen Von Buschmann, a foreign exchange student from Germany.

Brantl looks for Gonvick-Trail, Fisher-Climax and Oklee to be the North Tri-County Conference leaders, figuring the other four league members will be evenly balanced.

Plummer opens the season Friday, August 29, with a nonconference game at Laporte.

Plummer

Friday, August 29 — at Laporte, 7 p.m.; Friday, September 5 — at Clearbrook, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 12 — Redlake, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 19 — vs. Fisher-Climax at Climax, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 26 — Oklee, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, October 10 — Gonvick-Trail, 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 14 — at Gary, 7:30 p.m.; plus possible season-ending game vs. Central Valley, ND if neither team is involved in post-season playoffs.

Marshall Co.

Numbers, or a lack of them, will create problems for Marshall County Central this fall.

"A poor turnout," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart as he read off the names of an 18-man roster for grades 9-12. "The ones we have, especially the seniors, have a real good attitude," he said. "But it's going to be difficult."

Marshall County Central struggled through a 1-7 season a year ago, losing seven straight games after a season-opening victory. Graduation took all-conference players Daren Stokke and Shawn Peterson.

This year's crew will be headed by seven seniors — Runningback-linebacker Danni Halvorson, quarterback-defensive back Darin Rokke, runningback-linebacker Tom Bolstad, guard Kraig Melvie and ends Jamey Lyane, Barry Hanson and Corey Green, a newcomer.

Juniors on hand include runningbacks Brian Bengston and Jason Skadsem, center-guard Randy Audette, plus Kilen Boe and Greg Graham, who may split time as backs and lineman. Boe is also listed as a linebacker.

Sophomores on the preseason roster include ends Kelly Dahl and Don Donarski, plus guards Steve Engen adn Corey Peterson. A pair of freshmen reporting for drills were linemen Shannon Leach and Joe Melvie.

Argyle and Stephen will be the Top of the State Conference favorites, according to Gebhart, and the Nordics draw the Tigers and Eagles in the first two weeks of the campaign, opening Friday, August 29, at home against Stephen.

"It's going to be tough with just 18 kids, but maybe we can improve and surprise a few people by the end of the year," offered Gebhart.

Marshall County Central will participate in a jamboree Saturday at Warren to initiate the 1986 season.

Marshall County Central

Friday, August 29 — Stephen, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 5 — Argyle, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 12 — at Hallock, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 19 — vs. Goodridge-Grygla at Grygla, 4 p.m.; Saturday, September 27 — vs. Tri-County (homecoming), 7 p.m.; Friday, October 3 — at Stephen, 7 p.m.; Friday, October 10 — at Argyle, 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 14 — vs. Hallock, 7:30 p.m.

Middle River

Middle River made a successful switch from the North Tri-County Conference to the Northern Lights Conference a year ago, taking a runner-up regular season finish into the Section 8 playoffs where the Skippers lost to Fisher-Climax in the opening round quarterfinals for a 5-3 overall record.

Coach Eldon Sparby is hoping Middle River can continue that kind of success in 1986, but it's going to take some juggling on his part to do it.

Graduation losses wiped out the entire Middle River front line, save for 167-pound senior Michael Nelson. A surplus of runningbacks will be tapped to form a smaller, but hopefully quicker wall of blockers this fall.

"If we can come up with a line, we could be okay," said Sparby. "I think we have enough talent to finish second, but it all depends on how we come out in the line."

Kennedy, says Sparby, will be the conference favorite.

In addition to Nelson, the Middle River seniors include 161-pound center Brian Peterson, 182-pound defensive lineman Bruce Thygeson, 156-pound wide receiver Brent Peterson, 163-pound fullback-linebacker Tom Gullikson and 140-pound end Jay Wappula.

Juniors reporting for drills include 179-pound guard or end Larry Korpi, 147-pound quarterback Tom Blazek, 166-pound guard or halfback Mark Gram, 152-pound guard or halfback Brad Kilen and 220-pound center Jason Peterson.

Lone freshman listed is a big one — 261-pound center Brett Myer.

Middle River Will participate in a jamboree session at Badger Saturday. The Skippers' 1986 season opener will be played Friday, August 29, vs. Lancaster-Humboldt-St. Vincent. Their regular season opener will be under the newly-installed lights at Middle River playing field, a Friday, August 29, assignment against Lancaster-Humboldt-St. Vincent at 7:30 p.m.

Middle River

Friday, August 29 — Lancaster-Humboldt-St. Vincent, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 5 — at Oslo-Alvarado, 3:30 p.m.; Friday, September 12 — Badger, 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, September 20 — Kennedy, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 26 — at Lancaster-Humboldt-St. Vincent, 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 30 — Oslo-Alvarado, 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, October 4 — at Badger, 3:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 14 — at Kennedy, 7:30 p.m.

Goodridge-Grygla

Coach Darwin Hagen and his Goodridge-Grygla Blue Devils are looking forward to their new surroundings in the Top of the State Conference this fall.

"I have no idea where we fit in," admitted Hagen, "but it'll be kind of interesting playing new teams."

Goodridge-Grygla has had a measure of success in four years as a cooperative entrant in the North Tri-County Conference, challenging for the title a couple of times and going 5-4 in 1985.

But graduation losses included three all-conference players — quarterback Darrin Byklum, center Brian Byklum and guard Brian Holte.

"We've got a lot of key holes to fill, especially at quarterback and center," pointed out Hagen.

Seniors looking for positions include quarterback Jeff Berg, runningbacks Jeff Wayne and Steve Kriel, end Bruce Holte and interior lineman Jeff Moen.

Sophomores on hand include linemen Rick Neuschwander, Wayne Nomeland, Tony Moen, Barry Koch and Eric Melcher, quarterback Paul Henrickson, runningbacks Robert Coan, Dave Vigen and Lance England and ends Jason Engelstad, Brett Osse, Jamie Loken and Terry Wells.

Nine freshmen reported for preseason drills as well, including John Sigerud, Kurt Osse, Scott Larson, Steve Hegenson, Craig Burnt, Rob Landsrud, Brad Holte, Andy Larson and Greg Monson.

Goodridge-Grygla will participate in a jamboree session at Oklee Saturday. The Blue Devils open their regular season schedule Friday, August 29, with a 7:30 p.m. game against Tri-County-Strandquist in Goodridge.

Goodridge-Grygla

Friday, August 29 — vs. Tri County Strandquist at Goodridge, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 5 — vs. Hallock at Grygla, 4 p.m.; Firday, September 12 — at Stephen, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, September 19 — vs. Marshall County Central at Grygla, 4 p.m. (homecoming); Saturday, September 27 — at Argyle, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, October 3 — at Tri County Strandquist, 7:30 p.m.; Friday, October 10 — at Hallock, 7:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 14 — vs. Stephen at Goodridge, 7:30 p.m.

New Crime Prevention Cards Issued Locally

Thief River Falls Police Department and the Pennington County Sheriff's Office are participating in the fourth annual Minnesota Vikings Crime Prevention Card Program.

More than 300 participating law enforcement agencies throughout the state will be distributing 2.1 million "trading cards" over a 14-week period.

Co-sponsored by Frito-Lay, Pepsi-Cola and KSTP-FM in cooperation with the Minnesota Crime Prevention Officers Association, the program is designed to develop relationships between young people and law enforcement officers.

Each Sunday, lasting for one week, a different card is available to any youngster who asks for one from a member of the participating law enforcement department.

The first card, with a color picture of new head coach Jerry Burns on the front, is the "check-list" card. On the back, the card has a list of the Viking players featured in this year's collection.

Thereafter, each weekly card has a full-color picture of a Viking player on the front and, on the back, biographical information on the player, plus a crime prevention tip.

"This is the most successful public relations program we have," said Dan Gilbertson, a Burnsville police officer and coordinator of the program this year. "It helps to teach youngsters that police officers are friendly people where in the past, almost all of the interaction between an officer and child took place when someone was in trouble."

"It is important that children, as well as adults, feel comfortable dealing with police officers, and this program has taken a giant step in helping to bridge the communications gap," said Gilbertson.

The 14 Vikings who are featured on this year's cards include Jerry Burns, Darrin Nelson, Tommy Kramer, Anthony Carter, Scott Studwell, Chris Doleman, Joey Browner, Steve Jordan, David Howard, Tim Newton, Leo Lewis, Keith Millard, Doug Martin and Bill Brown, as part of the all-time great Viking collection.

Pioneers To Open Football Practice Saturday, Aug. 30

Northland Community College Pioneer football team will begin fall practice Saturday, August 30, with check-in at 9 a.m.

Head coach Rick Nelson, along with assistant coaches Paul Williams, Kevin Schuman and Steve Bengston, are looking for an exciting fall with hopes of bringing Pioneer football to the level of all community colleges in the state, according to school officials.

Anyone who would like further information or details on attending Northland Community College or the Thief River Falls AVTI and playing football should contact Nelson at 681-2181. It should be noted that students attending the AVTI are eligible to play football at the college.

Newly re-named Pioneers open their 1986 season on Thursday, September 11, at Moorhead State University junior varsity with a 7 p.m. starting time. The home opener is Saturday, September 27 at 1:30 p.m. against Itasca Community College, which is also Homecoming '86 and the third annual Pepsi Bowl.

TRF Represented At Warren Races, Triathlon Events

A number of Thief River Falls runners and triathlon competitors participated in the Warren road races and triathlon events over the weekend.

Thief River Falls place winners in the running events included Jon Hendrickson, first in the 9-13 age group in the 2K race; Lon Aune, first in the 19-29 age group for men for the 10K race and second overall; Kristy Forsberg, first in the 25-under group for women in the 10K race; and Donna Garske, second in the 26-over group for women in the 10K race.

In triathlon competition, Thief River Falls' places included Jim Langland, second in the overall individual standings and second in the 19-over age group; Betty Sugden, second in the 19-over age group for women; and Jon Hendrickson, second in the 18-under age group.

Thief River Falls also captured team triathlon honors as Shawn Heinze, Shayne Anderson and Rynell Johnson took first place in their age group and over all standings.

WINNING TEAM entry in the Warren triathlon was a Thief River Falls trio consisting of, left to right, Shayne Anderson, who handled the 4-mile swim portion of the event; Rynell Johnson, who did the 10-mile bike ride; and Shawn Heinze, who completed the event with a quarter-mile swim.

Tennis Team Sweeps Match At Roseau . . .

Prowlers Open With 7-0 Win

Thief River Falls girls began their 1986 high school tennis schedule Tuesday with a 7-0 victory at Roseau.

Coach Whitey Olson's Prowlers will make their home debut Thursday when they host the annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Invitational. The 10 a.m. event will feature teams from Bemidji, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Thief River Falls.

The season-opening victory over Roseau started what Olson feels will be a very successful season for the Prowlers.

"I think we have to be right near, or on top of the North Half of Region 8AA," figures Olson. "We'll find out more as the season progresses, but we're solid at No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3 singles, and most of the other kids are all back from last year, too. They're all top-notch kids."

Thief River Falls is minus just two graduated seniors off last year's team, which went 8-0 in regular season dual meet competition before bowing in the North Sub-Region 8AA semifinals. Heading a list of eight returning letter winners is junior Kelly Cornell, the Region 8AA singles champion as a sophomore. She opened at No. 1 singles yesterday, beating Jodell Olson 6-0, 6-2.

Junior Vicki Grovum and freshman Monica Haapoja, both returning letter winners, played at No. 2 and No. 3 singles, respectively, at Roseau.

Fourth singles spot was held down by junior letter winner Sharon Dosser.

In doubles, the Prowlers lined up with senior Kristy Maldment and sophomore Amy Isaacson at No. 1, with seniors Karen Schmitz and Cari Offerdahl at No. 2. They're all letter winners.

New varsity performers in the opener were freshmen Kaye Dondelinger and Stacy Breuer at No. 3 doubles.

A 5-0 junior varsity win over Roseau accompanied the varsity sweep. Thief River Falls' junior varsity performers were juniors Ann Gobell and Dawn Numedahl, sophomore Brenda Konickson, freshmen Rachael Hanson, Missy Gould and Shelly Vedbraaten, plus eighth graders Kim Maldment and Jodi Harder.

MEMBERS OF the 1956 Minnesota state champion high school hockey team were given special recognition at the recent 30-year reunion of the Lincoln High School class of 1956. Seniors on that state title team included, left to right, Rodney Collins, Park River, ND; Duane Glass, Thief River Falls; Glen Carlson, Fridley; Jon Wennberg, Brainerd; and Art Cloutier, Holt. Other 1956 senior members of the team not at the reunion were Ronald Reese, Anchorage, AK; Jack Poole, Green Bay, WI; student manager Art Overby, Franklin, WI; and Chip Strand (deceased). Other members of that championship team were James Hall, Darryl Smith, Ken Sauve, Wendell Johnson, Dale Glass, Fred Dablow and coach Dennis Rolle, who now resides in Duluth. (Submitted photo).

— Trap League Results —

In Loving Memory. . .

Of Harold Hinden who passed away on August 21, 1983:

Its been 3 years
Since that sad day,
Our husband and father was taken away.

Its been 3 years . . .
It's hard to believe.
But the loneliness is very hard to relieve.

We all miss him so —
He was all we had —
In all of the good times and even the bad.

We will never forget him,
for we loved him so
Some day we will meet again, when? Only God will know

Sadly miss by
Wife Rose and children

Area Youth Will Make Canoe Trip On BWCA Waters

Twenty-three youths and six adult counselors will leave Sunday to go canoeing in the Boundary Waters Canoe area (BWCA) in northeastern Minnesota. The canoe trip is jointly sponsored by Redeemer Lutheran church and United Methodist church in Thief River Falls and will continue through Friday, August 29.

The participants have had fund raisers to help lower their cost for the trip, including a brunch in May, a pledge-sponsored car wash in June, yardwork and babysitting.

Campters include Jeff Antonenko, Paul Antonenko, Scott Anderson, Darren Bakke, Sara Bentson, Joe Blazek, Rick Bazek, Nicole Dimich, Linnea Dimich, Jennifer Haugen, Karl Heinrichs, Kevin Johnson, Jennifer Johnson, Derek Lee, Shannon Maddy, David Nelson, Ron Northrup, Ellen Olson, Greg Smidt, Connie Storebo, Ben Swenson, Christy Tibbetts and Jason Wheeler.

The counselors will be Tricia Armstrong, Darrel Bakke, Tom Dimich, Tony Fink, Sara Green and Jim Tibbetts.

The BWCA is a national parl which has more than one million acres of lakes, streams and portage trails. Outboard motors are allowed on only a few lakes in the wilderness area. It is considered by many to be the finest canoe camping and fishing area in the world.

Marjorie Lavalier Serves On Phone Company Panel

Mrs. Peter (Marjorie) Lavalier of Thief River Falls has been named by Northwestern Bell to the citizen's council studying Minnesota's telecommunications industry, representing District 7 of Minnesota on the council.

As one of just over 100 Minnesotans chosen to serve on the "District Dialogue" panels around the state, she will help formulate a report to be made to the telephone company in December. The company will use panel reports in formulating its corporate policies for the future.

Panels study specific areas of the telecommunications industry as it affects the public, including deregulation, long distance bypass and access charges, local measured service, rural service and other items. Persons who have concerns about their own telephone service or views on the industry are invited to contact Marjorie Lavalier at Route 3, Box 114, Thief River Falls, or call 681-2278.

Dr. Kraig Lerud Begins Residency In Honolulu, HI

Dr. Kraig Lerud, son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Lerud of Thief River Falls and a 1976 graduate of Lincoln high school, has begun his residency in the field of internal medicine at Tripler army medical center in Honolulu, HI.

From 1976 to 1978 he attended the Association of Free Lutherans Bible school in Minneapolis. In May of 1982 he graduated from the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks with a bachelor of science degree in natural sciences and a minor in German. While attending UND he was awarded the Arneberg scholarship to study the German language in Germany for the summer of 1981.

At UND he was enrolled in the four-year honors program, designed to broaden and enrich studies. Lerud spent time in honor courses, tutorials and independent research into his chosen major field.

After two years of medical school at the University of Minnesota-Duluth, he transferred to the University of Minnesota medical school in Minneapolis where he graduated with a Doctor of Medicine degree last June. In 1983 he received a scholarship in medicine from the U.S. army and will be stationed in Hawaii for his residency from one to three years.

Lynn Nicholson Earns Honors As Top Employee

Lynn Nicholson, son of Peggy Nicholson and the late Lawrence Nicholson of Thief River Falls, has been honored as the public service department's employee of the year in California.

A resident of San Dimas, CA, Nicholson is the city services coordinator for all public works services, overseeing about 20 cities from Pomona to Santa Monica, including the city of Los Angeles. He received the award out of the department's 3,500 employees because of his "ability to organize and set goals and his willingness to put forth the extra effort needed to get projects completed."

The cities of Alhambra, Glendale and Montebello nominated him for the county's employee recognition program. Nicholson played a major role in the widening and reconstruction of Mission Road in Alhambra and construction of the Brand Boulevard bridge, the main entrance into Glendale's central business district. In Montebello he coordinated the repaving and reconstruction of many streets.

Holmes Receives Pilot's License In UND Program

Greg Holmes of Thief River Falls received his private pilot's license from the University of North Dakots's center for aerospace sciences in a recent flight at the school's flight training facilities in Grand Forks.

Greg is a student in the aviation program at UND. He is the son of Roy Holmes of Thief River Falls. Earning a private pilot license is the first step for college students preparing for aviation careers.

The center for aerospace sciences is considered one of the most highly-respected collegiate aviation programs in the country. Campus facilities include a new $10 million complex equipped with 88,000 square feet of modern classrooms, sophisticated computer labs, a meteorolgical data center and an atmospherium.

Seven miles from campus, the Center operates an FAA-approved flight training facility at Mark Andrews International Airport. Students log over 45,000 flight hours annually on 50 aircraft, including jets and helicopters; and seven state-of-the-art simulators.

Testing And Vaccine Offer Hope Amid Lyme Disease Spread

Lyme disease researchers have some bad news and some good news about the tick-borne disease that's a major problem in Eugrope and the Eastern United States and is becoming more prevalent in the Midwest.

The bad news: Lyme disease is poorly diagnosed and sometimes improperly treated in its early stages. Without proper treatment it can progress to a chronic debilitating disease affecting muscles, joints, nerves and the heart. Cases are now being reported of it affecting the brain. In addition, recent journal reports have suggested that pregnant women can trasnmit the disease to their fetuses.

The good news: A vaccine, a diagnostic test and a more effective antibiotic treatment have shown promise in laboratory testing and may soon be available.

Lyme disease, first described 11 years ago in Lyme, CT, is now the most common tick-borne illness in the United States. It is probably even more common than researchers suspect, because it is easy to misdiagnose, and physicians are not required to report cases to the centers for disease control.

Early diagnosis and proper treatment of Lyme disease are extremely important, according to Russell C. Johnson, a microbiology professor at the University of Minnesota. The acute symptoms of a rash and flu-like illness may go away with or without treatment, but the disease leaves a type of bacterium in the host's blood that can cause severe symptoms to appear months or years later. "We are finding that proper treatment can halt the progress of the severe problems, but it cannot reverse neurological damage," Johnson said.

Johnson has been studying the Lyme disease bacterium — a spirochete called Borrelia burgdorferi — for four years. He discovered that hamsters develop an infection, but not the more severe symptoms seen in humans, when exposed to the spriochete. He found that the success of antibiotics in ridding hamsters of any trace of spriochetes correlates with their success in humans.

If that correlation between hamsters and humans holds true, three significant advances in fighting Lyme disease are imminent: a vaccine for dogs, a diagnostic urine test and effective antibiotic treatment for acute symptoms.

Lyme disease causes arthritis and neurological problems in dogs, and positive tests for the disease have been reported in horses and livestock. Johnson can immunize hamsters against Lyme disease, and if the vaccine is successful in dogs, the development of a human vaccine will depend on whether there is a demand for one. "I think there will be because we really can't control this disease," Johnson said.

The diagnostic urine test has shown promise in laboratory trials, and at a recent meeting in Europe, Johnson learned that spirochetes were detected in the urine of mice infected with the disease. To his surprise, he found that this was also true in hamsters, dogs and humans. This summer Johnson is working with 3M and the Minnesota department of health to see if the more complicated blood tests for Lyme disease antibodies confirm positive urine tests in humans. If they do, a diagnostic urine kit could be developed to be used by physicians and veterinarians.

Johnson's laboratory is also evaluating antibiotics used to treat people with Lyme disease. Oral penicillin is often used to treat people with acute symptoms of the disease. Those with chronic signs of the disease are hospitalized and given high doses of intravenous penicillin for 14 days. But not everyone responds, and Johnson found that penicillin does not completely eliminate the spirochete from hamsters. He found that an antibiotic called ceftriaxone, sold under the brand name Rocephin, is more effective, apparently because it penetrates into joints and the cerebrospinal fluid and is active in the blood longer than penicillin.

During a recent visit to Europe Johnson heard a case report of spirochetes found at autopsy in an infant who died shortly after birth; the mother had received penicillin for acute Lyme disease in her first trimester. A report from West Germany supported his antibiotic therapy evaluations.

A tragically severe and enigmatic picture of the chronic nature of Lyme disease was presented in June by speakers at a conference sponsored by the University of Minnesota microbiology department and 3M. Dr. Allen C. Steere, a Yale University medicine professor, told of a 27-year-old man who had been placed in a psychiatric hospital for three months because of severe personality changes suggestive of progressive dementia. Fortunately, a brain biopsy revealed spirochetes, and the man was treated for Lyme disease. Two months later he was able to return to work.

The Lyme disease-carrying tick, Ixodes dammini, breeds on white-footed mice in wooded areas and adjacent grasslands. Its spread over the past decade has been linked to the proliferation of deer herds in the states in which it is most common: New Jersey, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The first Twin Cities-area ticks capable of carrying Lyme disease were recently discovered in North Oaks, a St. Paul suburb. North Oaks has the largest and most-concentrated deer herd in the seven-county metropolitan area. Similar deer concentrations near communities in New England have resulted in epidemics of Lyme disease. Sixteen per cent of 160 residents of Great Island, MA, tested positive for Lyme disease antibodies, and 50 per cent of those people had symptoms of Lyme disease. Johnson and colleagues have begun working with North Oaks residents to evaluate the potential of the problem.

Without a vaccine, the only prevention against Lyme disease is caution, says Johnson. The ticks are active in wooded areas from April through October. Wearing light clothing and long pants tucked into socks will help prevent ticks from reaching the skin. Tick sprays for humans and tick collars for dogs may be helpful.

The Lyme disease tick is much smaller than a wood tick or dog tick. The bite is not painful, and the tick drops off after becoming engorged with the blood of its host. If a tick is found embedded in the skin, it should be gently removed by grasping it with a tweezers as close to the skin as possible. The tick should be saved in a jar and the date noted to aid in diagnosis in case symptoms develop.

In about 75 per cent of people infected, the first symptom is usually a red rash that starts at the site of the bite and grows in a circular, often ringlike, pattern with central clearing. Some people develop flu-like complaints, severe fatigue and abnormal heartbeat. If early symptoms do not appear, or if they are not properly diagnosed and treated, chronic symptoms may develop. These may include swollen joints, chronic arthritis, meningitis, neurological problems and brain disturbances.

The success with which the spread of Lyme disease is reversed and severe disability is prevented depends on greater awareness by the medical profession and the public, Johnson said.

MANHATTAN TRANSFER

The Grammy award-winning vocal group the Manhattan Transfer will perform at 8 p.m. Tuesday Aug. 26 at the Minnesota State Fair Grandstand. Known for their rich vocal harmonies and diverse musical offerings, the group's biggest hits include "Birdland," "Ray's Rockhouse," "Killer Joe" and "The Boy From New York City." Anorexia Nervosa Sufferers Face Health Hazards

Anorexia nervosa is an eating disorder in which the afflicted person deliberately tries to lose weight by literally starving him or herself. The person likes the weight loss and will continue losing weight until he or she becomes dangerously malnourished, possibly to the point of requiring hospitalization, according to the Minnesota Medical association.

People affected by anorexia nervosa are typically white, middle-class women in their late teens or early twenties, but any age can be affected. Physicians say there are three significant warning signs of anorexia nervosa.

(1) The person will begin a weight loss program with great determination. He or she will make it clear nothing will get in the way of his or her weight loss and will go so far as to plan the day around losing weight.

(2) An anorexic patient will not want anyone watching him or her eat and will usually eat alone.

(3) The person will begin to withdraw from family and friends. Females will also notice a change or complete loss of their menstrual cycle called "amenorrhea".

If you suspect someone you know might have anorexia nervosa, doctors say the first thing to do is to express concern that something is wrong, then make sure the person is seen by a physician. Many times, there are physical reasons for weight loss, and a physician should be consulted first to find those reasons.

If the weight loss is not due to a medical problem, the physician will refer the patient to a qualified psychiatrist for intervention and treatment of the problem through psychothereapy. Anorexia nervosa is a serious, and life-threatening disease, the association reports.

Attends ROTC Advanced Camp

Cadet Gerald D. Erickson, son of Blanche Palm of Thief River Falls, received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp, Fort Lewis, WA.

The six-week camp, attended by cadets normally between their third and fourth year of college, includes instruction in communications, management and survival training.

Successful completion of the advanced camp and graduation from college results in a commission as a second lieutenant in either the U.S. army, army reserve or national guard.

Autumn Vacation Ideas In State Tourism Paper

Ideas for colorful autumn vacations are delivered in the new fall 1986 edition of the full-color "Minnesota Explorer," a travel brochure in newspaper format published by the Minnesota office of tourism.

The 12-page publication features articles on sampling Minnesota's fall harvest, the new Heritage-Hjemkomst center in Moorhead, the state's extensive fish hatchery and stocking programs, the new Twin Cities fall theater season, the Mississippi River valley in southeastern Minnesota, and many more. For those interested in exploring fall color, the newspaper suggests unusual ways of viewing fall color and off-the-beaten-track driving routes suggested by foresters.

There is also a calendar of over 200 fall festivals and other events, including a statewide listing of arts, special exhibits, and sports events. This is the Explorer's first anniversary issue.

"Minnesota Explorer" is available free from the Minnesota Travel Information Center, 375 Jackson Street, 250 Skyway Level, St. Paul, MN 55101, or call weekdays toll-free 800-652-9747 in Minesota (ask for the travel information center).

Truck Crashes Studied In Book By Safety Dep't.

To provide a better understanding of the involvement of trucks in the overall traffic accident picture, the Minnesota department of public safety has included a special section on "truck crashes" in its "1985 Motor Vehicle Crash Facts" book.

The added section is in part due to the recent concern of the 18 per cent increase in large truck crashes reported nationally from 1983 to 1984.

In Minnesota in 1985 there were 101 people killed in truck-related crashes. Only 14 of these were passengers in large trucks, 69 were passengers in automobiles, 14 were passengers of other vehicles, two were bicyclists, and two were pedestrians. In addition, there were 2,832 non-fatal injuries stemming from truck accidents.

Sixty-four of the 86 truck accidents involving fatalities occurred on dry road surfaces.

Among other facts reported are:

(1) Driver inattention was the most frequently cited contributing factor for both truck drivers and other drivers — 24 per cent each.

(2) State trunk highways had the most truck crashes (21 per cent) and county state-aid streets and highways had the second greatest number (17 per cent).

(3) Small towns under 1,000 population were the most common sites for truck crashes.

(4) According to accident reports of truck crashes involving other vehicles, 1.7 per cent of the truck drivers had been drinking and 2.8 per cent of other drivers had been drinking.

(5) Being asleep was reported as a contributing factor in one-half of a per cent of truck drivers crashes. By contrast, being asleep was a factor in only one-tenth of a per cent of other drivers.

(6) More truck crashes occurred between noon and 3 p.m. than any other period of the day.

A record 19.5 million mothers, or 6 out of 10 women with children under 18 years old, were in the U.S. labor force in 1984. Ten years earlier, not quite 5 out of 10 mothers were employed outside the home, according to "Working Mothers and Their Children" a fact sheet issued by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Catching Freedom . . .

"No river runs deep," so goes the saying, "until it finds its banks."

That has all sorts of meaning for families wanting to give meanings to children. Granting freedom to children so they can develop their native gifts and special individuality does not mean giving them the license to follow their immaturity to its logical end.

Lessons of limits are important for children to learn. They never will hit something in life by aiming at everything.

Life, to be deep, must be limited. And if life is real, it must have its limits respected. "No river runs deep until it finds its banks." And no child develops a deep and responsible life until the limits of life are learned and experienced on both small and large scales.

Of course, this respect for limits that grants ultimate freedom is more CAUGHT from parents than TAUGHT.

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN

Survey Shows Camping Promotes Better Family Relationships

Not only is camping with the family a great way to relax and get away from it all, indications are that it may help keep families together. According to a recent survey of fold-down camping trailer owners conducted by Jayco, Inc., one of the nation's largest manufacturers of recreational vehicles, virtually all campers felt that the experience was beneficial to their family lives.

Of those responding, 63.9 percent felt camping had helped bring their families closer together, citing lack of TV and telephone as contributing factors.

Over half felt camping had strengthened their relationships with their children, for the same reasons, but also because children had the opportunity to be part of a larger project, having specific responsibilities in the family group. Parents have the opportunity on camping trips to share knowledge and skills with their children which isn't always possible at home.

All this shouldn't be surprising. According to Washington, DC psychologist Dr. A. John Kahl, "Camping gets families focused on the sorts of things that bound them together before radio, television, stereo and other forms of home entertainment arrived to claim their evenings and weekends."

"When the family is camping, everyone can get involved. Relationships are inevitably strengthened when everyone participates. Remembering the camping vacation afterwards continues the process," he continued.

For a free brochure on these and other benefits of family camping, write to Jayco, Inc., Dept. JR32, P.O. Box 460, Middlebury, IN 46540.

Gerry Nelson also came to visit them all.

Alfred and Rebecca Solem were visitors at the Engvald and Thelma Dahl home of rural Newfolden Friday evening, August 1.

Bridal Shower

Marcy Reierson, bride-to-be of Craig Mickelson, a local optometrist, will be honored at a bridal shower to be held at the Nazareth Lutheran church in Holt at 8 p.m. Wednesday evening, August 27. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Bill and Connie Stock, Robbie, Bridgett, and Maggie visited friends at Detroit Lakes from Tuesday to Friday last week. Bernice Knutson stayed with her niece, Mavis Hillyer, when the Stock family were.

Olive Rondorf and Rebecca Solem attended the meeting of the Trinity Lutheran church Rachel circle Thursday afternoon at the home of Emma Peterson in Silverton.

Harold and Alpha Halvorson were Sunday afternoon visitors and luncheon guests at the Alvin Larson home at Oklee.

Aaron and Krlene Coykendall of Aurora, CO were early Tuesday afternoon visitors at the Kenneth and Gerry Nelson home in Thief River Falls. Later in the afternoon Karlene and sons, Jeremiah and Andrew, visited at the Jerry and Lynnet Swaser home in Newfolden.

Funeral

Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Rondorf and Mrs. Alfred Solem were among the many who attended the funeral services for 14-year-old Lisa Sorter at the Trinity Lutheran church Tuesday afternoon, August 12.

Birthday

Visitors at the Alfred Solem home Thursday evening to help Alfred celebrate his 80th birthday were Raymond Rausch, Peter and Valerie Solem, Andrew and Rebekah and Roger Solem and Cindi. Pastor Josh Nelson extended birthday wishes by telephone.

Aaron and Karlene Coykendall, Jeremiah and Andrew left for their home at Aurora, CO Wednesday morning, August 13. Jeremiah hac been a houseguest at the home of his grandparents, the Lloyd Larsons, since June 3.

Dakota Queen River Cruise

Tuesday, August 12 Lloyd and Harryet Larson, Clara J. Reierson, Violet Muzzy, Shirley Yonke and Alvin and Nina Halvorson were among the 28 people who rode a school bus to Grand Forks where they enjoyed a cruise on the Dakota Queen riverboat. Later in the day they all enjoyed supper together at a restaurant. They were back to Holt before 9:30 and reported having had a good time.

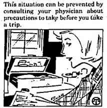
The TLCW Esther circle of which Alpha Halvorson is a member served muffins to the residents and staff at Valley Home Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Larson spent Sunday at Bagley where they attended the Lake Itasca Region Pioneer Threshing show.

TRAVEL TIPS

HEALTH PRECAUTIONS

Most travelers are dangerously unprepared for the diseases they might pick up abroad, says Dr. Marty Wolfe, State Department health advisor. "A pre-trip consultation with your doctor is essential before any trip to an underdeveloped country," he says. For example, over sixty Americans returned from Kenya last year with a potentially deadly form of malaria that is resistant to the usual treatment. This situation can be prevented by consulting your physician about precautions to take before you take a trip.



There is also a one-in-three chance that Americans traveling to countries like Brazil or Mexico will become sick. The most common illness they face is travelers' diarrhea, which can result in up to four days lost from a hard-earned vacation. Dr. Henry Murray of the New York Hospital/Cornell Medical Center says, "I wouldn't recommend patients take medicine to prevent turista (travelers' diarrhea)."

Dr. Charles Ericsson of the University of Texas, an expert on travelers' diarrhea, agrees. "A medication called IMODIUM (loperamide HCl) is available only by prescription and is capable of stopping mild cases of the disease an hour or two after taking the first dose of two capsules," he says. More severe cases, characterized by fever or blood in the stool, may require treatment with an antibiotic.

FUTURE MARKETERS TAKE PRIZES

You: Future advertising genius? Could be, if you enter a contest for college students who think they can come up with marketing strategies to rival the brainstorms on Madison Avenue.

More than 700 college and graduate students who participated in the 17th Annual Philip Morris Marketing/Communications Competition worked on developing marketing campaigns for the company's non-tobacco products. Each of the winning teams, whose projects were selected from 138 entries representing 73 colleges and universities, received awards of up to $2,000.

Leaders in the fields of advertising were among the judges who selected the six winning entries. Parsons School of Design in New York City won first place in the undergraduate division for its proposal for The Seven-Up Company. The team built a campaign around the slogan "Un-Singular Sensation" to launch a new line of carbonated soft drinks.

Other undergraduate winners were University of Virginia in second place for proposing a new product, Veritas!, a wine Spritzer from Lindeman Wines, and Texas Tech University, who took third place with a proposal for Seven-Up Light.

In the graduate category, McGill University, in Montreal, Canada, took the top prize with a comprehensive marketing plan to introduce "Petite Miller," a seven-ounce version of the classic Miller High Life beer. Second place in the graduate division was won by Florida State University for its proposal to establish a Philip Morris Intercultural Communications Study Center. Hofstra University placed third with an advertising campaign for Miller High Life.

Many students got their start on careers in advertising by winning a contest that tests their creativity.

The Competition is open to graduate and undergraduate students currently enrolled in accredited institutions of higher education. Student committees are invited to identify a marketing/communications issue of interest from among Philip Morris' non-tobacco products and produce a campaign that could succeed in today's competitive business environment.

Many previous winners have credited the Competition with helping them gain careers in advertising or communications, and for providing them with first-hand experience.

Ruling Restores Accountability

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

The Minnesota supreme court, in a ruling filed Friday, ordered State Treasurer Robert Mattson's duties returned to him and funding restored to his office for the 1987 budget year.

The court's ruling is proper in that it noted the Legislature far exceeded its jurisdiction in solving what in actuality are problems with the man holding the office — not the office itself.

The legislature during its 1985 special session slashed the budget of the state treasurer's office to $326,300, from $1.2 million; reduced the office staff to three from 21; and transferred most of the responsibility for overseeing state money to the state finance department. The latter, a non-constitutional office, is under the governor's jurisdiction.

"To permit the legislature to gut an executive office as it did . . . is to hold that our state Constitution is devoid of any meaningful limitation on legislative discretion in this area," Justice George M. Scott wrote for the court, adding that the legislature's action made "an empty shell" of the office.

The supreme court ruling notes that although the legislature has the power to modify duties of constitutional offices, it doesn't have the power to "strip such an office of all its independent core functions." Instead, the court said the legislature should have considered impeachment proceedings if lawmakers had problems with Mr. Mattson, or should have offered a constitutional amendment to the people to abolish or consolidate the office.

Mr. Mattson's activities have been questioned by DFLers and Independent-Republicans since the day he took office after successfully challenging the 1982 DFL-endorsed candidate and then winning the general election. He was cited for numerous absences during his first six months in office while he attended to personal business in Florida. In defending the absences, Mr. Mattson said there wasn't enough work for the treasurer to do and proposed that the office be consolidated with that of secretary of state and state auditor.

Nonetheless, the office of state treasurer is headed by a constitutional officer who is accountable to the people electing him. The legislature's failure in putting a ballot question before the people, asking them to decide what to do with one of their elective offices, still leaves the office itself in the people's hands.

That's where it should be, the court properly recognized, and Mr. Mattson will now have to take his case to the people and the ballot box.

Too Advanced To Fight?

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

Colonel David Evans recently retired from the U.S. Marine Corps after 20 years of service, both in Washington and in the field.

Evans, while a dedicated officer, has enumerated what he sees as potentially disasterous flaws in the procurement and deployment policies presently used by the Pentagon. He paints a picture of a modern, technologically advanced U.S. military force that might, in time of war, be hard pressed to defend itself, much less this country and its allies.

Evans sees what he calls "seven deadly flaws" in the present system — flaws which if uncorrected might leave the U.S. Armed Forces at the mercy of the Soviet Union.

The first flaw is the military's unwillingness to correct mistakes. He points to equipment still in use which has been proven to be inappropriate in actual field conditions. For example, he notes that we are still using five-gallon water cans even though they have proven to be too heavy for fatigued troops to handle. Troops are issued rifles with tolerances too close to operate well in the dust of desert warfare or the cold of arctic battlefields. Battles, he noted, are still won on the front lines and troops must have complete confidence in the equipment they carry.

Another flaw seen by Evans is that American troops are made easy targets for the enemy by employing equipment that is bigger than models they were designed to replace. The new Bradley troop carrier, standing 10 feet high, looks like a house crashing through the woods, he said, making it easy prey.

Reliance upon too much radio communications, he said, opens troops up to detection by the enemy, particularly command centers where radio equipment is most concentrated.

Military hardware is too complex, said Evans, and many standards are different between arms of the military. Even the measurement of distance is different between the services, he noted.

Tolerances are too close, both on equipment and deployment, Evans said. While weapons are designed for pin-point accuracy, it is often not possible to use that capability in the field. "Loose tolerances are more forgiving, especially under the terrific and unpredictable strain of combat," he said. Evans cited the example of the Navy's latest air-cushioned amphibious landing craft, the LCAC. Loads in the craft must be balanced within three inches. "Imagine that while loading a 60-ton tank from a heaving ramp at sea," said Evans.

Evans also sees the Armed Forces as unready for close-in combat. While some of the equipment now in service may do the job, he said, ammunition is often in short supply. It is easier for the Pentagon to sell Congress on new systems than on ammunition and spare parts for present ones.

Antitank weapons, a vital component in any confrontation with the Soviets, who rely heavily on armor, are also inadequate, said Evans, The TOW rocket used by the Army and Marines can be thrown off target by heat and smoke, he said. The shoulder fired rocket used by troops against armor at close range, the AT4, has been dubbed by cynics the "paint-scratcher" because it cannot pierce the frontal armor of modern Soviet tanks.

Yet another flaw outlined by Evans is overcentralization of command, a situation that he said places commanders away from the fighting where decisions really need to be made.

The final flaw seen by Evans is an unwillingness to train forces under real combat conditions. Without that, he said potentially disasterous flaws in weapons and command systems will not be apparent until it is too late. He said that while the Pentagon states the Soviets have numerical superiority, troops are not trained to deal with that situation.

There is a glimmer of hope, said Evans. Some Pentagon officials are beginning to address the problems. The Rand Corporation, a Pentagon-funded think tank, recently noted "The Army is currently deploying increasing numbers of technically sophisticated weapons that are hard to maintain, extremely expensive, and whose wartime demand rates are difficult to forecast." He said the same problem applies to the other service arms.

For a military man, Evans sees the easy access of the Pentagon to public coffers as a possible enemy of the nation's defense. Mindless buying of questionable equipment may be giving the military and the nation a false sense of security, he said. In fact, Evans said a freeze on military spending might be a first step in sorting things out. It could force military planners to choose weapons systems more wisely and to improve present ones rather than looking at entirely new programs.

Perhaps it is time for the Pentagon to realize that a 45-year-old M-1 rifle is a more effective weapon than the latest missile if there is one bad micro-chip in its circuitry. While modern technology is undoubtedly an important component of the nation's defensive structure, those systems must be chosen wisely and well tested under actual field conditions before they are accepted for use by U.S. forces. Perfecting the systems now in use, while not as impressive as the promises (often not delivered) of the latest 'wonder weapon,' will probably result in a more sound military machine.

Borrowed Nonsense

Young boy ready for bed: "I'm going to say my prayers now. Anybody want anything?"

As the Minnesotan rode along the Texas highway in the blistering sun, a gaudy bird ran across the road in front of the car. "What was that?" he asked his Texan host. "Bird of Paradise," the Texan replied. "That so?" the Minnesotan asked. "Long way from home, isn't it?"

Veterinarian:

Pets Are Therapeutic For People

Pets can be both emotionally and physically good for you, according to a growing number of experts in this country. Medical doctors, psychologists and social workers are now joining forces with veterinarians to learn more about the positive influences of the "human/animal bond." Many feel that interaction with pets can be therapeutically beneficial for people.

A relatively new idea, the human/animal bond is currently generating great interest here. Leading news programs, including "60 Minutes" and "20/20," have featured major segments about the dramatic new ways in which pets are now enhancing emotional and physical well-being in humans.

At the cutting edge of the human/animal bond movement is veterinarian Dr. William F. McCulloch of Texas A & M University. His pioneering work in establishing the therapeutic value of pets recently earned him the Bustad Companion Animal Veterinarian Award — a prestigious new national honor administered by the American Veterinary Medical Association and The Delta Society, an international non-profit organization devoted to the advancement of the human/animal bond.

Pets, of course, have been appreciated for centuries. But their therapeutic value went virtually unexplored until veterinarians like Dr. McCulloch began to research and develop the idea of the human/animal bond.

According to Dr. McCulloch, the therapeutic benefits of pets are undeniable: "Whether providing companionship for the elderly, assistance to the handicapped, even psychological and emotional therapy to the mentally ill and the withdrawn, animals are providing an important new dimension to the quality of our lives."

The decision to honor Dr. McCulloch with the Bustad Award, which was underwritten by Hill's Pet Products, Inc. of Topeka, Kansas, a leader in developing special diets for pets, took into account his many innovations in the field of animal-facilitated therapy, often focusing on the institutionalized elderly. Such programs, usually in the form of visiting pet programs, have proved they can bring the elderly out of their painful isolation, improving emotional and sometimes even physical health.

"People will often communicate with a pet, when they have chosen not to communicate with people" says Dr. McCulloch. "And once trust is established with a pet, trust can more easily be established with another person."

The programs of Dr. McCulloch and other concerned veterinarians are altering the way veterinarians see themselves. As Dr. McCulloch points out, "the veterinarian is no longer just a doctor for animals. He is increasingly a counselor for people, helping them through helping them nurture a special relationship."

Dr. McCulloch suggests readers interested in the vital bond between people and pets may learn more by writing to: The Delta Society, Suite 303, 321 Burnett Avenue South, Renton, WA 98055. Phone number: (206) 226-7357.

Rural Mail Delivery Has 90—Year History

by Linda St. Thomas
Smithsonian News Service

Mail delivery, like everything else in rural America, has changed over the years. Four-wheel drive vehicles have replaced horse-drawn wagons, millions of miles of farm-to-market dirt roads have been paved and regulation "U.S. Mail" boxes have replaced the tomato cans and soapboxes once used to hold the mail.

For a while, as suburban developments sprouted around the country, it looked as if rural free delivery (RFD) might go the way of the horse and buggy. Indeed, after World War II, rural mail service began to decline, reaching a low point in 1966.

But today, rural delivery is once again growing as the non-metropolitan population of the United States increases. In the past five years, rural service has expanded to more than 41,000 routes compared to nearly 37,000 in 1981. More than 17.5 million households in rural and suburban regions of every state depend on a rural carrier for their daily mail.

Rural carriers are not always easy to spot. They drive their own cars, not the familiar red, white and blue postal service vehicles, and they do not wear uniforms. Yet, from their cars, they provide customers with the same retail services as does a post office — selling stamps, registering mail and handling parcels.

"Many people associate RFD with farmlands where the houses are five miles apart, but many rural routes today are a mix of everything from high-rise office buildings to mom-and-pop farms," says Robert West of the U.S. postal service's rural delivery division.

"Rather than open new post offices," West says, "it is sometimes less expensive to add routes and hire rural carriers who are paid on a scale based on route length, mail volume and number of boxes." City carriers, on the other hand, are paid an hourly wage.

Mapping out new routes is a complex task, coordinated by local postmasters and officials at the more than 200 postal service centers located around the country. In Texas alone, there are about 2,300 rural routes, including the longest one — 174 miles in George West, Texas. But the routes alone don't mean much without dependable carriers.

"Reaching Rural America," an exhibition at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C., pays tribute to these rural carriers and their work. Among the memorabilia on display through December is a 1907 carrier's daily record book, a working model of the first postal wagon, pre-1915 rural mailboxes, a petition to Congress requesting a new route and a turn-of-the-century, one-man mail sled.

The tradition of rural carriers goes back to 1896 when Harry Gibson, Frank Young and John Lucas launched the first routes in Charles Town, WV, and the Strider brothers — Keyes and Melvin — took routes in neighboring Uvilla and Halltown. Door-to-door mail delivery had begun in the cities as early as 1863, but farmers had to go to the nearest post office, often miles away, to pick up their mail and newspapers. In a world without telephones, radios, television or automobiles, the mail was a farm family's vital link to the outside world.

Postmaster General John Wanamaker, an early advocate of rural mail delivery, proposed funds for a trial program called "Rural Free Delivery" in 1891. But many congressmen and city dwellers — they comprised only 35 per cent of the population but voted in greater numbers than farmers and therefore often had more political clout — derided the plan. To the critics, the "idea of sending a mail carrier trudging over hill and dale to find some farmer to whom a letter might occasionally be directed seemed ridiculous," writes historian Wayne Fuller, author of two books about the U.S. mail.

Nonetheless, in 1893, after several attempts, Congress authorized funds for the trial run to be conducted by the postmaster general. Unfortunately for the farmers, the postmaster general at that time was William Bissell, a man who believed rural delivery would be so expensive that it would bankrupt the nation. Bissell never acted on the RFD plan, and it was his successor, William Wilson, who initiated the first rural mail route in 1896 in his home state of West Virginia.

RFD was an instant success. According to the plan, farmers in groups of 100 could petition their congressman for mail service. If the congressman approved the request, the post office department set up a new route. Soon, there was a mad rush for service; in 1931 alone, more than 9,000 routes were established.

"Rural free delivery dramatically changed the very nature of rural life in this country," says James Bruns, Smithsonian U.S. postal history curator and organizer of the rural mail exhibit. "Within a few years, it significantly diminished the isolation of the farm families because they had mail and newspapers every day. It encouraged better roads because without passable roads — one condition for getting and keeping a mail route — there was no mail service. And it increased the land value of the farms."

The importance of the mail carrier was recognized in the early days of rural delivery. There were "few branches of the public service the successful operation of which is so dependent on the personality of the employee," a 1911 civil service commission report said. With that in mind, the old post office department looked for trustworthy "men (and women) of character" to represent the U.S. government on rural routes. "I'm the only representative of the government that folks back in the hills ever see," Mark Whalen wrote in his 1942 book, "Rural Free Delivery: Recollections of a Rural Mailman." "I'm the only visible, tangible return they ever gets for all the taxes they pays the federal government."

By all reports, carriers were among the most respected members of farming communities. They wrote and read letters for illiterate patrons, ran errands, did odd jobs and helped out in crises. In the eyes of some farmers, there was nothing the mailman couldn't do. One rural carrier, who must have been considered omniscient by his patrons, found this note in a mailbox on his route: "I'm leaving for Texas, so please send my mail there."

The daily routine of the rural carriers actually has changed little over the decades. They still arrive at their "head out" post offices in the early hours of the morning, sort or "case" the mail and begin routes averaging 400 mailboxes spread out over some 60 miles. They still operate a "post office on wheels" and yet manage to find a few minutes to chat with patrons along the way.

John Walters, 30, who runs route 2 in Charles Town, WV, is in some ways typical of today's 35,000 full-time rural carriers. He arrives at the post office about 7:30 a.m. to begin sorting the mail by name and box number. He "straps out" or ties the mail in groups, about 25 households per bundle, then loads the bundles in sequential order in the back of his four-wheel drive car. By about 10:30 a.m., he is ready to begin his 71-mile, five-hour route through the Blue Ridge Mountains, stopping 388 times at individual boxes or clusters of mailboxes. Sometimes people meet him at the mailbox, but more often than not, it's a solitary job.

"People do come out to the mailbox to chat but not as much as they did, say, 10 years ago," says Harlow Powers, who has been a rural carrier in Maine for 23 years. "They have to get back to work, and I have my route — 92 miles — to finish every day."

To get through the routes and save time, Walters, Powers and other rural carriers have developed a few tricks of the trade to make their work easier. They shop for cars and jeeps that can take abusive stop-and-go driving. They arrange the bundles of mail in their cars in the order of delivery. And they use a one-handed maneuver to hold mail and simultaneously open the mailbox door.

Today's rural carriers still have a special rapport with their patrons that is often missing with city carriers. "Rural carriers almost become members of the families on the route," says Tom Griffith, a second-generation rural carrier and president of the National Rural Letter Carriers' association. "They know the family members by name and they watch the kids grow up. It's a special kind of link, especially in rural communities."

The carriers' dedication to their profession and to the families they serve is itself a time-honored tradition. It is obvious whenever they chat at a mailbox — on their own time — or lend a helping hand. In fact, in years past, many a rural carrier would run his entire route on December 25, at no pay, to deliver packages in time for farm children on Christmas day.

SOW WHAT

A sow and her litter will be among the many animals on display during the 1986 Minnesota State Fair, Aug. 21 through Labor Day, Sept. 1. "Everybody is Somebody in Thief River Falls"
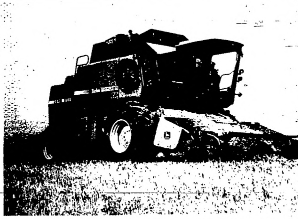
THIEF RIVER FALLS TIMES 20¢
Volume 75 (USPS 627-360) Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota Monday, August 25, 1986 Number 66



GOBBLING UP THE GRAIN as they move across fields throughout the area, combines are threshing out the fall harvest. This combine operated by Henrickson Brothers of Grygla was operating west of Thief River Falls late last week, threshing a field of barley. Harvest conditions are much improved over a year ago when wet weather made fields virtually impassable. Adverse field conditions this spring have reduced yields in some areas, however, and low grain prices are expected to drop even lower as the harvest advances. Construction of additional grain storage facilities to take advantage of government storage payments and avoid having to sell on the depressed market has been active on a number of area farms.

Land Owners Will Talk To USAF On Radar Site

At least 26 land owners in the area west of Thief River Falls are willing to talk to U.S air force representatives about sale or lease of some or all of their land for a radar receiver site That is the message that can be carried by local Jobs Incorporated officials to a public hearing on the Over the Horizon Backscatter (OTH-B) radar project September 9 in Grand Forks, ND.

The land owners indicated their interest on sign-up sheets following an informational meeting conducted by Jobs Incorporated Thursday morning at the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls. Approximately 50 people attended the breakfast meeting.

Public hearing in Grand Forks on September 9 will be conducted at 7 p.m. in the Grand Forks civic auditorium at 615 First Avenue North. Similar hearings have been scheduled for September 10 at 7 p.m. in the Wheaton high school auditorium and September 11 at 7 p.m. in the Langford, SD, high school north gymnasium.

Hearings are on the draft environmental impact statement (EIS) which was released August 15 by the air force. They provide an opportunity for concerned citizens and government officials to participate in the air force's decision-making process. During the hearings, air force officials will explain the EIS process for the proposed radar system and describe the major elements of the system, including transmit site, receive site and operations center.

Following explanation of the system's mission and operation, air force officials will solicit public comment on the draft EIS. Results of the public hearings and all written correspondence will be used to develop the final EIS which is expected to be published in November of 1986. Written comments on the draft EIS and proposed action are invited and should be submitted no later than Oct. 6, 1986, to the following address:

HQ Electronic Systems Division SCO, OTH B Systems Program Office, Attn Lt V G Brown, Hanscom AFB, MA 01731 5000. Any questions concerning the public hearings, draft EIS or the environmental impact analysis process should also be submitted to the above contact, according to Col James A Lee, director of the OTH B systems directorate.

Don Stewart, Thief River Falls city planner and executive director of Jobs Incorporated, opened Thursday morning's meeting by stating that the session was purely unofficial with no air force representatives in attendance. He said the session was intended to provide information on the draft EIS and he emphasized that the Thief River Falls area is being considered for a receiver site only.

Roger Reuter, president of Jobs Incorporated, welcomed those in attendance, summarized the organization's purpose as finding additional jobs for the community, and thanked county commissioner Albert Koop for his assistance in arranging the meeting.

Mayor Bob Carlson said the hearing in Grand Forks will be one of the closing acts of a session that started locally early last spring when no

Community Help Needed To Make Calendar Success

Community calendar information will be needed by the Times on a regular basis beginning this week as publication of an events calendar will begin with the Wednesday issue. Cooperation of the public is necessary to make the publication successful.

The calendar will be published in both Wednesday and Monday editions and up dated for each issue. Events will be listed for approximately two weeks in advance if of widespread community interest and for one week if regular meetings of organizations are involved.

People who have events to be listed on the calendar are asked to mail or bring them to the Times office so they arrive by 5 p.m. Tuesday for the Wednesday edition or 5 p.m Friday for the Monday edition There is no charge for this service Telephone calls with calendar items cannot be accepted.

The community calendar is intended to be a convenient means for the public to be alerted to local events. It is not intended to replace news items which require more extensive information than the calendar will provide.

Langlie In Critical Condition After One-Car Accident

Daniel Scott Langlie, 19, route 1, Newfolden, is reported in critical condition at Dakota Hospital in Fargo after a one car roll-over four miles south of Newfolden, Marshall county 8, at about 12:15 p.m. August 23. Marshall county sheriff's department reported that the car apparently went out of control, left the road and rolled over. Langlie, the son of Noral Langlie, was traveling south on Marshall county road 8, one mile south of county road 31.

Anniversaries At Library

(This year marks the 20th anniversary of the Thief River Falls public library in its present building. To celebrate this event, the library will hold an open house during the week of October 6-11 with special programming and the introduction of a new service — Toddler books. This year also marks the 85th anniversary of the public library's existence in Thief River Falls. Following is the first installment in a five-part series on the library. For more information, contact the Thief River Falls library at 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.)

Thief River Falls library is located at 101 East First Street in Thief River Falls and is part of the Northwest regional library system (NWRL) established in October of 1968 to improve existing library service and develop library service where none existed. The system is a library network which services Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties through its headquarters in Thief River Falls, seven branch libraries and a bookmobile.

NWRL is a nonprofit organization directed by a board of trustees. Each board member is appointed by the board of county commissioners and councils of the municipalities making up the Northwest regional library

Candidates Gear Up Activities And Strategies

Billboards and signs are appearing all over Thief River Falls and many area communities as candidates gear up for the September 9 primary and the November 4 general election.

Area residents will be faced with some difficult decisions to make when they vote in the primary on September 9. In Pennington county, nine candidates are running for treasurer and three for county attorney. In Marshall county six candidates are running for county recorder and four for auditor-treasurer. Because of the large number of candidates, primaries are necessary. (Primaries occur only when more than twice the number to be elected file for a nonpartisan office. Each of the office terms is for four years.)

Personally written individual articles by the candidates in Marshall and Pennington counties, which include their background, family information, qualifications for office and issues or ideas pertinent to the office being sought are published here as a free service to the candidates. The Times also believes this is an important service to the citizens of Marshall and Pennington counties who will vote on the September 9 primary and the November 4 election.

Thief River Falls chamber of commerce will be sponsoring a "Meet the Candidates" conference 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Rex Cafe in Thief River Falls.

Eligible voters include anyone who: Is 18 years of age; is a United States citizen; has lived in Minnesota for 20 days immediately preceding the election; and is registered to vote. Noneligible voters include: anyone convicted of treason or a felony and not yet restored to vote. Advance registration for anyone who has moved to this area or a different precinct or is a new voter was on August 19 for the primary and will be October 14 for the November 4 election.

On election day voters may register at the polling place with any one of the following authorized proofs of residence: A valid Minnesota driver's license or learner's permit; valid Minnesota identification card showing correct address; oath of a voter registered in the precinct; current registration in the same precinct indicating a previous address; and a mailed notice received from the registration office indicating an insufficient registration.

Jodi Forsberg And Brett Carter United In Marriage June 28

The marriage celebration of Jodi Kaye Forsberg and Brett David Carter took place June 28 at Zion Lutheran church in this city. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Winton Forsberg and Dr. and Mrs. Robert Carter, all of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Richard Larson officiated at the 11:30 a.m. ceremony in the presence of approximately 200 relatives and friends. Phyllis Dalager served as organist; Ida Nordvall, pianist; and vocalists were Christine Berthelsen and Steve Dahlberg. All are friends of the couple. Processional was a piano and organ duet of "Canon in D" by Johann Pachelbel. Vocal selections were "All Good Gifts," "Never the Same" and "Jesus, the Living Bread." Recessional was "Prelude and Fugue in C Major" by J.S. Bach.

The church aisles were decorated with pink bows, with a large altar bouquet of pink and white and three-tiered candelabra adorned with pink bows and greenery.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white taffeta and re-embroidered Alencon lace with a high neckline, lace and pearl-trimmed illusion yoke, and long, fitted, lace sleeves with full, puffed shoulders. The slim basque bodice, topped a ruffled lampshade skirt and attached chapel train. Fashioned and designed by her mother, the circlet headpiece was covered in white miniature silk flowers, with attached bridal illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of nine pink sweetheart roses, white ball pompons, babies' breath and greenery arranged on an open white Bible that had been carried by her mother at her wedding.

Ruth Dalager, friend of the couple from St. Paul, was the bride's maid of honor. Bridesmaid was Kathy Achenbach-Will, friend of the couple from Minneapolis. Both attendants wore tea-length gowns of pastel pink taffeta with a closely fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline, princess seams and full, puffed, three-quarter sleeves and a softly pleated skirt. They wore pearl necklace and earring sets and pink pumps to match their gowns. Their bouquets were pale pink mini carnations, white ball pompons and miniature lilies arranged in a semi-cascade.

Tera Field, Rogers, ND, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a pink taffeta floor-length gown with sweetheart neckline, puffed sleeves, and wide pink sash at the waist. Her white basket was filled with flowers identical to those in the bouquets of the bridal attendants.

David Forsberg, Minneapolis, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer, attired in a tuxedo identical to those of the groomsmen. He carried a heart-shaped, satin ring pillow.

Jeff Carter of Grand Forks, ND, served as his brother's best man. The bride's brother, Mark Forsberg of Minneapolis, was groomsman. Bob Carter, Bemidji, brother of the groom, and Mike Cirks, Grand Forks, ND, cousin of the bride, were ushers. All gentlemen of the wedding party, including fathers of the couple, wore black-on-black pinstripe Pierre Cardin tuxedos, white shirts, black ties and cummerbunds, with boutonnieres of pink roses, mini carnations and white ball pompons. The groom was attired in black tails and wore a boutonniere of two pink sweetheart roses.

The mother of the bride wore a pastel pink street-length dress with matching necklace and earrings. The groom's mother also wore a street-length dress in pastel colors with pearl necklace and bracelet. Their corsages were an orchid nestled in pink mini carnations.

Guests of honor were Gladys Haarstad, Newfolden, grandmother of the bride; and Isabel Portman, White Bear Lake, grandmother of the groom. The bride's cousin, Renae Nelson of Minneapolis, served as her personal attendant.

The fellowship hall of the church was decorated in pink and white carnations, babies' breath and pink bows for the reception there following the ceremony. Hosts and hostesses were Dennis and Claudia Cirks, aunt and uncle of the bride; Belva Carter, aunt of the groom; and John Griffith, uncle of the groom. Margo Nelson, friend of the bride, registered the guests, and Ryan Carter, nephew of the groom, and Joshua Mindeman, cousin of the bride, arranged the gifts.

The white, three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with flowers and topped with a wedding cross. Maxine Griffith, aunt of the groom, and Virginia Field, aunt of the bride, cut and served the wedding cake. Barbara Nelson, aunt of the bride, and Cindy Forsberg, sister-in-law of the bride, poured. Cousins of the bride, Julie Nelson and Becky Cirks, served punch; and Jill Field and Noah Mindeman, cousins of the bride, distributed mint gifts to the guests. Waitresses were Laura Beito, Anne Naben, Jana Nelson and Karen Rude.

For a wedding trip to Inverness Falls resort in the Whiteshell Provincial park in Manitoba, the bride wore a pastel skirt and mint green summer sweater. Both the bride and groom are graduates of Lincoln high school, and the bride a graduate of Concordia college in Moorhead. She will teach fifth grade at Mark Twain elementary school here this year. The groom is an announcer and production manager at KTRF-KSNR radio stations in this city.

Primary Election September 9 Has Many Candidates

Absentee ballots are now available for the September 9 primary election. Pennington county residents can either send for the absentee ballots or stop by the county auditor's office and pick one up. A large number of candidates will be on the county and state ballots this year.

Applications for absentee ballots require a current mailing address, signature and date of birth. The September primary in Thief River Falls will see a large number of candidates for the limited number of positions on the November general election.

A primary must be held whenever there are more than two individuals running for the same office. The primary will reduce the number of candidates to two per office. In Pennington county, three candidates are campaigning for county attorney: Dave Olin, incumbent, Richard Sather and John Novacek. Ten candidates have filed for the county treasurer seat being vacated by Ellsworth Jorgenson, who is retiring. Those candidates include Vicki Bjorgaard, Leo Nelson, Beverly Holm, John W. Olson Sr., Wayne Bjornrud, Judy Geatz, Richard Lee Holmes, Marvin Johnson, Charles Oakes and Carol Johnson.

Absentee ballots should be mailed by September 7 so that they will reach the county auditor by September 9. Any ballots received after September 9 will not be counted in the election.

Absentee ballots are also available for the state primary on September 9, giving voters an even larger group of candidates to choose from. Candidates facing a September 9 primary include:

Governor and Lt. Governor — Republicans: Wallace Brattiud and Lavine Olson, James Lindau and M. Joan Parent, Cal R. Ludeman and Dennis W. Schulstad, Beatrice Mooney and Ione Gerads, Douglas J. Williams and Steve L. Williams; Democrats: William Twohy Heine and Dale M. Johnson, George Latimer and Arvonne Fraser, Andrew Olson and Linda Herschbach, Rudy Perpich and Marlene Johnson (incumbents), Phil Ratte and Kim Kimmel.

Secretary of State — Republicans: Don Koenig, Myron Nysether, and Mary Jane Rachner; Democrats: Joan Anderson Growe (incumbent) and Nordis Olson.

State Auditor — Republicans: Arnie Carlson (incumbent); Democrats: John Dooley, James Dunlop and Al Hanson.

State Treasurer — Republicans: Jual C. Carlson, John Drew, David A. Drummond, Jerry R. Engbretson, Roger W. Jenson and Adam Steele; Democrats: John F. Considine, Robert W. (Bob) Mattson (incumbent) and Michael McGrath.

Attorney General — Republicans: Sharon Anderson and Lew Freeman; Democrats: Richard Bullock, Samuel A. Faulk, Hubert H. Humphrey III (incumbent) and Wendy Alison Nora.

State Representative to the United States Congress, District 7 — Republican: Arlan Stangeland (incumbent) Democrats: Collin Peterson and Bill Kjeldahl.

State Senator, District 1 — Republican: Jim Butler; Democrat: LeRoy Stumpf (incumbent).

State Representative, District 1B — Democrat: Wally Sparby (incumbent)

While School District 564 in Thief River Falls will conduct its annual election along with the general election November 4, there will be no primary election for school board. Terms of Rev. Paul Bortnem, Greg Pribula and the late Myrle Carlson expire this year. Filings for school board positions will be open September 22 and close October 7 with terms running for three years.

Attorney General Gives Ideas On Nursing Homes

Choosing a nursing home for an older or infirmed friend or relative can be a difficult decision fraught with questions and uncertainties: is this the right place for the person? How will he or she react over the long term? Some suggestions are offered by the Minnesota attorney general's office.

The hardship can be compounded all the more by lack of information about how best those long-term health care needs may be served and what facilities are best suited to meet them. Following are some suggestions:

First, you should seek your doctor's advice on what kind of care the potential nursing home resident will need: skilled, intermediate, or simply boarding care. Your doctor should know if any special treatments or therapies are needed, as well as the potential resident's rehabilitation potential and the probable duration of stay.

You should find out how the doctor will continue his care — at the home or at his office. Your doctor should also be a good source of information about nursing homes, although this advice should never supplant your own investigation. Ultimately, your doctor's orders are necessary for admittance into any nursing home.

Second, you should consider thoroughly all the person's needs — personal as well as medical; i.e., what kinds of social activities, religious activities, food service, visitation rules and general atmosphere would you want to see in the home.

Once you've defined the person's medical and personal needs, you should begin a list of suitably located nursing homes. Location is important. The home should be close enough to family and friends to visit. A list can be compiled from the yellow pages, county social services or the nursing home ombudsman's office in the Minnesota department of human services.

Once you've compiled a list, start calling. A simple call can resolve a number of basic issues: does the home provide the general level of care you want? Can the home meet the particular dietary, therapeutic and personal needs of the potential resident? Are there any openings? If not, is there a waiting list? How can financing be arranged? If the home meets your preliminary approval, make an appointment to pay a visit. One should visit and compare as many homes as practical.

When visiting the home, be observant. In particular, note if the residents are comfortable, active, appear well cared for. See if the staff is courteous, conscientious, alert. Check the residents' rooms for space and privacy. Make sure the activities program suits the person you're placing. Visit the food service. Be sure the food is well prepared and special dietary needs met. Check if the home provides any special therapy you think will be needed. Finally, examine the home's grievance procedure.

You can get further information from either the Minnesota health department or the state human service department's board of aging's long-term care ombudsman. Health department's record of complaints is open to the public and you can get a copy of Minnesota's Patient's Bill of Rights and Responsibilities there. The Ombudsman's office has information on specific nursing homes and assists those looking for long-term care. Their addresses and phone numbers are: Minnesota Department of Health, 717 Delaware Street Southeast, Minneapolis, MN 55440, (612) 623-5000; and Board on Aging (Ombudsman's Office), Metro Square Building, Suite 204, 7th and Robert Streets, St. Paul, MN 55101, (612) 296-2770, (800) 652-9747 (toll free) ask for the aging information line.

Land Owners Will Talk To AF About Receiver Sites

force representatives met with local citizens in Thief River Falls. He said a cooperative effort is necessary and that the entire community needs to pull together to have the site located in this area. "Agriculture is the backbone of our economy," he said, "but we need diversification to survive and grow."

Tom Kenville, who has been a consultant to Jobs Incorporated on aviation related matters, outlined the purpose for the OTH-B system in the nation's defense. He said that Jobs Incorporated wanted to present information to land owners in the area who might be affected by the location of a receiver site here because "the right decisions are usually made when people are informed."

On the second visit here by air force representatives, Kenville said he flew them over the city and on a route which took them south over highway 32 past St. Hilaire, west three to five miles south of the cut-across (CSAH 3) to the west Pennington county line, north to highway 1 and back east to Thief River Falls. He said the route was flown several times and that a lot of photos were taken. There could be no better perspective of the area obtained than the low level flight, he said.

In Kenville's opinion, based on information in the draft environmental impact statement, Thief River Falls and Blanchard sites are the two finals sites under consideration. If the Thief River Falls site is selected, he said, it would likely be the western portion where receive antennae would be located.

"What is farmland in the area worth?" Kenville asked. "We haven't talked dollars, other than to mention that it was likely land would be available in the area in the neighborhood of $500 per acre. It is worth what a seller will take for it and what a buyer will pay. Air force officials have said the government will pay the same as a willing buyer would pay a willing seller without time or economic constraints."

Kenville also said that the air force indicated it would also consider 20-year leases with price renegotiated every five years, or a combination of purchase or lease agreements.

Since it is projected the government would need about 2,560 acres of land for the receive site, as much as four sections of land could be taken off the local tax rolls. Information presented by Kenville as prepared by Gerard DeHaan, county assessor, show land valued at $400 per acre to have a total tax of $3,093 per section (640 acres) if non-homestead and $2,024 per section if homestead. Tax loss for four sections under this formula would be about $12,400 to county, school district and townships per year if non-homestead and $8,100 per year if homestead.

In other areas where earlier phases of the OTH-B system have been or are being constructed, Kenville said, the air force has contributed services such as road surfacing, graveling or snow removal as an off-set for the tax loss. While the government has the right of eminent domain (condemnation) to acquire property at appraised value, that has not had to be used in other site locations, Kenville was told by air force officials.

Kenville also said the air force expects to employ about 50 civilian workers in maintenance and security positions in the receive site area at GS-7 to GS-10 pay levels of $22,000 to $32,000 per year. In addition, about 10 military personnel would be assigned to the station.

"If you are interested in talking to the government about the sale of land or the leasing of land, list your property's legal description after your name on the sign-up sheets," Kenville told the people at the meeting. "If you are not interested, just write 'no.' If the Thief River Falls site is selected, it will be up to you to determine how you want to negotiate if the air force is interested in your land. All we want to do is to be able to go to the Grand Forks hearing and say that at Thief River Falls we have so-and-so many land owners who are willing to talk to the air force about the use of their land."

Sign-up sheets distributed at the meeting indicated 26 property owners were interested in such discussion and negotiation. One person wrote 'no.'

St. Bernard's School

Thief River Falls, Minnesota

Today announced its Policy for Free and Reduced Price Meals for children unable to pay the full price of meals served under the National School Lunch Program. The following household size and income criteria will be used for determining eligibility:

Household Size	FREE MEALS Yearly	Monthly	Weekly	REDUCED PRICE MEALS Yearly	Monthly	Weekly
1	$ 6,968	$ 581	$134	$ 9,916	$ 827	$191
2	9,412	785	181	13,394	1,117	258
3	11,856	988	228	16,872	1,406	325
4	14,300	1,192	275	20,350	1,696	392
5	16,744	1,396	322	23,828	1,986	459
6	19,188	1,599	369	27,306	2,276	526
7	21,632	1,803	416	30,784	2,566	592
8	24,076	2,007	463	34,262	2,856	659
For each additional household member add	2,444	204	47	3,478	290	67

Children from households whose income is at or below the levels shown are eligible for free or reduced price meals.

Application forms are being sent to all homes with a letter to parents or guardians and an income scale. To apply for free or reduced price meals, households should fill out the form and return it to the school. Additional copies of the application form are available at the principal's office in each school. Households should answer all questions on the form. An application which does not contain all of the following information cannot be processed by the school: (1) the total household income and the amount and source of income received by each household member (such as wages, child support, etc.), OR just the household's food stamp case number if the household is currently on food stamps; (2) names of all household members; (3) social security numbers of all household members 21 years of age or older or the word "none" for any adult household member who does not have a social security number; and (4) the signature of an adult household member.

The information provided by the household is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility and verifying data. Applications may be verified by the school or other officials at any time during the school year.

If children are approved for free or reduced price meal benefits, the household must immediately report any increases in household income over $50 per month ($600 per year) and decreases in household size to the school.

Households may apply for benefits at any time during the school year. If a household is not currently eligible but has a decrease in household income, an increase in household size or if a household member becomes unemployed, the household should fill out an application at that time.

In certain cases foster children are eligible for free or reduced price meal benefits regardless of the household's income. If a household has foster children living with them and they wish to apply for free or reduced price meals for them, the household should contact the school for more information.

Under the provisions of the Policy, Ione Gonsorowski will review applications and determine eligibility. Parents or guardians dissatisfied with the ruling of that official may wish to discuss the decision with that official on an informal basis. The household also has the right to a fair hearing. This can be done by calling or writing the following official: Charles Walrath, 105 Knight Avenue North, Thief River Falls, MN; 681-1539 St. Bernard's School office has a copy of the complete policy, which may be reviewed by any interested party.

In the operation of our child feeding programs no child will be discriminated against on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, sex or handicap. If any member of a household believes they have been discriminated against, they should write immediately to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, DC 20250.

JAY BRUNNER has arrived in Thief River Falls from Anchorage, AK, to assume directorship of the Northwest regional development commission headquartered here. A native of Wayzata, Brunner and his wife have lived in Alaska for the past four and one-half years where Jay most recently served as senior planner and acting supervisor in the municipal and regional assistance division of the state's department of community and regional affairs.

Brunner Arrives To Direct Regional Development Office

Northwest regional development commission reached out for a new executive director and found a native Minnestoan working in Anchorage, Alaska. Jay Brunner, 33, made the long trip southeast to begin work at his new position in Thief River Falls late last week.

Brunner is originally from Zumbrota and his wife Claudia is from St. Paul. She will remain in Alaska until November where she is employed by the Alaska Council on Prevention of Alcohol and Drug Abuse. The council has an extensive annual program in process and she will work through completion of that event.

The Brunners went to Alaska on their honeymoon and stayed for four and a half years. During the last three and one-half years he has been with the municipal and regional assistance division, department of community and regional affairs for the state of Alaska as a senior planner and acting supervisor.

He had previously been a senior analyst for the Minnesita Energy agency and community development director for the city of Zumbrota. He was also a senior regional planner for the Southeatern Minnesota regional development commission at Rochester, a regional planner at Arrowhead regional development commission at Duluth and a planning intern for the city of Austin, TX.

Brunner holds a bachelor of arts degree in urban planning from the University of Minnesota-Duluth and a master of science in urban and regional planning from the University of Texas in Austin. He holds membership in the American Planning association, American Institute of Certified Planners and Alaska Planning association.

While the Brunners enjoyed their experiences in Alaska, Jay said they decided it was time to come back to Minnesota. He combined a trip here for an interview with an all-school reunion at Zumbrota after responding to an advertisement in a professional publication and being selected for an interview by the regional commission's personnel committee.

"The regional development commission is a service provider for everyone in the region," Brunner said. "I see my job as heavily service oriented and the commission as offering programs which are important and vital to everyone. Geographic location of the office should make no difference in the way which programs are carried out to be of service to people."

Brunner said he hopes to fill three more positions in the office structure in the next two months — a transportation planner, arts planner and one clerical position for which interviewing has already been done.

Present staff now includes Carol Sorenson, administrative assistant; Faith Rud, aging program manager; Helen Jurchen, community and economic development planner; Vi Olson, Green Thumb program manager; Leon Heath, planner; Norman Peterson, acting director; Donna Christenson, financial officer and grants manager; and Dave Rodahl, temporary worker in the biomass project.

Offices of the Northwest regional development commission are located in the north end of the Arctco complex southwest Thief River Falls. Any member of the public interested in any of the commission's programs is invited to stop at the offices, write to the commission at P.O. Box E in Thief River Falls or call 681-2637.

Tours Available At UMC Fruit, Vegetable Plots

Walk and talk tours of the demonstration small fruit and vegetable plots at the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) are open to the public at 6 p.m. Thursday at the Northwest experiment station.

Tours will show the current season's results to date, as well as pest problems and variety of performance of the 150 vegetable and 29 raspberry and strawberry varieties currently being evaluated, according to Phil Baird, project horticulturist.

The demonstration project was established to assist rural high school youth and young farmers to produce and market small fruit and vegetable crops for sale in their local markets in northwestern Minnesota. This is the second year of the three-year project.

The project is sponsored by the governor's rural development council, UMC, and the Northwest experiment station. Tours will begin at the plot area east of UMC's athletic field. The public is asked to use the south entrance of the campus.

Deaths And Funerals

Anna Lussier, 91

Brooks — Mrs. Arthur (Anna) Lussier, 91, died Wednesday at Riverview hospital in Crookston. Mass of Christian Burial was held Saturday at 10 a.m. in St. Joseph Catholic church in Brooks. Interment was in the church cemetery, with the Petterson Funeral home of Oklee in charge of arrangements.

Rev. Jerome Fellon, Rev. Keith Bonaventure, Rev. Leonard Breton and Rev. Dave Super concelebrated the mass. Special music was provided by Shelly Paquin, soloist; and Jennifer Cyr, organist; with Lorraine Mercil as church organist. Six grandsons of the deceased served as pallbearers.

Mary Ann "Anna" Champagne was born Nov. 6, 1894, in Lambert township, Red Lake County, daughter of Peter and Della Turcotte Champagne. She grew up there and married Arthur Lussier in 1912 at the old Lambert town hall in rural Brooks. They farmed in Popular River township, Red Lake county, until 1946, when they moved to Brooks where they operated a tavern for many years. Arthur Lussier died Feb. 2, 1973. She was a member of St. Anne's society and had been a resident of Hillcrest nursing home for nearly two years.

Survivors include five sons, Leon, Grand Rapids, Medore, Lander, WY, Ralph, South Milwaukee, WI, Theodore, Grand Rapids, and LaVern, Summerville, SC; seven daughters, Mrs. Lloyd (Cora) Wicklander, Roseau, Mrs. Harvey (Madonna) Asselin, South Milwaukee, WI, Mrs. Robert (Bernice) Bushy, East Grand Forks, Mrs. Elmer (Marjorie) Rindeau, Grand Rapids, Mrs. Ralph (Pearl) Rivard, Owens, WI, Mrs. Bob (Pam) Bruggeman, South Milwaukee, WI, and Mrs. Larry (Jeanie) O'Neill, Oklee; 69 grandchildren; 128 great-grandchildren; and 10 great-great-grandchildren.

Anna Lussier is also survived by three brothers, Amedie, Oklee, Albert, Madison, WI, and Arthur, Milwaukee, WI; and three sisters, Cora Breton, Grand Forks, ND, Louise Mercil, Brooks, and Florence Fortier, North St. Paul.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, one son, one daughter, 10 brothers and sisters, and one grandchild.

Charlie Rud, 80

Warren — Charlie A. Rud died Wednesday at the Warren hospital. Funeral services were held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Our Savior's Lutheran church there, with Rev. Dave Christianson officiating.

Pallbearers were Clifford Bennett, Melvin E. Johnson, Bardolf Pederson, Bennie Rood, Clayton Pearson and Warren Hamrick. All grandchildren were considered honorary bearers. Interment was at the Melo Lutheran cemetery, with the Quanrud Funeral home of Warren in charge of arrangements.

Charlie Rud was born in Warren Jan. 1, 1906, to Andrew and Christina Rud. He grew up there, and Dec. 17, 1942, married Thelma Hanson in Thief River Falls. They moved to Warren in February of 1977, where they farmed and he was a sheepshearer for many years. He was a member of the Helgeland township board.

He is survived by his wife; three daughters, Gloria Moorhead, Chanhassen, Colleen Johnson, Oslo, and JoAnn Zabinski, Borup; a son, Larry, Warren; 12 grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; two sisters, Marie Olson, Tacoma, WA, and Alma Pearson, Warren; and three brothers, Elof, Roseau, Marcus, Port Angeles, WA, and Fredrick, Warren.

He was preceded in death by his parents, four brothers and one sister.

Emma Kays, 86

Thief River Falls — Emma Kays died Wednesday at Northwest Medical center at the age of 86. Funeral services will be held today (Monday) at 2 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran church. Interment will be at Oak Lawn cemetery in Alvarado, Marshall county. The Green Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

Rev. Paul Coen will officiate at the funeral services, with Dorothy Larson as organist and Grace Hammer singing. Musical selections will be "Den Store Hvide Flok" and "I Hear the Voice of Jesus Say." Marty Lendobeja, Loren Lendobeja, Chris Kays, David Kays, Mark Kays, Scott Kays and Tom Kays will serve as pallbearers.

Emma Pauline Kays was born May 29, 1900, in Warren, to Peter and Sally Skarseth Bloomsness. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith at Alvarado, where she grew to adulthood. She attended Aaker's Business college and normal training classes, and taught school at Viking, Gatzke and other rural schools. Oct. 9, 1924, she married Marshall Edwin Kays.

They lived in Warren until 1940, and then moved to St. Louis Park. In 1941, they moved to Thief River Falls. Marshall Kays died Mar. 25, 1970. Emma Kays was an active member of Trinity Lutheran church women, holding many offices, spokesman of Lutheran Social Services and past president of the American Legion auxiliary.

Survivors include a daughter, Barbara Lendobeja, and a daughter-in-law, Beverly Kays, both of Thief River Falls; 14 grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents; husband, Marshall; one son, M. Philip; daughter, Shirley Love; two brothers; one sister; and two sons-in-law.

Roy A. Motz, 96

Minneapolis — Roy A. Motz, 96, died recently at Walker Methodist nursing home in Minneapolis. Funeral services were held Saturday at the Walker Methodist chapel, with private interment at Sunset cemetery in St. Anthony. The Werness Brothers Funeral home of Minneapolis was in charge of arrangements.

Roy A. Motz was a member of Hobart United Methodist church in Minneapolis and Masonic Ark Lodge 176 A.F. and A.M. He was retired from the Soo Line railroad after 49 years.

Survivors include a son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry (Mary Lou) Motz, Richfield; granddaughters, Sheri and husband, Dr. David Peterson, and Laurie, all of Minneapolis, and Carolyn, Richfield; and a great-grandson, Christopher Roy Peterson.

His wife, Gladys, preceded him in death.

Farmers Allowed Extra Month For Property Taxes

Farmers will have an extra month each fall to pay their second-half property taxes without a penalty beginning this year, the Minnesota department of revenue said today.

Farmers' second-half property taxes will be due November 15, rather than the normal due date of October 15. The extension was approved by the 1986 legislature at its special session April 2 and signed into law by Gov. Rudy Perpich.

The legislature and the governor extended the second half payment because bad fall weather often delays farmers from getting into fields to harvest their crops and because of the continuing poor farm economy, Perpich said.

First half payments were due May 15. The first half payment used to be due May 31, but a law change several years ago moved the date to May 15. The extension affects only farmers. Other property owners will have to pay their property tax by October 15.

Wednesday Elaine Koop and Sharon Piche and Danny visited with Lavina Swick.

Wednesday evening Sharon Koop and Danny, Dale and Gladee Koop, Jason and Kristine, Rupert Wolfgram, Alfred Jensen, Greg Rondorf and Shirley Koop helped Ron Koop celebrate his birthday at the home of Albert and Elaine Koop.

Eugene and Edna Rondorf visited on Thursday evening at the home of Kermit and Marian Finstad.

Thursday Art and Alma Brown, Ann Newland and Diane Erickson of White House, TN visited at the home of Marie Erickson.

Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Henry Melin, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Melin, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Melin, Mrs. Kirby McNarlane and girls Lillian Anderson, Web Maves and Irene Mosbeck were guests at the Web Mave's home to help Mrs. Web Maves celebrate her birthday.

Friday afternoon Lorraine Brinkman of Trail and Lorraine's grandchildren, Jennifer and Ralph, of Minneapolis visited at the home of Audrey and Dennis Brinkman.

Friday Jim and Renae Seibel and Jeremy visited at the Dennis Brinkman home.

Friday Margaret Snelling, Marie Erickson and Emily Erickson of Roseau visited at the Vernon Erickson home at Grand Forks, ND. Friday evening Roland and Lil Hellquist of Coon Rapids and Wayne and Diane Erickson of White House, TN visited at the home of Marie Erickson.

Friday evening Van and DeeDee Swanson and Clyde and Barb Sorenson had supper together.

Friday evening Jasmine Oakes was an overnight guest of Cara Kotrbas at her home.

Dale and Yoko Olson of Grand Forks, ND were lunch guests on Saturday at the home of Cal and Ardelle Offerdahl.

Saturday evening Jodee Kvarnlov visited at the home of Mark and Kathi Jenkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Gigstad, Kristopher and Grant of Minneota visited over the weekend at the home of Marie Kleinvachter.

Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Wold, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Peterson, Bernard Wold and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Wold attended the funeral services for Alice Quam at Trail. Later Mr. and Mrs. Norman Peterson visited at the Alvin Wold home.

Saturday John and Vicky Hellquist, Andrea and Scott of Bemidji, Marie Erickson and Emily Erickson of Roseau visited at the Vernon Erickson home at Grand Forks, ND.

Saturday evening Clarence and Alice Tangquist took Van and DeeDee Swanson, Kelly and Ryan out for supper.

Gordon Gunderson visited on Saturday forenoon at the home of Victor and Yvonne Walsberg.

Alvin and Pearl Wold visitied at the Roland Sande home on Saturday evening.

Sunday evening Maryel and Cecil Anderson, Nicole, Jonathon and Vanessa and Linda and Neil Peterson and family were supper guests at the home of Jan and Deidre Nordin to help Linda Peterson and Jan Nordin celebrate their birthdays.

Sunday afternoon Audrey and Dennis Brinkman and Shannon Brinkman visited at the Edwin Syverson home at McIntosh.

Cal and Ardelle Offerdahl, Cari and Cory attended the Bridgeman picnic at Oakland Park over the weekend.

Ron Breiland of San Diego, CA visited on Sunday evening at the home of Kermit and Marian Finstad.

Shelley Mathson, Michelle and Rachel were among the guests at Desirae Alberg's poolside birthday party at the Best Western on Sun.

Sunday Albert and Elaine Koop, Ron Koop, Ross Koop of Minot, ND, Sharon Piche and Danny and Alfred Jensen visited at the home of Dale and Gladee Koop to help Gladee celebrate her birthday.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Klem Gigstad, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Gigstad, Kristopher and Grant of Minneota, Gladys Johnson, Esther Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Engh of Warren, Stanley Erickson and Marie Kleinvachter had a picnic together at Itasca State park.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shaw and Elinor Moen all of Winnipeg and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Sande were supper guests at the home of Pearl and Alvin Wold.

Sunday John and Vicky Hellquist, Andrea and Scott of Bemidji, Marie Erickson and Emily Erickson of Roseau visited at the home of Aggie Erickson. Later on Sunday the Hellquists left for their home at Bemidji but Andrea stayed to spend a few days with Marie.

Clarence and Eva Anderson visited on Sunday evening at the home of Melvin and Bertha Anderson.

Monday Shirley Dahle, Janice Matson and Christopher, Donna Aubol and Danny of Eveleth and Gladys Porter were dinner guests at the Tom Matson home.

Lunch guests on Monday at the home of Pearl and Alvin Wold were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Shaw and Elininor Moen all of Winnipeg and Mr. and Mrs. Roland Sande.

GULLY . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Al Miller, Lisa and Amy of Maple Grove spent Thursday to Sunday at Ken Forsberg's and also visited other relatives. Alice went back with them and also Bridget Forsberg who had been staying with the Jerry Forsbergs at Crookston.

Allen Erickson of Lake Park spent Thursday, through Friday with his mother, Emma Erickson. Lois Leikness brought his wife Arlys over to Gully Friday afternoon. She had spent a few days with Lois at Fosston.

Luvern Fore, Sanna Brovold and Esther Thorssen attended a coffee party at Lucille Nyland's at Bemidji Tuesday afternoon. They also went over to Gladys and Wally Mattson's to see their apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Forsberg, Kim and Leah of Crookston and Bridget Forsberg of Buffalo were Saturday supper guests at Ken Forsberg's. They brought Bridget over they. Carol Rydeen and friend of Minneapolis were evening visitors.

I had a call from Harvey Aas at Crookston telling me that Lorretta and Haskell Reichert of Waukesha, WI, and Janice Aas had been to visit him and they went out for supper. He also sent greetings to his friends.

Svedarsky Discusses Wildlife And Gravel Pits At Conference

"Gravel pits and quarries have been generally overlooked as habitat for fish and wildlife in the U.S." according to Dan Svedarsky, researcher at the Northwest agricultural experiment station at Crookston. "Only within recent years have their potentials for these uses been developed."

Svedarsky spoke on this topic at a public relations forum held recently in St. Paul and sponsored by the National Sand and Gravel association and the National Stone association. The two-day meeting attracted industry and trade association representatives from the U.S. and Canada to discuss mining and reclamation programs which will guarantee aggregate supplies for the public and promote good community relations.

Each year in the U.S., over five tons of sand and gravel are used per capita in the construction of highways and buildings, and for road maintenance. In many regions, supplies are becoming limited due to depletion of the resource and suburban sprawl making existing resources unavailable.

Since transportation is the primary cost factor for aggregates, pits and quarries are generally located close to cities. This can be viewed as a problem or as an opportunity, Svedarsky said. No one wants to live next to an active mining operation, but a wildlife and fishing area developed in a gravel pit after mining can be in close proximity to hundreds of potential users.

Over half of the 85-acre Red River Valley natural history area at the University of Minnesota, Crookston, is an abandoned gravel pit. Svedarsky and co-workers have documented 45 different species of birds to breed there and the area is a popular nature study site for area students and citizens. The Quarry Hill nature center in Rochester includes an abandoned limestone quarry which is used by classes to study geology and changes in plants and wildlife. The Walden Ponds center near Boulder, CO, provides wetlands for migratory waterfowl, trout fishing for senior citizens and nature trails for bird watchers — all in a gravel pit. Students there are able to see mining in progress and the reclamation which follows.

A symposium was held at the University of Minnesota, Crookston in 1982 to assemble what was known about fish and wildlife potentials of gravel pits and discuss ways in which these uses could be promoted. An outgrowth of that meeting was the establishment of an awards program by the Wildlife Society, the professional organization of wildlife biologists, and the National Sand and Gravel association to recognize outstanding examples of reclamation which benefit fish and wildlife.

Svedarsky serves on the selection committee and last year's winner was the Meyer Gravel company which is reclaiming a 180-acre site northwest of Chicago. "Already the area provides a productive walleye and smallmouth bass fishery, an important migratory stop-over for waterfowl, and upland habitat for songbirds and pheasants," Svedarsky said.

"In reclaiming a gravel pit or quarry, it is most economical to have a plan beforehand of how the area is to look after mining. This minimuzes the movement of earth and allows reclamation to proceed along with mining. Reclamation features benefiting fish and wildlife include: constructing wetlands with peninsulas, nesting islands, uneven bottoms to support cattail patches in the water, and rock loafing islands; artificial fish reefs constructed of rock, tires, culverts and brush; nearby uplands seeded to grassy nesting cover or shrubs; and the addition of nesting boxes or rafts.

"Some shorebirds even require bare ground and, in England, a sheet of plastic is laid down under gravel to maintain bare nesting areas for the endangered, little ringed plover. Bermed walkways can be constructed in an area if nature trails are to be established after reclamation," Svedarsky said.

With proper preplanning, a gravel pit or quarry can eventually be attractive to fish and wildlife as well as people and be viewed as a community asset rather than an eyesore.

Dep't. Of Health Gives Update On Ice Cream Recall

Officials from the Minnesota department of health report that no confirmed cases of listeriosis have been associated with the consumption of ice cream included in the Marigold Foods recall thus far. At this time, no special precautions or treatment are recommended for persons who have no symptoms of the illness, even though they may have eaten ice cream products included in Tuesday's recall.

The ice cream, which was distributed under a variety of brand names, was recalled after the Food and Drug Administration discovered Listeria monocytogenes bacteria in a sample manufactured at the Marigold Foods ice cream plant in Rochester. The bacteria is widespread in the environment and rarely causes illness in humans.

Listeriosis, the disease caused by the bacteria, poses essentially no risk for healthy children and adults, according to department officials. It can, however, be serious for pregnant women, newborn infants and people with weakened immune systems, such as cancer patients.

Symptoms of listeriosis include fever and headache, which may be accompanied by nausea and vomiting. Persons in the high risk groups experiencing those symptoms should see their physician. If listeriosis is suspected, the physician can obtain a blood culture to confirm diagnosis.

Hearing Impaired Advisory Group Formed For Area

Upper Northwest regional service center for hearing impaired persons based out of Crookston has announced formation of an advisory committee to assist in evaluation and promotion of services offered to the hearing impaired.

Eight persons have agreed to serve on the committee, including Phyllis Schmidt and Janet Enger of Thief River Falls. They would like input of people from this area regarding services provided for the hearing impaired and any problems or suggestions the people would like to see addressed by the regional service center or by the Minnesota Council for Hearing Impaired. Schmidt can be contacted at 681-2880 (office) or 253-2041 (home). Enger can be called at 681-8005 (office) or 681-5880 (home).

Fall Prenatal Class Starts At Medical Center

Fall prenatal class at Northwest Medical center will begin September 2 in the CNC chapel and registrations are being taken now. Classes are co-sponsored by Northwest Medical center and the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute and last for five consecutive weeks.

This is not a prepared childbirth class, but includes the basic information for pregnancy, labor and delivery. It provides parents and parents-to-be, married or single, with the information that promotes healthy babies and gives new families a good beginning. There is no cost for the classes. Instructor is Evadell Tangquist, R.N. For more information to register call 681-4240, extension 359 or 446.

ODC Elects New Officers At 1986 Year-End Meeting

Occupational development center with headquarters in Thief River Falls and branches in Crookston, Bemidji and Roseau, held its annual fiscal year-end meeting recently.

The following officers were elected at that meeting: President, Mary Kay Klein of Bemidji; vice president, Emil Bagley of Crookston; secretary, Arvilla Wittner of Cass Lake; and treasurer, Dave Strong of Thief River Falls.

New board members acknowledged and welcomed were J.J. Womack and Joel Swanson of Thief River Falls, Earl Gangeness and Kris Ramey of Bemidji and Cliff Zaffke of Crookston.

The occupational development center is a comprehensive vocational rehabilitation center serving northwest Minnesota with approximately 160 handicapped employees and clients.

Gloryland Gospel Team To Sponsor Labor Day Camp

Gloryland Gospel Team of Gully will sponsor a Labor Day family camp at Sand Hill Lake Bible camp seven miles south of Fosston August 29 - September 1, beginning with the Friday evening service at 7:30 p.m. The camp will conclude with a Monday afternoon service at 2:30 p.m.

Speakers will include Rev. Larry Dorman of the Country Faith church of Clearbrook, who will speak on Monday morning at 10:30 a.m.; Rev. Gerald Lewin of the Bethel Assembly of Fosston, who will share the Bible Study at 9 a.m. Saturday through Monday mornings; Rev. David Johnson of Gateway Fellowship, Bagley, who will share at 10:30 a.m. Saturday and Sunday and Monday afternoons; and Rev. Gary Johnson of the Christian Faith Fellowship of Watertown, SD, who will share each evening.

Special music will be provided by the Gloryland Gospel Team and others.

There will be special classes for children during the morning sessions. Nursery is also provided. There is no registration fee but campers should let the team know of their intention of coming so that adequate preparations can be made. Write or call the Gloryland Gospel Team, Gully, MN 56646 or call 218-668-2538 (David) or 605-882-4266 (Gary).

The camp is operated completely on a free-will offering basis. Dormitories for family units and singles and all meals will be provided. Spaces for trailers, motorhomes and tents is also available.

Gas Price Survey Shows Reduction But Hike Expected

Statewide gas price survey of 97 stations by Minnesota AAA shows prices down about eight cents per gallon between mid-June and mid-August. However, about August 1, prices started to rise again.

"Even with recent fluctuations, gas prices in Minnesota are 37 cents per gallon lower than a year ago," said Mark A. Larson, AAA spokesman. "Traditionally, gas prices remain stable or drop from the end of summer through Christmas. However, recent OPEC announcements indicate prices may continue to rise slightly over the next few weeks."

Average full-service prices throughout Minnesota are as follows with northern Minnesota averages in parentheses: Regular, $1.073 ($1.001); unleaded, $1.112 ($1.03); premium unleaded, $1.292 (NA); and diesel, 94.7 (93.7) cents.

Self-service prices are: Regular, 84.5 (92.8) cents, unleaded, 87.6 (93.3) cents; premium unleaded, 98.6 (NA) cents; and diesel, 90.3 (NA) cents.

Over 60 per cent of the stations surveyed plan to be open Labor day, Sept. 1. Holiday travelers are advided to fill up early that day.

Early Childhood Program Accepts New Registration

Thief River Falls early childhood family education (ECFE) program is now taking registrations for fall quarter sessions which begin the week of September 8. The ECFE program offers sessions for children ages birth to kindergarten and their parents who live in School District 564.

For more information or to register please refer to the school district newsletter or call 681-2700, extension 231 or 214. Services are offered at no or minimal cost with fees waived if you are unable to pay.

Friends Of Library To Hold Book Fair

Thief River Falls friends of the library is reorganizing and is holding a book fair to raise monies to help match the grant from the Minnesota library foundation. The grant is a matching grant of $1,500 given to establish a high-interest low-vocabulary adult collection of books which will be housed in the Thief River Falls library. At present, $710.00 of the $1,500.00 has been raised.

The friends of the library are planning this book fair for September 10-12. People interested in becoming a friend of the library and helping with the book fair may contact the library at 681-4325.

Local Students Enlist In USAF Delayed Program

Terry A. Hawk, son of Richard and Roxanne Hawk of Thief River Falls, Jay A. Jonson, son of Harold and Marion Jonson of Thief River Falls, and Brian M. Rubischko, son of Mike and Joan Rubischko of Thief River Falls, enlisted into the air force's delayed enlistment program (DEP) and are scheduled to enter active duty on July 16, 1987.

On that date, the trio will fly to San Antonio, TX, where they will attend the United States air force's six-weeks basic military training program at Lackland air force base.

All three are 1987 graduates of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls. Hawk is scheduled for training in the air traffic control operator career area; Jonson is scheduled for training in the avionics navigational systems specialist career area; and Airman Basic Rubischko is scheduled for training in the precision measurement equipment specialist career area, all after successful competition of basic.

While completing training, all three will be earning college credits for air force training which may be applied toward as associate in sciences degree from the community college of the air force.

Anyone desiring information about the United States air force enlistment and its many opportunities should contact USAF recruiter, Technical Sergeant Ben Janczewski, by calling 218-751-6130, or stop by the USAF recruiting center at 550 Paul Bunyan drive N.W., Bemidji.

Price Of Natural Gas Reduced To Local Customers

A natural gas cost reduction from one of ICG Utilities' suppliers, Northern Natural Gas company, will mean that customers will pay 12 cents less per 1,000 cubic feet of gas (Mcf) effective August 13, according to Fred Little, vice president and general manager of the utility.

The bill of a typical ICG customer who uses 117 Mcf of gas a year will drop to $680 a year from $694. Combined with other recent decreases to the cost of gas, average yearly residential gas bills have dropped $75 or 11 per cent since Nov. 1, 1985. Thief River Falls is one of 44 communities in northern Minnesota served by ICG.

RIM Committees Will Form Soon To Set Priorities

Screening committees for the new Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) reserve program will be formed in the next few weeks. Sportsmen, farmer organizations, environmental and other groups concerned with land use and fish and wildlife enhancement in this country are urged to call the local soil and water conservation district (SWCD) to get involved.

Meetings chaired by the SWCD to determine county target areas will begin in late September or early October. The committees will establish local conservation priorities, review RIM reserve applications and make recommendations to the SWCD for enrolling cropland acres. Priorities will be based on erosion potential, water quality issues and suitability for wildlife habitat development.

The RIM reserve provides payments to landowners for retiring marginal agricultural land under 10 year or permanent easements. Cooperators can be reimbursed for costs of establishing permanent vegative cover and tree planting on retired acres. The sign-up period is expected to begin in late September. Interested farmers should contact their local SWCD.

The RIM reserve is a portion of the Reinvest in Minnesota resources act passed by the state legislature last session which allocated $10 million for conservation easements.

Research Site At Crookston Open To Tour On Wed.

Sigco Research's extensive plant research and breeding nursery at Crookston will be open for public inspection free of charge on Wednesday, September 3 during a twilight tour.

The facility, devoted mainly to sunflower and corn hybrid development, includes research trials and planting studies for sunflower, testing of corn hybrids and small plot yield comparisons on sunflower, corn, canola, alfalfa and soybeans.

The tour gets underway with a free picnic supper at 5 p.m., followed by wagon tours beginning at 6 p.m. Site is one-half mile north of the University of Minnesota on highway 75.

Why Voters Weary Of Election Campaigns

If interest in the political system is dying in the United States today, it is because the political candidates are killing it. Officials in office never cease their campaigning and challengers therefore must begin their campaigns early in an attempt to match incumbents' exposure. As a result, the voters are bombarded with rhetoric to such a constant degree that they psycholigically can't gear up mentally for an election.

Furthermore, all of the campaigns seem to be so much the same. If you are an incumbent, take credit for everything popular that has happened while in office whether you had anything to do with it or not. If you are on the outside, blame everything unpopular or problematic on the incumbent, whether he or she and anything to do with it or not. Change the names and the offices but the story is the same from one race to another.

Whenever anything unfortunate or potentially embarrassing happens in government, the opponents of incumbents point fingers of shame and blame. Their eagerness to find fault far exceeds their abilities to correct. It is far easier to be critical of what has been perceived as wrong than to be able to get things done right in the first place.

We believe most political candidates actually believe they have something to offer their constituents and that they can improve on the performance of their opponents. We also believe, given the way the system operates, that the individual candidate once in office has very little effect on the way government performs. That may be an unfair appraisal, but we have seen very little to dispute it in our years of observation.

Maybe the public could get more enthused about its government if the candidates talked cooperation and offered positive programs as potential means of improvement. Usual procedure is for candidates to pledge honesty, hard work, awareness of constituent needs or wants, all the things that should be expected of any employee or useful citizen, but avoid being very specific about what they can do about problems.

We think we could accept the candidate who simply said the incumbent has done a pretty fair job in office but the opponent believes he or she could do better. We would prefer a candidate who runs for the office rather than against the other candidate. And we would much prefer some system whereby the length of campaigns and the amount of total spending could be brought under some semblance of control.

Then perhaps the voters wouldn't be so weary of rhetoric and so numbed by the barrage of charges, counter-charges, counter-counter-chargers, name calling, finger pointing and fault finding that they would prefer to mark their ballot for "none of the above". But don't expect the system to change much — not unless the voting public changes its response.

22nd Amendment Repeal

Following editorial is from the Kittson County Enterprise:

In case no one has noticed, there's a move afoot in Congress to repeal the 22nd amendment which limits the presidency to two terms.

The push to repeal the limit obviously comes from the infatuation the electorate and congressional Republicans have with Ronald Reagan which has been quite apparent ever since he was elevated to the throne in 1980. It was obvious then and even more obvious now, that here is a man whom many feel deserves to be President for life.

And why not? A person who can do no wrong is a hard act to follow.

Like the three monkeys — "See no evil, Hear no evil, Speak no evil" Regan has drifted through nearly six years of office behind an impenetrable force field of denial — denial of responsibility for anything that might detract from his adolescent focus on a fairy tale world. It's good theatre and it's what the public wants, so a Reagan presidency from here to eternity is simply a desire to postpone indefinitely a confrontation with some hard and rather sobering realities.

Elmer L. Anderson, former Minnesota governor and current publisher of the Princeton Union-Eagle editorialized recently on just one of the problems for which Reagan has deftly denied or shifted responsibility — the national debt.

Anderson included in his comments a few excerpts from an editorial in the Aug. 4th issue of U.S. News and World Report written by chairman and editor-in-chief, Mortimer B. Zuckerman, entitled "The Big Owe."

Zuckerman stated that the national debt has nearly tripled during the not-yet-completed Reagan administration, from approximately $4,000 per person to $11,000 and that just to meet the interest payments on that debt, a family of four would have to pay increased federal income taxes of $2,100 per year.

Zuckerman added: "That might well be the most enduring legacy of the Reagan years. It has damaged the American economy and financial system, diminished the competitiveness of our export economy and contributed to the loss of millions of jobs and a $150 billion trade deficit. The compounding burden of debt is like some cancer growing on the economy and on Reagan's presidency."

Anderson also observed: "In one of the most fateful miscalculations in human history, it was decided that keeping taxes down would so stimulate production that increased revenues would be generated to balance the budget. Instead we are racing to catastrophe."

Zuckerman and Anderson, it could be argued, are the only two people on the face of the earth to recognize a problem — "naysayers" and "disciples of doom" as Reagan might call them in his folksy denial.

While Congress takes the heat and struggles to cope with ill-conceived tax cuts and mounting military spending, the president diverts everyone's attention from the deficit, the farm crisis, unemployment, hunger, South Africa, Nicaraugua, Angola and the middle east by launching a meaningless rhetorical campaign against drug abuse.

If everything is that simple and easily swept under the rug, why not just continue with Reagan by means of a military coup rather than the complicated and time-consuming method of amending the Constitution? It would be more in keeping with the tenor of the Reagan regime.

The Future Is Knocking

Following comments from "The Land" publication appeared recently in the Land O'Lakes "Mirror":

It's confusing to ponder the future of agriculture in times such as these. There seems to be a surplus of every commodity and product that farmers produce. Increasing foreign competition makes demand for their products even less. And yet amidst all of this "overproduction," universities, private practices, research organizations, Extension and other government services are committed to research aimed in one direction: increasing yields, increasing production, increases, increases, increases. The reasonable question to ask is, "Why research to create more when we already have surpluses?"

Of course, the answer is obvious. We can no more stop research and advancing technology than we can stop the passage of time. To not grow, to not stretch our abilities, goes against the grain of mankind. And for the individual producer, the productivity gains may mean survival in an increasingly competitive arena. But what are the implications for the industry as a whole? Who's considering the "big picture" as revolutionary changes speed agriculture along a causeway that it's not driven before?

Consider, for a moment, the implications of a new bovine growth hormone on the dairy industry.

Experts believe that in perhaps just five years, the FDA may approve the usage of a bovine growth hormone, also known as bovine somatotropin, for use by dairy producers. The compound is known to cause laboratory animals to grow more rapidly, and in tests conducted with milk cows, startling boosts in production have resulted. Apparently, cows given the growth hormone simply become more efficient. Daily shots of the hormone can increase yields by roughly 25 per cent over a full lactation. Some experts believe that producers will be forced to utilize the hormone in their operations just to stay competitive.

Even though use of the growth hormone is still a few years away, surveys done of dairy producers reveal the possibility of rapid adoption of the biotechnology. The impact on the industry could be dramatic, posing new problems and challenges that should be weighed against the advantages of such methods.

The bovine growth hormone is the future staring farmers in the face; an Orwellian picture of a dramatically different industry. Are farmers ready for the change?

The reasons that many farmers cite for choosing farming as a career (individualism, making their own business decisions, being in control of their own destiny) seems to be evaporating at an increasingly rapid pace. More and more, their decisions are being dictated by industry scientists and government agencies who, in a direct or indirect manner, are telling them to conform or get out.

Innovations such as the bovine growth hormone are what we call "progress." To not acknowledge the changes and challenges they will present is to believe farmers could manage as they did 50 years ago and still be competitive today. Ready or not, the future is knocking at the door.

Interesting Opinions:

"The most important challenge for bankers now is to remain calm in the face of rampant (farm loan) defaults, to continue doling out working capital to farmers and refrain from calling in every weak loan to cut losses. The bankers will have to exercise acute judgment in separating the hopeless borrowers from those who, with a little more forbearance, could make it. Good judgement is essential to prevent the shakeout in the grain belt from exacting an even greater toll." —Fortune Magazine

Borrowed Nonsense

Good News, Bad News: "We're giving you a raise, Charlie," the farmer said to his farmhand. "We want your last week here to be a happy one."

"Let me get my purse," the lady of the house said to the hobo at the door. "Hurry it up, will you?" the hobo urged. "The cab driver has the meter running."

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

We buried our Mom last week. For the last three years she had been a resident of the C.N.C. Unit at the Northwest Medical Center and I guess, in my roundabout fashion, that is what this letter is all about. Let's just call it an open letter to anyone who is facing the decision of a full-care nursing facility for a loved one.

In our case, what made that decision especially tough was when we started hearing all of this negative commentary from the street, regarding the C.N.C. Unit. We heard terms like "rat hole", "snake pit", "fox farm" and worse, being used to describe the place and even though we had a pretty good hunch that the people doing the "bad mouthing" probably didn't have the slighest idea of what was actually going on up there, it sure didn't make things any easier.

Well, we didn't listen. Thank God, we didn't listen! After an inspection tour of the facility and seeing those sparkling floors, the big windows letting in plenty of sunlight and giving an excellent view of the river and, most of all, watching the staff at work and listening to their cheerful comments to the residents, we decided to "go for it!"

We have never regretted that decision; not at any time during those three years that Mom was a resident up there. Oh, it's not a "fun place" to be in. Those people aren't there because they want to be. They would sooner be home and believe me, it shows! It also can't be a "fun place" in which to work but you'd never know it by watching the staff at work. They are pleasant and cheerful and above all, they care! Busy as they are, I have hardly ever seen a nurse pass a patient in the hallway without exchangine a little pleasantry as she passed.

I hate to sound maudlin but I'd like to give you a little illustration about my comment that "they care". My sister and I were with Mom when she died. We called the desk and two of the nurses hurried in. After a brief examination, they turned to us and told us that she had passed away and when they turned around, I noticed that both of them were crying. To me, that says it all.

I hope this letter helps a little. I also want to publicly thank the whole gang at the C.N.C. for making my Mother's last three years as pleasant and comfortable as was humanly possible. As for those people on the streets with the negative commentary, (and yes, I still hear the same garbage), you ought to be ashamed of yourselves!

Sincerely
Charles C. Barr

Weeds And Grasses Are Problems For Late Seeded Crops

A combination of wet conditions and late planted fields are posing weed and grass problems, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service. Low test weights of oats and barley were reported. Some small grain fields look bad enough not to be harvested and some barley fields in the northwest have been swathed for about two weeks and are showing signs of sprouting problems.

Row crops continue to look good even though hot suny days would move progress a little faster. Some reporters indicated this is the best corn they've seen in several years. Wild rice harvest is about half through. Topsoil moisture as of August 15 was rated seven per cent short, 69 per cent adequate and 24 per cent surplus. The number of days suitable for fieldwork during the week averaged 4.2.

Small grain yields are not as good as earlier expected. Rains have delayed harvest several times this season, but a few weeks of warm, dry weather would help operators complete their harvest. Rust is evident in late planted small grain fields. Barley combining is virtually complete in the southern part of the state.

Many feel this year's corn crop will produce record yields. Corn rootworm beetle populations are above last year's level in all districts except the east central. Lodging is occurring in the west central and southwest districts. Other than the areas hit by hail last month and late plantings, crops look good. Reports of mildew on soybeans were received from the west central area. Weekly rains continue to keep the middle of the state in surplus topsoil moisture condition.

Third crop haying is underway in many areas while wet conditions have caused a slowdown on completion of the second crop harvest. Hay in the swath needs some hot dry days to cure out.

An estimated 93 per cent of the spring wheat crop is turning ripe and beyond, compared with 93 per cent last year and 97 per cent for the five-year average. Cutting or swathed and beyond at 56 per cent complete compares with 54 per cent a year ago and a five-year average of 77 per cent. An estimated 33 per cent of the acreage is combined versus 30 per cent last year and 51 per cent for the five-year average. Spring wheat condition as of August 15 was rated one per cent very poor, seven per cent poor, 53 per cent fair and 39 per cent good.

Oats turning ripe and beyond reached 99 per cent of the crop, the same as last year and the five-year average. Oats cut or swathed and beyond at 88 per cent is below last year's 93 per cent and the five-year average of 95 per cent. An estimated 73 per cent of the crop has been combined compared with 78 per cent last year and 81 per cent for the five-year average.

Barley turning ripe and beyond at 98 per cent is only one point below last year and the five-year average. An estimated 75 per cent of the crop is cut or swathed or beyond versus 88 per cent for a year earlier and 93 per cent for the five-year average. Barley combined amounts to 43 per cent of the acreage compared with 60 per cent last year and 77 per cent for the five-year average.

Field corn tasseling and beyond at 99 per cent is equal to last year and the five-year average. An estimated 91 per cent of the crop is in the milk stage or beyond compared with 86 per cent a year ago and 81 per cent for the five-year average. Field corn in the dough stage at 34 per cent is ahead of last year's 30 per cent and the five-year average of 29 per cent. Field corn condition is rated one per cent very poor, one per cent poor, 17 per cent fair, 50 per cent good and 31 per cent excellent.

Soybeans blooming and beyond at 98 per cent is the same as last year and the five-year average. An estimated 88 per cent of the crop is setting pods compared with 90 per cent a year ago and 85 per cent for the five-year average. Soybean condition is rated one per cent very poor, two per cent poor, 25 per cent fair, 59 per cent good and 13 per cent excellent.

Winter wheat harvested is estimated at 91 per cent versus 79 per cent for last year and 90 per cent for the five-year average. An estimated 92 per cent of the rye crop is harvested versus 85 per cent last year and 92 per cent for the five-year average. Sweet corn harvested for processing is at 34 per cent, compared with 34 per cent last year and the five-year average of 31 per cent.

School Luncheon Thursday For All Staff Members

Thursday noon luncheon sponsored by the Thief River Falls board of education this week is intended for all staff members of the public schools rather than just faculty members, according to school administrators. An article on school opening in Wednesday's edition of the Times had indicated the luncheon was for the district's teachers. Faculty, clerical and secretarial staff, maintenance and custodial employees, cooks, bus drivers and all other employees are invited to attend the event from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the Franklin middle school cafeteria.

Annual Farmyard Beautification Won By Bob Walds

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Wald of rural Thief River Falls are the winners of the annual farmyard beautification contest sponsored by the Pennington soil and water conservation district. The Walds live in Rocksbury township.

Each year a different area of the county is eligible for judging. Townships in this year's contest were North, Norden, Rocksbury and Silverton.

Harvest Of Wild Rice Will Begin In Area Tuesday

Wild rice harvesting will open statewide in Minnesota on Tuesday, August 26, at 9 a.m., the Department of Natural Resources has announced.

Harvesting hours will be from 9 a.m. to noon on August 26, 28, 30 and September 1, 3, 5 and 7. Starting Monday, September 8, harvesting will be allowed daily from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Starting September 13, hours will be extended from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Wild rice coordinator, Conservation Officer Gerald McHugh, noted that some wild rice beds will not be ripe when the season opens August 26. These rice beds may be posted closed by the local conservation officer at the primary access sites. DNR enforcement officials cautioned that only persons of Indian blood or residents of Indian reservations who purchase special band permits may harvest rice within the boundaries of Indian reservations.

Those who wish to harvest on reservations should check with state or reservation conservation officers on regulations which may vary from one reservation to another.

The rice crop statewise is only fair this year due to heavy rains in parts of northern Minnesota that adversely affected some rice beds.

DUSTIN NEUSCHWANDER, 3, son of Elden and Dawn Neuschwander of Grygla, found Fall Festival activities in Grygla Saturday a little tiring, and his friend Poky a comfortable pillow in the shade.

DEED Announces Grant Cycle Date, State Workshops

Department of energy and economic development has announced that the fiscal year 1987 small cities development program (SCDP) grant cycle will begin on September 3. The SCDP, which is funded by the United States department of housing and urban development, is a competitive grant program designed to meet critical social, economic and environmental needs of communities throughout the state.

Its purpose, as stated in federal law, is "the development of viable urban communities, by providing decent housing and a suitable living environment and expanding economic opportunities, principally for persons of low and moderate income."

Eligible applicants include cities and townships of under 50,000 population and counties of under 200,000 population. It is anticipated that approximately $15 million will be available for the SCDP in fiscal year 1987. Application deadline will be Jan. 30, 1987.

Each year, the department receives many more applications than can be funded. Experience suggests that without a thorough knowledge of the program and the application requirements, an applicant stands little chance of success. Therefore, in an effort to make the program accessible to all eligible communities, workshops have been scheduled for three centrally located areas of the state: Bemidji, September 3 at the Bemidji Holiday Inn; St. Cloud, September 8 at the Holiday Inn, and Mankato September 12 at the Holiday Inn downtown. Registration begins at 8:30 and the workshops will begin promptly at 9 a.m. and run through 5 p.m. A registration fee of $10 covers the cost of lunch and breaks.

Application materials, including manuals, forms and technical assistance documents will be distributed at the workshops. If it is not possible to attend one of the workshops, application materials will be available on or before September 3 from the community development division. For application materials or more information about the SCDP contact: Minnesota Small Cities Development program, Department of Energy and Economic Development, Ninth floor, American Center building, 150 East Kellogg boulevard St. Paul, MN 55101, or call toll free 1-800-652-9747, and ask for community development division, DEED.

Expect Oil Price Rally To Decline In Near Future

by Walter W. Heller
U of M Economist

Gasoline prices are on the way up again, mainly as a result of OPEC's agreement to cut its oil production by four million barrels a day in September and October. On the strength of this news, oil prices quickly bounced back to the $15 per barrel range.

What the economist has to do is not just rush to the gas pump in a self-serving way, but try to project what all this means for the economy at large.

In this effort, the first puzzle is whether the OPEC deal will soon fall apart or instead represents a new phase of sustained self-discipline that will hold crude oil prices at $15 or more. On that one, both the checkered past of the oil cartel and the continued present oil glut in the world make me doubt that OPEC can hold the line. What's now going up will again come down.

The second and bigger puzzle is when will the economic gains from the drop in oil prices from $30 last November to $15 a barrel or lower start outweighing the costs. So far, the costs have been greater than almost anyone outside the oil patch foresaw: big layoffs in and around the oil industry, oil and gas drilling at new lows, oil-country banks staggering and so on. That's no small matter. For example, if oil investment hadn't tumbled and oil imports hadn't surged, that anemic 1.1 per cent advance of gross national product in the second quarter would have weighed in a healthy three and one-third per cent.

So, won't the economy still get a decent payoff on the big skid in oil prices? Yes, it will. In fact, we have already benefited in that slumping oil prices have helped slow inflation to a crawl. That stretches the consumer dollar. Every drop of $1 per barrel in oil prices puts $80 a year in the pockets of a typical American household. Even if oil levels out at $15, that's over $1,000 per year.

That has already been boosting consumer demand, but too much of that demand has been satisfied by surging imports. As the sharply lower dollar starts choking down the flood of imports, these extra dollars spawned by cheaper oil will be buying U.S. goods and spurring U.S. production. Then, the benefits of the oil-price slump will be a lot more visible.

Marshall County Candidates Seek Primary Success

. . . Bendickson

I'm a native of Thief River Falls and graduated from Lincoln senior high school in 1962. I served in the Viet Nam war, stationed in Germany. Upon my discharge, I attended Northern technical school of business in Minneapolis for two years. From 1971 to 1975 I was deputy assessor in Polk county preceded by various appraisal positions in northwestern Minnesota.

I have resided in Warren for the past four years with my wife, Claudia (Kraemer), and two children, Eric, 6 years old, and Bridget, 2 years old.

I serve on the Warren volunteer fire department and am a member of the American legion. I'm also a member of the Minnesota association of assessing officers; past president of Region 8, MAAO; a member of the association of Minnesota counties; and received my accreditation from the state of Minnesota in 1980.

I believe I am qualified for the position having been in county government working with the property tax system for the last fourteen years. In the eight years as Marshall county assessor, I have gained experience in working with township boards, county boards and the department of revenue; office management; public relations and geographic knowledge.

As assessor, I have enjoyed working for the people of Marshall county and would like to have the opportunity to serve you as auditor-treasurer. I would appreciate your support.

. . . Schmidt

Benson Redi-Mix in Stephen and Jonathan attends the Stephen elementary school where he will be in the 5th grade.

I am formerly from Karlstad where I attended and graduated from the Karlstad public school. After graduation I attended Bemidji state college. My parents Bert and Gladyce Trane still reside in Karlstad.

My past employment experiences include employment as a bookkeeper-office manager for a potato company and a secretary in a law office.

I am a member of the order of the Eastern Star and the Stephen Booster club. My family and I are members of the First Lutheran church in Stephen.

. . . Swanson

Daniel.

My hobbies and interests are fishing, hunting, woodworking and sports.

I served in the U.S. Army, was later employed by Valley Builders and International Harvester Co. and in 1973 purchased and formed Warren Implement with a partner until 1985. I am now employed in sales at Nelson Motor Co. in Warren.

I have been active in community organizations. I am a member of American Legion post 27, where I have held the offices of commander and adjutant and am now a member of the executive board. I am a member of First Lutheran church, where I am a council member and was at one time, church treasurer. I was vice president of Marshall-Polk Rural Water Association, board member of Warren community hospital, past member of Warren volunteer ambulance corps, past president of Warren chamber of commerce and a committee member of the Warren centennial.

After working for the public for 23 years and serving people in my business, I believe my experience is an asset to serving Marshall county residents as auditor-treasurer.

. . . Stengrim

My wife, Deborah, and I have lived on the farm for the past 10 years. We are members of St. Peter and Paul Catholic church where I am presently serving on the parish council. I am also a member of the men's club and the Knights of Columbus.

Deb and I are the parents of four children: Mark-11, Scott-9, Tami-4, and Julie-11 months.

My desire to serve and help the citizens of Marshall county during this time of economic stress has influenced me to seek the auditor-treasurer position.

. . . Erickson

bout who also graduated from Warren high school. After holding various management positions we returned to Warren in 1976. In 1977 we purchased Erickson clothing and operated our family clothing store until 1985. I currently commute to Grand Forks where I manage a retail business.

My wife and I have three children: Michael, 15, will be a sophomore; Timothy, 11, will be in 5th grade; and Christina, 7, will be in 2nd grade. We are members of Our Savior's Lutheran church in Warren.

I am an active member of the Warren volunteer fire department, past president of the merchants committee of the Warren chamber of commerce, past board member of the Warren chamber of commerce, and former member of the Jaycees.

GRYGLA MARCHING BAND and baton twirlers strutted down the streets of Grygla during its Fall Festival Saturday. Activities Saturday included the parade, softball and horseshoe tournaments and a carnival atmosphere with display booths, food booths and a dunking booth downtown.

I feel that my education and employment experience qualify me for the position of Marshall county recorder. Thirteen years of working with the public and being both an employer and an employee enable me to understand the economics of directing a county office. I willingly accept the challenge the office of recorder has to offer and look forward to serving all Marshall county residents.

I promise to work hard and do the best job possible to represent the office of recorder and the people of Marshall county.

I thank you for your vote and your support!

. . . Gloude

time I began employment at Nelson Motor Co., our local Ford dealership. I have been there since that time in various capacities, serving as service manager for many years and am presently in clerical work in billing, warranty billing, parts for shop personnel, and assisting in the shop if needed.

I have been chairman and treasurer of the Evangelical Covenant church of Warren, of which we are members. Presently I serve as a deacon and Bible class teacher. I served as treasurer of the Bible camp board, treasurer of Lion's club, currently as one of the board of directors.

I married Doris Mae Anderson of Viking, who is a Newfolden graduate. We have four children: Donavon, an engineer at Honeywell in Minneapolis; Delsie of St. Paul, an assistant marketing manager for HMO'S for Group Health Inc.; David of San Bernardino, CA, in the personnel department at Campus Crusade for Christ headquarters; and Duan of Warren, employed by Peterson Farms Inc.

I feel the years of meeting the public in business, varied work backgrounds and a desire to serve, plus maturity can bring a degree of integrity that has characterized it in the past.

. . . Halvorson

years and Travis, 11 years.

Besides my 11 years in the Marshall county recorder's office, I am active in the American legion auxiliary, presently serving as second vice-president, a member of the Warren sno-cat riders club, a member of the valley women's bowling association, active in the meals on wheels program, and a past member of the Warren volunteer firemen's auxiliary for eight years. We are members of Our Savior's Lutheran church where I have been a Sunday school teacher and am currently a senior league advisor.

I am the former Marion Copeland, and I attended elementary school in Rosewood and Viking, graduated from Newfolden high school in 1966, and Thief River Falls AVTI in the business department. My mother and step-father, Elizabeth and Art Swenson, reside in Rosewood.

My work experience includes 11 years experience and currently working for the Marshall county recorder's office, legal secretarial work for the Metropolitan attorney's office, secretary for General Mills, Inc. and secretary for the Marshall county auditor's office.

My qualifications for the county recorder's office are: knowledge of state laws pertaining to recording and filing of documents in the county recorder's office; knowledge of legal land descriptions; knowledge in the abstract department; abiltiy to plan, organize, direct and supervise work of others, and experience in serving the public.

. . . Nowacki

farming for 11 years.

We are members of St. John the Baptist Catholic church of rural Argyle. I have taught religion classes for the past nine years and am a Eucharistic minister. I lead a Renew small group Bible study group and have been a member of the parish council. I am a member of the Knights of Columbus where I have been an officer and council activities chairman. In 1982 I was voted Knight of the Year in my local council and then honored with the State of Minnesota Knight of the year award at the state convention. I am a member of the Marshall county Crop Improvement association. I am currently serving my third three-year term as township officer of Alma township.

I believe that the above experiences along with my typing skills, working with employees and some experience with real estate transactions and descriptions will help qualify me for Marshall county recorder.

My wife Sheryl, formerly Sheryl Sculthorp of Thief River Falls, and I have been married for 13 years. We have two children, Tiffany, 8, and Michael, 3. Sheryl is a substitute elementary teacher for the Argyle public school.

My parents are Mr and Mrs Frank Nowacki of Argyle.

I believe the position of county recorder would be interesting and challenging.

. . . Peterson

high school I attended Aaker's business college in Grand Forks taking courses in accounting, filing, typing, and business law.

After attending school I was hired by International Harvester company in Grand Forks working as service center clerk. In 1967 I was transferred to the Warren store where I worked as the store accountant for seven years. In 1973 I and a partner purchased the Warren International Harvester business under the name Warren Implement company selling International Harvester trucks, farm equipment, parts and operating a service department. In 1985 Tenneco purchased International Harvester's farm equipment division. At that time, I decided to discontinue our contract with the Harvester line.

I am married to the former Janis Scramstad of Middle River. Janis is employed at the Warren clinic. We have two daughters, Gwen, who is attending college at Moorhead, and Tracey, who is in the 10th grade at Warren high school.

We are members of First Lutheran church in Warren where I have served on the church council. I was a member of the Warren chamber of commerce for 12 years. My hobbies include hunting, fishing, photography, and baseball which I played throughout high school and later belonged to an independent team at Grygla and Gatzke.

I feel my education and the experience of owning and managing a business for 13 years qualifies me for the position of Marshall county recorder.

I have met many of the people in the county in the years we have been in business, and I would certainly appreciate your support at the polls in the September 9th primary.

. . . Stauffenecker

We have three children. Our daughters are Tina, 14 and a freshman, and Tracy, 12, who is in 7th grade. They both attend Warren high school. Our son Scott, 11, is a fifth grader at Warren elementary.

I was born in Greenbush, Minnesota, and graduated from Greenbush high school in 1972. I have lived in Marshall county for the past 14 years, having lived the first five years in Newfolden, and on a farm near Radium for six years before we purchased a home at 731 North First street in Warren.

I have been the butcher and meat department manager at Dale's Foods in Warren for the past 11 years. After working with the public in the retail business, and having a good rapport with the customers and an excellent work record, I think I could do a good job as Marshall county recorder.

I was raised on a farm and I believe every job deserves your best effort and I ask the voters of Marshall county for a chance to accomplish that.

My family are members of Valley Christian Fellowship church and my wife and I have been involved with Teens Encounter Christ.

I'm a member of the Warren volunteer fire department and a past member of Warren Jaycees.

I serve as Cubmaster and Webelo's leader for the local Cub Scout troop, Pack 50.

I enjoy stamp collecting, woodworking, reading, hunting, and I also play softball and enjoy all outdoor activities.

I enjoy meeting people and making new friends and I think it would be a rewarding experience to serve the residents of Marshall county in the recorders office.

I "Thank You" for your support and would greatly appreciate your vote on September 9.

UMC Information Night Thursday Stresses Classes

A college information night is scheduled for the University of Minnesota-Crookston (UMC) at 7 p.m. Thursday in Dowell Hall 207.

Items of special interest to be covered are the regent's farm family scholarship, new this fall; adult incentive grant, a scholarship program designed to allow adults to take up to three college credits free of charge; and non-traditional students; those who have been out of high school for a period of time, who will receive special information about classes.

Additional topics covered will be simplified admissions options, financial aid options and academic programs. Time will be provided for questions and answers and individual concerns. All sessions are free and open to the public.

Steven Erickson Completes Course In Marine Corps

Marine Pfc. Steven J. Erickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Erickson of route 5, Thief River Falls, has completed the marine corps communications center course.

During the 10-week course at the marine corps communication-electronics school, Twentynine Palms, CA, Pfc. Erickson received instruction on the installation and operation of communications center equipment used by the marine corps. He studied touch typing and the procedures for preparation, transmission, receipt and delivery of messages. He was also instructed on how to operate manual tele-typewriters and the equipment associated with the automatic digital netword (AUTODIN) message system.

A 1985 graduate of Lincoln high school, he joined the marine corps in September of 1985.

RIM Program To Benefit Farmers, Land, Wildlife

Many farmers will benefit from the new RIM (Reinvest in Minnesota) program because they will have the opportunity to receive payment from the state for retiring marginal land from farm production. Those who sign up for the program will also be paid to seed the land to prevent erosion and encourage the development of wildlife.

State Representative Wally Sparby of Thief River Falls called attention to the RIM bill passed by the legislature earlier this year. It is intended to improve land management policies in the state by encouraging conservation efforts on farmland that is marginal due to light soil, steep slopes and heavy erosion.

"Farmers whose land includes some marginal acres will be encouraged to retire that acreage and to seed the land with vegetation to protect against erosion and to provide food and cover for wildlife," Sparby said. "Those who are willing to grant an easement on their marginal acres and whose land is eligible for the program will receive the total cost of seeding it — up to a maximum of $75 an acre, or even $150 an acre if they agree to plant shrubs and trees as well as seeding."

According to Sparby, the commissioner of agriculture will be provided with $10 million to obtain land easements from farmers and put the program into practice.

"The RIM program offers a splendid opportunity to maximize our soil and water conservation efforts and to increase wildlife and fish habitat, as well as providing some financial relief to hard-pressed farmers," Sparby added. "In addition, it could reduce cropland acreage and thus help reduce the surplus problems we face in Minnesota."

Sparby said the RIM program promises a long range effort to preserve and improve our natural resources. "It should benefit our agricultural and tourism industries and the entire economy of Minnesota," he said.

The sign-up period for the RIM reserve program should being in the middle of September. Additional information may be obtained by contacting soil and water conservation district offices in Red Lake Falls, Thief River Falls, Warren or Grygla. These offices are taking names and addresses of those interested in applying for the program and will then make contact when the application period opens.

American State Bank & Insurance Agency

MISS MARSHALL COUNTY, Derel Engelstad, rode the best all around float in the Fall Festival parade in Grygla Saturday, which was built by American State Bank and Insurance Agency. In parade judging, the Plummer Lion's club float, complete with tub and scrubbers was the funniest, the best antique vehicle was driven by Halvor Reise, and the most original float was the Grygla-Gatzke high school "float."

Care Advised In Information On Financial Data

In this sophisticated, high-tech world of computerized banking, electronic billing and credit cards, it seems our lot to be constantly barraged for information about our personal lives. Where do we live? Where do we work? With whom do we live? What are we worth? What are our numbers — social security, phone, household and more.

While most requests are made for legitimate reasons, there are unscrupulous companies and individuals who would use such information to bilk you. In their hands, data about your personal and financial affairs can be as good as the key to your bank account, according to the Minnesota attorney general's office.

To get such information a swindler will use all kinds of tricks. In one kind of swindle a con artist will call people at random from the phonebook. Listeners will be told that a major credit card company is updating information about them which it has in its file. Credit card numbers and drivers license numbers will then be asked for: Those who are naive enough to give out that information soon find themselves facing horrendous bills, as the conartist uses the numbers to ring up substantial charges.

You should know that, as a general rule, issuers of credit cards do not update file information over the telephone. And, if the company's files are updated, it is usually upon request of the credit card holder. The information is then conveyed in writing through a new application form sent to the card holder.

The "missing heirs" search is another scheme used to elicit personal and financial information for later unauthorized use. This ruse starts with a letter from a "missing heirs" group claiming that is looking for the "lost heirs" of a particular decedent. The letter will ask for general personal information to determine whether the recipient might possibly be one of the "lost heirs." Intriqued by the possibility of inheriting a large sum of money from a long-lost relative, many people wind up giving out the information requested. When that happens, a follow-up letter will appear asking for more detailed information — past an present employment, social security number, financial status, and particularly credit cards. With this kind of information, the operators of the "missing heirs" scheme may be able to produce phony identification cards or make unauthorized purchases on the credit card accounts of their victims.

TOM DRURY, Thief River Falls, a member of the Roseau Transport softball team, punched some good hits Saturday in the Fall Festival softball tournament in Grygla. Roseau Transport went on to win the tournament in which 13 other teams participated. All or Nothing from Warroad placed second, and Wayne's of Middle River defeated Kezar's of Warroad, 11-6, in the consolation game.

The sale of merchandise via mail or telephone generates even more frequent requests for credit card information. Don't give your credit card number to a sell over the telephone or even by mail unless you have done business with the company before or you are reasonably certain that it is a legitimate firm. Be particularly cautious and skeptical when responding to advertisements by companies which list only a post office box number for an address. If your merchandise is not sent, or if unauthorized charges are made on your credit card, it is difficult to track down a person or company with only a post office box number as an address. Often in such cases, when trouble is finally discovered, the post office box will have been closed and no forwarding name or address left.

Remember, it's not just your good name at stake here, it's also your money.

For more information about credit card fraud or to file a complaint, contact the Minnesota Attorney General's Consumer Services Unit; in St. Paul: 117 University Avenue, St. Paul, MN 55155, (612) 296-3353; in Duluth: 610 Government Service Center Building, 320 West 2nd Street, Duluth, MN 55802, (218) 723-4891.

Milk Production In July Declines From 1985 Mark

July milk production totaled 903 million pounds in Minnesota, down four per cent from the 938 million pounds for July of 1985. Production per cow averaged 1,020 pounds, unchanged from a year earlier, as July milk cows totaled 885,000 head, down 35,000 from last year.

Accumulated milk production during the first seven months totaled 6.7 billion pounds, two per cent above the comparable period in 1985.

U.S. milk production during July totaled 10.5 billion pounds, two per cent less than June and one per cent below July of 1985 in the 21 major states. Accumulated milk production during the first seven months of 1986 totaled 73.8 billion pounds, up four per cent from the same period in 1985. Production per cow averaged 1,166 pounds during July, 15 pounds more than July of 1985 for the 21 major states.

Number of milk cows totaled 9.05 million head during June, down 66,000 head from June of 1986 and down 211,000 head from a year ago. If producers in the 29 states not surveyed on August 1 followed the trend shown by the reporting states, U.S. milk production would total about 12.4 billion pounds.

Espeseth Honored By AAL For Life Insurance Sales

Officials at Aid Association for Lutherans (AAL) have honored Duaine J. Espeseth, Thief River Falls, for passing the $15 million mark in career sales of life insurance.

Espeseth has also been notified by the fraternal field managers association of his successful completion of the fraternal sales training program and has been awarded the designation of Fraternal Insurance Counselor (FIC).

To earn the designation, he completed three examinations under the supervision of the Research and Review Service of America located in Indianapolis, IN. The courses included studies of life insurance fundamentals, contract provisions, and their application to family financial problems.

Local Cub Scouts Attend Day Camp At Crookston

Cub Scouts from Pack 199, Pack 57 and Pack 59 in Thief River Falls participated in the Northern Lights Council District 12 day camp at UMC in Crookston August 18-22. Fifty-eight Cub Scouts from Thief River Falls joined scouts from Crookston, Fertile, Erskine, Red Lake Falls and Warren in activities every day from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Pack 199, Pack 57 and Pack 59 rented a school bus for transportation to and from Crookston. Linda Nelson, Norm Busse, Roger Erickson, Steve Anderson and Garry Schoon volunteered their services as bus drivers for the one day's transportation. A number of parents acted as chaperones during the week for the boys on the trip and during the day at camp.

The camp, under the direction of Pat Mattson and Gary Sabby, District 12 commissioners, had the boys in groups of 20 to 25 rotating among six stations of activity. The scouts moved every 45 minutes to a different activity station.

A name tag fashioned from wood and leather, a clay sculpture, a kite, a "God's eye" of yarn, and a decoration for the banquet table were carefully made in crafts under the supervision of Dianne Maddy of Thief River Falls, camp craft director.

Mary Ranum served as the first aid person and general all around helper. She spent most of her time near the field sports area watching as the Cub scouts participated in kickball, volleyball and running relays.

Roger Golby and Bill Fogarty, both of Thief River Falls, taught shooting sports and rifle safety with BBguns. Archery was also a highlight of the shooting sports area.

Other highlights of the camp activity included agriculture, nature and safety. People from UMC, the Crookston police and fire departments and the Polk county ambulance made these activities both interesting and informative for the scouts.

New Webelos scouts camped overnight at Crookston's Wildwood park. The boys cooked their own meals on "buddy burners" which are cookers made from coffee cans. The boys pitched tents and participated in a campfire session and many kinds of other camping activities. Art Heinze, Roger Golby and Bill Fogarty were in charge of the overnight camping event.

Although Friday's rain dampened the outdoor activity, the day camp staff set up activities for the scouts in the buildings on the campus of UMC. Obstacle courses, a carnival atmosphere complete with face painter Linda Matt of Grand Forks, movies and crafts challenged the boys on the final day of camp.

The grand finale for day camp 1986 consisted of a banquet catered by food services on the campus. Mothers, fathers, brothers and sisters were in attendance as the participants in Cub day camp were honored with achievement and skill awards for the week.

Fedor To Direct NW Minnesota Initiative Fund

Liz Fedor, Grand Forks, ND, was recently appointed as program associate for the Northwest Minnesota initiative fund. As program associate, Fedor will staff the field office which will be located at the University of Minnesota Crookston. She will begin her new duties September 2, with the field office expected to be functioning by September 15.

Fedor is a Minnesota native and a graduate of the College of St Catherine in St Paul. She has been employed by the Grand Forks Herald for the past five years as the northwest Minnesota political reporter and also staffed the Herald St Paul Bureau during legislative sessions.

Northwest Minnesota initiative fund was created in the spring of 1986 as a result of McKnight foundation's interest in and financial commitment to northwest Minnesota. Included in this region are the counties of Clearwater, Beltrami, Hubbard, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau. Five other initiative funds were organized at the same time to address needs in other parts of rural Minnesota.

Sonstelie Says Wheat Poll Shows Farm Discontent

Recently completed poll of wheat producers offered farmers an opportunity to send a message to Washington about their opinions on U.S. agriculture and trade policy, and they capitalized on this opportunity in a big way, says Gordon Sonstelie, Winger, president of Minnesota Association of Wheat Growers.

Under the 1985 farm bill, the USDA was required to undertake a non-binding poll of wheat farmers to determine if they favored mandatory supply management programs to raise prices. Nation-wide, 54 per cent of those producers who returned their ballots voted yes. In Minnesota, over 73 per cent voted yes.

Farmers in the spring wheat area supported the controls by about a two-to-one margin, with farmers in the hard red winter wheat area supporting controls by a margin of about three to two. Agriculture Secretary Richard Lyng indicated that with only 22 per cent of the ballots returned the results were inconclusive.

Sonstelie, however, interprets the results of the poll as an indication of farmer dissatisfaction with the way the government is handling the farm situation.

"The 54 per cent favorable vote on the question of mandatory controls is possibly not so much an endorsement of mandatory supply management programs as it is an acknowledgment that the current program is not working," Sonstelie said. He indicated that many of the farmers that he and other wheat grower board members talked with were sending a protest vote over the government's mismanagement of the farm program and the infighting that is taking place within the administration, particularly with Secretary of State George Schultz, that is keeping the current program from working as it was intended to work.

Sonstelie also discounted Secretary Lyng's remarks about the low voter turnout. He said about three times as many ballots were distributed in Minnesota as there were active wheat producers, and some farmers received more than one ballot. The same was true in other states as well. "When you consider the returned ballots compared to the number of farmers actually producing wheat, both in Minnesota and nation-wide, the returns for the non-binding referendum were dramatic as good or better than the national election to select the President," he said.

"The message is clear. If the government is not going to make the current program work to regain lost export markets and restore profitability to agriculture, then U.S. policies toward agriculture will have to change. Farmers will not tolerate waiting until 1990 for a profit," he said.

BROOKS . . .

The Golden Age senior citizen birthday club gathered together in the afternoon with 20 members in attendance. In the absence of chairperson, vice chairperson Pearl Laniel conducted the meeting. Secretary and treasurers reports were given by Mae Lallier. High blood pressure was taken by Mrs. Karen Schierich, RN before the meeting. HIGH SCHOOL football made its 1986 debut Saturday during the 13th annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Pigskin Preview at Prowler Field. Thief River Falls, showing the new paw decals on the helmets, lined up against East Grand Forks in this scrimmage encounter. Lake of the Woods was also on hand. The Prowlers, who gave a good account of themselves during the day, will open their 1986 regular season Tuesday, September 2, at Grand Forks Red River.

Prowlers Have Solid Scrimmage Showing

Grand Forks Red River head coach Nick Cichy was kept busy Saturday drawing up a scouting report on Thief River Falls. The Roughriders host the Prowlers in the 1986 high school football season opener for both teams Tuesday, September 2.

Cichy and his staff were at Prowler Field Saturday watching the 13th annual Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Pigskin Preview involving the Prowlers, East Grand Forks and Lake of the Woods.

He was here last year, too, but he undoubtedly took home a few more pages of information this time as the Prowlers showed signs of rebounding from an 0-8 season in 1985 with a solid scrimmage performances against the Bears and Green Wave.

"I'm happy," said Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm afterwards. "We did a lot of things well."

What the Prowlers did right away was score, which, if carried over into the regular season, would be quite an improvement over last year's one-touchdown performance. First snap of the scrimmage saw speedy Paul Brandt reach the end zone from 70 yards out. Moments later quarterback Chris Bjorgaard threw a 10-year scoring pass over the middle to end Chris Nelson following a long run by fullback Mike Bendickson. And on the very next play, Bjorgaard and flanker Nate Dalager hooked up on a 70-yard scoring pass.

Defensively against Lake of the Woods, Thief River Falls came up with two fumble recoveries and a pass interception in ten plays.

"We need to put it in the end zone, even in a scrimmage," acknowledged Mumm.

Thief River Falls didn't do any more scoring, but did move the ball during two 10-play scrimmage sessions vs. East Grand Forks and another 10-play try against Lake of the Woods.

Lake of the Woods, although outmanned for the day, did manage to hold East Grand Forks scoreless in their first match-up, and actually outscored the Green Wave 6-0 (no conversions attempted) the second go-round.

Thief River Falls' defense hit hard and swarmed after the ball all day, said Mumm, noting the Prowlers did not give up any touchdowns, and surrendered few first downs.

East Grand Forks, Lake of the Woods, Roseau and Thief River Falls junior varsity teams preceded the varsity squads for the preseason scrimmages. Roseau was scheduled to participate in the varsity end of it, too, but backed out.

A good-size crowd of spectators showed up for the event on a beautiful 75-degree sun-drenched afternoon. The Sports Boosters Club members served their barbecue dinner at the conclusion of the scrimmages.

Swimmers To Open Friday At Brainerd

An outstanding 1985 season is going to be hard to duplicate in 1986, admitted Thief River Falls swimming coach Jay Forney, whose girls open the high school season Friday with a 3 p.m. dual at Brainerd.

Thief River Falls went 8-2 in dual meet competition a year ago and had a strong third place Section 8 postseason finish behind traditional powers Alexandria and Fergus Falls the Prowlers' best finish since 1979.

But graduation losses took six seniors off that team, including Michelle Puetz, the best swimmer the Prowlers have ever had, according to Forney.

"For three years, you counted on Michelle for first place, and she came through almost everytime," he said.

Puetz, who will be swimming at the University of North Dakota this year, finished her high school career with her name on seven school records.

"We're going to be hard-pressed to repeat last year's success," admitted Forney, "but we're still going to be a strong team. We'll obviously miss Michelle, but it'll be fun to see how this team does without her. They'll have to pull together and work as a team."

Top returners are senior Laura Beito and junior Jenny Nelson. Beito was a third place finisher and Nelson was a seventh place finisher in the diving portion of the sectional finals as a sophomore. Both have state meet-qualifying potential, said Forney.

Other returning letter winners on hand include seniors Gayle Borchert, Brenda Russell, Marci Turenne and Michelle Turenne, juniors Pete Kuyath, Christy Puetz and Heidi Tofte, sophomores Karla Espe and Denise Kiesow and eighth grader Jenny Nelson.

Beito and Russell serve as co-captains.

Those are the only girls who have been working out in early preseason drills. Forney says Franklin Middle School girls who are interested in swimming should pick up their necessary forms at the Franklin office and return the information to the school before practice starts for sixth, seventh and eighth graders Tuesday, September 2, at 3:30 p.m.

Some of those younger girls will have opportunities to earn varsity status in a hurry, according to Forney.

"We've got some veterans, and a majority of them placed at the sectional meet," he explained, "but there's some holes to fill. There's a chance for some new faces in the varsity line-up."

Depth has traditionally been a Thief River Falls strength, but the Prowlers aren't quite as deep all the way through their line-up this fall, confessed Forney, who figures Alexandria (winner of six straight Section 8 titles), Moorhead, Fergus Falls and Brainerd will be the sectional leaders this year.

Jeff Reese Wins Men's Club Title

High winds played havoc with the golf game Sunday, but Jeff Reese beat both the elements and Stan Sjoberg to win his first Thief River Golf Club men's club championship.

Reese built a four-hole lead over the first round of the 18-hole match play championship flight finals and finished with a 6-5 victory over Sjoberg, who was also looking for his first club title.

Sjoberg had upset defending champion Marv Carlson in the championship flight quarterfinals and defeated Paul Williams in the semifinals. Reese, in turn, downed Jeff Garske in the quarterfinals and outlasted Karl Gjernes in a 20-hole semifinal encounter.

Garske beat 3-2 Carlson in Sunday's championship flight consolation final, building a three-hole lead over the first nine and maintaing that edge the second trip around the course.

Winds gusting to 25 miles-per-hour took their toll, and everyone in the championship flight foursome struggled, although Reese started to pull away from Sjoberg as they neared the clubhouse completing the first trip around the nine-hole lay-out, then closed it out near the midway point on the second nine as Sjoberg failed to make up for lost ground.

Jim Geatz beat Dave Kildahl 4-2 in the finals of the president's flight golfers earlier gleanned from championship flight hopefuls.

Bob Geatz stopped Jim Hellie 6-5 in the president's flight consolation match.

Other Sunday winners included Jerry Imgrund, first flight; Gordy Delap, second flight; Dick Tyler, third flight; Art Welter, fourth flight; Dave Sisler, fifth flight; Jeff Wiltse, sixth flight; and Arnold Carriere, seventh flight.

JEFF REESE sank a putt on No. 9 Sunday and flashed a sign of satisfaction with a quick point at the cup during Sunday's championship flight finals of the 1986 men's club tournament at the Thief River Golf Club. Reese was playing Stan Sjoberg, who was watching from the edge of the green, in the title match, won by Reese 6-5 in the 18-hole match play format.

Doe Permit Clinic, Hunter Meeting Is Planned Thursday

Thief River Falls Chapter of the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association will sponsor a doe permit clinic and 1986 hunter informational meeting Thursday, August 28, at the Lower Level of Lon's Restaurant.

Social hour begins at 7 p.m., with the clinic and informational meeting scheduled to begin at 7:30.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources personnel will be on hand to assist hunters who need help, or have questions concerning the application for an antlerless permit. There will also be a question-and-answer session concerning the upcoming deer hunting season and the bonus license program that will be in effect again this fall.

Deadline for antlerless permit application is September 9, and all hunters who apply for an antlerless permit will be eligible for a bonus license if they are available.

Deer hunters of all ages are invited to attend the meeting, open to both men and women.

Weigand Leads Prowlers

Vikki Weigand has the potential to be one of the dominant players in the area, but the Thief River Falls senior will need a strong supporting cast if the Prowlers want to compete successfully at the Region 8AA level during the 1986 high school volleyball season.

Lone full-time starter back from last year's team, the 5-10 Weigand is expected to be the Thief River Falls leader this fall. "She's a very strong all-around player; a really hard hitter," said Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson.

There's enough other talent on hand, said Anderson, for the Prowlers to be competitive against the area Class A schools that fill most of the Thief River Falls schedule, but youthful inexperience will have to be overcome when teams like Moorhead, a Class AA state tournament runner-up finisher a year ago, appear at postseason playoff time.

"We're a young team," admitted Anderson, "but we've got a lot of potential. The kids are really aggressive, and they have a lot of skills. It's a good group of kids. They should do a good job. I'm looking forward to a good season."

In addition to Weigand, returning letter winners include juniors Jill Olson, Jodi Anderson, Sephanie Benson and Bekah Bortnem. Benson and Bortnem, both starters at times last year, will be called upon to do most of the setting, trying to get the ball to Weigand for the point-producing spikes. "They (Benson and Bortnem) are both good setters," said Anderson. "Bekah is a good all-around player."

Rest of the roster includes seniors Shalla Otteson, Bobbi Thompson, Shari Erickson and Paulie Wegge; juniors Susie Ulrich, Siri Spong, Rachael Ness, Missy Hanson, Terese Tranby, Jana Fessler, Tammy Ortloff and Dena Sund; sophomores Kari Torkelson, Karen Kvick, Michelle Fletcher, Julie Novak, Tracy Lusignan, Kris Koch, Jana Blackberg, Liesel Steidl, Kia Anderson, Stacie Hansen, Tammy Limanen, Tawyna Foldoe and Amy Spong; plus freshmen Sheri Bjorgaard, Jenny Lindberg, Leigh Solheim, Nicki Hanestad, Jennifer Johnson, Stephanie Breiland, Tana Hanson, Nicole Dimich, Christy Holthusen, Ellen Oklund, Kelly Amundgaard and Nicole Knutson.

Thief River Falls' regular season schedule starts Tuesday, September 2, when the Prowlers visit Warren. They will play Friday, September 5, at Roseau before staging their home opener Thursday, September 11, vs. Fisher.

Final Summer Track Meet Is Set Tuesday

Third and final outing of a three-meet Thief River Falls summer track meet series will be open to the public Tuesday, August 26, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at Prowler Field.

A $1 entry fee will cover all events, including the 50, 100, 200, 400, 800, 1600 and 3200 meter runs, along with the long jump, shot put and softball throw. Entry fees will be donated to the Thief River Falls track and cross country programs.

Falls Clinic, Northwest Medical Center, Northwest Radiology Associates and Ramsay Eye Clinic, in cooperation with the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Thief River Falls and Lincoln High School coaches, sponsor the meets, designed for adults and children of all ages to promote interest in physical fitness and exercise.

Two earlier meets were held July 29 and June 17. Lynn Dyer serves as meet director.

DEFENDING CHAMPION Marv Carlson watched his second shot on No. 3 sail toward the green Sunday during the 1986 Thief River Golf Club men's club tournament finals. Carlson, however, was playing in the consolation finals this time after losing to Stan Sjoberg in the championship flight quarterfinals earlier.

Prowlers Optimistic

Thief River Falls head football coach Jeff Mumm told a Thursday night Thief River Falls Touchdown Club meeting audience that the Prowlers are talking in terms of a 6-2 finish during the upcoming 1986 high school football season.

That would be quite a feat considering Thief River Falls was 0-8 in [illegible]

[illegible] a realistic goal, said Mumm, "because a highly-promoted [illegible] conditioning program has made the Prowlers bigger, stronger and faster than they were a year ago. There's also more of them."

There's plenty of optimism in the Thief River Falls football camp. The players and coaches are convinced that the Prowlers are more than capable of turning around a program that struggled through its second winless season in the past five years last fall — Mumm's first year at the helm.

It'll be important, though, for the Prowlers to produce offensively early to rid themselves of the shutout stigma that followed them around last year when they produced just one touchdown all season. Confidence in a new offense would grow rapidly with a couple of quick touchdowns, and that may be the key to the entire season, admitted Mumm.

But that won't be an easy task against season-opening foe Grand Forks Red River. The Roughriders have been too much for the Prowlers to handle in recent years, winning five straight and eight of the last nine match-ups between the two schools.

Opening with four straight road games could also present a problem as the Prowlers follow the Tuesday, September 2, trip to Grand Forks with visits to Detroit Lakes, Bemidji and Valley City before they begin a string of four straight regular season-ending home games Friday, September 26, against rival Crookston, one of the early season favorites in Section 8A this year. Grafton, Fergus Falls and East Grand Forks will visit Thief River Falls in October.

Valley City and Grafton replace Warren and Moorhead on the Thief River Falls football schedule this fall. Grafton, 1-6 last year, will be the Prowlers' 1986 homecoming opponent on Friday, October 3. A year ago Thief River Falls had Moorhead for a homecoming opponent and lost a one-sided 38-0 decision.

Bemidji Coaching Change

Whitey Anderson, the winningest coach in the history of the Bemidji American Legion baseball program, was told by club officials that his coaching contract would not be renewed next summer, it was reported Thursday by Jim Carrington of the Bemidji Pioneer.

"Ironically," said Carrington, "the strange move came at the conclusion of the team's greatest winning season in history, a year that saw Bemidji finish 29-7 before bowing out at the District 6 tournament."

Anderson coached the Bemidji Legion team for 11 years. "He devoted 11 summers to the Legion," noted Carrington, "building the team into an annual contender and guiding it through some of its finest moments in its long and illustrious history. Anderson closed his stay with a 185-118-5 record, standards that will probably never be topped."

Bemidji won a District 6 title under Anderson in 1985 and was given a good shot at a return state tournament trip this summer, but developed late-season problems, noted Carrington, and fell to eventual state champion Waite Park 13-2 in first round play and lost a 5-0 season-ending decision to Cold Spring in the second round of the double-elimination event.

Anderson hadn't planned to leave the coaching post. "I was sincerely looking forward to next summer," he told Carrington, "especially with the state tournament within easy driving distance at Grand Rapids. It would have added an extra incentive to us winning the district."

Prowlers Win Tournament

Three first place finishes carried the host Prowlers to championship honors Thursday in the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Invitational girls high school tournament.

Thief River Falls finished the day with 20 points, followed by Bemidji with 18, Crookston 15, Moorhead 13 and East Grand Forks 4.

Individually, the Prowlers received winning performances from junior Kelly Cornell at No. 1 singles, junior Sharon Dosser at No. 4 singles and from freshmen Kaye Dondelinger and Stacy Breuer at No. 3 doubles. They all went 4-0 for the day.

Cornell, the defending Region 8AA singles champion, had a tough time in a meet-opening 8-6 victory over Moorhead eighth grader Beth Stone, but then breezed by Bemidji senior Dana Erickson 8-2, Crookston junior Jeni Smith 8-2 and East Grand Forks freshman Lisa Jeffrey 8-1.

"Kelly didn't play well her first match," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "She was apparently nervous. She had to get her feet wet. After that she palyed well."

Dosser handled Bemidji junior Laurie Thorson 8-3, Crookston senior Kristie Hegg 8-5, East Grand Forks sophomore Patti Rud 8-2 and Moorhead sophomore Laura Beach 8-4.

Dondelinger and Breuer got by Bemidji sophomores Tracey Kelly and Becky Wilson 9-8 with an 11-9 tie-breaker, and beat junior Jeni Mullins and sophomore Jill Knutson of Crookston 8-2, juniors Kristen Johnson and Angie Davis of East Grand Forks 8-4 and Moorhead juniors Kim Christensen and Kim Ela 8-0.

Thief River Falls freshman Monica Haapoja came close to adding a fourth title to the Prowler's collection at No. 3 singles. She tied Bemidji freshman Tara Schipper with a 3-1 record, but Schipper picked up the first place medal based upon results of head-to-head competition as she edged Haapoja 9-8, including a come-from-behind 9-7 tie-breaker win when Haapoja led 6-4 and had an add to go ahead 7-4 before losing ground.

Other winners included Moorhead junior Kim Jeffries at No. 2 singles; Crookston seniors Jana Knudsvig and Sarah Larson at No. 1 doubles; plus Bemidji sophomores Heidi Ohman and Nicole Skjerven at No. 2 doubles.

The tournament was played under near-ideal weather conditions. "We could not have asked for a better day," mentioned Olson, "and the kids, with an exception of a let-down or two, played very well. This is where kids develop consistency. There's nothing better in tennis to develop that than a tournament. We're very pleased with the results."

Thief River Falls, a 7-0 winner at Roseau earlier in the week to begin the 1986 season, will visit East Grand Forks Tuesday and will drive to Waubun Thursday for 1 p.m. matches.

1986 Fall Flight Of Ducks Expected To Have Increase

This year's fall flight of ducks will be greater than last year's all-time low but remains the second lowest on record, according to the 1986 status of waterfowl and fall flight forecast released recently by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Canadian Wildlife Service.

Duck populations will increase this year in all four waterfowl flyways after an extremely poor fall flight experienced in 1985. Last year's fall flight index was 62 million ducks, down from 80 million in 1984 and the lowest since such projections first were made in 1969. The projected index for the 1986 fall flight is 73 million, the second lowest since 1969. The index is a relative figure reflecting the trend in duck populations rather than the exact number of ducks.

Although the improvement in duck numbers is encouraging to wildlife officials, spokesmen for the two wildlife agencies cautioned that many areas of prime importance to ducks in North America have not yet recovered from recent drought conditions and the negative impacts of agricultural activities that have converted many former wetlands to cultivation and removed important natural vegetation near remaining wetlands. The projects fall flight of 73 million ducks is well below the duck population goal, which is a fall flight of 100 million ducks by the year 2000. The 100 million figure is based upon duck population levels during the 1970s.

In July, the two agencies reported that breeding populations for most key duck species increased this spring over last year. Overall, breeding duck numbers in all areas surveyed totalled 35 million, up 14 per cent from last year's 31 million, but 12 per cent below the average for 1955-85. Breeding populations of six to ten common duck species — mallard, pintail, blue-winged teal, wigeon, canvasback and scaup — remain below population goals.

Record lows in 1985 followed several years of severe drought in prime duck nesting areas of Canada and the United States. Conditions improved in 1986, with more ponds observed during May and July surveys in many areas of the United States and Canada. Improvements were particularly noticeable in the north-central United States and in southern Manitoba. In Alaska, spring weather conditions were more favorable to nesting ducks than last year. Because of increased production and larger duck breeding populations than last year, duck flights will increase this year from many key areas, especially Alaska, southern Manitoba, Montana, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Outlook is mixed for fall flights of geese, with Canada geese faring better than some other species. Goose production can be affected by weather conditions during the winter and spring, and in 1985-86 some populations experienced poor nesting conditions resulting from extremely cold winter temperatures and a delayed spring thaw, particularly in western arctic Canada and north and west of Hudson Bay. Conditions were favorable for nesting Canada geese in most areas of prairie Canada and the north-central United States, except for portions of southern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan. Habitat conditions for Canada geese in the midwest were favorable, and conditions in much of Alaska were improved over last year's poor conditions.

In the Atlantic Flyway, the fall flight of Canada geese is expected to be smaller than last year as a result of poor nesting conditions in some areas. Substantially smaller fall flights are anticipated for greater snow geese and brant, with a moderate reduction projected for eastern tundra swans.

In the Mississippi Flyway, fall flights of Canada geese will increase for the Tennessee Valley population (wintering mainly in Kentucky, Tennessee and northern Alabama) and the Eastern Prairie Population (wintering near Swan Lake National Wildlife Refuge, Missouri). The Mississippi Valley population (southeastern Wisconsin, southern Illinois and Indiana, adjacent areas of Kentucky, Missouri and western Tennessee, and along the Mississippi River in Arkansas and Mississippi) will have a fall flight equal to or slightly greater than last year. The fall flight of Giant Canada geese also will increase. Reduced fall flights are projected for lesser snow geese and white-fronted geese.

In the Central Flyway, reduced fall flights are predicted for Canada geese in the Tall Grass Prairie Population (wintering mainly in Oklahoma, Texas and northeast Mexico) and the Short Grass Prairie Population (wintering in Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas). Fall flights of other Canada goose populations and Giant Canada geese will be equal to or larger than last year. The fall flight of lesser snow geese will be reduced. Greater white-fronted geese that winter mostly along the Texas coast will have a fall flight similar to last year.

In the Pacific Flyway, an increased fall flight is predicted for lesser Canada geese, and Pacific Canada geese will have a fall flight similar to last year. There will be a reduced fall flight of lesser snow geese. The Pacific white-fronted goose, one of four Pacific Flyway species of concern, will have a reduced fall flight from last year. Of the other three species of concern, Pacific brant will have a reduced fall flight, while Dusky Canadas will have a fall flight similar to last year's poor flight and the fall flight of Cackling Canadas will be equal to or greater than last year's.

Western tundra swans will experience a slightly greater fall flight than last year.

Size of the duck migration is estimated annually by Canadian and U.S. biologists on the basis of May and July air and ground surveys of habitat conditions, breeding populations, and brood production, as well as harvest surveys and band recovery data. Numbers of geese, brant, and swans are projected on the basis of fall production surveys, winter surveys, spring staging area counts, local breeding surveys and satellite imagery.

Sports Medicine Seminar Will Be Presented In EGF

A seminar to provide up-to-date information on the management of athletic injuries will be offered to all area physicians, nurses, athletic directors, coaches, EMTs and parents at the East Grand Forks AVTI Thursday, September 11.

The seminar is open to the public and will offer cues for area nurses. The faculty includes Brian T. Briggs, M.D., a sports medicine specialist from the Orthopaedic Clinic in Grand Forks; Bruce Johnson, certified and licensed athletic trainer, also from the Orthopaedic Clinic; and Clifford LaFreniere, registered physical therapist from the Great Plains Physical Therapy Clinic in Grand Forks.

Topics to be presented include most common athletic injuries, prevention of athletic injuries, management of injuries on the field, knee and ankle injuries, functional evaluation-return to play, preseason screening, most common errors in management.

The seminar is sponsored by the Minnesota Nurses Association, District One. Cost is $7.50 or $5 for MNA members. Pre-registration is encouraged, but not required.

To register contact Judy Neppel 773-3441; Michelle Naplin 964-5432; or Patti Swanson 843-2867.

ELKS LODGE 1308 in Thief River Falls sponsored the Elks-Babe Ruth baseball tournament for 14 and 15-year-olds in Thief River Falls last June. Tim Loeffler (left), exalted ruler of the Elks, presented a check for $445 to Joel Swanson (right), president of the Thief River Falls baseball association. The donation came from the proceeds of charitable gambling.

DNR NEWS

Camp Ripley Deer Hunt

Final details for an archery deer hunt in Camp Ripley have been completed by Department of Natural Resource wildlife Officials and Department of Military affairs officers.

The hunt will take place on two weekends, October 11-12, and October 25-26 at the Camp Ripley Military Reservation and Statutory Game Refuge near Little Falls in central Minnesota.

A drawing will be held to select 5,000 participants. A total of 2,500 archers will be selected for each weekend hunt.

To obtain applications for the hunt, write Archery Hunt, RR4, Box 19A, Little Falls, MN 56345. Those requesting applications for a hunting party should indicate the number in the party.

Requests for application forms must be accompanied by a business size stamped and self-addressed envelope which the DNR will use to mail the official application forms and instructions. Requests not submitted in accordance with the above instructions will not be honored.

All completed official application forms must be received at the above address on or before August 29 to be entered in the drawing. Applications received after that date will be discarded, regardless of postmark or postage meter date.

Individuals and parties selected in the drawing will be notified about September 10 and told at that time to submit $5 per archer to cover the special costs incurred in the Camp Ripley hunt.

Split Rock Camp Sites

New lakeside camping and picnic areas on Lake Superior are now open at Split Rock Lighthouse State Park, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Both picnic and camping sites are secluded and many offer panoramic views of Lake Superior and the lighthouse.

The campsites bring a new concept to tent camping in Minnesota State Parks: "cart-in" camping. Campers are provided with a lightweight cart to wheel their gear down gravel trails to their site. Each site has a table, fire ring, grass pad, and, at the parking lot, there are flush toilets and hot showers.

The 20 campsites are available first-come, first-served. Walking distance to the sites varies from 350 to 1,950 feet, depending on which site is selected. Camping fee is $6 per night.

Day visitors to the park can enjoy the new picnic area and winterized picnic shelter. Both are easily accessible from the parking area and overlook the rocky shoreline of Lake Superior. The shelter may also be reserved for group use.

Split Rock Lighthouse State Park is located 20 miles northeast of Two Harbors on U.S. 61. In addition to camping and picnicking, the park features over six miles of walking trails, and the Split Rock Lighthouse Historic Site operated by the Minnesota Historical Society. State park permits are required on all vehicles and may be purchased at the park.

For information, contact Split Rock Lighhouse State Park, 1300 W. Highway 61 East, Two Harbors, MN 55616.

Lake Christina Project

A plan to chemically kill rough fish in Lake Christina in Douglas and Grant counties has been delayed, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Lake Christina, a famous waterfowl lake, was not treated last year because of high water and this year's water level is even higher than 1985, said DNR Wildlife Chief Roger Holmes.

Holmes said the increase in water volume would raise the cost of the project about $35,000 over the previous estimate to a figure estimated to exceed $250,000.

"With the tremendous local support for the project," he said, "we hoped to avoid delaying it any longer, but it would not be a sound investment of our currently limited funds to proceed at this time."

He said the Minnesota Waterfowl Association, through its local chapters and the area sportsmen's clubs, have committed $35,000 toward the project and with new funds available to the DNR through the "Reinvest In Minnesota" (RIM) program, additional matching money will soon be available to help pay for it.

Holmes noted that rainfall throughout most of the state has been above normal over the last 10 years and Lake Christina's water levels have reflected this increase.

"Hopefully," he said, "this trend will reverse and water levels in Lake Christina will drop toward normal, making this important project feasible."

Wildlife Posters

A portion of the proceeds from the sale of a poster displaying prints of all 10 Minnesota's migratory waterfowl stamps will be used to help fund a wetland development project.

The limited edition of 980 posters that were created by Lowell Thompson and Jim Knuckey of Voyageur Art will featdre the artists' signatures.

Sale of the posters, expected to retail for $135, could produce from $40,000 to $50,000 and would be matched with money from the Reinvest In Minnesota (RIM) account, which includes an allocation of $2.5 million for acquisition of critical habitat.

Tim Bremicker, DNR private land development coordinator, said the duck stamp and poster artists will be shown a list of good waterfowl habitat projects and asked to choose one "that meets waterfowl needs while helping encourage other gifts of this kind."

First state waterfowl stamp, issued in 1977, used the logo of the Minnesota Waterfowl Association. The organization was instrumental in achieving passage of the legislation authorizing issuance of the stamp to fund "development, restoration, maintenance or preservation of migratory waterfowl habitat."

Beginning in 1978, the DNR began holding an annual contest to select a design for the stamp.

First winner was Les Kouba with a design featuring lesser scaup. Other winners in succeeding years have included David Maas (who also designed the logo for the Waterfowl Association), Jim Meger, Terry Redlin, Phil Scholer, Gary Moss, Tom Gross and Brian Jarvi.

Redlin, like Maas, has had two of his works selected for the stamp.

Bremicker said the poster will be available soon from art galleries throughout the state.

Students Win Awards

Seven Minnesota students have won awards in the 1986 National Hunting and Fishing Day Poster Contest for best illustrating the contest theme, "Sportsmen and Conservation — Working Together for Wildlife," and on their artistic merit and originality.

Cory Meyer of Raymond has won the grand prize of a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond. Scott G. Jurek of Proctor, Colleen Haws of St. Cloud, Erik S. Jones of Alexandria, Scott Sobiech of Little Falls and Christopher Tyrone Thole of Wayzata all won honorable mentions and will receive $75 U.S. Savings Bonds as their prizes. Wayne Nelson of Audubon won a Merit Award and will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

Their posters were among thousands entered by students in local NHF Day Poster Contests sponsored by schools, youth groups, sportsmen's clubs, and civic and conservation organizations across the country.

Purpose of the National Hunting and Fishing Day Poster Contest is to encourage students to learn more about conservation and to foster an increased awareness of the role that sportsmen play in this country's conservation efforts. The contest is open to all students in grades 5-12.

Hunters and fishermen have played a major role in conservation, having contributed more than $6 billion since 1923 through special taxes, license fees and private contributions. They have paid for fish and wildlife management programs and the acquisition of millions of acres of vital habitat that benefit all wildlife.

Information on how to sponsor or enter the 1987 National Hunting and Fishing Day Poster Contest is available free from NHF Day Headquarters, P.O. Box 1075, Riverside, CT 06878.

Minerals Exploration

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced plans to hold the state's tenth sale of copper, nickel and associated minerals exploration and mining leases.

The sale is tentatively scheduled for November or December of 1986. The lease sale plans are being announced at this time in order to give mining companies, public interest groups and all other interested parties additional time to review the areas under consideration.

Areas being considered for lease sale cover portions of the following counties: Beltrami, Carlton, Itasca, Koochiching, Lake, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Norman, Pine, Roseau and St. Louis. Some of the lands being considered have been offered in previous copper, nickel and associated minerals lease sales but certain new lands of interest are also being considered.

Purpose of Minnesota's copper, nickel and associated minerals rules is to promote and regulate prospecting, mining and removal of copper, nickel and associated minerals on state-owned and state-administered lands. These rules, and the leases issued under these rules, require the leasee to pay minimum rentals that increase with the passage of time, to pay royalties for all ore mined and removed, to submit data and other reports, and to address environmental considerations.

Exact time of the lease sale and a list of the state lands offered will be announced at least 30 days prior to the sale. A map showing the general areas under consideration may be obtained from the Division of Minerals, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4045; telephone (612) 296-4807.

Chemical Approved By EPA

Approval of the herbicide Hydrothol 191 to control aquatic vegetation in waters containing fish has been confirmed by the United States Environmental Protection Agency, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Last year the DNR was criticized by Gary Payne of Brainerd for allowing use of the chemical to control aquatic weeds. Payne said the label on containers of Hydrothol 191 indicated that the chemical was not approved for aquatic use in waters containing fish, and asked the EPA to take enforcement action against the DNR.

The DNR disagreed and asked the EPA to rule on the matter. Hydrothol 191 is often used by lakeshore property owners to control weeds in swimming areas. All use of chemicals in public waters requires a permit from the DNR.

Widespread publicity was given in the news media to Payne's charges that the DNR is allowing the use of hazardous chemicals and is lax in its enforcement of its regulations. He alleged that large quantities of chemicals were being sold that were not accounted for by permits issued by the Department.

Department officials who issue the permits pointed out that unauthorized use of any chemicals in public waters is a misdemeanor and that arrests are made when violations are discovered.

They also emphasized that the Department has no power under the law to prohibit sale of the chemicals, only the authority to control their use by permit.

Purple Loosestrife

An exotic plant, native to Europe, has damaged the wetland habitat in the eastern United States and now poses a severe threat to Minnesota marshes, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

The plant, purple loosestrife, stands from two to seven feet in height and has purple-magenta colored flowers. It grows in wet soils and shallow water areas.

It is virtually worthless to wildlife and is taking over sites that previously produced important food and cover provided by native plants. Purple loosestrife threatens waterfowl marshes, fish spawning areas and wild rice beds.

DNR, in cooperation with the state departments of agriculture and transportation, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, is asking the public's help in curbing the spread of the pest.

A pamphlet with photos and drawings of the plant, a description of its appearance, the threat it poses and measures that can be taken to halt its spread, can be obtained by writing: Purple Loosestrife, Department of Natural Resources, Box 25, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155-4025.

Peter Buesseler of the DNR's Environmental and Management Analysis Unit, said the plant was brought into the New England states from abroad in the early 19th century and has now invaded virtually all the watersheds in New York.

"The plant is now found throughout the northeastern United States and during the past five years has made serious inroads into Minnesota. Since it is not native to America, it has no natural enemies or controls here."

House And Senate Staffers Visit Wheat Growers

Six members of the House and Senate staff and representatives of government from Washington D.C. are visiting the wheat areas of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota this week. Purpose of the tour is to provide these "Washington staffers" with first-hand knowledge on wheat production and marketing, and farmers' reaction to various trade issues.

The tour is sponsored by the wheat export trade education committee (WETEC) of the National Association of Wheat Growers, the Minnesota Wheat Research and Promotion council and the wheat commissions in North and South Dakota.

According to Minnesota Wheat council chairman John Oberg of Ulen, "The wheat council, through its international affiliate U.S Wheat Associates, carries out programs of market development around the globe, but often even the most successful of these programs are overshadowed by poor foreign policy decisions made by our government. By bringing these Washington officials out to the farming area, we hope to make them aware of the impact that decisions made in Washington have on wheat exports and on wheat farmers."

According to Oberg, some of the issues the wheat council would like to discuss with the group while they are in Minnesota include the export enhancement program, current trade legislation, commodity pricing, storage problems, farm credit, grain quality and the status of the tax bill.

Members of the team visiting the area will include Keith Weatherly, of the Senate agriculture committee; Ed Porter with the foreign agriculture service; David Rapp with "Congressional Quarterly;" Carole Grunberg with the House committee on foreign affairs subcommittee on trade; Jasper Womach of the Congressional research service; and Janet Nuzum with the House committee on ways and means subcommittee on trade. The team will be accompanied to the area by Jeff Shipp of the National Association of Wheat Growers and Ruth Bracken of U.S. Wheat Associates.

During their tour through Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, the team will visit local farms, country grain elevators, rural banks and implement dealers. The tour will also include visits to the Northern Crops Institute in Fargo, the Minneapolis Grain Exchange; Harvest States Cooperatives in St. Paul; and the Port of Duluth.

The wheat export trade education committee was formed in 1984 through a joint effort of the various state wheat councils; U.S Wheat Associates; and the National Association of Wheat Growers. Its purpose is to educate decision-makers in Washington as to the benefits of a healthy wheat export sector.

Memoriam

In memory of John Tanem who died August 1983.

In loving memory of our loving husband, father and grandfather:

Little did we know when we awoke
The sorrow the day would bring
The call was sudden and the shock was so severe,
To part with the one we loved so dear.

You bid no one a last farewell
Or even said goodbye,
You were gone before we knew
And only God knew really why.

More and more each day we miss you
so very much,
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But little do they know the sorrow that our hearts conceal.

There are many lonely heartaches,
There is many a silent tear,
Only God knows how much we miss you
At the end of this third year.

Our prayers are with you always.
Thinking of you every day.

Your Family

Card of Thanks

We want to thank everyone who made our 50th anniversary such a special day. Special thanks to our children and their families for remembering us. To all who took part in the program and reception, the ladies serving, Mary McEnelly, our daughter-in-law, for baking the beautiful cake, Carol Iverson for the beautiful fruit plates and Vernon Iverson for his songs. It will always be remembered with all the cards, gifts, calls and all the good wishes we received.

God bless you all.

Lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Pam Paradis, Cindy Determan and Glenda Strand. The pretty cake was baked by Mrs. Pat Larson.

Mrs. Pearl Laniel visited with Mrs. Edna Hyde and Mrs. Janel Walter of Plummer on Thursday.

TRF First Baptist Church Celebrates 100th Anniversary

First Baptist church in Thief River Falls observed its centennial anniversary August 16 and 17 with the theme, "A Century Old — With Life Eternal."

The celebration began with a banquet at the Best Western inn. Dr. Peter Johnson led in a sing-along of old songs. Lloyd Rudd was master of ceremonies. Former pastor Rev. Ron Dalzell and his wife Marge presented a musical package. (Rev. Dalzell was pastor from 1959-1965.) The executive minister of the Minnesota Baptist conference, Rev. John Anderson, was the guest speaker.

On Sunday morning former pastor Rev. Ray Gosden (1970-1973) spoke to the Sunday school. Former pastor Rev. Frank Armstrong (1973-1982) spoke at the morning worship service. At the afternoon service all of the former pastors were given an opportunity to speak. The present pastor, Rev. Carroll Erickson, concluded with a brief message. A mass choir of present and past choir members provided special music as did the "Taggart Trio" and Al Ahlquist, former member and resident of Thief River Falls.

Following the service, anniversary cake, coffee and punch was served to a large group of out-of-town guests, members and local friends. Many former members and friends gathered for this special occasion.

The church was first organized in St. Hilaire as the "Scandinavian Baptist church" in 1886. In 1899 the church affiliated with the Swedish Baptist conference, presently called the Baptist general conference.

No clear records exists of the exact time when the church group moved to Thief River Falls. However, a building was erected in 1910 at the corner of Markley avenue and Schunaman street which served the church until it burned in 1948. In the spring of 1949, a ground breaking ceremony took place at the present location, 414 Horace Avenue North, and a new building was constructed.

Peace Activists Make Bemidji To AF Base Journey

Peace activists from Minnesota and North Dakota began their fourth annual Walk for Peace Saturday from Bemidji to the Grand Forks air force base in eastern North Dakota. The 130-mile peace walk will take eight days, during which the hikers will talk, leaflet and exchange with people and groups along the route.

The marchers will follow U.S. highway 2 and invite the public to join them "for one hour, one day, one mile" schedule is: August 25, leave Lengby for McIntosh city park; August 26, leave McIntosh city park for Macoux corner; August 27, leave Marcoux corner for Crookston's St. Ben's convent; August 28, leave Crookston for Fisher; August 29, leave Fisher rest area for East Grand Forks' Sacred Heart Convent; and August 30, leave East Grand Forks for air force base via University and Washington avenues.

Sponsored each year since 1983 by the Bemidji Friends, the walk will again use bicycles and bike trailers to carry camping gear and literature. The group's banner, 'Stop Nuclear Testing', is a referance to the world-wide call for a complete ban on nuclear weapons tests.

Offer Leadership Workshop At Library October 9

Northwest Regional library system will hold its fourth annual American library trustee association workshop in library leadership from 4:30 to 9:30 p.m. October 9 at the Thief River Falls public library.

While this workshop is designed for library trustees, all interested parties are invited to attend. Non-grant fundraising, use of the census and basic board responsibilities will be the topics dealt with at the workshop.

"Non-grant fundraising" will be presented by Barbara Davis, consultant for resources and counseling, a service program of United Arts. This session will describe the pros, cons and how-to's of direct mail, telemarketing, special events, membership programs and community fund drives. This session runs from 4:45 to 9:30 p.m.

"Knowing Your Community and State" will be presented by Randy Cantrell, extension specialist of Minnesota analysis and planning system. This session deals with using the latest census to detect trends affecting Minnesota's population and economy.

The session of basic board responsibilities will delve into the legal, financial and policy-making responsibilities of library board of trustee members.

The workshop will be held at the Thief River Falls public library. Registration cost $5 which includes dinner. The registration deadline is October 1. Brochures with registration forms may be obtained from any Northwest Regional library in Greenbush, Hallock, Red Lake Falls, Roseau, Thief River Falls, Warren or Warroad or from the Northwest Regional library system bookmobile. For further details, contact Heidi Hoks at Northwest Regional library, 101 East First street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Quin Co. Health Board Changes Meeting Schedule

Quin County board of health voted at its August 18 meeting to change its meeting schedule. Beginning in September the board and advisory committee will meet jointly on the second Monday of every month from 7:30 to 10 p.m.

Most meetings will include a report from one of the maternal and child health special projects. Some meetings will include a report from some area of the CHS program. The public is welcome at any of the meetings.

Other business action at the meeting included discussion on the administrative and EPS budgets. These items were tabled until the September meeting. The advisory committee was charged with developing an orientation program for new board and advisory committee members before the first of the year. Purchase of a new typewriter for the EPS office was approved.

Court Of Appeals Reinstates Police Commission Ruling

Minnesota court of appeals, in a unanimous decision in the Sergeant Allen Melbye case, reinstated the decision of the Thief River Falls police commission which demoted Melbye last year to patrolman.

Melbye was notified of suspension pending termination on March 17, 1985. At that time reasons for suspension and termination were cited as "an antagonistic and contentious attitude, offensive conduct towards prisoners, fellow officers and citizens, willful neglect to respond to a police call, and the negligent disclosure of confidential information."

The complaints listed during testimony at a veterans preference hearing stem from a series of incidents with prisoners, citizens and fellow officers since 1978, but were mostly from the last two years.

In late June of last year the police commission decided to demote Sergeant Melbye to patrolman. In February District court Judge Russell A. Anderson in Thief River Falls reversed the decision of the police commission citing failure to notify Melbye of the rules by posting them as required by law and that evidence presented to the police commission did not support its decision to demote Melbye. Recently the Minnesota court of appeals reinstated the decision of the police commission.

Issues considered in the appeals court decision were as follows: "Were the departments rules of conduct, effectively adopted even though never posted as required by Minnesota statute 419.06 (1984)?, and, is the evidence legally sufficient to support the decision of the Thief River Falls police civil service commission?"

The court responded that Melbye had received adequate notice of police department rules of conduct and that the evidence was legally sufficient to support the decision of the police commission.

The court reasoned that while the rules were not posted as required by law, "Melbye did receive adequate notice of the rules by virtue of the fact that he participated in the drafting of the rules of conduct and was handed a copy of the rules after completion. That was sufficient to meet the obvious intention of the statute to place an officer on notice of departmental rules that may affect him."

The court also reasoned that according to case precedent, "the finding upon which a discharge is based are to be accepted by the court unless they are unsupported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole." The court found that the police commission's finding concerning these charges were supported by substantial evidence.

Melbye's recourse to appeals has not been exhausted. The case may be appealed to the Minnesota Supreme court.

Offices Of Farm Credit Services Reduce Interest

Farm Credit Services (FCS) of Grand Forks is reducing interest rates charged on mortgage and operating loans to farmer-borrowers of the cooperative. One of the FCS branch offices is located in Thief River Falls on highway 59 south.

New rates for Federal Land Bank association (FLBA) and Production Credit association PCA) members go into effect September 1.

Under a newly-approved loan pricing stducture, a 10.5 per cent FLBA rate on mortgage loans is available to farmers who provide updated financial information which meets the credit standards established for the program. For PCA operating loans, almost all short-term borrowers will realize a rate reduction and about 56 per cent of the members will see interest lowered by as much as three quarters of a per cent.

Overall, the impact of the rate reductions is equivalant to one-half per cent on the association's entire loan portfolio. Of the $500 million in FLBA farm mortgage loans the half per cent means farmers will pay $2.5 million less in interest during the year. On the PCA side, borrowers will save three-quarter of a million dollars in interest on the association's $160 million in short-term loans.

Alliss Foundation Funds Available For Trial Courses

According to register Dennis Bendickson of Northland community college, 5,726 nontraditional students from throughout Minnesota received an Alliss opportunity grant to sample one course free of charge at the state's 18 community colleges during 1985-86.

The grants will again be available during the 1986-87 school year, thanks to financial support provided by the Charles and Ellora Alliss educational foundation of St. Paul.

Offered only by Minnesota's community colleges, Alliss grants allow students to investigate higher education by taking one course of up to five credits tuition-free. The cost of books is also included in the award. Grants are intended for Minnesotans who do not have a college degree and have been out of high school college at least seven years.

Participants in the grant program need not complete a complicated "needs analysis" form to be eligible for an award. Interested Minnesotans complete one simple form at the time of college registration. Grants are awarded for one quarter and they do not apply to courses required by employers to satisfy employment-related criteria.

Gerald Christenson, chancellor of the Minnesota community college board, reports that among the 5,726 non-traditional students who participated in the Alliss program during 1985-86, an estimated 4,000 of them would not have enrolled without the Alliss "free sample".

"We knew from experience that if we could bring non-traditional students to our campuses and into their first classes, they would be excellent students," Christenson said. In the 1985-86 school year, Alliss scholarship participants (78 per cent of them women) achieved a B+ grade point average. The median age for recipients last year was 35.

Individuals interested the Alliss grant program should call the financial aid office at Northland community college for more information about the program and registration for fall quarter 1986.

Scholarships For Troubled Farmers Made Available

Financially troubled Pennington county farmers, their spouses and dependent children living at home can now apply for Regent's Farm Family scholarships at the Pennington county extension office.

In July, the board of regents of the University of Minnesota approved the scholarship program, which is intended to help financially hard-pressed farm families obtain the education needed for alternative careers.

These are the guidelines for the scholarships:

(1) Applicants must operate a family farm in Minnesota and demonstrate through normal financial needs analysis that they are in imminent danger of, or in the process of, losing their farm operations through foreclosure or reposession, or are facing debt restructuring as verified by the Minnesota extension service. The primary criterion will be a debt to asset ratio of 70 per cent or greater for the farm business. This analysis must have been determined after Jan. 1, 1986.

(2) Applicants can include spouses of qualified persons and dependent children who live at home.

(3) Applicants can receive tuition scholarships for up to six credits per quarter for a maximum of three quarters over a two-year period. Students enrolled for more than six credits are not eligible for the scholarship.

(4) Applicants must be admitted as degree-seeking or adult special students on the campus they choose to attend.

(5) Applicants will be enrolled in existing courses on a space-available basis after regularly enrolled students have registered. Each campus registrar will have final authority to approve applications for this scholarship.

Disagreement Over Leaf Vacuum Heard At City Council

Thief River Falls city council heard disagreement from its members over the possible purchase of a leaf vacuum Tuesday night. The council also discussed putting a heat recovery system in the Thief River Falls sports arena and putting a 40 or 36-foot long floating fishing pier in the Red Lake river near Indian village park.

Councilman Milan Borsheim called the leaf vacuum purchase a "big saving to taxpayers" and Mayor Bob Carlson called it a "reckless spending of taxpayer's money." The city council approved the lease-purchase agreement and bid from Sweeny Brothers of Fargo for a leaf vacuum which would cost $11,289.40. The agreement allows the city to pay one-third of the cost of $3,763.13 for the leaf loader in the first year, an arrangement which allows the city to decide after a year whether it will work out for Thief River Falls.

Councilman Borsheim said it could save taxpayers in Thief River Falls up to 20 per cent in dumping fees. He estimated that it could possibly pay for itself in savings in one year.

But Mayor Carlson believes that citizens should be encouraged to burn leaves themselves and thus get away from incurring any cost. He also didn't like the idea or possibility that the city might be getting into the compost business (the city would store the leaves at a designated site and they could be used for compost, an organic fertilizer). This would be in direct competition with Future Fuel Inc., "a business which needs our support," the Mayor said. He also said that he had contacted Future Fuel and the owners indicated that they might work out a lower tipping fee for leaves.

If a heat recovery system is built in the Thief River Falls sports arena, an estimated $15,000 per year could be saved, according to Mike Mongoven, parks and recreation superintendent. But when the bids are accepted it might mean closing down the ice arena for the month of October. A "ballpark" cost figure thrown out at the council meeting was $60,000.

If bids are accepted and construction begun, the system would very possibly be built after the University of Minnesota hockey scrimmage in September and the ice in the arena would not be ready to use again until

Red Compound On River No Threat

Red compound floating in the Red Lake river below First street bridge is not paint overspray or drippings and does not pose any threat to fish or wildlife, according to Mike O'Brian of the Minnesota department of natural resources.

O'Brian said he has received a large number of calls about the substance floating on the river below First street bridge. He said the substance is a combination of paint chips and dust from sand-blasting. The Minnesota pollution control agency has approved the work and the substance is within state guidelines O'Brian said the workers have not begun to paint yet.

Chamber's Meet The Candidates Session Sept. 3

Tuesday morning the legislative committee of the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce decided to host a meet the candidate evening on September 3, in the basement of the city auditorium starting at 7 p.m. The purpose is to give all citizens an opportunity to meet the candidates for county attorney and county treasurer in Pennington county.

Marshall county primary candidates were featured in the Monday edition of the Times. In this issue the Times features the many candidates in the Pennington county primary.

Expect 2,317 To Enter Local Schools Tuesday

Enrollment at Thief River Falls public schools is exepected to be about the same in total as a year ago when doors swing open for the 1986-87 school year next Tuesday, according to school administrative officials.

Projected enrollment is 2,317 students, based on census information and advance enrollment counts. The total includes 998 in elementary schools, 534 at Franklin middle school and 785 at Lincoln senior high school. Totals in the elementary program include 290 at Washington, 287 at Northrop, 174 at Mark Twain and 250 at Knox.

Officials say the main undetermined factor at this time is the number of students who will attend Thief River Falls public schools as a result of their parents moving to town to attend the AVTI or Northland community college. That number won't be known until students show up for classes.

Leo Ruberto, superintendent of schools, said that kindergarten enrollment will be affected by the decision of parents of at least 18 children to hold their children back a year. Parents have the option of delayed entrance when the birthday of their child is near the September 1 cut off date.

Elementary school classes will begin at 8:25 a.m. and dismissal will be at 2:50 p.m. Middle school and senior high school classes begin at 8:30 a.m. with dismissal at 2:55 p.m.

A number of new staff members have been employed by the school district this year, including 16 in the instructional or special services areas. They include the following:

Lincoln — Jodi Bendickson, physical education (transfer from pool supervisor), Gloria Bjorkman, psychologist; Glenn Chodo, EBD, Katherine Neumann, German; Scott Sevier, vocational agriculture, Heidi [illegible] mathematics (transfer from Franklin), Tracey Wexelo[illegible], mathematics, [illegible] Rudolph, interpreter for hearing impaired; Kevin Fantuhk, Christie [illegible] and Caroline Nicholson, Sandra Warden and Jean Brenna (transfer from Franklin), all food service personnel.

Franklin — John Berg, industrial arts, Cay Donlin, German, Clay Houselog and Jeanne Olson, science, Sharon Bonanne, Lois Hoaas, Ina Newton and Shirley Richter, food service.

Center School — Claudia Nielsen, health occupations.

Knox — Deb Fulton, developmental kindergarten, Jodi Olson, SLD, and Melinda Trotlier, developmental kindergarten aide (transfer from AVTI).

Mark Twain — Jodi Carter, fifth grade, Diedre Nordin, speech therapist, Janeen Kalsness, braillist.

Holly Koebernick United In Marriage To Kirk Hamre

Holly Dee Koebernick and Kirk LaVerne Hamre were united in marriage June 21 at a 2 p.m. ceremony at the Assembly of God church in Roseau. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. David Koebernick of Roseau and Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Hamre of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Robert Ludwig officiated at the double ring ceremony, with friend of the bride, Tami Hedlund, serving as organist. Vocalists were Neil and Ranae Vagle and Shelly Robb, all friends of the couple. Vocal selections were "God, A Woman and A Man," "Two Shall Be as One" and "On This Day" by the Vagles, and "O Perfect Love" and "Sabbath Prayer" by Shelly Robb.

The church altar was decorated with baskets of fresh garden flowers trimmed with teal blue satin bows, and aisles were adorned with teal and white bows. Wedding banner, "And the Two Shall Become One," with names of the bride and groom, was made by the groom's uncle, A. Cliff Larson of Thief River Falls.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father to the strains of the traditional "Wedding March" by Lohengrin. She chose a Victorian gown with fitted bodice featuring Schiffli embroidered yoke enhanced by a stand-up collar and lace flounce with pleated ruffle and drop shoulders. The pleated skirt led to a full bridal train. Her Victorian hat was embellished with English net and Venise lace, with a high pouf ending in a cloud of fingertip veiling. White roses and daisies made up the bridal bouquet.

The bride's cousin, Heidi Johnson, Badger, served as her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Tawnya Morkrid, sister of the groom, Thief River Falls; and Donna Loken, Roseau, and Gloria Clark, Warroad, both friends of the bride. They wore teal blue taffeta gowns accented with Schiffli embroidery and featuring illusion net yoke, high neckline and double ruffled sleeves. A peplum waist led to a straight skirt with a fishtail back feature. Floral sprays of fresh flowers were worn in their hair, and they carried bouquets of white daisies interspersed with teal babies' breath.

Amber Marie Morkrid, niece of the groom, Thief River Falls, was the flower girl, carrying a basket of rose petals in a variety of colors. She wore a teal taffeta gown with ruffled sleeves worn off-the-shoulder, accented with white sash and bows.

Best man was James Moe, Indio, CA, friend of the groom. Other attendants were Paul Waswick, friend, Thief River Falls; Lee Koebernick, brother of the bride, Roseau; and Kirby Hamre, brother of the groom, Thief River Falls. Serving as ushers were Mike and Scott Johnson, cousins of the bride from Badger, and Allan Morkrid, brother-in-law of the groom, Thief River Falls. All gentlemen of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with black bow ties and cummerbunds and white shirts. Their boutonnieres were white rosebuds. The groom wore white tails with a red rose boutonniere.

The bride's mother was attired in a blue, drop-waist, street-length gown with ruffle trim from shoulder to waist and white accessories. The groom's mother wore a teal blue gown with bodice overlay and side tie, and pearl accessories. Their corsages were of roses and daisies.

The brides' maternal grandmother, Ethel Bjerk, and the groom's grandmother, Gladys Hamre, were honored guests. Sherry Head served as the bride's personal attendant.

A reception followed the wedding ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Greeters were Quentin Johnson, Lester Larson and Scott Head. Jerome and Diane Johnson served punch, and Paul and Coreen Erickson registered the guests.

The wedding cake was baked and decorated by Nancy Gunderson of Roseau. Composed of square tiers, the triple creation was iced in white and decorated with teal blue scrolling, yellow daisies with white centers and pink sweet peas, topped with a porcelain silhouette. Mrs. Clifford Larson and Marie Wammer cut and served the cake. Mrs. Lester V. Larson and Mrs. Quentin Johnson poured, and waitresses were Allison Marvin and Samantha Lockhart.

Guests at the wedding included friends and relatives from Badger, Warroad, Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Warren, Middle River, Greenbush, Bemidji, Grand Forks, ND, and Indio, CA.

For a wedding trip to the North Shore, the bride chose a white drop waist skirt, blue shirt and white cotton jacket. She is a graduate of Roseau high school. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI. Both the bride and groom are employed at Marvin Windows in Warroad.

Wikerts Celebrate 25 Years Of Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Billy (Phyllis) Wikert celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary July 26 with a dinner at the Grygla community center for approximately 150 friends and relatives.

Following the dinner, a program was presented with Charles Boyer as master of ceremonies. Included in the program were a gymnastics dance by Sherry Omlid, songs by Vernon Iverson and Anna Kriel, a reading by April Holthusen, and a slide show of the couple's 25 years as Wendy Boyer and Penny Wikert sang "Through the Years." The remainder of the evening was spent visiting and dancing to the music of "Red Eye Revue."

Slaveck And Easton Exchange Vows In Las Vegas, NV

Marivern Slaveck and Stephen D. Easton were married in an afternoon ceremony July 12 at Guardian Angel Cathedral in Las Vegas, NV. Rev. Edward C. Anderson, CSV; Rev. Norbert Bibault, CSV; and Rev. William Shields officiated at the double ring nuptial Mass.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Slaveck of Henderson, NV, and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Easton of Fergus Falls. Music was provided by John Hajda and Ron Carter, and John Dzienkowski and Sue Vanek presented the readings.

Honored guests at the ceremony were grandmothers of the bride, Marie Vanek and Virginia Slaveck. Carole Owen served as the bride's personal attendant.

Maid of honor was Bethann Slaveck, with Julie Oseid and Kristin and Debbi Slaveck as bridal attendants. Dan Cohen served as best man, and groomsmen were Marques Doppler, Patrick Mitchel and Jeff Oseid. Lukas Pick was the ring bearer. Neil Auwarter, Pete Ross, Robert Epstein, Neil Gluck, Bob Gordon, John Porter, Al Sokol, Dennis Romero, Willi Wippich and Chris McNevin were the ushers.

A reception and dance were held the evening of the wedding at the St. Viator community center in Las Vegas.

Following a honeymoon trip to Alaska, the couple resides at 1621 E. Capitol Ave., Apt. 7, Bismarck, ND, where the groom practices law and the bride is executive director of the Missouri Valley hospice. The bride is a graduate of Bishop Gorman high school, Las Vegas, NV, and Stanford university. The groom is a graduate of Lincoln high school and Northland community college in Thief River Falls, Dickinson state college, Dickinson, ND, and Stanford school of law.

Concert Ass'n. To Seek New Members

Five varied and entertaining concerts are on the schedule for the Thief River Falls Concert association which has opened its 1986-87 membership drive. Admission to the concerts will be by season membership only and the membership campaign is necessary to secure funding for continuance of the series.

Letters have been sent to all former members encourgaing them to renew their memberships and new members will be actively recruited, according to Diane Freeman, chairman of the membership campaign. Memberships are $20 for adults, $9 for students and $48 for families.

"In choosing a concert series, the directors look for variety, performers who are of national stature and programs that will appeal to people in our local area," Mrs. Freeman said. "Plans are that every member will find something to enjoy in every program."

Memberships are available at the chamber of commerce office or from any of the association directors, including Gordon A. Peterson, Durelle Storhaug, Diane Freeman, Yvonne Bredeson, Senora Skay, Bob Ekeren, Vivian Sjulson, Dorothy Larson, Marcia Knuttila, Melba Penning, Margaret Saetre, Doris VeVea, Marilyn Winters, Phyllis Dalager or Judy Dimich.

Officers of the association are Gordon Peterson, president; Sue Lillevold, secretary; Durelle Storhaug, treasurer; Melba Penning, Margaret Saetre and Yvonne Bredeson, publicity committee; and Diane Freeman, membership chairmen.

Summary of concerts scheduled for the 1986-87 series is as follows:

"When Music Was Music" — October 13. This program will take viewers back to the 1930's and 1940's with Hit Parade tunes as seven entertainers sing and dance their way through numbers from that nostalgic period of time. The fast-moving program includes creative costuming and lighting.

Hreinn Lindal — October 27. Tenor Hreinn Lindal of Iceland began his operatic career in Austria and Italy and currently lives in St. Paul. His program includes operetta, folk, contemporary and spiritual numbers as well as operatic vocals.

"Amherst Saxophone Quartet" — March 5. Bringing the saxophone out of dark nightclubs into the light of the concert stage, this group performs music from Vivaldi to Eubie Blake.

"Black Ballet Jazz" — April 7. A 14-member black dance company from Los Angeles, CA, traces the roots of black dance from its primitive beginnings in Africa to the ultra modern break dances of today, providing entertainment for the entire family.

"Mark Twain" — May 5. John Chappell becomes Mark Twain and presents a one-man show filled with laughter and fun for the whole family. Chappell is a character actor who has had roles in such television shows as "Simon and Simon" and "Love Boat" and entertains audiences with what they see as well as what they hear.

"WHEN MUSIC WAS MUSIC" is the name of the group which will perform the opening concert of the Thief River Falls Concert association series on Monday, October 13. Admission will be by season membership only and the association's membership campaign is now underway for the 1986-87 season. Five concerts are offered for a season membership of $20 for adults, $9 for students or $48 per family.

City Council Hears Disagreement On Leaf Vacuum

November 15, presumably if the contractor decides to remove the ice. No firm dates for construction have been set yet, but a January 1 completion date was included as a requirement for the bids which will be opened September 19 and a decision made on September 23.

The city council accepted the resolution to call for bids on the heat recovery system with a January 1 completion date as a requirement. Mayor Carlson abstained because of fear that floor damage might occur as a result of the work required for the project.

Superintendent Mongoven also informed the council that the Minnesota department of natural resources has named Thief River Falls as a possible site for a fishing pier. According to Mongoven, two proposed constructions have been submitted to him. One plan calls for a "T"-shaped pier that would be 40 feet long and 10 feet wide, with a floating section 20 feet long and a platform 16 feet long putting a total 36 feet of pier into the river.

The second plan would also be for a "T"-shaped pier that would be 40 feet long, 10 feet wide with a floating section 20 feet long, a platform 16 feet long with the pier extending 46 feet into the river.

The proposed pier would be handicapped accessible and removed each winter. Construction could take place as early as next spring. The department of natural resources has set aside $20,000 to $25,000 for the project which would be located on the west side of the Red Lake river at Indian village park.

A fee schedule for non-profit organization's use of city buildings has been accepted. Councilman Kenneth Murphy said the fee schedule was created as a policy for the council to follow if it so chooses. Murphy explained that the fee schedule was necessary because of past charge inconsistencies, wear and tear on city buildings, setup and utility costs, and the fact that money is being exchanged in many instances. He said it is not a punitive measure and only provides for minimal charges.

Nothing in the fee schedules has changed for profit organizations. The following rental fee schedule, which created some confusion among council members, reads as follows: "Non-profit Organizations. There will be a $25 (per day) setup fee charged to non-profit organizations where there is no money exchanged in any manner during the event held. Where there is an exchange of money (this includes admission charges, games, etc. . .) the non-profit organization will be charged the weekday rate if the event is scheduled for the weekend and the weekday rate with a 25 per cent reduction if the event is scheduled during the weekdays." This policy will take effect Jan. 1, 1987.

The city council is requesting a reimbursement from police patrolman Allen Melbye. Mayor Carlson presented a recommendation from the safety council requesting that patrolman Melbye reimburse the city of Thief River Falls the difference in pay between the time he was discharged to the time he began as a patrolman. The Mayor explained that Melbye had been drawing checks as a sergeant since his suspension pending discharge March 17, 1985. Purpose of the recommendation is to reclaim the five per cent difference in pay between sergeant and patrolman because Melbye had been demoted from sergeant to patrolman. The council accepted the recommendation as a resolution.

In other business the city council: granted a request for a special liquor license for Ducks Unlimited banquet at the curling club on September 9; added three more new depositories for the investment of city funds; passed a resolution to declare the cost of the 1986 street and utility improvement project to be assessed and ordered preparation of the assessment roll; granted a zoning variance to sign requirements for Falls Clinic; granted usage of city hall for Holiday Fair on November 14 and 15, Top hat Revue on October 8, 9, 10, 13-17 and 20 and 21, and for a reduction in cost for the square dance club.

Expect 2,317 To Enter Area Schools On September 2

Nancy Harbott, secretary; and Helen Beito, management aide (transfer from Lincoln);

AVTI — Danie Packard, farm management (transfer from Lincoln); Scott Rand, broadcasting engineer; Arlette Abrahamson, new start coordinator; and Dick Brumwell, transition coordinator.

Bus Drivers — Kurt Philipp and Alan Walker.

Frank Hamerlinck, assistant superintendent and chairman of the local planning, evaluating and reporting (PER) committee, noted that five main instructional goals had been established for 1985-86 and that they continue for the current school year, subject to periodic review. The goals include the following:

(1) To meet the curriculum requirements adopted by the state board of education and specifically in the areas of basic skills.

(2) To develop the skills needed to implement educational and school effectiveness based on research findings and pragmatic experience of the statewide pilot school sites.

(3) To work toward cooperative planning with neighboring school districts to strengthen educational programs through the use of the inter-district cooperation aid and levy.

(4) To provide all students equal access to educational technology and equal opportunity for technology instruction; and

(5) To report on the number of dropouts of school age and the reasons for dropouts, existing programs for dropouts, and need for development of alternative programs for dropouts.

Hamerlinck noted that the number of dropouts of school age children for 1985-86 was only 10 for the local school district. The rate of 1.3 per cent of the total enrollment in grades 9-12 compares to statewide figures of 9 to 12 per cent. Reasons for the local dropouts were listed as family disputes, law violations, possible drug or alcohol related reasons and lack of individual motivation and initiative.

A random sampling of results from surveys conducted by building advisory committees and involving parents, students and teachers shows several concerns. They are enumerated as follows:

(1) There is a need for more parent involvement at all levels;

(2) Discipline should be consistent and documented for all students and their parents;

(3) Parents accept the principle of school based management; and

(4) There should be a continued emphasis on reading, mathematics and technology instruction and usage.

Performance testing was initiated last year and will be continued to better assess effectiveness of local programs and increase emphasis where a need appears to be indicated.

DID YOU KNOW?

Is Alcoholism A Disease?

If alcoholism is a disease . . .

1. It is the only disease that is contracted by an act of the will;
2. It is the only disease that requires a license to propagate it;
3. It is the only disease that is bottled and sold;
4. It is the only disease that requires outlets to spread it;
5. It is the only disease that produces a revenue for the Government;
6. It is the only disease that provokes crime;
7. It is the only disease that is habit-forming;
8. It is the only disease that brings violent death on the highways;
9. It is the only disease that is spread by advertising; and
10. It is the only disease without a germ or virus cause, and for which there is no human corrective medicine.

(It) Just might be it's not a disease — but a moral scourge. (From "Report" of American Businessmen's Research Foundation.)

NEW PRINCESS KAY of the Milky Way, Yvonne Moerke of Ashby, waves to the crowd after being crowned at the Minnesota state fair last Thursday. She was selected from among 11 regional winners including Kathleen Merkins of Ada, representing Region One, and succeeds Stephanie Dickey of Leonard.

NEW PROGRAM at St. Bernard's Catholic church in Thief River Falls is the Stephen series; a system intended to involve lay members in ministry. Carol Jung (left) and Sylvia Jensen recently attended a two-week leader training course in Baltimore to learn the system for organization and administration of the program. Organizational work will be conducted this fall with a view toward starting the program in January. Information is available from Mrs. Jung at 681-7110 or Mrs. Jensen at 681-4512, or from parish staff members at St. Bernard's church, 681-3571.

Yvonne Moerke New Princess Kay Of The Milky Way

Yvonne Moerke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moerke of Ashby in Grant county, was crowned Princess Kay of the Milky Way at ceremonies held at the Minnesota state fairgrounds Thursday. She succeeds Stephanie Dickey of Leonard, Region One's fourth state winner.

Miss Moerke, the 33rd Princess Kay in Minnesota, was selected from among 11 regional princesses who were crowned during June dairy month activities across the state. Miss Moerke's home region includes the counties of Douglas, Grant, Ottertail, Stevens, Traverse and Wilkin. Region One was represented by Kathleen Merkins of Ada.

After being crowned at the ceremony, Miss Moerke said, "It's really a thrill and a great honor to be crowned the new Princess Kay. I'm going to be very busy during the coming year promoting the dairy industry and the excellent products we produce."

Princess Kay, the official goodwill ambassador for the dairy industry, is sponsored by the American Dairy association of Minnesota. She is selected on the basis of her commitment to dairy promotion, knowledge of the dairy industry, personality and appearance.

MFU Fights Back Against Negative Ethanol Effort

Minnesota Farmers Union (MFU) has started a campaign to fight back against the current trend of negative advertising which it says is jeopardizing the continued growth of the state's ethanol industry. In increasing numbers, local gas stations as well as major oil companies are advertising their products as containing no ethanol. MFU president Willis Eken sees the trend as a disservice to agriculture, the national economy and consumers.

"This negative advertising is playing on the public misconception that ethanol is somehow bad for car engines, when the opposite is true," Eken said.

Extensive studies by several organizations, including some major oil companies, have proven that ethanol blended gasoline is actually better for car engines than straight gasoline.

"The continued growth of the ethanol industry would provide an additional market for our grain farmers, would help reduce America's dependence on foreign oil and would provide consumers with a cleaner, more efficient fuel for their cars," Eken added.

To counter the negative advertising, MFU is distributing cards for customers to deliver to their local gas stations. One card reads: "You continue to offer ETHANOL in your station. Those of us interested in Minnesota agriculture are happy to use your product." The other reads: "You have a NO ETHANOL sign in your station. Those of us interested in Minnesota agriculture will no longer patronize your station."

"Gas stations are saying they are removing ethanol because they're losing customers," Eken said. "These cards will tell the other side of the story; that thousands of Minnesotans want to use ethanol and will only patronize those stations which offer it."

MFU is distributing thousands of the cards through its members, at county fairs and will be handing them out at its booth at the state fair.

Juvenile Crime, Bicycle Thefts In TRF Police News

Six bike thefts and six incidents of juveniles found with or using alcohol were among Thief River Falls police reports during the past week.

POLICE NEWS: Bike thefts. On August 19 Bruce Hanson, Thief River Falls, reported his bicycle stolen from his yard. The bike was a 20-inch Huffy valued at $40. The bike has been recovered on August 17 when a local citizen reported a bicycle hung in his tree. On August 20 Nancy Wicklander, Thief River Falls, reported the theft of a girl's 24-inch bicycle, blue in color, from the area of 624 North Kinney. It was valued at $150.

On August 20 Brent Trudeau, route 4, reported a bike taken while at Kmart. The bike was a boy's 20-inch chrome model valued at $100. On August 21 Karen Delorme, Thief River Falls reported a bike stolen belonging to Trent Kutamson, Horace, ND. The bike was a boy's 20-inch vector free plate, lime green, valued at $324. On August 22 Mike Bendickson, Thief River Falls, reported a bike stolen from an area near his residence. The blue boy's 26-inch Repmier was valued at $200. On August 23 a local resident reported a bike taken from the entryway to their home during the evening hours. The red 20-inch BMX Walgreen Grand was valued at $70.

Juveniles. On August 21 two juvenile boys, age 16 and 17, were observed by an on-duty officer in the 200 block of West Third street. They went to a construction sign and started to pull on the blinking yellow lights, finally breaking one off the sign by kicking it. Charges are pending in juvenile court for vandalism and consumption of liquor by minors.

On August 21 two juvenile girls, age 14 and 15, were observed out after curfew and found to have been drinking. Charges are pending in juvenile court. On August 20 following an incident on August 13 when a 16-year-old youth was found with some beer, an investigation now indicates that he had purchased beer from a local grocery store by using a false ID. Charges are pending in juvenile court.

On August 22 a report of a loud party resulted in charges of drinking underage against two 18-year-olds, Justin Brierly, route 3, and Kristin Lysne, route 1, Newfolden, and also three juveniles. On the same date while awaiting the arrival of a parent, one of the above juveniles became disorderly at the law enforcement center and was also charged with disorderly conduct.

On the same date at 10:39 p.m. a 15-year-old juvenile girl was charged with drinking by a minor and no driver's license as a result of an accident. The girl was driving north and lost control of her vehicle and struck a hedge owned by Tom Kays in the 300 block of West Second street. No damage was done to the car, but $200 to the hedge.

Thefts. On August 19 Courtesy Auto reported the theft of a hood scoop from a 1977 Pontiac belonging to Roger Peterson, route 5, Thief River Falls. Courtesy Auto also reported an earlier theft of a decorative cover for a 1980 Yamaha motorcycle belonging to Roger Jablinske. Loss of the two items was estimated at $225.

On August 11 Brian Olson, Roseau, reported a number of tools taken from his truck while parked on Davis avenue. Tools are valued at $100 and include wrenches, screwdrivers, pliers and other tools. On August 21 Charlie Oakes reported the theft of one of his campaign signs located on highway 32. It was valued at $15.

On August 22 Olga Konickson, Plummer, reported a folding bed owned by Tilmer Johnson, Plummer, missing from rental property. The theft of the $200 item is under investigation. On August 23 Tim Stern, Thief River Falls, reported the theft of a spare tire from the back of his pickup during the night. The tire is from a 1976 Ford pickup and valued at $60. An attempt was made to take the other tire also.

On August 23 a local resident reported that someone entered his garage and a 1982 Honda three-wheeler valued at $1,000 was taken. Also taken was a hunting bow, binoculars and a set of ramps for changing oil, a tool box, and camouflage parka. The three-wheeler was later recovered in Roseau county. The theft is under investigation.

On August 23 Fred Dallmann, Thief River Falls, reported his snowmobile trailer taken from his yard, possibly to haul the above stolen three-wheeler. Value of the trailer was given at $250 and it was also recovered in Roseau county. On August 26 Mrs. Warren Brenna, Thief River Falls, reported a tricycle stolen from the yard. It is blue and white, very small and valued at $20.

Accidents. On August 20 at 10:40 a.m. a car driven by Myrtle Swick, route 1, traveling east on 11th street, and a car driven by Lars Lundemo, route 2, Roseau, who was going south on Main, collided. Damages were estimated at $500 to each car.

On August 22 at 11:11 p.m. a car driven by Mark Otto, Thief River Falls, was traveling east on Taft street and failed to make the turn onto Maple avenue and struck a fence owned by Dr. Earl Dagg at 324 North Maple. Damage to the car was estimated at $1,500 and $500 to the fence.

Other. On August 20 charges are pending against Lauri Follett, 23, Thief River Falls, for allowing a public nuisance after having been previously warned about her dogs disturbing the neighborhood on a continual basis.

On August 25 Kmart caught an 18-year-old male shoplifter from Erhard, MN. The shoplifter took an eight-foot steel tape, valued at $3.31. Charges are pending in court.

SHERIFF'S NEWS: On August 20 a Goodridge resident reported a vandalism and theft that occurred while a farm truck was parked in Silverton township. The truck is owned by Benson Livestock company, Bemidji. Two front tires were taken and all the gas was siphoned from the tank. The tires were valued at $185 each and the gas valued at $71.25.

On August 21 at 7:38 a.m. a Plymouth Horizon owned by Orvis Mossestad of Plummer and driven by Debra Mossestad was traveling south on county road 84, three-fourths of a mile north of county road 52, when the vehicle hit some loose gravel, the driver lost control and the vehicle went into the ditch and rolled over. The vehicle then came to rest on its wheels. Damage to the vehicle was $1,500; no injuries were reported.

On August 21 at 8:20 a.m. a vehicle driven by George Norheim, Lake Bronson was traveling west on highway 1, one-eighth of a mile west of county road 72 and slowing down to make a left turn when struck in the center of the tailgate and bumper by a vehicle driven by Larry Cullen, Goodridge. Cullen had not seen the turn signal because the sun was shining in the same direction and tried to avoid the Norheim vehicle by swerving over to the right side, striking the vehicle. Damage to Norheim's vehicle was $50. Damage to the Cullen vehicle was $400. Norheim complained of a sore neck from the accident.

On August 23 at 12:15 p.m. a call was received from Northwest Medical center reporting an accident. A young boy had fallen out of a vehicle when it was making a left turn at an intersection. No child restraint had been in use. The child sustained scratches on his right elbow and face.

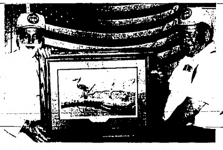
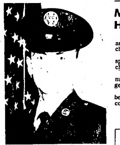
"GIZMO," entered by 10-year-old Jene Lenhart, easily won the "Most Hairy Dog title at the pet show held during Kiddies Day sponsored by the Thief River Falls Women of Today Saturday. "Biggest Dog" title went to Monique Peterson and her black Labrador retriever named "Buck."



DR. DAVID M. BROWN of Goodridge and Russell "Stub" Pahlen of Plummer were presented limited edition paintings by the Minnesota department of natural resources for 30 years of volunteer service to the hunter safety course. The two volunteers have been with the program since its inception 30 years ago. In the 30 years that the program has been operating, over 600,000 students have passed through the program. Presentation was made at a special program at the Pennington county Sportsmen club grounds Monday evening.



AIRMAN 1st Class Timothy W. Leader, nephew of Don Hanson of Newfolden and son of Army Sgt. 1st Class Larry Leader of 10 1st Cavalry Road, Fort Leavenworth, KS, has graduated from air force basic training at Lackland air force base, TX.

Old Mill Will Grind Flour On Sunday, Monday

Labor Day weekend will offer the last grinding days demonstration of the 1986 season at Old Mill state park east of Argyle. The historic grist mill will be operating on Sunday and Monday.

Members of the Marshall county historical society provide the manpower to operate the mill under the volunteers in parks and program. The 108-year-old Case steam engine will provide the power to turn the mill stones for grinding. Souvenir bags of flour will be on sale at the miller's cabin near the mill. The mill will be operating and the cabin will be open from 1 to 4 p.m. each of the two days.

Visitors are encouraged to make use of the park's other facilities as well. There is a large picnic area, picnic shelter, swimming beach and ball field. The semi-modern campground with 24 sites will accommodate those seeking more than a day away from home. Reservations for campsites and picnic shelter may be made by calling the park at 437-8174. There are also seven miles of hiking trails and a self-guided nature trail. On Sunday at the park there is a naturalist program which includes a nature hike at 10 a.m., children's activities at 1 p.m., and special film program at 3 p.m.

Although this is the last grinding and naturalist program of the season the park remains open year around for other activities as camping, picnicing and hiking.

Plan Wind Energy Meet Sept. 18-19 In Crookston

Wind is taking on additional meaning for the Great Plains: electricity. The industry of producing electricity from the wind has just been through a four-year period of exceptional growth. Wind machine prices ave dropped by half and machine reliability has tripled. Advances in wind energy technology, resulting largely from the wind energy development boom in California, now mean many more possible applications for wind energy.

To help stimulate wind energy development in the Great Plains, the first "Great Plains Wind Energy Conference" will be held September 18-19 in Crookston. It is sponsored by the Minnesota Wind Energy association and the Minnesota department of energy and economic development and is being planned in cooperation with other Great Plains state energy offices.

Crookston is a major center of wind energy activity in the Great Plains states. It is the site of a wind machine blade manufacturer and a unique wind project in which machines will be locted on farms and businesses in the community.

Topics to be covered in conference sessions include how to measure a local wind resource, methods for financing wind projects, how communities might go about planning a wind energy development, and the current state of wind machine technology. The "Crookston Energy Expo" will be held in conjunction with the conference. Wind machine manufacturers and other industry groups will display their products and services at the Expo.

A conference brochure with more information and a registration form is available by contacting: Renee Murray, Minnesota Wind Energy Association, PO Box 498, 812 S. Atlantic, Hallock, MN 56728 or calling 843-2325.

MCC Schools List Hot Lunch Menu

Ox Cart Driver Makes Parachute Jump Saturday

"If I get 10 feet off the ground on a ladder I scream for someone to come and hold it so I can get back down," explained Delmar Hagen of Gatzke about his reaction to height. "I'm a living coward on the ground."

So what was he doing last Saturday jumping out of an airplane nearly two miles above the ground? "It was something I have been building up my courage to do for many years," he said. Hagen is 76 years old and admits the decision to make the jump would probably cause his physician to "go right through the ceiling".

For the record, Hagen and jump instructor Jack Farr made a tandem jump Saturday morning at the Minnesota Skydiving club near Northfield. They jumped together with a single parachute from 9,500 feet, free-falling for 5,000 feet before opening the chute and drifting quite gently to earth. Hagen assessed the impact of landing to being akin to "stepping off a toilet stool".

That down to earth assessment is about par for Hagen who said he enjoyed the experience immensely and would like to go back next year for a solo jump. "I figure people have been jumping out of airplanes for a lot of years," he said, adding with irrefutable logic that "they all came down". Total time elapsed from the jump to reaching the ground was about five and a half minutes, he estimated, with the first 5,000 feet taking about 30 seconds of the time.

Hagen said the noise from hurtling through the air during the free fall was awesome, but that the quiet while floating down under the parachute was inspiring. He said the experience was somehow relaxing although exciting and exhilarating.

An adventurer whose previous experiences have included driving an ox cart from Pembina, ND, to the Minnesota state fair in St. Paul during Minnesota's statehood centennial in 1958, being a cowboy in Montana and trying to make a living farming, Hagen said his doctor's refusal to give permission for the jump was no particular handicap.

"I know an old retired veterinarian who wrote up a permit that said I was physically fit," Hagen insists. He also said his wife refused to go to the airport to watch the jump. "I guess she didn't want to see me get killed," he speculates. "I gave her a hug and kiss before I left and told her to remember me. I kind of think she was glad to see me come back after the jump."

Delmar believes he may be the oldest man to make a parachute jump in Minnesota. "I heard there was an 84-year-old woman who made a jump out west some place," he said, "but it's impossible to keep up with those women anyway."

Lorenson Family To Present Program In Viking On Sept. 7

Lorenson family of Strathcona will be presenting a musical program at Zion Lutheran church in Viking. The program will begin 4 p.m. September 7. All are welcome.

The church will be having an ice cream social at the same time to raise funds for its Sunday school.

The Lorenson family consists of Merle and Karen and their four children. Their ministry is musical and all family members participate. Vernon, age 17, has written songs and plays six musical instruments. Michael, 13, and Angie, 9, sing a number of solos and duets, as well as a song in "chipmunk" style. They also play guitar and omnichord. Brian, 7, the youngest, sings a number of solos and has done so since the family started singing and traveling about three years ago.

Tours Of Heritage Community Center Scheduled Aug. 28

Heritage Community center invites the community to a preview of the center located at Fourth street and Horace avenue, downtown Thief River Falls. Supporters of the Heritage Community center take pride in the community and facility, and will give guided tours of the structure which is under construction. Individuals, organizations and business will discover how they can utilize the modern spacious facilities now under construction. Guided tours will be given from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. August 28. Coffee and refreshments will be served.

Aune Chosen New Faculty Member At St. Olaf College

Forty-two new full-time faculty members, 19 part-time faculty and seven visiting faculty have been named to positions at St. Olaf college for the 1986-87 academic year, which opens August 28.

James Aune, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnt Aune of Thief River Falls, has been chosen as one of the new faculty. James is an assistant professor of speech theater. He received a Ph.D. from Northwestern University in Illinois and is a graduate of Lincoln high school in Thief River Falls.

Marshall County Gets Funds For Hazard Signs

Marshall county has received authorization to proceed with the "Hazard Elimination Program", which is a 90 per cent federally-funded program aimed at upgrading signs on township roads and municipal streets.

The program is being implemented by the Marshall county highway department, and consists of obtaining present inventory of existing signs, upgrading of existing signs and placing new signs as necessary.

Meetings will be held with township and municipal officials to inform them of proposed improvements, local costs and to receive local input. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Marshall county highway engineer's office in Warren.

State Chancellor Will Visit NCC Tuesday

Dr. Gerald W. Christenson, chancellor of the 18-campus community college system in Minnesota, will visit Northland community college Tuesday to welcome students to the college. Later that day a reception will be held for Dr. Christenson, hosted by the Northland community college advisory committee.

Dr. Christenson, former legislative auditor and vice president of Metropolitan state university, has been the chancellor of the community college system since 1983. His visit is part of a day-long student orientation and welcoming exercise at Northland.

DELMAR HAGEN of Gatzke and instructor Jack Farr are pictured above prior to and after landing in a parachute jump Saturday near Northfield. At age 76, Hagen is believed to be the oldest man to make a parachute jump in Minnesota. The tandem jump (two jumpers to one parachute) was long anticipated by Hagen who says he is now anticipating a solo jump next year. Hagen, who has never been known to toy with the truth, maintains he has a blanket health permit from a retired veterinarian which qualified him from a health standpoint as fit to be a parachutist.

DORETTA MOSLOFF, daughter of Judy Mosloff of Thief River Falls, met with Coleman Harris, National executive secretary, at the National Future Farmers of America Center in Alexandria, VA, before departing for Europe and her host family in France. Mosloff is participating in a FFA work experience abroad program.

Doretta Mosloff To Spend 3 Months On French Farm

Doretta Mosloff, daughter of Judy Mosloff of Thief River Falls, has left on a trip to France that was arranged through Future Farmers of America (FFA).

Before leaving, Mosloff met with Coleman Harris, National executive secretary, at the National Future Farmers of America center in Alexandria, VA. She is participating in FFA's work experience abroad program by spending three months on an agricultureal operation in France. Mosloff is a member of the Thief River Falls FFA chapter. Scott Revier is her FFA advisor.

The FFA members participating in the experience abroad program attended a three-day orientation at the national center before leaving for Europe. They received hints from speakers on how to avoid culture shock and how to bridge communication gaps. The participants also learned about FFA programs, toured Washington, DC, and met with embassy officials.

After a week-long introductory tour of central Europe, Mosloff will live and work with the family of Raymond Leclerc, Trelons, France.

The work experience abroad program is sponsored by the FFA organization to give FFA members an opportunity to sample another culture. By living and working with their host families, FFA members learn the history, traditions, and lifestyles of the host country and are able to observe and practice different land agricultural methods.

Mosloff is able to participate in the exchange because of donations from: Northland Produce, John Deere—Johnson Greenline, Inc., Anderson Power and Equipment, Wilson Brothers, Thief River Falls FFA, Moonlighters Lioness, and many private family donations.

Few Changes Seen For Area Schools

Students returning to school September 2 can expect to see few changes over last year. Area schools including Thief River Falls, Goodridge, Middle River, Strandquist and Plummer, are expecting enrollment figures near last year's level. The message from school superintendents is "school as usual." (Marshall County Central, whose report was published last week, expects a small enrollment increase.)

Superintendents of area public schools said the staffs are anxiously awaiting the students' return September 2. When they return, however, they can expect only minimal changes, mostly new coats of paint.

Only one school is expecting a significant enrollment decline at this time. Goodridge superintendent Dr. Don Langan predicts enrollment for K-12 at 253 this year. Last year's enrollment was at 270. Dr. Langan explained the decrease simply — "people are moving out." The largest decrease, he said, will be felt in elementary classes where enrollment fell from 166 last year to 145 this year.

Despite falling enrollment Dr. Langan said there will be no major changes, no decrease in course offerings nor athletics. At this time Goodridge has one new teacher this year but expects to add two more.

Langan said he is looking forward to a good year at Goodridge. He said he expects the Goodridge-Grygla Blue Devils football team and other sports teams to be quite competitive this year.

Jim Christianson, Plummer superintendent, faced cuts in part of seven teacher assignments late last year. (The cuts added up to the equivalent of three full-time positions.) Christianson predicts a year of few changes compared to the last. He estimated enrollment to decline slightly, from 241 last year to 234 this year.

Students will find few changes with one exception; they will be introduced to a new principal, Charles Peterson. Peterson has been an athletic director, coach, high school classroom teacher, principal and superintendent, college teacher and an administrator at North Dakota state university at Fargo. He has been involved with speech, dramatics, music and art. Peterson earned his undergraduate degree at Mayville state college in North Dakota and his master's degree at the University of North Dakota. He has studied one-and-a-half years toward his doctorate.

Dr. Phil Dyrud, superintendent for Middle River and Strandquist, also expects few changes in enrollment this year. Enrollment was 230 at Middle River last year and 115 at Strandquist.

Dr. Dyrud said the staffs are anxious to have the students back in school. At Middle River, students will see some painting and the addition of football field lights. The Middle River Skippers will now be able to have night football games.

Strandquist will also see few changes. Dr. Dyrud said the curriculum will remain much the same at both schools — only the faces of students will change. Strandquist has added one new teacher, Steve Bengtson, and Middle River is looking for one half-time kindergarten teacher. Bengtson will be an athletic coach, physical education instructor and math teacher.

Thief River Falls enrollment in all schools is estimated at 2,317 or about the same level as last year. Predictions about the year are difficult to make at this time because administrators are unsure how many lower grade level students will be added when Northland community college and the AVTI begin. Students attending Northland and the AVTI often bring their families to the community when they themselves start school.

Most of the changes will be seen at Lincoln high school this year where major innovation and the removal of condemned buildings has been involved during the summer months.

MORE THAN SNOWMOBILES caught the attention of 40 visiting Norwegian and Swedish snowmobile dealers and racers at Arctco Inc. in Thief River Falls Monday. Arctco also manufactures Vibrosaun, a sauna and vibrating bed, which caught the imagination and enthusiasm of the touring group of Norwegians.

NORWEGIAN AND SWEDISH snowmobile dealers for Arctic Cat snowmobiles examined every step of Arctco's operation Monday during a tour. Arctco Inc. and dealerships in Norwas paid for 40 dealers and a few racers to make a trip to Thief River Falls to see how Arctic Cats are put together and what the company plans in the future.

Distributors From Norway Visit At Arctco Facilities

When 40 Norwegian snowmobile dealers from Norway arrived in Thief River Falls Sunday, many said it was "yust like talking to da relatives." Judging from the number of Norwegians in this community, that may be true.

But the 40 dealers were here for a different reason. Arctco, Inc. and dealerships in Norway sponsored the trip to Arctco for the dealers to go through a two-day service and product seminar.

The group arrived in Thief River Falls on Sunday evening and left Wednesday morning for Minneapolis where they will attend the state fair, visit an Arctic Cat display, and tour the city. The group will complete its whirlwind tour of America Friday and return home.

Knut Solhaug, sales manager for a Suzuki and Arctic Cat distributor in Norway, was none-the-less excited about the trip and even more so about future Arctic Cat sales prospects in Norway. Sales of Arctic Cat last year increased 500 per cent and will probably increase 200 per cent this year, he estimated.

Arctic Cat competes in a much larger market in Norway. Despite competition from Swedish and Norwegian brands of Ockelbo, Lynx and Aktiv, not to mention Yamaha, Polaris and Ski-doo, Arctic Cats command a respectable 8.6 per cent share of the market, with the largest at just over 30 per cent for Yamaha.

Sales of Arctic Cats also compete against the level of the dollar in comparison to the yen, a valued added tax, duty and freight charges. Solhaug said while the cost of the Arctic Cougar, for example, is $3,749 in America, it costs over $7,000 in Norway. Prices are roughly double, he said.

The most popular Arctic Cat snowmobiles are the Cheetah, Super Jag and a special Super Jag package. They seem to prefer the long tracks, he said. Presently Arctco is in a very favorable position, Solhaug said. The machines are very dependable, respected and the dollar vs. yen competition favors purchase of the American built machines. He anticipates a significant increase in the cost of Japanese-made snowmobiles.

Many of the visitors probably didn't attract much attention while they stayed at the Best Western in Thief River Falls. Many commented in explanation that it was "yust like home." But they all hope to attract a little more attention when they get home with Arctic Cats.

Ophthalmologist - Eye Physician and Surgeon
REFRACTIVE ERRORS
Light entering our eye is bent, or "refracted" by the clear, curved surface of the eye called the cornea. The light, after refraction by the cornea, passes through the pupil, and lens, which bends the light still further.
In the "perfect eye", the light comes to focus exactly on the retina in the back of the eye - such a fortunate person can see clearly without glasses. For the rest of us, the focusing power, or curvature, of the cornea and lens don't exactly match the length of our eye, so we have a "refractive error".
"Nearsightedness" means the eye is more naturally focused on near objects, and objects at a distance are blurry. "Farsighted" people see better at a distance, and may experience eyestrain and blurring when looking up close. This is not the same as the requirement for bifocals, which is an entirely different subject. In "astigmatism", the cornea is slightly oblong, or "egg-shaped" rather than being perfectly round or spherical. Most of us have some degree of astigmatism.
Today, more than half our population wears some type of corrective lenses, and we take for granted the fact that eyewear is available. Those of you with significant refractive errors can imagine what life would be like without eyeglasses - they weren't invented until about the year 1270, and weren't widely available until this century. In third world countries where I have traveled doing missionary eye surgery, most people have no eye care at all, and a pair of glasses is considered a status symbol, a sign of wealth.

Novacek . . .

numerous cases. These cases have involved both court and jury trials and I am proud of my record as a trial attorney.

Having worked both as a prosecutor and a defense attorney, I have seen the system from both sides and appreciate the balance that is necessary to make the system work.

The job of county prosecutor involves a close working relationship with the people in law enforcement. Even though I have worked in the area of defense for the past several years, I believe there exists a mutual respect between myself and the people in law enforcement.

Of course there are other duties involved with the county attorney's office in addition to prosecuting criminal cases. The county attorney serves as an advisor to the county board and other county agencies as well as having other duties. In this capacity a broad understanding of the law is important. During the time that I have practiced, I have dealt with practically all areas of the law. The ability to understand and interpret the law depends, in part, on educational background. I ranked fifth in my class at the University of North Dakota law school when I graduated in 1973.

My earlier educational background involved graduating from high school at Edmore, ND, a bachelors degree from Mayville state college and graduate work, in science, at the University of North Dakota.

Practical experience contributes to common sense which I believe is one of the most important attributes of a county attorney. I grew up on a farm near Edmore, ND, and in addition to having done all kinds of farm work, I have had experience in several different types of construction work, work as a sales clerk and as a teacher. These experiences have taught me a great deal about life outside the sheltered and often unrealistic, attitudes of the academic community.

Presently, my wife Sheryl and I won a home in Thief River Falls and are pleased to be a member of this community.

I would appreciate the opportunity of serving the people of Pennington County as their attorney.

Olin . . .

pate in the community in order to fully understand and appreciate it. For this reason, my wife of 12 years, Muriel, and I have attempted to be as active in the community as time will allow without interfering with the joy of raising our two children — Jennifer, 8, and Andrea, 5, and the responsibilities of our work.

My family and I are members of Zion Lutheran church where I am presently a Sunday school teacher, education committee member, Centennial committee member, and a Foundation board member. I am a member of the Northland community college foundation, legal assistant advisory committee, and law enforcement advisory committee and have taught several law enforcement and business classes at Northland. I am a past Exalted ruler of the Elks and a past Jaycee president and JCI senator. I have served as Boy Scout sustaining membership chairman for our county and Boy Scout exposition general chairman and have the honor of being a 4-H alumni award winner. I am a member of Jobs Inc. and the chamber of commerce, formerly serving as an ambassador and legislative committee chairman, and recently as a hay bale thrower. I am also a member of Lions, Eagles, Ducks Unlimited, and TRF Sports boosters. My wife, Muriel, has been equally as active.

The responsibility of county attorney only begins with being active in the community. The true responsibility is being able to perform as county attorney, assisting all departments of the county whether it be law enforcement, welfare, engineer, recorder, or any other department. For this task, I feel I have the necessary qualifications. I graduated from Concordia college and the U of M law school. After this, I came to Thief River Falls and have practiced law here for 14 years, having served as your county attorney for 12 years. I am a member of the MN county attorneys association, Minnesota state bar association, and 14th district bar association, serving as a delegate to the bar association annual meeting last year.

Most people identify the county attorney as working with law enforcement only. While spending considerable time working with law enforcement at all hours of the day or night and all days of the week, there is much more to being county attorney. I have strived to answer questions from all agencies of the county promptly. I have tried to insure that either my assistant, Kevin Duffy, or myself is available over weekends and holidays as being county attorney may require action any time of any day. I have attempted to attend all the county board meetings and have often given advice on short notice while there. Kevin and I have been involved in making the community aware of legal matters, by such activities as being involved in the Ag Information center and speaking on wills and estate planning to county homemakers.

As the chief prosecuting attorney of major criminal cases such as armed robbery, burglary, and drug cases, I believe that the criminal should be prosecuted to the utmost and punished severly for his wrongdoings.

Throughout my years as county attorney, I have strived to help you by making our county a better and safer place to live. I enjoy serving the public and working for you and would like to continue as your county attorney. If re-elected, I will continue to work to make our county safe and happy. Thank you for your vote and support and thank you to the Times for allowing me this opportunity to express some of my views to you.

Sather . . .

I moved to Thief River Falls in 1981, and have been practicing law here since that time. I have taken and passed the bar examination of both the State of Minnesota and State of North Dakota. I am licensed to practice law in all courts of both States.

While in Thief River Falls I have become involved in the Jaycees, Masons, Rotary club, Elks and numerous other organizations. I am presently serving as a member of the swimming pool committee.

I believe that I can be a capable county attorney, responsible to both the county and the citizens living therein. If elected, I would stress community awareness of the laws and peoples rights, as well as work closely with the government and public officials.

since January of 1979. I have received a certificate from the treasurer's association for participating in a treasurers training course. Working these years with Ellsworth Jorgenson, the county treasurer, has been very rewarding and I know we'll all miss him when he retires in January. My position as deputy involves serving the citizens of Pennington county in tax related matters, working on the computer with tax receipts and tax statements, collecting taxes, working with ledgers in accounting, reconciling bank statements, helping senior citizens with their property tax refund forms and the day-to-day experiences which one acquires while on the job. I believe I have the knowledge and experience to serve you as your county treasurer.

I was born here in Thief River Falls and have lived in this area all my life. I graduated from Marshall county central high school and the Thief River Falls AVTI. I am married to Bruce W. Bjorgaard and we have one daughter, Holly, age 6½. My husband is employed at Hydra-Mac Inc. and is also engaged in farming. My activities include being a Sunday school teacher and a member of the Pennington county Credit Union supervisory committee.

I feel that all county officials should be accessible and responsive to the needs of the people and I would do my best as county treasurer if elected. I urge the citizans of Pennington county to vote in the primary election on September 9th and the general election November 4th. Your support and vote for me will be greatly appreciated.

daughters and we have been residents of Pennington county — Thief River Falls — for 24 years and we have been homeowners and property owners for the past 18 years. Our oldest daughter Sheila completed two years of Bible school in Minneapolis and has a degree from Moorhead State University and she is currently employed in New York; Kristie graduated from Northland community college this past spring and is currently employed at Valley Home in Thief River Falls. We are members of Our Saviour's Lutheran church in Thief River Falls where I have served on the board of trustees and church council for the past six years. I have completed the bookkeeping for small business adult education course at the local A.V.T.I.

During the years of 1961 to 1969, I was employed in the manufacturing facilities at Arctic Enterprises in Thief River Falls, advancing to the position of leadman in the paint department. From the year 1969 and to the present, I have been employed as financial secretary and business agent by International Woodworkers of America in Thief River Falls, of which the last several years has not been full-time. My duties and responsibilities have included a complete bookkeeping system, maintaining office records and files, payroll, office manager, negotiating contracts, and working with and assisting people in many different capacities.

I feel that my past experience provides me with qualifications for the position of Pennington county treasurer and, if elected, I will fulfill the duties of treasurer and serve the people of Pennington county.

I want to express my thanks to the Thief River Falls Times for this opportunity to provide this information to the public. Thank-You.

for twenty years in Pennington county. Pennington county is home to myself, my husband Curt and six children. Maybe you have met a few of my family over the years. Our oldest son, Steve, is operating an insurance business in Crookston; David just graduated from college and is selling Miracle Water Softeners in the Bemidji area; Mary Jo is working for Ed Turenne in Devils Lake, North Dakota; Jim will be a junior at North Dakota State University in the fall; Connie will be a sophomore at the Northland community college; and Bob who will be a senior at our Lincoln high school this fall.

My active campaigning for the treasurer's job has only re-enforced my feelings for this part of the country. We may not be the most densely populated area, nor the wealthiest but in Pennington county we all treat everyone no less than we want ourselves to be treated.

I was born and educated through the secondary years of schooling in Crookston, MN. I attended the University of North Dakota in the school of accounting for two and a half years, at which time I married Curt Geatz. Finding it difficult for us both to be students at the same time I was able to secure a well paying, short term job with a civilian agency, Systems Development corporation, which developed and set up the military communications system at the Grand Forks air base. When this secretarial job was completed Curt, my husband, and I found we had gotten very comfortable with his going to school and my working so when offered a bookkeeping job by a Rural Electric association in Grand Forks we found it too difficult of a transition from having income to both of us being students again so I accepted this job as bookkeeper. Curt graduated in the education field and taught school for six years before changing careers in 1966 at which time he became a State of Minnesota probation officer working out of Thief River Falls.

My work experience is probably unbelievably extensive since my mom ran an accounting business in Crookston from as long as I can remember. I was always good with figures so when other girls were in the kitchen I was in the office helping mom, which I will say helped me a great deal in future years.

My first outside of our home job was with the Minnesota license bureau. I helped out in the rush times. The office holder at the time, Mr. Carpenter, was a farmer and offered me full run of the office if I would work in the summers. I did this from 1955 until 1958. During these years I was finishing high school and two years into college. I quit this when I married in December of 1958. Both of us, my husband and I, were students in college. I worked part time for the Dean of business administration while Curt had odd jobs; gas attendant etc. Then I got this chance for a well paying, short term job for S.D.C. at the air base in Grand Forks which I referred to before. I worked there until S.D.C.'s committment was done, then another good job came up for me at Rural Electric in Grand Forks as a bookkeeper. I worked there until the day before our first son was born.

Curt graduated in education and then off to Oregon we went. We were there one year and found we needed the changing of seasons to be happy. Curt taught school in Cambridge, MN, for five years before changing fields to probation work.

As I have stated before, I have six children so that took care of a few years. I was at home with all my children when they were small. I was able to pick up extra money by working part time at a local tire shop and welding shop by doing books.

When my youngest child was nine I figured it was time for mom to work again. I got a job at a local print shop and enjoyed it a great deal. I was given a great deal of freedom in purchasing, sales and promotion. My hired duties were office manager, purchasing agent, bookkeeper and typesetter. I still found time for creativity, which I enjoyed a great deal.

I, Judy Geatz, sincerely enjoy working with people and know I can give the taxpayers of Pennington county friendly helpful service as their Pennington county treasurer. Your vote is important to all the candidates — please get out and vote the September 9th primary.

Thank you, the Thief River Falls Times, for allowing me to express my background and ideas, also thank you to all of you Pennington county voters.

Holm . . .

farmed for many years just [illegible] of the city along highway one spa[illegible] which is now Sherwood Forest [illegible]-five in the city.

I graduated from Greenb[illegible] high school, attended Concordia [illegible] in Moorhead taking [illegible] [illegible] job was in Thief River Falls [illegible] Roy, we married and presently live at 232 North Crocker. Roy worked as a milk and ice cream driver and salesman covering the area north of Thief River Falls to the Canadian border.

We raised and schooled three children. David graduated from Northland and the University of Minnesota institute of technology, now lives in Oconomowoc, WI, and is a registered mechanical engineer with Deere and Co. Dave and his wife Cathy have two daughters. Barbara attended the sales and marketing class at the local AVTI and was owner-operator of Barb's ceramics. She lives in Thief River Falls with her husband Brad St. George and their daughter. Stephen attended Northland and graduated from Bemidji State University, an industrial arts teacher. Steve now works with his father-in-law at Young's store in Middle River, where he lives with his wife, Bobbi and their two daughters.

Besides having been employed, I have been active in community and church work, some of which are: cub scout den mother, brownie scout leader, PTA, worked on cancer, heart, polio drives, member of the American Legion auxiliary (Roy served in the south Pacific for 2½ years), helped organize the "after five" Christian business and professional women's group, and at Trinity Lutheran have taught in all areas of education, worked with leagues, was president of the church women's group and was a member of the church council.

My work experience at Union (now Norwest) State bank, Trinity Lutheran, Northwestern hospital, chamber of commerce and as executive director of the Thief River Falls housing and redevelopment authority have taught me "beyond the classroom." As executive director of the HRA and manager of Skylite apartments, I was responsible to HUD for records of occupancy, budget, accounting, investments, maintenance (with caretaker), pleasant living conditions for the tenants, applied for, received and carried out a half million dollar modernization program, all with the guidance of the HRA's five commissioners.

I have developed the ability to listen, to study, understand and implement guidelines, to be accurate, to draw on past learning experiences, to appreciate resource persons and to value public communication.

I filed for the office of Pennington county treasurer with sincerity and enthusiasm and I intend, with the benefits of my experience, to give my very best to the carrying out of the duties of the office.

My thanks to the Times for this invitation and the privilege of sharing this part of me with you.

the field of communications specialist as a radio operator. I also did work as a U.S. postal money order clerk. I served in the U.S. Army until August 1972. I then went to work for Wennberg's Welding once again until 1973 when I became an employee at Forsberg's, Inc., as a sheetmetal person. I was employed at Forsberg's until 1975 when I was hired by the Soo Line Railroad as a carman. I was employed by the Soo Line until 1984 when I enrolled as a student at the Thief River Falls A.V.T.I. in the field of electronics, where I graduated in the top ten per cent of my class. Currently, I am residing in the rural Thief River Falls area with my wife Shari, who is a licensed daycare provider and our three boys, Joshua, 6, Jayme, 5, both attending Knox elementary, and Chase, 1, at home.

I am active with the TRFAHA hockey program in which I coach and with the city league hockey in which I participate.

I am also a member of the Redeemer Lutheran church, a Vietnam veteran and a member of the American Legion post 117.

I have much to offer for the position of treasurer with my knowledge of computers and financial abilities. With the advantage of living in Thief River Falls all my life and being well known by many, I will be ready and willing to serve you.

Johnson . . .

The areas I have worked in are as follows: management, student loans, installment lending, computer processing, marketing, teller, customer service, and as head bookkeeper.

My present community activities include being president of Thief River Falls sports boosters, member of Thief River Falls chamber and retail business association, advisory council big brother-big sister program, and the Eagles auxiliary.

In the past, I have served as treasurer of the Thief River Falls United Way. As a youth, I was a member of the Steiner 4-H club, and later became involved as a member of the Steiner community club.

As an active member of the United Methodist church, I am currently serving on the mission commission. I have served on the finance committee, education commission, pastor parish relations committee, board of trustees, and taught Sunday school for several years.

I am a 1958 graduate of Lincoln high school and have taken various classes in bank administration at UMC Crookston. I have taken several classes in tax and estate planning, public relations, supervisor training, and a seminar on small claims at Northland community college and Thief River Falls AVTI.

I have been a lifetime resident of the area, and we are taxpayers in both Pennington and Marshall counties. I feel I have the financial training and investment background to be qualified for the position of Pennington county treasurer. I would like to work for "you" as your county treasurer.

Remember to vote in the Primary on September 9th.

ship where we have been for the last 25 years. I am a member of Zion Lutheran church. I also am a member of the American legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

I was employed at Consumers Coop for 14 years working in the office, parts, and sales departments. In 1969 Leonard Furuseth and I started our own business known as Furuseth-Nelson, Inc., a farm machinery dealership. In 1978 I purchased Leonard's share in the business and my sons and I have operated it ever since. It is now known as Nelson Implement, Inc.

I feel I am qualified for the position of Pennington county treasurer because of my experiences in owning my own business as well as attending business college early in my career. I have been working with accounting most of my life. I would bring to the office my knowledge of every aspect of business and finance as well as my dedication to serving this county. Having dealt with the public throughout my career, I feel I have a good understanding of the needs of this county.

In closing let me say that with all my qualifications, I hope that the public will give me the opportunity to prove myself by electing me to this office.

more clearly. Here are some reasons why I would like your vote and believe that it would be a good choice for you as well.

First, 10 years accounting experience at the Occupational development center (ODC) here in Thief River Falls should establish both accounting experience and community roots. The ODC in Thief River Falls is the headquarters for our company in several communities and this year we had 30 staff, 160 handicapped employees, and a budget of 1.6 million dollars. The years I've spent so far at the ODC have been wonderful. I'm just ready for new challenges. Prior to working at the ODC I was branch manager for First Federal Savings and Loan association of Glenwood, MN.

My community activities in Thief River Falls include: finance chairman for Redeemer Lutheran church, swimming pool committee chairman, AVTI accounting advisory board member, and formerly a United Way board member.

Family: Peggy and I have three children — Matthew, age 11, Jasmine, age 7, and Jennifer, age 3. We own a small home at 114 West 6th street, right behind Zion church. Peggy is a fulltime homemaker, raising the kids and keeping me in line. Most recently she has been a driving force in the swimming pool drive and a part-time yard sign maker.

To close, I sincerly would like to be your county treasurer and if you choose me, you'll get a qualified, experienced accountant with a stable family life and a genuine concern for our community and county. I know that you have a lot of choices to make at the primary and I appreciate your careful consideration. Thanks.

of the Spanish club, lettermans association and a member of the National athletic honor society. I participated in and was a three letter winner in football, track and hockey, serving as a tri-captain in track and hockey. When I completed high school in 1966 I went to work for Thompson Brothers Apiaries as a beekeeper until 1985 when I decided to go to college. I am currently employed for the summer with Concrete, Inc., located west of St. Hilaire. I am involved in the Thief River Falls youth hockey program as a coach and do some refereeing. I also continue to enjoy playing as I am a member of the Digi-Key old timers hockey team. I hold memberships in Thief River Falls BMX association, American Legion post 117, Minnesota Deerhunters association, Thief River Falls chapter.

I am a Viet Nam era army veteran.

I am a member of and serve on the church council of Abundant Life church.

I am married to the former Delores Brazier of Greenbush. Delores and I have been married for 15 years and we have two children, John Jr. and James, who will be attending Franklin middle school. John Jr. will be in the eighth grade and James in the sixth.

I have completed one year at Northland community college in business and computers, carrying an overall 3.30 average with a straight 4.0 in computers.

I will greatly appreciate your vote and support in electing me to a position in the field in which I am qualified and which would enable my family and I to continue living in Thief River Falls which we consider our home. I will further my studies in this field by taking night courses at Northland community college and will assure you that I will do my best to be a true public servant.

Miss Brooks Coronation Starts Blast To Brooks

Coronation of Miss Brooks tonight (Wednesday) at St. Joseph's Catholic church in Brooks will be the official kick-off to the annual Blast to Brooks fall celebration. Six candidates are seeking the title currently held by Stephanie Gagner.

Candidates include Sherrie Katschke, Donna Sans, Tammy Grove, Wendy Myhre, Tammy Mercil and Tammi Johnson. The contest starts at 8 p.m. and public attendance is invited. (Photos accompanying this article were provided through the courtesy of the Oklee Herald and Richards Publishing company.)

A full schedule of activities is planned for Saturday, including softball tournaments for men and women, flea market, dunking stand, pony and wagon rides which will be in operation all day.

Scheduled activities include a kiddie parade at 1 p.m., kiddies games following the parade, grand parade at 2 p.m., area firemen's water fight at 4 p.m., backseat driver contest at 5 p.m., men's and women's arm wrestling competition at 7 p.m. and street dance from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

A brief summary of each of the candidates for the Miss Brooks title is as follows:

Wendy Myhre, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wes Myhre of rural Brooks and a junior at Plummer high school. Her extra-curricular activities have included Future Homemakers of America, senior band, annual staff and C-club as well as keeping books for the volleyball team. Her hobbies are bicycle riding, swimming, softball and horseback riding. Future goal is to attend college.

Donna Sans, 17, daughter of Marianne Sans of Brooks and a senior at Oklee high school where her extra-curricular activities have included varsity football, wrestling and volleyball cheerleading; danceline, musical, band and chorus. Her hobbies are bicycle riding, singing with the radio and socializing.

Tammy Grove, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherlan Grove of Brooks and a sophomore at Plummer high school where she participates in basketball, band and chorus. Her hobbies include swimming and running and she plans to attend the area vocational-technical institute in Thief River Falls when she completes her high school education.

Tammi Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Johnson of Brooks and a junior at Plummer high school. Her extra-curricular activities are chorus and varsity cheerleading along with Future Homemakers of America, serving as accompanist for vocal groups and a member of the letterman's club. She enjoys running, swimming, biking, horseback riding and softball.

Tammy Mercil, 15, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mercil of Brooks and a sophomore at Pershing high school in Plummer. Her school activities include volleyball, basketball, cheerleading, band, chorus, Future Homemakers of America and letterman's club. Hobbies include running and horseback riding and her goal is to attend Miami University and study archeology.

Sherrie Katschke, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Katschke of Brooks and a junior at Plummer high school. She is a member of Future Homemakers of America, annual staff, band and chorus and participates in volleyball and basketball. Her hobbies include horseback riding, camping, swimming, traveling and going out with friends. She expects to continue her education after high school in the business or secretarial field.

Top Section 8 Coaches

While second-year Thief River Falls head football coach Jeff Mumm begins the 1986 season still looking for his first victory, three Section 8A rivals rank among the winningest active high school coaches, according to Larry Larson of the Minnesota State High School League.

Les Drechsel of Crookston starts the 1986 season No. 7 on the active list of 100-Victory Club members with a 176-73-7 won-loss-tie mark in 29 years as a head coach.

Don Stueve of Fergus Falls is No. 18 on the list with a 147-78-1 record in 25 years, and Andy McCarty of Park Rapids is No. 26 on the chart with a 140-96-1 record in 26 years.

Three other area coaches on the active 100-win list include Ken Bauman of Mahnomen, 150-26-2 in 17 years to rank No. 16; Ray Kavanagh of Bemidji, 133-84-9 in 26 years to rank No. 31; and Ron Johnson of Gonvick-Trail, 103-49-0 in 17 years to rank No. 60.

Dale Svaren of Oklee is close to joining the 100-Victory Club with a 98-46-1 record in 16 years as a head coach. There are 62 active head coaches in the 100-Victory Club at the start of the 1986 season.

Tom Mahoney of Fairmont heads the list of active football coaches with a 228-80-8 record in 35 years as head coach. John Hansen of Osseo is 213-84-13 in 34 years to rank No. 2; George Smith of Mahtomedi is 209-97-11 in 36 years, and George Larson of Cambridge is 202-48-6 in 28 years to complete a list of 200-game winners. Stav Canakes of Edina is 181-51-1 in 24 years and Ken Mauer of St. Paul Harding is 180-77-0 in 29 years to rank just ahead of Drechsel in the No. 5 and 6 spots.

Mumm and the Prowlers are scheduled to face Crookston, Fergus Falls and Bemidji during the 1986 regular season, with Park Rapids a possible post-season opponent.

Miscellaneous

— Tim Kruse, a 6-3, 215-pound junior from Thief River Falls is a returning starter at defensive end for the Concordia College football team in Moorhead. The Cobbers, 7-3 last year, open their 1986 schedule Saturday, September 6, at Moorhead State University.

- Jeff Bigger, a quarterback from Crookston, and Russ Fisher, a defensive back from Plummer, will serve as co-captains of the 1986 University of Minnesota-Crookston football team, which begins preseason drills Saturday under former Thief River Falls coach Jim Sims. Thief River Falls' Dan Upham, who earned post-season honors last year, returns as the Trojans' tight end and place kicker. In all, seven UMC offensive starters are expected back from last year's 4-4 team, and four on defense. UMC will open the year September 11 at the Mayville State junior varsity. Sims is 57-30-1 in 10 years at UMC and 125-63-2 in 22 years as a head coach at the high school and college level. The Trojans play Northland in Thief River Falls this fall, a Thursday, October 23, encounter under the lights at Prowler Field.

Prowlers Collect Third Straight Tennis Win

Thief River Falls girls won their third straight tennis outing Tuesday with a 7-0 dual meet victory at East Grand Forks.

Coach Whitey Olson's Prowlers opened the 1986 season a week earlier with a 7-0 triumph at Roseau, and were winners in their own Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club Invitational last Thursday.

Even a little different line-up, which had No. 1 singles player Kelly Cornell at doubles, failed to keep the Prowlers from sweeping the Green Wave in straight sets all the way through the match.

Thief River Falls' line-up featured junior Vicki Grovum at No. 1 singles, and freshmen Monica Haapoja, Stacy Breuer and Rachael Hanson at No. 2-3-4 singles.

Cornell, a junior, and sophomore Amy Isaacson were at No. 1 doubles, senior Kristy Maidment and freshman Kaye Dondelinger were at No. 2 doubles, with seniors Karen Schmitz and Cari Offerdahl together at No. 3 doubles.

Thief River Falls will be at Waubun Thursday for a 1 p.m. dual, with the Prowlers hosting Mahnomen Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.

Touchdown Club Complimentary Of Pigskin Preview

Thief River Falls Touchdown club, a recently organized group which supports the local public and private school football program from elementary through high school, has complimented the local Sports Boosters club for its pigskin preview on Saturday.

"It was a great day for football," stated Lee Erickson, president of the Touchdown Club. "We appreciate all the time and effort the Sports Boosters spent in making it such an enjoyable day for us all. We also urge the public to continue support of the Sports Boosters who are involved with promoting all school athletic events in Thief River Falls."

Northland Community College Football . . .

Pioneers Start Saturday

Northland Community College head football coach Rick Nelson expects to greet 40-to-45 players this weekend when the Pioneers report for the start of 1986 preseason drills.

"We think we have a good shot at a solid 40," said Nelson, who begins his third year trying to stay away from back-to-back 1-7 finishes his teams had in 1984 and 1985.

"I think we'll be all right. "We're not as deep in some skill positions as we'd like to be, but I think we'll have a stronger backfield running behind an improved offensive line."

Northland has a couple of top-notch wide receivers back this year in Dean Brandon of Thief River Falls and Scott Groven of Goodridge, but they lost their pass-throwing partner when Troy Ellingson decided not to return for his sophomore year.

Another offensive starter as a freshman who has decided against playing this fall is Tim Bottem of Thief River Falls.

But Darrin Johnson of Kennedy returns to the backfield, where he started alongside of Bottem as a freshman, and a couple of newcomers could be outstanding Minnesota Community College Conference ball carriers — freshman Deon Schmidt of Fargo North, a starting fullback in the recent North Dakota high school all-star football game, and Steve Ristau of East Grand Forks, a transfer student from the University of North Dakota. Ristau led the Green Wave to the 1982 Minnesota Class A state football playoff finals and still has his name in the MSHSL record book for the highest Prep Bowl rushing average in history — 9.3 yards per carry vs. Brooklyn Center.

Other sophomores expected to be back for a second year at Northland include Mike Stennes, Erskine; Jeff Johnson and Kraig Kainz, Thief River Falls; Chad Ekberg, McIntosh; Tim Wayne, Goodridge; Brad Sturlaugson, Devils Lake, ND; Ron Dass, Ely; Anthony McCullough, Canton, OH; and Chad Swendseid, Grand Forks Central. Stennes and Johnson are co-captains.

Joining Ristau in the transfer student category are Bill Neuschwander of Grygla, coming here from Mayville State, and Scott Willoughby of Erskine, who was at the University of Minnesota-Crookston in 1983.

Exact make-up of the team won't be known until the players report, but Nelson said he has definite commitments from a number of freshmen, including Dorran Anderson, Steve Porter and Mike Coffield, Lancaster; Regie Berger and Dean Zimmel, Dilworth; Tom McGlynn and Dennis McGlynn, Mentor; Scott McGuire and Troy Nelson, Littlefork-Big Falls; Dave Koehmstedt, Middle River; Grant Grabanski, Grand Forks Central; Schmidt and Mike Zelinski, Fargo North; Brian Holte, Darrin Byklum and Brian Byklum, Grygla; Bam Bell and Sid Bell, Akron, OH.

Players report Saturday for a team meeting at 9 a.m. Equipment will be issued and practice will start at 11:15 a.m.

There will be a Sunday afternoon practice, followed by the start of two-a-day drills Monday.

Northland opens the season with a Thursday, September 11, nonconference game at Moorhead State University, where the Pioneers will meet the Dragons' junior varsity team at 7 p.m.

MCCC opener will be a Saturday, September 20, game against Mesabi in Virginia. Northland home opener will be Saturday, Setpember 27, vs. Itasca, which will serve as the Pioneers' homecoming and the annual Pepsi Bowl.

Plummer, MCC, Grygla Will Head Area Volleyball Teams

Plummer, Marshall County Central and Grygla expect to field strong high school volleyball teams this fall, while Oklee, Middle River and Goodridge look to be competitive during the upcoming 1986 season.

The Cardinals, Nordics, Eagles, Bobcats, Skippers and Huskies all open their schedules next week.

Marshall Co. Central

Senior Jodi Foss and junior Andrea Kragness were all-conference selections as hitters last fall, and if Marshall County Central coach Tom Mjelde can find a setter or two who can get the ball to them, the Nordics will be in position to successfully defend their North Border Conference and District 32A titles.

Eight letter winners return from a 20-4 team, including Foss and Kragness, who were full-time starters, and junior Natalie Ueland, who drew starting duty in about half of the matches.

"We've got some experience," acknowledged Mjelde, "but we lost four real good volleyball players last year, including our setters. We'll work on setting a lot early in the season, and if we get that taken care of, we should be all right."

Right now, junior Denae Mjelde and sophomore Taren Stennes are the likely setters for the Nordics.

Rest of the varsity roster includes seniors Becky Berggren, Jill Melvie and Brenda Pederson, juniors Nikki Leach and DeAnn Bakke and sophomores Kelli Anderson and Kari Boe. Foss and Berggren will serve as co-captains.

Marshall County Central opens its season Thursday, September 4, at home against Stephen.

MCC Volleyball

Thursday, September 4 — Stephen, 6:15 p.m.; Tuesday, September 9 — Grygla, 6:15 p.m., Thursday, September 11 — Roseau, 6:15 p.m.; Tuesday, September 16 — at Greenbush, 6:15 p.m.; Thursday, September 18 — at Badger, 6:15 p.m.; Monday, September 22 — Warren, 6:15 p.m.; Tuesday, September 23 — Middle River, 6:15 p.m.; Thursday, September 25 — at Grygla, 6:15 p.m.; Thursday, October 2 — Greenbush, 6:15 p.m.; Saturday, October 4 — at Thief River Falls Invitational, Tuesday, October 7 — at Warroad, 6:15 p.m.; Thursday, October 9 — Lake of the Woods, 5:30 p.m.; Monday, October 13 — at Middle River, 6:15 p.m.; Tuesday, October 14 — Badger, 4:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 21 — at Roseau, 6:15 p.m.; Thursday, October 23 — Tri-County, 6:15 p.m.

Goodridge

After winning just two matches in 1985, Goodridge volleyball has just one way to go in 1986 — up, says coach Patti Johnson of the Huskies.

There are six returning letter winners, plus a couple of promising youngsters on hand who should help increase the Goodridge win total, said Johnson.

Letter winners include seniors Becky Johnson, Tami Quam and Shelley Iverson, juniors Tracy Bishop and Becky Hagan and sophomore Shelley Cullen.

There's also senior Candi Higgenbotham, a transfer student from Bagley, who could contribute, Johnson said, and eighth graders Karla Quam and Rhonda Stusky, who have the potential to break into the varsity line-up.

Rest of the squad includes seniors Vanessa Andreen and newcomer Carla Manderud, sophomores Stephen Howard and Barb Olson and freshmen Sandy Johnson, Kim Wayne, Nicky Tharaldson and April Johnson.

The Huskies won't rely on one individual, but will stress teamwork, explained Johnson. The teamwork aspect of the game was missing a year ago, she admitted, but early practice drills have lifted the Huskies' spirits.

Goodridge has a tough season-opening assignment Tuesday at Plummer.

Goodridge

Tuesday, September 2 — at Plummer, 5:30 p.m.; Thursday, September 4 — at Redlake, 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, September 11 — EGF Sacred Heart, 5:15 p.m.; Tuesday, September 16 — at Warren, 5:15 p.m.; Thursday, September 18 — Gonvick-Trail, 6:30 p.m.; Monday, September 22 — Argyle, 6:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 23 — at Fisher, 6:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 30 — Red Lake Falls, 5:15 p.m.; Thursday, October 2 — at EGF Sacred Heart, 5:30 p.m.; Monday, October 6 — at Argyle, 6:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 7 — Alvarado, 5:15 p.m.; Thursday, October 9 — at Climax, 6:30 p.m.; Saturday, October 11 — at Plummer Invitational; Monday, October 13 — Redlake, 6:30 p.m.; Tuesday, October 21 — at Oslo, 6:30 p.m.; Thursday, October 23 — at Gonvick-Trail, 6:30 p.m.

Middle River

Another team looking to bounce back from a tough 1985 season is Middle River, winner of just one match last fall.

"We'll be better," predicted second-year head coach Steve Holmes. "We've got most of our people back. Our program is coming along."

Varsity roster for the Tuesday opener at Greenbush includes seniors Becky Beito, Rayette Benke, Brenda Olson, Karen Dahl, Jodi Seaverson and Lori Dahl, juniors Tammy Cwikla and Lori Sorter, and sophomores Stacie Sparby, Kari Nelson, Rondel Iverson and Ronette Nissen.

A well-balanced team attack is being counted on to increase the Skippers' victory total, according to Holmes.

Middle River

Tuesday, September 2 — at Greenbush; Thursday, September 4 — Roseau; Tuesday, September 9 — Badger; Thursday, September 11 — at Lake of the Woods; Tuesday, September 16 — at Roseau; Thursday, September 18 — Warroad; Tuesday, September 23 — at Marshall County Central; Thursday, September 25 — Lake of the Woods; Tuesday, September 30 — Greenbush; Thursday, October 2 — Grygla; Tuesday, October 7 — at Badger; Thursday, October 9 — at Warroad; Saturday, October 11 — at Badger Invitational; Monday, October 13 — Marshall County Central; Monday, October 20 — at Grygla; Thursday, October 23 — Kittson County North.

Oklee

Oklee ranked among the best in District 30A last year with an 18-5 record, including three losses to eventual Region 8A winner McIntosh-Winger, but the Bobcats graduated two all-conference players, and two others who were all-conference honorable mention performers, leaving several holes in the line-up this fall.

"It's going to be tough to match last year," admitted Oklee coach Brad Borene. "It's not impossible, but we would have to work awfully hard."

Top returner is senior Julie Murack, an all-conference hitter. She's a good one, said Borene.

Hitter Kari Sebenaler, setter Cici Olson and Michelle Skallet, who will be joining the team shortly, are also expected to add senior experience to the line-up.

Rest of the roster includes seniors Cheryl Hanson, Joelle Engerson and Diane Jensen, juniors Nancy Osbjornson, Loni Bishop and Tammy Skallet, plus sophomore Lisa Chaput.

Graduation took both setters, so Borene is looking for Olson and Bishop to fill the void in the playmaking department. "Our main concerns right now," he said, "is our serve reception and setting."

Oklee will start its season Tuesday at Ada-Borup.

Oklee

Tuesday, September 2 — at Ada-Borup; Thursday, September 4 — at Fosston; Saturday, September 6 — at UMC Invitational; Tuesday, September 9 — Gonvick-Trail; Thursday, September 11 — at Win-E-Mac; Monday, September 15 — Red Lake Falls; Monday, September 22 — at McIntosh Invitational; Tuesday, September 23 — at McIntosh Invitational; Thursday, September 25 — Waubun; Tuesday, September 30 — at Mahnomen; Thursday, October 2 — Plummer; Saturday, October 4 — Pine to Prairie Conference tournament at Mahnomen; Tuesday, October 7 — at Bagley; Thursday, October 9 — at Fertile-Beltrami; Monday, October 23 — at Twin Valley; Tuesday, October 21 — Clearbrook; Thursday, October 23 — Win-E-Mac. (C squad matches start at 5 p.m.; junior varsity matches start at 6 p.m.; varsity matches start at 7 p.m.).

High School Football Season Opens Friday

Following three weeks of conditioning drills and practices, the Minnesota State High School League's 71st football season begins this week when most of the state's 422 teams open with Friday night games.

A total of 210 contests will be played this week, reports Larry Larson of the Minnesota State High School League, the first of a grand total of 1,809 scheduled statewide during the regular season, which ends October 24.

Following the regular season schedule, the 14th annual MSHSL state football playoffs will be staged in October and November, culminating with the fifth Prep Bowl at the Metrodome in Minneapolis Saturday, November 29.

Season openers Friday in The Times' nine-man coverage area will find Middle River hosting a newly-named Kittson County North cooperative program (Lancaster-Humboldt-St. Vincent) in a 7:30 p.m. Northern Lights Conference game under the Skippers' new lights, Goodridge-Grygla will make its debut into the Top of the State Conference by playing Tri-County in a 7:30 p.m. game at Goodridge, Marshall County Central hosts Stephen in a 7:30 p.m. Top of the State Conference game at Newfolden, Oklee entertains new foe Ulen-Hitterdahl in a 7:30 p.m. nonconference game and Plummer visits first-time opponent Laporte for a 7 p.m. nonconference game.

Thief River Falls' 1986 season opener will be delayed until Tuesday, September 2, when the Prowlers visit Grand Forks Red River for a 7:30 p.m. game.

The 1986 season marks the third year that sectional football playoffs will take place during a two-week period in late October, points out Larson in an MSHSL release. Section playoff winners in each of the five classes — AA, A, B, C and nine-man — will complete a 40-team field for the state playoffs, which begin November 7.

Defending state champions include Burnsville, AA; New Prague, A; Jackson, B; Glyndon-Felton, C; and Westbrook, nine-man. Westbrook was the only team in the state to go undefeated last year, finishing 14-0.

— Trap League Results —

Sjoberg's Cable TV won team honors Monday at the season-ending Thief River Trap League shoot-off.

Eight participating squads represented the top four finishers in both the first and second half regular season point standings.

Sjoberg's Cable TV shot a 240-bird total on a five-shooter, 50-bird round, followed by Thyren Auto Sales and Tommy G's Lounge at 237, Bakke Insurance 230, Northland Foods 221 and Peterson-Biddick 219. Triple J Trap Co. and Roger's Eighth Street Service did not field complete squads.

There were three 50-straights recorded during the competition — Ike Ellingson, Thyren Auto Sales; Barry Fellman, Bakke Insurance; and Fran Johnson, Triple J Trap Co.

TRF Cross Country Numbers Are Down

Numbers are down in the Thief River Falls cross country program, but the spirits are up, according to Lynn Dyer, who coaches both the boys and girls in grades 6-12.

There are just two girls in grades 10-12 running with the team right now, and only six boys in the upper three grades reported for preseason workouts. The numbers could increase when summer jobs and fall farm work is completed, but not significantly.

"We're low on numbers, and we're young," acknowledged Dyer, "but even with our low numbers, our attitude is super. They're all working hard, and having fun. It's the best bunch of kids we've ever had."

Boys currently with the team include six lettermen — senior Rynell Johnson, juniors Shayne Anderson and Shoan Nelson and freshmen Dave Stengrim, Luke Soine and Mike Howe.

Others include senior Jim Breiland, juniors Jerrold Asp and Scott Grove, freshmen Mike Puetz and Darren Bakken, eighth graders Bryan Cloutier, Mike Lane and Jamie Thornton, plus sixth graders Jeff Stengrim, Kevin Johnson and Mitch Scramstad.

Only girls out for the sport at this time are junior letter winners Cindy Kruta and Peggy Cruz, freshman letter winners Rhonda Rothschadl and Lynn Mueller and sixth grader Sarah Holmstrom.

Among the personnel losses is Christy Mueller, who placed third in the Region 8AA meet and eighth at the Class AA state meet last fall as a junior. She did not report to practice this year.

Dyer isn't sure how the varsity line-ups will look. The girls will be fielding an incomplete team, and while freshmen like Stengrim, Soine and Howe could be the Prowlers' 2-3-4 runners, they may be held back at the junior high or junior varsity level to get a taste of success this fall.

"It won't be so much of a team thing this year," admitted Dyer. "We'll just have to keep working hard and concentrate on improving our times."

Thief River Falls' 1986 season opening meet, the Roseau Invitational, has been moved up from September 4 to Tuesday, September 2, beginning at 4:30 p.m.

MSHSL News

Minnesota State High School League's 71st year of service to the young men and women of our state will be recognized during the 1986-87 school year. League membership now numbers 494 schools. That total ranks ninth nationally in total number of high schools sponsoring interscholastic activities programs by state.

The 1986-87 membership of 494 member schools is five less than was registered with the MSHSL last school year. Broken down, 383 schools are classified Class A and 111 Class AA. New member schools are Mounds Park Academy, a small school in St. Paul which has been assigned to District 15, Region 4A, and Woods Academy, Maple Plain, assigned to District 17, Region 5A.

There are five schools which will become single programs this school year. They include Alexander Ramsey and Frank B. Kellogg, now named Roseville Area; Tracy and Milroy, Tracy-Milroy; Sandstone and Askov, Sandstone-Askov; Elbow Lake-Wendell and Barrett, West Central High School; and McIntosh-Winger and Erskine, now Win-E-Mac.

Melrose, a Class AA school for many years, becomes a Class A school this school year as a result of its enrollment dropping below 500 students in the upper three grades.

by Vincent Buck, Warroad Area Staff Forester, Department of Natural Resources

At 3 a.m. on the morning of August 12, a call comes into the assistant area forest supervisor's home and by 4 a.m. three of the local forestry personnel are on their way to an unknown destination in the western states.

At 7 a.m. the same day, another call comes in and three more, of the forestry people are on thier way to another unknown destination.

At 8 a.m. yet another call comes in and the area forest supervisor is sent to Milwaukee, WI, to help in the overall fire effort.

These local men, together with others from many other areas of the state and from several different agencies are responding to a request from the Federal Forest Service for help on western fires. Lightning has started hundreds of fires in the mountainous terrain. A nation-wide effort gets underway to supply the needed men and material to fight these destructive fires.

Under an umbrella organization, "N.I.I.M.S.," the National Interagency Incident Management System, the protection agencies of state and federal departments pool their resources to combat fires in the western states and can be called upon by other agencies to help in other large scale incidents such as floods or earthquakes.

Currently the Division of Forestry has three 20-man crews and seven overhead personnel helping in the effort to contain the hundreds of fires that are burning in the western states. The forestry personnel are involved with many facets of this complex effort from dispatching plane loads of people, equipment and retardant, from all corners of the nation, to climbing the mountain and coming face to face with the common enemy, the forest fire.

A day in the life of a crew member usually starts at 5 a.m. when they are roused out of their sleeping bags where they have spent a short night. They are fed a substantial breakfast from a portable kitchen and are then issued tools for the day's work. Shovels, axes, polaskies and bladder bags are the weapons in the fight against the fire. They then are transported as close to the fire as possible. From the end of the road it may be a five mile up-hill hike to the fire line. On the fire line the work consists of making a fire break with hand tools and burning out the unburned fuel to the fire edge.

Each man is equipped with fire resistant clothing, hard hat, goggles, mountain boots and most importantly a fire shelter for use in an emergency. (A fire shelter is like a one man pup tent made out of reinforced aluminum foil.)

When noon finally comes the crew will be given a half-hour break and a sack lunch if the situation will allow such luxury. Then it's back to the line and another six to eight hours of hard work.

If the fire is contained they will get moved back to the base camp, fed and have time for a shower in a portable shower enclosure and then to the sleeping bag for another, too-short night.

What I have just described is typical, but fire situations have a way of not being typical. The work day can be 24 hours long, the heat, smoke, dust and insects can be near intolerable. Yet most of the men engaged in this fight to save the forest are volunteers and have volunteered annually for many years. What is it that makes a man subject himself to such working conditions? Not the pay, they would make the same hourly rate if they were at home. Certainly not the working conditions as they are some of the hardest in the world. I think that most of the men on the fire line like the excitement and the challenge of winning the battle with the fire more than they would admit. Also, there is a love of nature in all of these men that makes a common bond between them even if they are total strangers.

As of August 14, there were 17,000 such men committed to the fire suppression effort. Most of the fires are in northwestern Oregon, Idaho and Washington. To give you an idea of the enormity of the problem that faces these men, on August 13 there were 785 new fires reported and they covered an estimated 175,000 acres. The day before there were 335 new fires reported and they involved an estimated 128,723 acres. So far this year the Federal Forest Service has reported 80,609 fires that involve 2,568,780 acres.

Men and the fire will be at odds until Mother Nature intervenes and sends the fall rains that are a part of the normal weather pattern in the western states.

Plummer

Plummer coach Dean Miller says the Cardinals want to improve upon their 1985 season this fall, and when you talk about bettering a 20-3 District 31A runner-up performance, you're talking pretty heady stuff.

"We're expecting to do better," said Miller, who has a wealth of talent and experience on hand to make the lofty goals obtainable.

Senior Robin Brantl heads the list. She's a hard-hitting all-conference selection with four solid years of varsity starting experience under her belt already.

While Miller recognizes the importance of Brantl to the Plummer attack, he says the rest of the squad members have made improvements, too, and he hopes to feature a more balanced team this fall.

Other letter winners on hand include seniors Steph Gagner and Janelle Konickson, juniors Jodi Konickson and Renae Walter and sophomores Angie Delage and Nicole Kruse. They were all either starters, or gained a lot of playing time off the bench a year ago, pointed out Miller, who lost just two seniors to graduation.

"We have some definite goals this year," said Miller. "We want to do well in our regular season (invitational) tournaments, we want to do better in all of our regular season matches, and we'd like to win the district tournament. But we'll take them one by one."

East Grand Forks and Warren will probably be the Cardinals' biggest hurdles in District 31A, figured Miller, who also looks forward to what has developed into a spirited rivalry with Class AA Thief River Falls.

Plummer hosts Goodridge Tuesday in a 1986 season-opening match.

Grygla

All-conference performers Nikki Lian and Michelle Jelle, a couple of talented seniors, lead a Grygla team that should be in position to duplicate last year's 19-2 finish that produced a District 32A runner-up trophy.

"We'll be a good team," acknowledged Grygla coach Mike Gast, "but I'm not putting any pressure on the girls. We just hope to be in contention at the end of the year."

Seniors Tammy Schulz, Tiarra Porch and Cindy Larson, plus juniors Casanda Sistad and Wendy Lawrence will join Lian and Jelle in forming a solid varsity line-up.

Patty Rogers, Dawn Byklum and Sheila Byklum are three others from a large junior class who hope to see varsity duty. In all, Grygla has 29 girls in grades 9-12 out for the sport. "I like the numbers," noted Gast, but it does necessitate some roster decisions.

"We're looking pretty good in practice," said Gast. "I've been really happy with what we've done."

Marshall County Central looks strong again, said Gast, and Warroad is expected to field a North Border Conference contender this fall.

Grygla begins the year Tuesday at Roseau.

— News From Minnesota DNR —

A bluejay is helping to fight poaching in the state according to Glenn Nyquist, president of TIP (Turn in Poachers), Inc.

The jay is the subject of a painting by well-known Minnesota wildlife artist Daniel Smith. The painting was created as a fundraiser for TIP, a non-profit organization that provides rewards for information leading to the arrest of poachers.

The artwork, entitled "Winter Sentinel" was recently selected "Best in Show" at the annual Minnesota Wildlife Heritage Art Show in Minneapolis.

Smith's painting was also chosen for display at the prestigious Leigh-Yawkey Woodson Birds in Art Show in Wausau, WI the first weekend in September.

A total of 750 wildlife artists were invited to submit two works each for possible selection into the Wisconsin show. Smith's bluejay painting was one of 150 works chosen for the exhibition.

"TIP is very pleased with the honors accorded this painting," Nyquist said. "We still have some "Winter Sentinels" available for sale. The proceeds, used to fund TIP's rewards and educational programs, are helping us to curb the illegal taking of Minnesota's fish and wildlife resources."

"Winter Sentinel" prints are individually numbered and signed by the artist, Edition size is 2,000. Image size is 17 by 13 inches with ample margins. Prints are available exclusively through TIP, Inc., for $35, plus $3 for shipping and handling.

To order prints or for further information, write TIP, Inc., 5701 Normandale Road, Edina, MN 55424.

Division of Forestry will start selling trees for spring on or after Labor Day, Monday, September 1.

Minimum orders are 500 trees and can only be ordered in units of 100, 500 or 1,000.

Trees can only be used for forestation of woodlands, windbreaks, shelterbelts, erosion control, soil and water conservation, or food and cover for wildlife.

Trees may not be planted for ornamental purposes nor can they be resold, given away or removed with the roots attached.

For specie availability and other information, contact your nearest forestry office.

It was also announced the DNR is now buying cones. The cones can only be picked from designated trees. If you wish to pick cones you may contact a Forester for information on where to pick, how much to pick and what the cone prices are. After purchase from pickers, the state will take the cones to the Badoura Nursery for seed extraction. The seed is kept separate from seed of other locations. Seed picked in the northwestern portion of the state is used for seedlings that are shipped back here for planting.

MSHSL will conduct 26 state tournaments for youth in 1986-87. There are 13 boys sports 12 girls sports, and speech, drama and debate meets that comprise these state tournaments.

U of M Program Has Goal To Overcome Child Abuse, Neglect

by Gwen Ruff
University News Service

Keeping families together to overcome child abuse and neglect is the goal of a University of Minnesota program that's just completing its third year.

The program's paraprofessional graduates are trained to provide services to families whose members traditionally have been separated because of child abuse and neglect.

It was started because more and more county social service agencies were using family service aides in addition to professional social workers to help troubled families. Because the roles and requirements of those paraprofessionals differed from county to county and agency to agency, the Minnesota department of human services initiated the parent-provider partnership with the university and nine county agencies in 1983. Students in the university program had been doing this type of work but had no formal training.

"One of the reasons we designed the program was to provide some parameters," director Mary Lou Gilstad said. "People were functioning in all kinds of ways. The people who were doing this kind of work seemed to be people who were good with families and were turned loose to do what they could."

Most people incorrectly assume that abused children are desperate to leave their homes and that they want to be rescued, Gilstad said. But very strong bonds exist between children and parents regardless of what goes on at home, and many children run away from foster homes to return to parents who've been declared unfit, she said.

Studies indicate about one-third of children put in foster care don't need to be removed from their homes, program coordinators say. Many child-protection workers are starting to question whether the old method of "fixing individuals, then bringing the family back together works.

"It's assumed that everything is going to be OK, but in a matter of weeks, they're back where they were," Gilstad said.

Program graduates are role models — and it is hoped, friends — to family members. Students in the program have proven in their own families that they manage households, money and time well.

"They're not counselors; they're not therapists," Gilstad said. "They're teachers of life-management skills. That doesn't mean they're perfect, but they have things under control."

In turn, the paraprofessionals "help people get hold of their lives." They teach parents how to manage budgets, to discipline children appropriately and to develop good communication skills. They also help family members learn where to get help with problems such as alcoholism, unemployment and mental illness.

Family service associates help families learn the skills that form a solid foundation a professional social worker can build on. "A professional is often the heavy who has to make the tough decisions," Gilstad said.

This family-based approach appears more successful with young families who may be overwhelmed by earning a living and raising a family. Teen-age and single parents with low incomes, handicapped children or large families are particularly vulnerable to abuse and neglect, program coordinators said.

The program consists of 100 hours of workshops and small-group sessions. In the smaller sessions, students discuss ways of putting what they learn into practice. When training is complete, students are tested on their knowledge of such areas as parenting and communication skills, health and safety, stress and life management, self-esteem concepts and family dynamics.

The program has 18 graduates, and nine students are being assessed this summer. Thirty-eight students are in training, and another 35 will begin the program this fall.

The students — all women — have come from a variety of backgrounds. Some have four-year college degrees, and others have only finished high school. All are working for social service agencies, training coordinator Trish Blomquist said.

In addition to the more extensive certificate-granting program, the university provides workshops on general information for a variety of paraprofessionals who work with dysfunctional families.

Students in both programs have come from all areas of the state. A 1984-85 pilot program operated in southwestern Minnesota. This past year, training sessions were offered on the Red Lake Indian reservation and in St. Cloud to students from Albert Lea to Park Rapids to Cloquet, Blomquist said.

This fall, students from Dakota, Scott, Carver and Ramsey counties will attend sessions in Rosemount. Program coordinators also are negotiating with Fairview hospitals to train volunteers who work with families.

Gilstad said using family service associates can save counties money because the average annual salary for this type of work is low, about $11,000. Officials estimate it costs about $5,000 to keep a child in a foster home for a year, and each paraprofessional can work with six to eight families a year, she said.

More importantly, coordinators think the program recognizes new thinking in a field that is responding to heightened public awareness of the problems of child abuse and neglect. Gilstad, Blomquist and students consider themselves pioneers, and even donned 1800s-style bonnets for a graduation photo.

The university program is a direct response to concerns about failures to develop healthy families by treating individuals, to an awareness of strong family ties and to new child abuse and neglect prevention methods, they said. Now that ideas and theories have changed, "the way we serve those in trouble has to change, too," Gilstad said.

JESSICA NELSON, daughter of Ray and Jan Nelson of Thief River Falls, is presently skating with Ice Follies and Holiday on Ice, Inc. The new production of "Walt Disney's Snow White on Ice" premiered in Lakeland, FL, on August 14 and 15 and rehearsals started July 7. Jessica has contracted for the season tour in the eastern United States and Canada and will be with the show in Minneapolis the last two weeks in March. The show is presently in Quebec, Canada. Jessica skates the role of a Walt Disney character in several show numbers and as a spider (above) in a chorus line number. An average of 11 performances are skated each week. Most of Jessica's 14 years of skating have been with the local recreational skating program where she took part in all 11 ice shows. She has had a goal of skating with a professional ice show and considers acceptance by Holiday on Ice to be a dream come true.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BID
(Adm: 87-7)

The State of Minnesota, Department of Natural Resources Region 1 will receive sealed bids for rental of equipment to load and haul approximately 3350 cubic yards of clay to the Winner Dam on the Red Lake Wildlife Management Area in Roseau County.

Bids will be received until 2:00 P.M. on September 3, 1986, at the Department of Natural Resources Regional Office, 2115 Birchmont Beach Rd. N.E., Bemidji, MN 56601, at which time they will be opened and read aloud.

Bid forms, plans and specifications may be secured from the Regional Business Office, 2115 Birchmont Beach Rd. N.E., Bemidji, telephone (218) 755-3975, by requesting a copy of contract Adm. 87-7.

The State of Minnesota, Department of Natural Resources Region 1 reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding.

August 27, September 3, 1986

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the Middle River-Snake River Watershed District, 453 North McKinley Street, Warren, Minnesota until 4:00 o'clock P.M. on September 17, 1986, for the rental of fully operated excavation equipment. Proposals are being requested for dozers, scrapers, graders, and crawler-mounted draglines or backhoes. The draglines and backhoes must be equipped with a boom, bucket and counter weights appropriately matched for the type of machine. All equipment must be equipped with a servis recorder.

The works to be done consists of, but is not limited to, the clearing and disposal of trees and brush, the disposal of rocks, the construction of dikes, the grading of roadways, the leveling of spoilbanks, the installation of culverts, and the removal of sediment from drainage channels. The work required and the locations of the work will be designated by the engineer for the district.

The equipment must be modern and in good operating condition and furnished with capable and experienced operators. Deficient operations or maintenance which results in reduced production or poor workmanship will be cause for contract cancellation.

All equipment proposed will be considered and evaluated based on many factors including but not limited to the following: price, horsepower, machine rating, machine weight, track length, track width, track gauge, buckets available, boom lengths available and counterweights available.

Work will be paid by the hour and payment will be based on the time recorded on the Servis Recorder discs which must be turned over to the Engineer. Payments will be made on a monthly basis. The minimum hours per week will be 40 unless delayed by weather or equipment operating problems.

In addition to the payment for hourly work, the contractor will be eligible for a demobilization payment. The amount will be equivalent to 3 hours rental rate for each type of equipment authorized for use by the Engineer.

Demobilization payment will be included in the last payment for hourly work satisfactorily completed.

The District may cancel the contract at any time without cause by paying the demobilization payment.

The contractor may cancel the contract at any time without cause but forfeits the demobilization payment.

The type of equipment best suited for this project is dependent on the weather and other unknown job conditions. The district intends to rent equipment which in its opinion, will perform the required work at the least cost. Its evaluation factors will depend on conditions expected and encountered which will likely change along the course of the work. The District will release and rent different equipment from time to time as it deems necessary to economically perform the required work.

The contractor, in making this proposal, promises to furnish the equipment listed for the prices shown subject to its availability. He does not promise to make or keep the equipment available to the district. He understands, however, the equipment availability may be a factor in the district's evaluation of equipment.

The contractor will be required to furnish certificates showing that he has Workmans Compensation Insurance and Liability Insurance.

The Middle River-Snake River Watershed District reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to award contracts to other than the apparent low bidder.

Dated at Warren, Minnesota this 22nd day of August, 1986.

ORDINANCE NO. 118, 2ND SERIES
AN ORDINANCE AMENDING THE CITY CODE BY ADJUSTING RATES FOR REFUSE COLLECTION CHARGES

THE CITY COUNCIL OF THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA, ORDAINS:

Section 1. Subdivisions 1 and 2 of Section 3.83 of the City Code of the City of Thief River Falls are hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 3.83. REFUSE COLLECTION CHARGE.

Subd. 1. Regular Charge. A refuse collection charge of $6.75 per month per household or housekeeping unit shall be added to, and billed with, the charge for electrical service to said household or housekeeping unit. Where no statement is sent for electrical service, a separate statement shall be made for such refuse collection service and shall be mailed to the person or persons using such service or occupying such household or housekeeping unit.

Subd. 2. Hardship Cases. A refuse collection charge of $4.00 per month per household or housekeeping unit shall be added to and billed with the charge for electrical service to said household or housekeeping unit qualifying under this Subdivision. Where no statement is sent for electrical service, a separate statement shall be made for such refuse collection service and shall be mailed to the person or persons using such service or occupying such household or housekeeping unit. A consumer shall qualify for the rate under this Subdivision for the next regular billing and thereafter by filing a sworn or affirmed statement on forms to be supplied by the City Clerk stating:

A. That such consumer is 65 years of age or older, or handicapped or physically disabled, and,

B. That such consumer is on a fixed income and that occupants of the household or housekeeping unit come within the following income and net worth standards:

1. Individual Occupancy. An individual with an annual income of less than $4,000.00 and total net worth not exceeding $10,000.00 excluding the value of homestead.

2. Double Occupancy. An annual income of less than $6,000.00 and total net worth, not exceeding $15,000.00 excluding the value of homestead.

3. Occupancy by Three or More Persons. An annual income of less than $8,000.00 and total net worth not exceeding $18,000.00, excluding the value of homestead, and,

C. That payment of the regular charge for refuse collection would be a hardship.

Section 2. This Ordinance shall be in force and effect, for the October 1, 1986, billing and all subsequent billings.

Passed by the City Council of the City of Thief River Falls this 12th day of August, 1986.

Voting Aye: Aldermen Borsheim, Murphy, Wennberg, Barron, Liden, and Womack.

Card of Thanks

The family of Ione Holmes wishes to thank all the relatives and friends that sent flowers, memorials, cards, food and their help to us at the time of our loss of our mother.

A special thank you to Deloras Johnson and Corrine Haugen for all their help to me.

Also a special thank you to Rev. Paul Bortnem for the beautiful service he gave our mother and to Orin Green for his help with the arrangements. Also to the Westaker ladies' aide and to Alice Knutson for all her help.

A special thank you to my husband, George Casey, I couldn't have made it without you.

We will miss our mother so much, God bless all of you people, from Ione's daughter,
Sandra Casey &
her son, Robert Holmes

Card of Thanks

We would like to express our thanks to all who were so kind to Hans Vake while he was a patient at home. Pastors Galland and Grimstad, for their words of comfort; Dr. Thorsgard, Lorie Anderson of Community Hospice, LuRue Johnson and Renee Wiebolt of Inter-County Nursing Service.

Our relatives and friends for making it easier for us during the loss of our beloved husband, father, brother, grandfather, and uncle. Thanks to Pastors Grimstad and Tom Olson, Solvieg Swenson and Mrs. Dahlstrom for their songs and music. The pallbearers, the cards, memorials, flowers, the food that was brought to our home, the ladies that served lunch at the church and Green Funeral Home. May God bless all of you.

Card of Thanks

No words can express our heartfelt love to all of our family and friends who stood by us in our loss of our father, grandfather and great-grandfather with your expressions of food, flowers, cards, memorials and prayers. "Thank you" seems so small in our hearts. To Father Dave Super, our dear relative and friend, whose comforting words to us individually and at both Sunday and Monday services, were so complete — we love you! It is impossible to name everyone who thought of us, but your continued prayers for our loved one and all of us will be eternally appreciated.

COUNTY OF PENNINGTON IN DISTRICT COURT DIVISION I
NINTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT
Court File No. C 86-292
Title Quieting
Steiger Farms, Inc., Bradley J. Steiger and Brenda L. Steiger, Plaintiffs,
vs.
John Steiger, Ella Steiger, Maurice Steiger, Geraldine Olson, Douglass W. Steiger, also all other persons unknown claiming any right, title, estate, interest or lien in the real estate described in the Complaint herein, Defendants.

SUMMONS

THE STATE OF MINNESOTA TO THE ABOVE NAMED DEFENDANTS:

You are hereby summoned and required to serve upon the plaintiffs' attorney an answer to the Complaint which is on file in the office of the Court Administrator of the above named Court, within twenty (20) days after service of this Summons upon you, exclusive of the day of service. If you fail to do so, judgment by default will be taken against you for the relief demanded in the Complaint.

This action involves, affects or brings in question real property situated in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit:

The Northeast Quarter (NE¼) of Section Eighteen (18), Township One Hundred Fifty-two (152) North of Range Forty-four (44) West of the Fifth Principal Meridian.

The object of this action is to obtain a judgment that:

1. Plaintiff, Steiger Farms, Inc., is the owner in fee of that part of the above real property described as follows:

For Kidney Patient Dialysis Is Means To Sustain Life

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For Pearl Hebert of Argyle, three trips a week to United Hospital in Grand Forks for dialysis treatment is more than just a way of life — it is life itself. Without the cleansing of impurities from the blood through the dialysis process — a function normally provided by the kidneys — life could not be sustained.

Mrs. Hebert is among many whose kidneys have ceased their function for one reason or another and who make use of the dialysis center in Grand Forks. There eight or nine dialysis units operate from 6 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. six days a week, providing their life-saving service.

"The people there are all wonderful," Pearl said. "They call you by name and laugh and joke with you as well as being so willing to help. You get to know them when you see them so often and they are almost like members of the family."

For the past three and one-half years, Pearl and her husband Alfred have received financial assistance from the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls to help defray some of their auto travel costs to and from Grand Forks. In total, the local foundation pays about $900 per month to a number of recipients in the seven county area which the organization serves.

Funds for the assistance to kidney patients is raised through the local foundation's annual auction at the Thief River Falls sports arena. This year the event will be conducted Saturday, September 6, from 1 to 6 p.m. and Sunday, September 7, from 1 p.m. until everything is sold. All proceeds go to the foundation's efforts to help kidney patients.

Pearl Hebert, who will be 64 in September, was born Pearl Riel at Brooks and moved to Argyle when she was 19 years of age. She married Alfred Hebert at her home church in Brooks and they farmed in the Argyle area until his retirement about three years ago. At that time she had already been in the dialysis program for about a year.

While many patients suffer kidney problems as a result of diabetes, Pearl said her difficulties were the result of high blood pressure. She went to Hennepin County Medical center where attempts to reduce the pressure failed and the condition led to both kidney failure and blindness, the latter being due to hemorrhaging.

For the past four years Alfred has been driving Pearl to Grand Forks every Monday, Wednesday and Friday where she spends three and one-half hours attached to a machine which takes her blood through a nylon connector in her neck, circulates it through a filtering process and returns it to her body.

Since last spring arrangements have been made at United hospital whereby Bill Conway of Argyle and Pearl can have their dialysis performed on similar schedules. As a result, Alfred Hebert and Conway's wife can alternate in doing the driving. In four years, Pearl said, she has never failed to make it to Grand Forks for treatment and only once has the weather prevented her from getting back home. On a normal day they will leave Argyle about 9:30 a.m. and return about 4 p.m.

Pearl has considered possibilities of a home dialysis unit but has decided against it. "I would need to use a separate room for that to keep conditions as sterile as possible," she said. "Then there would be six weeks of training for operation of the unit and the need to have someone help during treatment. It doesn't seem like the thing for me to do."

But she hasn't ruled out the possibility of a kidney transplant. In fact, she recently returned from Minneapolis Medical center where she had a conference and some tests. She expects to hear soon from the center and then could go on a waiting list for a donor kidney.

Under her present regimen Pearl is restricted to four cups of liquid per day, including the liquid contained in the foods she eats. She is not to eat foods high in potassium such as corn, tomatoes or cucumbers but can eat low potassium vegetables such as cabbage and green beans — neither one of which she likes very well. Fats are no problem, she said, and she eats quite a lot of meat, eggs and fish.

Since she lost her sight, Pearl has been helped more and more by her husband who does much of the housework and meal preparation. She spends a lot of time on the telephone, visiting with relatives and friends. It is her preference to use the rotary dial phone where she can count the numbers.

"One thing that's nice about living in Argyle," she said, "is that if you get a wrong number you can talk to someone you know anyway. I know quite a few numbers by memory, and my husband often asks me for a number when he wants to call someone. I usually tell him, 'You got two eyes; look it up for yourself.' "

Alfred and Pearl have seven children, only one of whom lives at Argyle. Their daughter, Pam Gryskiewicz, had taken her son to school in Argyle for inoculation where she met Ruth Nepper of Thief River Falls, an employee of Inter-County community council and a member of the local kidney foundation board. It was through Ruth and Pam that Pearl found out about the help available through the foundation.

Other Hebert children include Richard Hebert, Donaldson, who farms the family farm at Argyle; Sandy Mosher, Crookston; Jerry Hebert, Alexandria; Jim Hebert, Fargo, ND; Cheryl Fairchild, Henderson, NV; and Rolland Hebert, Seattle, WA.

As a dialysis patient, Pearl qualifies for medicare which protects against the costs of dialysis that are over $500 per week. The financial assistance from the kidney foundation in Thief River Falls helps quite a bit on the mileage costs and Pearl appreciates it.

"There's a box on the table," she said as the interview ended. "There is a pair of binoculars in it that we want you to take back to Thief River, and put on the kidney auction. Maybe they will bring a few dollars."

Everything helps. Anyone who has saleable merchandise and would be willing to donate it to the auction may contact W.G. Maves at 681-1786.

PEARL HEBERT of Argyle is one of many kidney patients who depends on the life-saving efforts of the dialysis unit at United Hospital in Grand Forks. She has been traveling to the unit three times a week for the past four years. Assistance for travel costs is provided by the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls which raises its funds through its annual auction. This year's event is scheduled at the sports arena from 1 to 6 p.m. Saturday, September 6, and 1 p.m. until all items are sold Sunday, September 7.

MD Pledges May Be Donated At Erl's Market

Contributions to the Muscular Dystrophy association may be made during this weekend at Erl's Food Market in Thief River Falls, according to the Thief River Falls Jaycees who are co-sponsoring the local fund-raising effort.

A fish bowl will be located at the market to hold contributions and a portion of a Labor Day special at the store will be donated to the fund. Persons who would like to donate to the fund but unable to stop at the market may call 681-1230 and Knights of Columbus volunteers will accept pledges for the Jerry Lewis telethon.

List Bookmobile Contest Winners For Summer 1986

Winner of the big-jar guessing contest sponsored by Northwest Regional library bookmobile branch library is Troy Meyer from Oklee. There were 1,664 Liberty building nails in the jar. Troy's winning guess was 1,671. Jan. Pietruszewski from Karlstad is the adult winner of the Summer '87 drawing.

Miss Liberty reading club activities this summer included a star decorating project. The public is invited to see the effort of young patriots as the stars will be displayed on the bookmobile until October 1.

Summer reading pays off. Researcher Barbara Heyns in "Summer Learning and The Effects of Schooling," (Academic Press 1978) said that summer reading does affect school achievement. Her research study showed:

— The number of books read during the summer is consistently related to achievement gains;

— The use of the public library is more predictive of vocabulary gains than attending summer school;

— Reading is the single summer activity most strongly and consistently related to summer learning; and — Children in every income group who read six or more books over the summer gained more in reading achievement than children who did not.

Young bookmobile patrons set their own reading goals for the summer program time and their individual goals far surpassed a total of six books.

Kim Wojciechowski, a young adult volunteer from Badger, has helped with children's programming in Badger for three summers. She has saved library staff valuable time usually lost in programming by taking responsibility to open and close the program site, set up the site for activities planned and put everything back in order, help with reading club sign up, film projector rewinding, and whatever is needed for a smoother program session.

The library is also pleased to have had Denise Ayers placed with them through Inter-County Community Council at Oklee to assist them on the bookmobile. Denise is from Thief River Falls and will be a junior at Lincoln high school this fall.

Bookmobile staff members preparing for a down service time the first two weeks in September so the bookmobile will not be coming to regular stops September 2, 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11 and 12. New schedules are available at all branch libraries, local post offices and various community business places. Scheduling will resume on September 16 at Badger.

County Commission Selects Veterans Service Officer

Applicants for the Pennington county armed services officer were narrowed down to four from 23 by a special selection committee and Pennington county commissioners reviewed the four applications selected and then personally interviewed each applicant Tuesday night.

At the conclusion of the commission meeting, John Ellison of rural St. Hilaire was chosen as Pennington county's part-time veterans service officer. Ellison will begin work September 7 when he goes to a regional training station.

Chuck Jorud New Loan Officer At Local FCS Office

Chuck Jorud Jr., Gonvick, has been named loan officer for the Thief River Falls branch office of Farm Credit Services (FCS) of Grand Forks.

The Henning native comes to Thief River Falls from the Northern state bank of Gonvick where he was an ag loan officer. He is a member of the Gonvick Jaycees and the Riverview golf club.

Jorud is a 1978 graduate of Henning high school, holds an associate of arts degree in health professions from the Fergus Falls community college, studied production agriculture at the Alexandria AVTI and worked on dairy farms in the Fergus Falls area before graduating in 1984 from NDSU with a degree in animal science and a minor in agricultural economics.

Women Of Today In Newfolden Set Movies And Dance

In conjunction with National Kids' Week, the Marshall County Central Women of Today are planning a movie night and a teen dance for young people in the Newfolden area.

The free movie night for the younger children is Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Newfolden community center. Main feature of the evening is "The Cat In The Hat," an early Dr. Seuss classic. Free popcorn and soft drinks will be provided by the MCC Women of Today. Pre-schoolers must be accompanied by an adult.

A "Back To School" teen dance is set for Sunday, August 31. A KSRO disc jockey from the Thief River Falls AVTI will play dancing music from 8 p.m. to midnight for young people ages 12-18 at the Hobo Haus in Newfolden. The bar will be closed for the evening and pop and snacks will be available, according to Deb Davidson, chairman.

There is an admission charge for the dance.

Times To Include Column Rerun In Looking Backward

For many years one of the features of the Thief River Falls Times was a personal column called "Topics of the Times" which was written by Norman A. Holen, Times city editor. His timely observations and keen sense of humor was evident in the column each week.

Beginning today, the column will be reprinted as a part of the Times regular "Looking Backward" feature. Also added will be excerpts from the same issue of the Times. The combined "Looking Backward" effort with the "Topics of the Times" column and additional items is the work of Times staff members Mike Lundgren and Sharon LaCoursiere.

"Looking Backward" is published in each Wednesday edition of the Times.

Settlers Fair Revives Memories

Boiler Workshop Set For TRF On September 22

Adjusting boiler water for maximum fuel economy, boiler safety and boiler life will be the focus of workshops scheduled at 15 sites throughout Minnesota. One workshop will be held in Thief River Falls on September 22.

The one-day workshop, "Chemical Water Treatment and Testing for Boiler Systems," is designed to teach attendees how to test boiler water and implement a boiler water treatment program in commercial, industrial and institutional buildings. Reductions in energy, chemical and maintenance costs should result.

Topics featured at the workshop include water sources and problems, hands-on water testing methods, demineralizers and softners, boiler water programs and chemical safety.

The Minnesota department of energy and economic development sponsors the workshop with local area vocational technical institutes and the Minnesota state board of vocational technical education. A fee of $65 covers the training, a reference and training manual, a certificate of attendance and lunch.

Home Remodeling Can Help Value If Done Carefully

If you are thinking of remodeling, the Minnesota Society of CPAs advises you to choose a contractor carefully and to consider the financial consequences of home remodeling.

Decisions on what to remodel, choosing and working with a contractor, and on how to use the tax benefits of remodeling should be made carefully.

What kind of home improvement provides the best recovery of cost if you sell your house within five years? A lot depends on locale, materials and workmanship, but traditionally, a fireplace and a second bathroom will return about 100 per cent of their cost. A solar greenhouse may return most of its cost. New room, kitchens and decks generally return about half their cost.

Who should do the job? Obtain written estimates from several contractors. Choose two or three, then check with their past customers or with the banks.

The contract should spell out financial responsibility for materials and any related cost of the project. Also, if a contractor fails to get the permit, you can be held liable for the penalty.

Ask the construction company to obtain a certificate of insurance that names you as coinsured for damage or injury. Also, contractors should be covered by workmen's compensation.

Finally, ask to see releases from all subcontractors the professional worked with. Payment to the contractor does not protect you from liens against the material he used.

What's the best way to raise the money to pay for improvements? If you intend to borrow the funds, investigate a home equity loan. The lender accepts home equity as collateral then allows you to draw on a line of credit. If you belong to a credit union, traditionally an inexpensive source of funds, find out what its rates are. Also talk to your bank or thrift about an FHA-insured home improvement loan if you need $15,000 or less.

One stop insurance service for life, business, home, car.

Laboring For Maturity

Maturity. What is it? It's one of those words you can never get a handle on. It lends itself more to description than achievement; more to a lifestyle than an attainment.

Maturity may be defined more as a pilgrimage than an arrival; more a process than a possession.

The New Testament writer James properly describes maturity as "unswerving constancy" which he says leads to being "perfect, complete, lacking in nothing." (1:3,4)

That sounds not only foreboding, but impossible. Can a person ever be that? Experience that? No, not totally.

Maturity is knowing no one can ever be fully mature; yet, maturity is not stymied by that reality, but rather is stimulated to keep striving for it.

This was the Apostle Paul's commitment: "I count not myself to have attained . . . but I press on to the mark of the prize of the high calling. . . ." (Phil. 3:13)

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

by Richard L. Lesher, President
U.S. Chamber of Commerce

Small business creates up to eight of every 10 new jobs, employs more than half the private sector working population and was credited for developing two-thirds of the major inventions of the last 30 years.

According to commerce department statistics, Americans created more than 600,000 new businesses in each of the last two years. Just as important, 90 per cent of these newly established high-growth industries in the United States involved high technology and enjoyed productivity growth six times greater than other businesses.

To put it simply, small business is this country's ace in the hole.

Having come to the nation's rescue by producing economic growth and jobs, small business is now preparing to come to government's aid by advising Congress and the administration on how to ensure a generation of continued growth and prosperity.

In recent months, small business entrepreneurs have been meeting around the country, setting the stage for this week's White House conference on small business. Now they are at last coming together to hammer out recommendations for government to follow in setting our nation's policies.

Lest anyone doubt the impact of this exercise, consider the results of the 1980 White House Conference on Small Business. The top four recommendations of the 1980 conference — corporate and individual tax reduction, investment incentives, federal spending control and estate tax reform — became the centerpiece of the 1981 economic recovery program that produced the best comeback in 30 years. All in all, 40 of the conference's 60 specific recommendations were wholly or partially adopted.

The challenge before the 1986 conference is to avoid the temptation to become another special interest group harping for special favors. Instead of looking to government for answers, the delegates must insist government listen to them — and learn from them what policies will foster the climate they need to grow and compete in the topsy-turvy world of modern commerce.

I am keeping my fingers crossed that Congress and the administration will pay as much attention to these unsung heroes as they do to those clamoring for quotas, pleading for protection and begging for subsidies.

Whether government heeds the counsel of the White House Conference delegates or turns a deaf ear will determine whether America's symbol continues to be the eagle — or becomes an ostrich.

Trip to "Kicks in '86"

Saturday morning August 9, the Carpenter Charter, with Randy as bus driver, and sponsored by the Overland Travel Club, with Eldon and Evonne Moe as guides, left for Detroit lakes with 39 passengers aboard to attend the festival of country music, "Kicks in '86". Reservations had been made for noon dinner at Bonanza. The afternoon and evening program included selections by the Nielsen-White Band, Mary Jane Alm Band; George Jones, Reba McEntire and Waylon Jennings with Jessi Colter.

Attending the festival from Thief River Falls area were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond DeMeyere, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Jarshaw, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Brinkman, Mark Carpenter, Jennifer Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Srnsky, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Srnsky, Jeanie Carpenter, Doris Schantzen and Eunice Steenerson, besides those already mentioned. Others in the group were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grandbois from Red Lake Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Larson, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Larson, Dorene Larson and Karly Strandberg all from Viking, Harriet Jorgenson and Frank Kujava, both from Warren and Dean Jensrud from Fertile. They all returned to Thief River Falls late Saturday night. The next trips scheduled by the Carpenter Charter and sponsored by the Overland Travel Club are to the Peace Garden September 3 at a cost of $29.00 per person including dinner and will be leaving at 7 a.m. from Olson Park in Thief River Falls. There will also be a trip to the Michigan Science Loop October 4-10.

Visitors at the Lloyd and Harryet Larson home Wednesday evening last week were Dianne Kleinwachter and Stacy of Strandquist and Rebecca Solem.

House guests at the home of Peter and Valerie Solem are her folks, Leo and Dora Anderson from Chicago, who arrived Monday, August 18.

LaVerne and Olive Rondorf and Rebecca Solem attended the August meeting of the Trinity Golden Years Group Tuesday afternoon at the Silas Hanson farm home in Silverton township. Paul Furuseth and his son David provided several musical selections. Arne Samuelson was in charge of devotions and Mae Peterson directed a sing-a-long. Gifts of appreciation were presented to the Hansons and to Paul Furuseth. Among those assisting with serving of the delicious Scandinavian luncheon were Alpha Halvorson and Lois Kemnitz.

Thursday afternoon Harryet Larson visited Kristine Ness at her home in Holt. Friday forenoon Harryet brought belated birthday wishes to Barbara Johnson at her home.

Mrs. Ethel Moe returned home Wednesday, August 20 after spending about a week in Bradley, SD at the home of her brother, Joe Roso and brother-in-law, Howard McCammon and assisting with the sale of Howard's house and furnishings Saturday, the 16th, at a public auction.

Leonard and Shirley Yonke drove to Grafton Friday and were overnight guests at the home of their daughter Lennae and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Kosmatka.

Bill and Connie Stock, Robbie, Bridgett and Maggie and Bernice Knutson brought noon dinner to the farm home of Knute and Connie Knutson Sunday. Mrs. Mavis Hillyer and Mrs. Amanda Russell also accompanied them and they all helped Connie Knutson celebrate her birthday which was Saturday, the 23rd.

Lloyd Larson was an overnight guest at the Roger and Ronda Nelson home in Fargo last Friday.

Minnesota State Fair

Harold and Alpha Halvorson brought a group of 4-H members to the State Fair Wednesday, returning home Saturday. They made the trip in a school bus.

Leonard and Shirley Yonke, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Naomi Althoff were Sunday afternoon visitors and supper guests at the George Rewertz home in Plummer.

Visitors at the Mavis Hillyer and the Bill and Connie Stock home Monday, August 18 were Mrs. Alpha Halvorson, Mrs. Debi Drees, Nicholas and Michael, Mrs. Donna Jorde and Mrs. Adeline Halvorson of Bloomington. Debi and boys and Adeline were also supper guests.

Lucky Cash Winner

Mrs. Harryet Larson was very happy to receive a telephone call Friday evening from Al & Wally's Country Market that she was the lucky weekly winner of one hundred dollars in their Magic Money game. Congratulations Harryet!

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem were Friday evening luncheon guests at the Clifford and Ruth Johnson home of rural Newfolden.

Weekend house guest at the Leonard and Shirley Yonke home were Chester and Marla Yonke, Jason, Scott and Steven of Warroad.

Harold Halvorson, a member of the Thief River Falls Saddle Club, participated in the Play Day hosted by the Plummer Saddle Club Sunday held at the riding arena on the south side of Plummer.

Mrs. Harryet Larson enjoyed having her granddaughter, Stacy Kleinwachter of Strandquist, stay with her Saturday while her mother, Dianne Kleinwachter, Kent and Hope and Mrs Florence Moyer, also of Strandquist, spent the day in Thief River Falls. They all had lunch at the Larson home before returning home.

Mr and Mrs Alfred Solem and Roger Solem were among the many guests for a potluck 1:00 o'clock Sunday dinner at the home of Brenda Jevning in Fosston. The main features of the meal were smoked turkey and corn on the cob cooked on grills.

Mrs Marzella Jorde and Mrs Hannah Hornseth brought flowers to Mrs Olga Hulme at Oakland Park nursing home Friday afternoon. Mrs Hornseth also visited her mother, a resident of the Home.

40th Wedding Anniversary

Lloyd and Harryet Larson attended the open house at the farm home of Arthur and Verna Lunke east of Holt Sunday afternoon in honor of the Lunke's 40th wedding anniversary, sponsored by the family. Later in the day Mr and Mrs Larson were visitors at the home of Norman and Annie Peterson of rural Newfolden.

We are sorry to report that Mrs Margaret Pederson was admitted to Northwest Medical Center Sunday, August 24. We sincerely hope she will soon be able to return to the Larry and Carmen Gustafson home where she has lived for some time.

America's Cutest Cookie

Pearl Bailey congratulates "The Cutest Cookie," Davon Fowler. Joining in the happy occasion are Louis McCagg of Child Find of America, Inc. and John Lilly, advertising manager for Duncan Hines Cookies.

There's that "one smart cookie"...there's the cookie that crumbled, and now there's America's Cutest Cookie, a tap-dancing tyke named Davon Fowler who charmed his way into the hearts of celebrity judges—including hostess Pearl Bailey—at "Pearl Bailey's Search for America's Cutest Cookie" show in June.

More than 800 people joined Pearl Bailey for a benefit performance at New York City's Triplex Theater on Father's Day to raise money for Child Find of America, Inc., the non-profit organization that seeks to reunite missing children with their parents. Such celebrities as dancer/choreographer Maurice Hines, singer Roberta Flack, Carol Lawrence and Lilliane Motevecchi worked with some 200 tap dancing kids who spent the weekend auditioning to be chosen "America's Cutest Cookie."

The event was sponsored by Duncan Hines Cookies, which has raised more than $100,000 for Child Find. All proceeds from ticket sales also went to this important organization.

Highlights of the star-studded evening included Roberta Flack treating the audience to a few stanzas from one of her hit singles. Carol Lawrence and Liliane Motevecchi suprised the audience with song and dance. Pearl and jazz drummer Louie Belson also entertained, as did Maurice Hines and his dance company—and, of course, the 50 semi-finalists from which "The Cutest Cookie" was selected.

Fourth-grader Davon Fowler, the "Cutest Cookie" of them all, received $1,000 and a case of Duncan Hines Cookies from company spokeswoman Bailey, along with his new title. He'll spend the rest of the year helping Pearl and Maurice Hines increase awareness of Child Find nationwide. What a nice cookie!

Common Science

by Joe Jeffers, Ph.D.

When the word strata is mentioned, rocks usually come to mind. One only has to look at an area where the highway department has cut through rock to see the strata or layers of rock that were laid down when the rock was formed millions of years ago. The idea of water existing in layers in a lake is somewhat alien to our way to thinking. Stratification of lakes does occur throughout the United States. Typically it is not a permanent stratification, rather it is seasonal.

What causes this layering of water in lakes? Temperature. Water molecules, like any other molecules, move faster as they warm up. Since they move faster, they can get farther away from one another. Warmer water, then, is less dense than colder water, that is there are fewer water molecules in the same volume of water when it is warmer.

In the springtime the typical lake in our country is not stratified. The water mixes well from the top of the lake to the bottom. As summertime comes, the sun's rays become more direct. The air warms up and the more intense sunlight penetrates into the water of the lake. As it does, the water is warmed. The sunlight, however, does not penetrate all the way to the bottom of a typical lake. In fact the intensity of light drops quite rapidly as one goes below the surface.

As a result the warm upper layer becomes less dense, while the cool lower layer remains more dense. The effect, then, is to have a separate warm layer of water (epilimnion) floating on top of a cold lower layer (hypolimnion). Between the two layers is a region called the thermocline where the temperature changes very rapidly. For example, if one were measuring water temperature from the surface to the bottom at one meter intervals, the following pattern of temperature might result: 33 degrees Celcius, 32 degrees, 31 degrees, 30 degrees, 29 degrees, 22 degrees, 17 degrees, 12 degrees, 11 degrees, 10 degrees, etc. The first four to five meters represent the epilimnion, the next two to three meters represent the thermocline, and the remainder represents the hypolimnion. No mixing occurs between layers.

The lake will remain stratified until late fall or early winter when the air temperature gets cold enough to cool the epilimnion. As it does, the termperature difference between the epilimnion and hypolimnion will become less and less until the two layers begin to mix. Some old timers say the lake is "turning over" to describe this mixing. The water that has been trapped in the bottom layer can now come to the top. The lake will remain mixed until the next summer when the process will repeat itself.

During the time a lake is stratified, the bottom layer, the hypolimnion, is cut off from a supply of oxygen. Oxygen mixes into the epilimnion, but since the epilimnion and hypolimnion do not mix, there is no way for oxygen to reach the hypolimnion. Gradually the oxygen that was present in the hypolimnion before stratification may get used up. The hypolimnion may become anoxic, that it, it has no oxygen. As a result fish must leave the hypolimnion in order to survive. This information is useful to the fisherman. If he is fishing too deeply, he may have his bait in the hypolimnion where no fish will be.

After the oxygen is removed from the hypolimnion, metals like iron and manganese will dissolve in the anoxic waters. A problem arises where federal and state trout hatcheries are placed on rivers just below dams. The water released from the lake is usually taken from the hypolimnion so it will be cold. However, when the dissolved manganese concentration in this water gets high enough, it can cause the young trout to die. This problem and others have led to a change in the location of outlets from dams now being constructed.

Do you wish your ability to remember were better? Most of us do. Some persons cannot seem to remember the name of a person who was just introduced. Others routinely forget meetings. Students may have difficulty remembering facts and concepts for a history test.

Sometimes the things we remember are very vivid; other times they are quite vague. Why this difference? In part it depends on the intensity of the learning experience. We remember mental pictures, facts and skills. The average person who watched a college football game on television last New Year's Day probably does not remember any specific play (mental picture) of the game. On the other hand the game winning play of a championship contest involving one's own favorite team will probably remain in memory for a lifetime.

Similarly, one may not remember the license number of his own car, but if he witnesses a robbery, jots down the license number (fact) and reports it to the police, he will probably never forget it. Emotional signaling like these examples can occur anytime a memory is associated with a stimulus that arouses emotion.

Research indicates that memory traces are laid down by structural changes in the brain. The strength of the memory trace varies according to the degree of learning. Strong traces usually have strong associations with the learning experience. That does not mean one has to get emotional to remember. Repetition or other associations can also work well.

Almost everyone in this country over the age of eight knows that George Washington was the first president of the United States. That knowledge is a result of years of emphasis from first grade plays to high school history courses. Persons with good memories usually have a way of associating information they learn so they are not learning isolated bits of information. For example, a person who learns the meaning of the word travesty is much more likely to remember it if he encountered it in a magazine article and looked it up than if he just looked up the word because it was in a vocabulary list. The context of the article provides an association for the word.

What are these structural changes in the brain that affect memory? Current theories suggest that memory operates at the level of nerve cells or neurons. Each neuron has three parts — a cell body, dendrites and an axon. The cell body fires an electrical signal down the axon. Separating the axon of the firing neuron from the dendrites of the receiving neuron is a gap called a synapse. Chemicals cross this gap to transmit a message from one neuron to another.

There is data to suggest that increased communication across these synapses to form a sort of a neural roadmap is responsible for memory. In recent studies on rats the brains grow larger and heavier if the rats live in a cage with many objects to stimulate them (rich environment). The brains develop more synapses and show an increase in dendrites as compared to those of rats kept in cages without such stimulation.

One area of the brain, the hippocampus, has been shown to be involved in certain types of memory. If the hippocampus is surgically removed or damaged, organic amnesia results. In organic amnesia, one has no trouble remembering events that happened before the hippocampus was altered but cannot remember new facts. Still organic amnesiacs have no trouble learning skills, suggesting that skill memory occurs in some other part of the brain.

Memory traces do decay as time goes by. Some go very rapidly. One may keep a phone number in memory for a week or so as long as it is being use. A couple of weeks after, it can no longer be remembered. This loss of memory can either be due to the decay of the neural pattern itself or the inability to retrieve it from storage.

Memory appears to be rather complex and much remains to be learned. Fortunately for us, much information is written down so we can look it up when we do not remember.

Tips To Help You

REFRESHING FRUIT AND CHEESE PLATE

Fruit salads are always a favorite. Served with cheese wedges and crunchy, lightly toasted almonds, the combination makes a complete, healthful and delicious lunch or light supper.

Here, the three different low calorie dressings allow you and your family a variety of flavors to enhance these favorite fruits. Each adds a unique taste so you'll want to make all three to taste and try — and all can be easily stored in the refrigerator for up to one week.

A BOUNTIFUL SALAD

- 1 Cup sliced almonds
- 1 Cup sliced bananas
- 2 Cups orange segments
- 1 Cup sliced strawberries
- 1 Cup honeydew melon pieces
- 2 Cups bite-sized watermelon wedges
- 1 Cup nectarine slices
- 1 Cup seedless green grapes
- Wedges of Brie, Camembert, Dill Havarti and Cheddar cheese
- Dill-Parsley, Lemon-Mint and Chutney-Yogurt Dressings

To toast almonds, spread in a shallow pan. Toast at 350°F, 10 minutes or until lightly browned; stir once or twice; cool. Chill prepared fruit. Just before serving, arrange fruit on plate with almonds and wedges of cheese. Drizzle with choice of dressings. Makes 4 servings.

Dill-Parsley Dressing: Combine 1 cup plain yogurt, 1 teaspoon dill weed, 1/2 teaspoon lemon juice and 1 teaspoon chopped parsley. Mix well.

Lemon-Mint Dressing: Combine 1 cup plain yogurt, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley and 2 teaspoons mint flakes. Mix well.

Chutney-Yogurt Dressing: Combine 1 cup plain yogurt, 4 tablespoons chutney (watermelon-based) and 4 teaspoons honey. Mix well.

For fast relief of headaches caused by other health care plans, take two and call us in the morning.

The pressure of running your company's health care plan can have some unpleasant side effects. Like different rates — and a different set of paperwork — for each plan.

For fast relief, call Blue Cross and Blue Shield. Through our affiliate HMO Minnesota, we've taken many of the features of AWARE Gold and added them to the special cost efficiencies of an HMO plan: HMO Gold. So you can offer a choice of quality health care plans without all the administrative headaches of working with multiple companies.

Everything you expect from an HMO. And more.

With HMO Gold, your employees are covered in full for services provided by a doctor chosen from a network of HMO Gold physicians. If they choose to see a physician other than their selected HMO Gold physician, they still receive 80% coverage for services within the AWARE Gold network — Minnesota's largest physician network. Even services outside the AWARE Gold network are covered at 80% after a deductible. And HMO Gold is backed by Blue Cross and Blue Shield worldwide, so your employees are covered wherever they travel.

We've made two plans as easy to run as one.

When you offer AWARE Gold and HMO Gold in combination, your employees enjoy the choice of fee-for-service or HMO health care. And you get the convenience of two plans from a single source, which means lower costs and streamlined paperwork. Of course, HMO Gold and AWARE Gold are also available as separate plans.

A Supportive Stance

Indication by area landowners that they would be interested in talking to U.S. air force representatives about sale or lease of land for a receiver site for the OTH-B radar system is seen as a major plus for having the site located in this area. General community consensus seems to be that location of the site here would be an economic boon and the concurrence of the rural population in that opinion is encouraging and gratifying.

Such is apparently not the case in west central Minnesota where the air force proposes to install the transmitter site for the Over-the-Horizon Backscatter radar system. Opposition is being organized there with Rich and Marilyn Mathias leading a petition drive in opposition to the site, according to an article in "Minnesota Agriculture," published by the Minnesota Farmers Union.

Concerns expressed by the opponents range from concerns about the potential harmful effects of radiation to the loss of farm land and displacement of farm families. Also cited as concerns are blocking of roads, destruction of drainage ditches and restriction of aerial crop spraying. When the article was published in late June, Mrs. Mathias said she had 550 signatures on the petition.

While some of the concerns of Wheaton area people could be applied here, most would not. Of primary importance is the fact that the Thief River Falls area would be a receiver site rather than a transmitter site, requiring very little power. It has been compared to the dish-type television signal receivers which are located on farmsites throughout the county. The transmit area would require clearance zones which are defined in the draft environmental impact statement — a document which was not prepared at the time the Wheaton area opposition was formed.

Very little opposition has been voiced from the Andover, SD, area which is another proposed transmit site. Mrs. Mathias told "Minnesota Agriculture" she hoped to organize enough opposition to encourage the air force to locate the site where it is more wanted. Three of four proposed transmit sites are in the Wheaton area, the fourth in South Dakota.

In the Thief River Falls area, however, concerns appear to be minimal and enthusiasm and optimism seem to be high. Depressed land prices due to a depressed farm economy and poor outlook for profitable grain production in the immediate future make the sale of marginal land or the long-term lease of land to a renter which pays the rent an attractive proposition. Landowners also seem willing to take the guarantee of air force representatives that the government intends to be a good neighbor at face value.

We tend to believe that all local people who have been involved with early phases of the possible location of the site here have the best long range interests of the community and area at heart. It is a healthy and trusting attitude that should be maintained and encouraged. Caution is not to be criticized, of course, but paranoia or panic serve no useful purpose.

It was good to see the supportive stance of the rural people most directly concerned last week. If they have serious questions, they should address them at the public hearing on the draft environmental impact statement Tuesday, September 9, at 7 p.m. in the civic auditorium in Grand Forks, ND.

Tom Kenville of Jobs Incorporated in Thief River Falls was right when he told the assembled group of farmers last week that "informed people usually make the right decisions." It pays to be informed.

Fundamental Right

For a long time it has been a mystery to us how freedom-loving American people have allowed compulsory unionism to exist in many of the United States. Workers should be free to form and belong to labor unions and to bargain collectively — as a fundamental right. Equally, workers should be able to seek and find employment independently without having to purchase union membership...also as a fundamental right.

In a dissenting opinion on a labor case in 1956, Texas Supreme Court Justice Abner McCall compared compulsory unionism to compulsory religion early in the history of the United States. He pointed out that in a number of the colonies three requirements were made by law of all persons: (1) They attend the official church; (2) they pay church taxes to support the official church and (3) they subscribe to the idology of the official church.

Colonial governments, punished dissenters through fines, deprivation of civil rights, imprisonment, whipping, banishment or hanging. By the time of the American revolution, however, objections of the people had reduced requirements only to the payment of special taxes. In Virginia, noted orator Patrick Henry urged that, since religion promotes happiness and prosperity for all, every citizen should be compelled by law to contribute to the support of his church.

Justice McCall pointed out that one of the senators in the union case in question in Texas had similarly stated: "The question in this instance is whether those who enjoy the fruits and the benefits of the unions should make a fair contribution to the support of the unions." It would seem that Americans concerned with freedom would reject that argument as they rejected the idea of mandatory support of religion.

No less a patriotic heavyweight than Thomas Jefferson, who drafted the statute of Virginia for Religious freedom, stated: "To compel a man to furnish contributions of money for the propagation of opinions which he disbelieves and abhors is sinful and tyrannical."

Justice McCall notes that "it was upon this issue of compulsory support of private organizations that the dissenters in Virginia in 1788 led by Elder John Leland resisted the movement to adopt the proposed federal constitution until proponents agreed to a Bill of Rights, including as its first provision of the First Amendment that there would be no establishment of religion.

"It is well to remember," the Justice continued, "that at the time of the adoption of the First Amendment that neither ideological conformity nor even formal Half-way Covenant membership was any longer being demanded. The chief evil to be forever prohibited was compulsory financial support of a private organization by those who did not subscribe to its program."

The parallels between state-mandated religious support and union support might be appropriate subjects for reflection during the up-coming Labor Day holiday.

Borrowed Nonsense

The census taker was asking the mountaineer about his family.

"I got four young'uns," the man said, "and by dang that's all I'm agoin' to have."

"Why's that?" the census taker asked.

"Well, I was down to the store a couple weeks ago," the mountaineer explained, "and I heard one of the fellas reading a newspaper to the other fellas. And he said that in the world today every fifth kid born is Chinese."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES
August 22, 1946

(Reprinted columns written by Norman A. Holen, longtime city editor of the Times.)

— Folks who are concerned about their winter's coal supply aren't cheered by reading about the shipping strike on the Great Lakes.

— The head of the family no doubt would appreciate a cut in the price of butter during the sweet corn season.

— It was a wise observer who commented, "Conscience gets a lot of credit that should go to cold feet."

— Speaking of advertising promotions, we join with the Appleton editor in wondering what is the virtue of being able to write with a fountain pen under water.

— We don't envy those fellows their job of administering the veterans' terminal pay adjustment law.

— Quoted advice: To face today's chief problem, use a mirror.

— The Towsend pension plan has been criticized for being unsound, but what about the liberal position that congressmen recently voted themselves.

— Remember way back when a shipper could order a freight car with the assurance he could get it in a day or two.

— One talking point for chewing tobacco, they tell us, is that it never started a forest fire.

— During the current epidemic, the name of the state's largest city might be changed to Minneapolio.

— We don't look for the national administration to dig deeply into the war profits scandals until after the November elections.

N.A.H.

The August 22, 1946 Times told us it was Kellogg's Week in Thief River Falls. Most grocery stores were offering two boxes of Rice Krispies for 25 cents. Kellogg's corn flakes were three for a quarter at The Independent Super Market.

Boy's back-to-school wear was advertised at Bjorkman's Toggery with school trousers at $1.98 to $4.98; dress shirts for $1.49; and cotton T-shirts, 69 cents to 98 cents. Boy's tennis shoes with a built-in arch support cost $2.39, with every child receiving a free fitting on the new X-ray machine. Yellow slickers "for that rainy day" cost $3.95.

Little girls' back to school clothing needs could be taken care of at the Montgomery Ward store, which offered pleated skirts for $2.98, wool sweaters at $2.79 and brown and white saddle oxfords for $3.25. The Junior Shop featured "brand name" dresses from $1.40 to $7.95.

Big movie attraction for the week at the Falls theatre was "Whistle Stop" starring George Raft and Ava Gardner. "She didn't mean to start a scandal but she did." The Avalon offered "One More Tomorrow" with Ann Sheridan, Dennis Morgan, Jack Carson, Alexis Smith and Jane Wyman. "It's a carousin' and caressin' special!"

Waitress help was needed in town, judging from the "Help Wanted" ads. Advertising for waitresses were Dale's cafe in McIntosh, the Evelyn hotel, Palm Garden cafe, the Mint, the Diner, and the Jewel Tavern in Red Lake Falls, which offered a salary of $18 a week plus board. Girls who didn't care to be a waitress could have the experience of country living along with housework and the care of two children with a salary of $12 per week.

Toxic Algae Is Danger To Pets, Livestock

Algae grows in surface waters across Minnesota, but its concentration varies considerably. It is most abundant during warm weather in water that is hard, alkaline and rich in nutrients (primarily phosphorus and nitrogen, which fertilize aquatic plants as they do crops and lawns).

Owners of pets and livestock need to be aware of a potential hazard stemming from algae growth in lakes, streams and farm ponds during summer months. Under certain environmental conditions, some blue-green species of algae can become toxic.

Pets and livestock drinking water containing the toxic form of blue-green algae may become sick and even die. Farmers can suffer severe livestock losses from blue-green algae poisoning of their stock's watering source.

Special characteristics of blue-green algae allow them to grow and multiply faster than other types of algae. In nutrient-rich water bodies, blue-green algae can become so abundant that they completely dominate other free-floating plants. The appearance of a water body can be changed drastically by this rapid growth called an aglae bloom. The affected water will become cloudy, with a green or blue-green cast to it. It often develops a strong musty or earthy odor as algae accumulate in large floating mats and begin to decompose. Fish may develop a temporary earthy flavor. The water is best described as having a look of pea soup at this stage.

These are the blooms that can occasionally become toxic. Toxic algae blooms are strongly influenced by the wind. Sometimes the wind can completely dissipate a toxic bloom in just a day or so. At other times, the wind increases the danger of a toxic bloom by blowing clumps of the floating algae mats toward the downwind shore of a water body. Most problems occur when the algae are clumped around a shoreline and livestock, pets, wild animals and birds drink the water.

The degree to which an animal is affected depends on several factors: the amount of water ingested, the animal's body size, amount of food in the animal's stomach, the sensitivity of the species and individual animal, and the type and amount of toxin present in the bloom.

An animal that has ingested toxins from an algae bloom can show a variety of symptoms — ranging from nausea and skin irritation to severe disorders involving the circulatory, nervous and digestive systems, and severe skin lesions. In the worst case, the animal may suffer convulsions and die.

Humans are seldom seriously affected because the unpleasant odor and taste of water with a blue-green algae bloom tends to make them avoid it. However, while no human deaths have been caused by freshwater blue-green algae blooms, gastroenteritis, skin irritation and allergy-like reactions have been reported.

Not all blue-green algae blooms are toxic; in fact, the vast majority of them are not. But because they can occur so quickly and can vary so much in toxicity and frequency, all blue-green algae blooms are potentially dangerous. Their toxicity cannot be accurately predicted; a blue-green algae bloom can change from nontoxic to toxic or vice-versa without a significant change in appearance.

Since toxic blooms are unpredictable, and laboratory analysis is expensive and can be misleading, it is best to approach the problem as one would changing weather conditions. If the water looks threatening, avoid it until a more "normal" appearance returns. A blue-green bloom should be avoided if it changes from just "greenish water" to a thick, blue-green or green, paint-like scum. Body contact recreation (swimming, waterskiing, etc.) should be suspended, and livestock and pets should be temporarily provided with a different water source. Often the bloom can be avoided by simply moving the livestock or recreational activity to the opposite side of the water body.

If you suspect that an animal has been affected by an algae bloom, you should contact your veterinarian as quickly as possible. Some of the toxins that can form in a bloom have the ability to kill in an hour or less while others may take longer for effects to be shown.

If you think that a lake or stream near you shows signs of being affected by a toxic-algae bloom, contact your local health officials so that they can determine if a warning needs to be posted. You may also notify either the Minnesota pollution control agency at (612) 296-7373 or the department of natural resources at 1-800-652-9747.

Fed Economist Says Farm Money Problems Easing

Although financial problems for area farmers remain serious, declines in farm earnings and land values appeared to ease somewhat in the second-quarter, according to a survey of rural bankers conducted in late June by the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis. The survey results are based on the responses of 102 bankers throughout rural areas of Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and northwestern Wisconsin.

Fed economist Stanley L. Graham reported that even though farmers' earnings and land values continued to decline during the second quarter, they did so at a more moderate pace than in previous months. In the Fed's second-quarter survey, 46 per cent of the bankers said farm earnings in their areas were below year-earlier levels, substantially less than the 68 per cent who reported a decline in the first-quarter survey.

Graham said that several factors may account for the more moderate second-quarter decline in farm earnings. "Most notable," he said, "was a reduction in farmers' production costs due to the government's set-aside program, lower fuel prices and lower interest rates."

Although still significant, the declines in farmland values during the second quarter were the smallest reported since the first quarter of 1985. The bankers reported that, on average, the value of irrigated farmland declined 5.2 per cent; non-irrigated farmland, 5.6 per cent; and pasture and grazing land, 7.9 per cent.

Despite continued strong demand for farm loan refinancing and slow debt repayment by area farmers, the survey seems to indicate that area banks' loan portfolios didn't deteriorate much in the second quarter. Bankers continued to refer higher risk borrowers to federal credit agencies, such as the Farmers Home administration.

The bankers also reported that their loan-to-deposit ratios declined, on average, from 59 per cent in the first quarter to 57 per cent in the second. As a result of this decline, over 60 per cent of the bankers considered their loan-to-deposit ratios to be below normal in the second quarter. "This greater availability of funds," Graham said, "may account for the higher percentage of bankers who said they were actively seeking new farm loan accounts in the second quarter: 56 per cent of the bankers sought such accounts, compared with 48 per cent in the first quarter."

Although agricultural conditions in the area still suffer from serious problems, the surveyed bankers expect the problems may be slightly less pervasive in the third quarter.

Ag Info Center Opens; Public Meet Tuesday

Area ag information center at the Thief River Falls AVTI will reopen Tuesday with funding received from several sources. The center had been closed since August 19 due to a lack of funding.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday the center will open and a meeting will be held in that area of the AVTI to discuss Farmers Home administration regulations and programs. A group of FmHA borrowers has demanded the resignation or removal of county director Randy Hemmerlin and in an unsigned letter to federal elected officials has threatened action on September 3 if their demands are unmet.

The meeting Tuesday will include several state officials and district FmHA representatives, according to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer who arranged the meeting. Among those attending will be Minnesota commissioner of agriculture Jim Nichols, state solicitor general Jack Tunheim of the state attorney general's office and Jim Massey, executive director of farm legal services. Representing FmHA will be Jerry Carlson and Francis Koehmstedt of the district office in Crookston.

According to Sen. Stumpf, some area farmers maintain that the programs that exist are not being offered as an option to foreclosure. These programs are known as the "dwelling retention" program and "lease back" program. Both are designed to keep family farmers on the land, he said, but there are conflicts in regulations affecting the two programs which need to be resolved.

The ag information center, which reportedly has served over 2,000 people and expended about $30,000 in local support funds since it opened Dec. 2, 1985, has received $10,000 from the state contingency fund, $2,500 each from Pennington and Marshall county boards of commissioners, $1,500 from the Red Lake county board and $3,000 from the American Lutheran church to allow it to reopen.

The center's board of directors had estimated $11,500 was needed to pay off past debts and operate for another month. The center provides free legal help, counseling and advocacy assistance with farm loan applications and other problems.

LIFE-SAVING EQUIPMENT is the blood dialysis machine which has been installed at Hattie Mattison's Plummer residence for the past nine years. Hattie uses the machine for four-hour treatments three times a week with assistance for the past six years from Mrs. Gary Brantl of Plummer, an LPN. The machine has been quite trouble-free and Hattie feels secure and comfortable with it rather than having to travel to a dialysis unit in Grand Forks. She is one of a number of area kidney patients receiving assistance from the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls.

FmHA Offices In TRF And Grygla To Close Sept. 8-10

The FmHA sub-office in Grygla, will also be closed for the same meeting. The next schedulde office day in the Grygla sub-office will be Wednesday, September 17.

Future Fuel Gets Involved In Leaf Vacuum Discussion

Leaves in Thief River Falls will be picked up by city workers with a leaf vacuum and dumped at Future Fuel if the Thief River Falls sanitation committee has its way.

Sanitation committee members met with County Commissioner Don Grabanski and Rick Nordhagen of Future Fuel Friday at noon to discuss arrangements to give leaves from a vacuum to Future Fuel for its compost piles.

Prior to the issue of a leaf vacuum, that would cost $11,289.40, being raised at a city council meeting last Tuesday night, Future Fuel had not been included in the discussion. Mayor Bob Carlson called the purchase of the leaf vacuum a "reckless spending of taxpayers money," a sharp contrast from Alderman Borsheim, who believes it would save taxpayers between 10 to 20 per cent in tipping fees

Students To Meet New Instructors

Students in Thief River Falls public schools, an estimated 2,317 of them, can be expected to see one or more new faces among the staff members when school begins this fall.

Joining the students and already experienced and dedicated faculty on the first day of school, September 2, will be many new staff members. Pictured in this issue on page 7 are some of the new faces and the positions they will hold.

Transporting the students to school this year will be two new bus drivers, Kurt Philipp and Alan Walker. The following faculty will help mold and shape the students once they reach the school: Lincoln high school Jean Rudolph, an interpreter, Jodi Bendickson, physical education; Gloria Bjorkman, psychologist; Glen Chiodo, EBD; Katherine Neumann, German; Scott Revier, agriculture; Heidi Ryan, music; Angie Sinn, math; Tracey Wensloff, math, Kevin Fanfulik, food service; Christie Flatland, food service; Caroline Nicholson, food service; Sandra Whalen, food service; Jean Brenna, food service.

Center School Claudia Nielsen, health occupations, Franklin Middle school John Berg, industrial arts, Cay Donlin, German, Clay Houselog, science, Jeanne Olson, science, Sharon Bonaime, food service; Lois Hoaas, food service; Ina Newton, food service, Shirley Richter, food service.

Knox Deb Fulton, developmental kindergarten instructor Jodie Olson, SLD, Melinda Tretthne developmental kindergarten aide Mark Twain Nancy Harbott, secretary Janeen Kalsness, braillist, Jodi Carter, 6th grade instructor, Diedre Nordin, speech therapist, Helen Beito, management aide; AVTI Scott Rand, broadcasting engineer, Dame Packard, farm management, Arlette Abrahamson, new start coordinator and Dick Brunwell, transition coordinator.

Kidney Foundation In TRF Receives Memorial Gifts

Memorial gifts have been received by the Kidney foundation of Thief River Falls from the Big Woods community fund of Oslo, Linda Ulrich, Red Lake Falls, Mike Dunrud, Thief River Falls; Carol Borchert, Thief River Falls, in memory of Eva Gayle O'Connor, the sister of Ruth Nepper of Thief River Falls.

Gifts to the foundation are used to help people in this area who have renal disease according to Sue Seulthorp, secretary for the Foundation.

The 10th Annual Kidney Foundation auction will be on September 6 and at the sports arena in Thief River Falls.

Hattie Mattison Uses Home Dialysis 9 Years

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For 76-year-old Hattie Mattison of Plummer, the convenience of having a blood dialysis machine in her own home outweighs the inconvenience of equipment taking up room, having other people come in to help and the necessity to have training in use of the unit. Hattie has been using the home unit for nine years with very little trouble.

Hattie is now one of a number of kidney patients in the seven counties of northwestern Minnesota who receives some monthly financial assistance from the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls. The assistance helps her with travel and lodging costs for trips to Minneapolis and elsewhere for medical evaluation and treatment.

Funds for the local Kidney Foundation are raised primarily by the annual fall auction which will be conducted this year on Saturday and Sunday at the Thief River Falls sports arena. The auction will run from 1 to 6 p.m. on September 6 and from 1 p.m. until all items are sold on September 7. Auction items and auctioneer services are donated and all funds received are used for assistance to area kidney patients.

Hattie Mattison has been a resident of the Plummer community for 65 years, coming to the area from Barnesville with her parents at the age of 11. She married Gordon Hofius and they farmed four and one-half miles south of Plummer. Sixteen years ago, four years after Gordon died, she married Ollie Mattison, a neighbor and good friend of her husband whose wife had died two years earlier.

They moved into Plummer a dozen years ago, living in a mobile home for a year before occupying unit 5A of senior citizen housing where they have lived the past 11 years. Ollie, 92, has recently become a resident of

Heritage Community Center

Heritage Community Center in Thief River Falls held an open house last Thursday.

"Heritage community center is for everyone to use and enjoy," said Bob Ekeren, chairman of the Heritage community center preview that was held Thursday.

Most people associate the center as only a senior citizen center. Seniors will be the predominant group of citizens to use the facility but conference rooms will be available for everyone to use, according to Ekeren.

Organizers and volunteers like Ekeren were giving tours to community businessmen and others in an effort to raise about $40,000 in funds which would make the center "really first rate," according to Ekeren.

Ekeren said it is important to note that the center will be completed whether they have the $40,000 or not. The center is not in any danger of being incompleted.

A letter from the Pennington county council on aging explains, "The board of directors, with counsel from both the city council and board of county commissioners, is resolved not to go into debt for the construction of this facility. Therefore, the base bid for the building lacks the following (until we can raise the money): floor covering and painting, $12,000; folding partitions for auditorium, $5,460; air-conditioning, $5,900; public address system, $2,000; acoustical tile ceiling, $1,000; finish carpentry, $3,200; sidewalks, $2,200; pave and stripe parking area, $2,615; sodding and landscaping, $1,000; and furnishings, $4,000.

Ekeren said the tour Thursday was mostly for community business but he anticipates a public open house at a later date. Fund raising has gone well this year he said. Since April this year they have raised around $60,000. He hopes that people who said that they would donate when they saw physical proof that the center was actually going to be built, will now come forward and make a donation.

Tour guides at the center pointed out the many programs and their proposed locations within the center. Visitors to the center will find: The senior craft center, which will move from the city auditorium; a kitchen, which will serve senior meals and possible meals to seminars, workshops and conventions; a large main floor that can be divided into separate rooms; Tri-Valley senior bus headquarters; office space for the council on aging, senior federation, retired teachers, and/or others; a social security contact station; a conference room; health services room; and room for educational classes, social events and cultural events and art displays.

The council on aging's board of directors will continually work on these and other program options, and they also request input from the public. The board has set an October 1 deadline on fund raising and plans to occupy the building by November 1.

PROJECT NEW START is the name given to a recently-initiated program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Arlette Abrahamson is director of the program which provides support, counsel and referral to agencies and programs which specialize in needs of single parents who are divorced, separated, widowed or unmarried and have the custody of minor children.

Project New Start Initiated At AVTI

Funds under a grant from the Minnesota state board of vocational and technical education have permitted initiation of a new program called "Project New Start" at the Thief River Falls AVTI. Arlette Abrahamson will serve as coordinator of the program.

The project is intended to assist single parents (male and female) who are divorced, separated, widowed or unmarried and have the custody of minor children, or rural homemakers who may still be married but meet income guidelines.

Among these groups are "displaced homemakers," women forced from the traditional homemaker role without competitive skills and seeking to enter the job market; "rural homemakers," women who find it necessary to seek training or retraining to become employed and provide a source of support for the family; and "single parents," either men or women with custody of minor children who meet income guidelines.

"Project New Start attempts to provide a broad variety of services to

Marshall-Beltrami SWCD To Elect Two Supervisors

Two supervisors will be elected to the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district board at the general elections in November. September 4 is the deadline for filing for office for either of these two positions.

One supervisor will be elected to represent the townships of Agder, Grand Plain and Moylan in the Marshall county portion of the district. The other supervisor will be elected to represent the townships of Espelie in Marshall county and Lee, Benville, Northwood, and Big Grass in the Beltrami county portion of the district.

To be eligible for either supervisor position, a registrant must be from the supervisory area and have nominating petition signed by at least two people within that area. This form and a $20 filing fee must be filed with the district secretary 60 days before the general election.

Although supervisors are nominated for a specific supervisory area, the election is conducted at large within the district's boundaries. Nominating forms and more information can be obtained at the district office in Grygla, according to Cheryl Sistad, district secretary-manager.

Ag Info Center Opens; Public Meet Tuesday

Area ag information center at the Thief River Falls AVTI will reopen Tuesday with funding received from several sources. The center had been closed since August 19 due to a lack of funding.

At 10 a.m. Tuesday the center will open and a meeting will be held in that area of the AVTI to discuss Farmers Home administration regulations and programs. A group of FmHA borrowers has demanded the resignation or removal of county director Randy Hemmerlin and in an unsigned letter to federal elected officials has threatened action on September 3 if their demands are unmet.

The meeting Tuesday will include several state officials and district FmHA representatives, according to Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer, who arranged the meeting. Among those attending will be Minnesota commissioner of agriculture Jim Nichols, state solicitor general Jack Tunheim of the state attorney general's office, and Jim Massey, executive director of farm legal services. Representing FmHA will be Jerry Carlson and Frances Kochmstedt of the district office in Crookston.

According to Sen. Stumpf, some area farmers maintain that the programs that exist are not being offered as an option to foreclosure. These programs are known as the "dwelling retention program" and "lease-back program." LIFE-SAVING EQUIPMENT is the blood dialysis machine which has been installed at Hattie Mattison's Plummer residence for the past nine years. Hattie uses the machine for four-hour treatments three times a week with assistance for the past six years from Mrs. Gary Brantl of Plummer, an LPN. The machine has been quite trouble-free and Hattie feels secure and comfortable with it rather than having to travel to a dialysis unit in Grand Forks. She is one of a number of area kidney patients receiving assistance from the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls.

Hattie Mattison Uses Home Dialysis 9 Years

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For 76-year-old Hattie Mattison of Plummer, the convenience of having a blood dialysis machine in her own home outweighs the inconvenience of equipment taking up room, having other people come in to help and the necessity to have training in use of the unit. Hattie has been using the home unit for nine years with very little trouble.

Hattie is now one of a number of kidney patients in the seven counties of northwestern Minnesota who receives some monthly financial assistance from the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls. The assistance helps her with travel and lodging costs for trips to Minneapolis and elsewhere for medical evaluation and treatment.

Funds for the local Kidney Foundation are raised primarily by the annual fall auction which will be conducted this year on Saturday and Sunday at the Thief River Falls sports arena. The auction will run from 1 to 6 p.m. on September 6 and from 1 p.m. until all items are sold on September 7. Auction items and auctioneer services are donated and all funds received are used for assistance to area kidney patients.

Hattie Mattison has been a resident of the Plummer community for 65 years, coming to the area from Barnesville with her parents at the age of 11. She married Gordon Hofius and they farmed four and one half miles south of Plummer. Sixteen years ago, four years after Gordon died, she married Ollie Mattison, a neighbor and good friend of her husband whose wife had died two years earlier.

They moved into Plummer a dozen years ago, living in a mobile home for a year before occupying unit 5A of senior citizen housing where they have lived the past 11 years. Ollie, 92, has recently become a resident of

PROJECT NEW START is the name given to a recently-initiated program at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute. Arlette Abrahamson is director of the program which provides support, counsel and referral to agencies and programs which specialize in needs of single parents who are divorced, separated, widowed or unmarried and have the custody of minor children.

Project New Start Initiated At AVTI

Funds under a grant from the Minnesota state board of vocational and technical education have permitted initiation of a new program called "Project New Start" at the Thief River Falls AVTI. Arlette Abrahamson will serve as coordinator of the program.

The project is intended to assist single parents (male and female) who are divorced, separated, widowed or unmarried and have the custody of minor children, or rural homemakers who may still be married but meet income guidelines.

Among these groups are "displaced homemakers," women forced from the traditional homemaker role without competitive skills and seeking to enter the job market; "rural homemakers," women who find it necessary to seek training or retraining to become employed and provide a source of support for the family; and "single parents," either men or women with custody of minor children who meet income guidelines.

"Project New Start attempts to provide a broad variety of services to

Marshall-Beltrami SWCD To Elect Two Supervisors

Two supervisors will be elected to the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district board at the general elections in November. September 4 is the deadline for filing for office for either of these two positions.

One supervisor will be elected to represent the townships of Agder, Grand Plain and Moylan in the Marshall county portion of the district. The other supervisor will be elected to represent the townships of Espelie in Marshall county and Lee, Benville, Northwood and Big Grass in the Beltrami county portion of the district.

To be eligible for either supervisor position, a registrant must be from the supervisory area and have nominating petition signed by at least two people within that area. This form and a $20 filing fee must be filed with the district secretary 60 days before the general election.

Although supervisors are nominated for a specific supervisory area the election is conducted at large within the district's boundaries. Nominating forms and more information can be obtained at the district office in Grygla, according to Cheryl Sistad, district secretary manager.

FmHA Offices In TRF And Grygla To Close Sept. 8-10

The FmHA sub-office in Grygla will also be closed for the same meeting. The next schedulde office day in the Grygla sub office will be Wednesday, September 17.

Future Fuel Gets Involved In Leaf Vacuum Discussion

Leaves in Thief River Falls will be picked up by city workers with a leaf vacuum and dumped at Future Fuel if the Thief River Falls sanitation committee has its way.

Sanitation committee members met with County Commissioner Don Grabanski and Rick Nordhagen of Future Fuel Friday at noon to discuss arrangements to give leaves from a vacuum to Future Fuel for its compost piles.

Prior to the issue of a leaf vacuum that would cost $11,289 being raised at a city council meeting last Tuesday night, Future Fuel had not been included in the discussion. Mayor Bob Carlson called the purchase of the leaf vacuum a "reckless spending of taxpayers money," a sharp contrast from Alderman Borsheim who believes it would save taxpayers between 10 to 20 per cent in tipping fees.

Heritage Community Center

FUTURE HOME OF HERITAGE CENTER

Heritage Community Center in Thief River Falls held an open house last Thursday.

"Heritage community center is for everyone to use and enjoy," said Bob Ekeren, chairman of the Heritage community center preview that was held Thursday.

Most people associate the center as only a senior citizen center. Seniors will be the predominant group of citizens to use the facility but conference rooms will be available for everyone to use, according to Ekeren.

Organizers and volunteers like Ekeren were giving tours to community businessmen and others in an effort to raise about $40,000 in funds which would make the center "really first rate," according to Ekeren.

Ekeren said it is important to note that the center will be completed whether they have the $40,000 or not. The center is not in any danger of being incompleted.

A letter from the Pennington county council on aging explains, "The board of directors, with counsel from both the city council and board of county commissioners, is resolved not to go into debt for the construction of this facility. Therefore, the base bid for the building lacks the following (until we can raise the money): floor covering and painting, $12,000; folding partitions for auditorium, $5,460; air conditioning, $5,900; public address system, $2,000; acoustical tile, ceiling, $1,000; finish carpentry, $3,200; sidewalks, $2,200; pave and stripe parking area, $2,615; sodding and landscaping, $1,000; and furnishings, $1,000."

Ekeren said the tour Thursday was [illegible] for community business, but he anticipates a public open house at a later date. Fund raising has gone well this year he said. Since April this year they have raised around $60,000. He hopes that people who said that they would donate when they saw physical proof that the center was actually going to be built, will now come forward and make a donation.

Tour guides at the center pointed out the many programs and their proposed locations within the center. Visitors to the center will find: The senior craft center, which will move from the city auditorium; a kitchen, which will serve senior meals and possible meals to seminars, workshops and conventions; a large main floor that can be divided into separate rooms; Tri-Valley senior bus headquarters; office space for the council on aging; senior federation; retired teachers [illegible]; social security contact station; a conference room; health services room, and room for educational classes, social events and cultural events and art displays.

The council on aging's board of directors will continually work on these and other program options, and they also request input from the public. The board has set an October deadline on fund raising and plans [illegible] the building by November 1.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Society and Clubs

Coreen Larson-Paul Erickson Recently United In Marriage

Coreen Annette Larson and Paul Conrad Erickson were united in marriage April 5 at Zion Lutheran church in Thief River Falls. Rev. Richard Larson and Rev. Gary LaMoine officated at the double ring afternoon ceremony attended by approximately 300 guests. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lester Larson of Thief River falls and Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Erickson of Middle River.

Phyllis Dalager was organist and Ida Nordvall played piano accompaniment for the vocalists, Craig Swenson and Kathy Bousu. All are friends of the couple. "Just You and I" by Frank Myers was sung during the lighting of the altar candles before the ceremony. Processional music included "Sheep May Safely Graze" by J.S. Bach, and "Wedding March" by Lohengrin. Vocal selections during the ceremony included, "Wedding Benediction" by Austin C. Lovelace and "Wedding Song." Recessional was "Prelude in C" by Gordon Young.

The altar was decorated with two spiral candelabra and a special banner designed in the wedding colors by the bride's uncle, Cliff Larson.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a gown of white chiffonet, re-embroidered lace and chantilly lace featuring a mandarin collar and illusion net front and back yoke trimmed with lace and chiffonet florince accented in front with Venise applique. Bishop sleeves decorated with Venise lace and pearls formed points at the wrist. Chantilly lace trimmed the basque waistline, accenting the full skirt that was trimmed with hand clipped re-embroidered lace medallions and Venise lace cameos. Ruffles of chiffonet satin ribbon and Chantilly lace trimmed the hemline and flowed to tiers forming a chapel-length train. Her headpiece was of soft Chantilly lace trimmed in pearls, with an attached fingertip illusion veil. She carried a white Bible with a white rose and babies' breath.

Personal attendants were the bride's sister-in-law, Terry Larson, Crookston, and friend, Joni Mosbeck, Thief River Falls.

Stacy Gustafson, the bride's close friend from Thief River Falls, was her maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mary Jo Erickson, sister of the groom, Middle River; and Karla Lokken and Tawnya Morkrid, both cousins of the bride from Thief River Falls. They all wore Rivera blue, floor-length gowns with asymmetrical tiers of chiffon accenting the bodice, sheer chiffon cap sleeves and a string belt accenting the natural waist. In their hair they wore floral combs trimmed with pale blue illusion net and sprays of pearls, and each carried a long-stemmed white rose.

The groom wore white tails and a white rose boutonniere. Best man was Sgt. Tim Erickson, the groom's brother, Little Rock Air Force Base, AR. Other attendants were Pat Erickson, brother of the groom, Middle River; and Randy Lindemoen, Newfolden, and Ryan Shern, Viking, both friends of the groom. Serving as ushers were Curtis Larson, brother of the bride, Crookston and Dean Hjelle, friend of the groom, Newfolden. All gentlemen of the wedding party wore pale grey tuxedos and white rose boutonnieres.

Acolytes and gift carriers were Chris Larson, brother of the bride, and Greg Smidt, cousin of the groom, both of Thief River Falls.

Niki Larson, niece of the bride, Crookston, and Andy Erickson, brother of the groom, Middle River, were flower girl and ring bearer. Niki wore a gown of white Wedgewood lace featuring lace-ruffled neckline with satin bows accenting the shoulders, a natural waistline tied with a satin sash, and floor-length skirt enhanced with tiers of lace. She wore a floral wreath in her hair with satin ribbon streamers flowing down the back. Andy wore white tails matching the attire of the groom. The two walked together down the aisle, while the flower girl scattered rose petals from her bridal basket.

The mother of the bride wore a smoke blue, floor-length gown, and the groom's mother wore a gown of blue brocade with front overlay and backdrop features. Fathers of the couple wore grey tuxedos.

Guests of honor were the bride's grandmother, Clara Mickelson, Thief River Falls, and the groom's grandmothers, Mary Oxford, Detroit Lakes and Olga Erickson, Middle River. Other honored guests included Clyde and Beverly Swenson, Newfolden, godparents of the bride, who also distributed wedding programs and served as host and hostess at the reception. Carmen Larson, aunt of the bride, Thief River Falls, registered guests.

A reception in the church parlor followed the wedding ceremony. The three-tiered chocolate and white wedding cake was decorated in the wedding colors, with a flowing fountain and miniatures of the bridal party on staircases extending to smaller adjoining cakes. An open Bible cake was inscribed with the names of the couple and a Bible verse from Genesis 2:24. A Precious Moments bridal couple was displayed between the tiers, and a golden Christogram surrounded by flowers topped the cake. Margaret Rupprecht, friend of the bride's family, baked and decorated the cake.

Sheila Holtan, sister of the groom, and June Lokken, aunt of the bride, both of Thief River Falls, cut and served the wedding cake. Pourers were Beverly Hamre, aunt of the bride, and Marilyn Smidt, cousin of the groom, both of Thief River Falls. Pat Smidt, cousin of the groom, Thief River Falls, and Brenda Huot, friend of the couple, St. Hilaire, served punch to the guests. Waitresses were Kathy Gilbertson, Red Lake Falls, Tina Sorteberg, Thief River Falls and Wendy and Missy Shereck, Angus, all friends of the couple.

Flower hostesses were Shari Larson, Thief River Falls; Beverly Gilbertson and Mary Beth Gilbertson both of Red Lake Falls; and Holly Koebernick, Roseau, all friends of the bride. Distributing rice flowers were Shane Larson, nephew of the bride, Crookston, and Katrina Holtan, niece of the groom, Thief River Falls.

The wedding couple, bridal party, friends and relatives gathered at the couple's home near Middle River after the reception to view the opening of the gifts. Rhonda Heath, Warroad, and Melissa Johnson, Middle River, friends of the couple, assisted them. A supper was served to all attending.

A wedding dance was held at Meadowbrooke ballroom in Middle River, with music by "Shake, Rattle and Roll." Saga video, Newfolden, taped the wedding, reception, opening of the gifts and the dance. A groom's supper, hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Erickson, was held at the American Legion clubrooms in Thief River Falls the evening before the wedding, following the reception.

The bride is a 1984 graduate of Lincoln high school and a 1985 graduate of the Thief River Falls AVTI. She is a secretary for Software Applications, Allan Zak insurance and Campbell Claim service. The groom is a 1984 graduate of Marshall County Central high school, Newfolden, and attended Northland community college in Thief River Falls. He is a farmer in rural Middle River. The couple is at home on their farm following a wedding trip to the Black Hills, Badlands and Bismarck, ND.

Reforms Needed For Reduction In Property Taxes

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer says the 1987 session of the Minnesota Legislature should consider making substantial changes in the state's tax laws, including reductions in local property taxes.

"We would like to see tax reforms made especially in the areas of commercial-industrial farmland property taxes," he said. "The state's tax rate on commercial and industrial property is way too high. This rate, based on the percentage of property value, is about three per cent, compared to only about 1.05 per cent on homestead property.

A recent survey of state property taxes showed they have increased statewide recently mainly due to a reduction in both state and federal governmental assistance, along with property values in most areas of the state.

"As federal and state revenues continue to drop over the next few years, local property taxes will continue to be looked at to fill the breach if local services are going to be maintained," Stumpf added. "The Legislature has made efforts to lessen local property tax burdens in Minnesota, and must continue to make these efforts in the future.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Featuring recipes from the Kitchen of

This easy microwave chili should be a quick way of warming up meal time during these chilly evenings. It takes only 35 minutes to make and uses only one dish in preparation. It is also a good dish for beginning cooks.

One-Step Chili is one of 12 quick and tempting recipes featured in a new free microwave recipe pamphlet from Contadina Foods. For a free copy, send a self-addressed, stamped business-sized envelope to "Quick and Easy Microwave Meals," P.O. Box 1304, Pico Rivera, CA, 90665.

One-Step Chili

1 pound extra lean ground beef
1¾ cups (15 ounce can) pinto beans and liquid
1¾ cups (14½ ounce can) cut-up whole peeled tomatoes and juice
2/3 cup (6 ounce can) tomato paste
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1crushed garlic clove
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cumin
¼ teaspoon red pepper flakes

Combine all ingredients in a microwave-safe 2 quart casserole. Cover; microcook on high 5 minutes. Stir to break up meat. Microcook additional 20 minutes, stirring every 10 minutes. NOTE: If less lean beef is used, microcook it first and drain off excess fat.

The Thief River Falls Women of Today wish to thank all those who participated in Kids' Day, because of you it was a success.

A special thank you to the following businesses who donated various prizes: McDonald's, Pamida, Kmart, Johnson Greenline, Woolworth's, Ben Franklin, Godfather's Pizza, Pizza Hut, St. Hilaire Elevator, Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company, Hardees, Variety Sales and Dwight's Hartz. Also a very special thank you to Ronald McDonald for joining us.

Once Again Thank You All.

Helmets Provide Protection For Cycle Riders

Helmets offer needed protection for a motorcycle rider's head, with studies showing that twice as many head injuries occur in riders who do not wear helmets, according to the Minnesota Medical association.

Severity of injuries to unhelmeted motorcyclists can range from scalp lacerations and skull fractures to contusions of the brain, cranial bleeding, brain damage and death. Brain damage due to a head injury can impair an individual's ability to remember, speak, walk and otherwise function normally. Seizures can also occur because of brain damage.

It is also common for riders not wearing helmets to injure their spines and necks as a result of an accident. Physicians experienced in treating victims of motorcycle crashes say the severity of injuries treated is second only to injuries seen in a war combat zone.

The severe injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident affect more than the victim and his family. Statistics show crash victims are mainly young men at the average age of 22. Sometimes the young, injured rider has no medical insurance or is underinsured. The government (taxpayers) must then pick up the extensive medical tab. Motorcycle injuries are usually severe enough to require long, costly, hospital stays with months of rehabilitation. But, even after intensive rehabilitation, many times the injured rider remains so impaired he can not return to work, ultimately affecting society as a whole.

While physicians and others familiar with severe motorcycle accident injuries stress the importance of all cyclists wearing helmets, it is especially important for beginning motorcyclists to wear them. According to national figures, the chances of having a motorcycle accident are greater in the first six months to a year after beginning to ride. Safety officials attribute this to rider inexperience.

While evidence shows motorcycle helmets give riders potentially lifesaving protection, should bicyclists wear helmets too?, Physicians and public safety officials contend a helmet worn by a bicyclist would provide the same type of protection as it does a motorcycle rider. While speed is less a factor in bicycle accidents than it is in motorcycle accidents, the number one cause of bicycle accidents is motor vehicle drivers not seeing bicyclists. To lessen the chances of severe injury, physicians suggest bicyclists also wear some kind of protective headgear.

Throughout this country, more than 200,000 people are injured in motorcycle accidents each year. Statiistics show the lives of 1,000 to 1,500 cyclists would be saved each year if helmets were used by all motorcyclists.

Future Fuel Gets Involved In Leaf Vacuum Talks

at Future Fuel. Mayor Carlson also criticized the sanitation committee for not discussing the matter with Future Fuel and trying to go into competition with Future Fuel on composting, an issue Borsheim said was not anyone's intention.

After researching how much it would cost for city employees to pick up the leaves with a leaf vacuum and then deposit them at the former city landfill in New Solum township, the city asked if Nordhagen and Future Fuel would accept the leaves for $10 per load. (Future Fuel charges the city $10.17 per yard in tipping fees now. A load of leaves might be as much as three yards.)

Basically the leaf vacuum works by sucking up leaves off the berm, chops them up and blows them into the back of a truck the size of a grain truck with a canvass covering. The dates and time the city would perform this service would have to be worked out later. According to Nordhagen and the sanitation committee members it wouldn't matter how wet or dry the leaves are.

Alderman Clayton Restad said the cost of the machine would still be offset by costs that would have to be paid in tipping fees if they didn't have the leaf vacuum.

"The agreement with Future Fuel should satisfy everyone that we are not planning to compete with Future Fuel and have the interest of the public in mind," Borsheim said. He also said the leaf vacuum would not only save taxpayers in tipping fees but the cost of bags, and also cut down on fire hazards, although burning will still be permitted.

Federal Agency Participates In Flood Insurance

Although thunderstorms and flooding can strike anywhere, often without warning, there are a number of steps that can be taken to lessen the impact of floods on families and home, according to the federal emergency management agency.

(1) Learn the safest route from home and work place to high ground. Knowledge of these routes will provide an extra margin of safety if a hurried evacuation is necessary, especially at night.

(2) Never attempt to drive through water over a road. The flooding may have eroded the road or washed out bridges or culverts.

(3) Keep battery-powered radio, flashlight and emergency cooking equipment in good working order in anticipation of all emergencies.

(4) If caught in a building by suddenly rising waters, move to the second floor and, if necessary, to the roof to wait for help. Rescue teams will be in the area.

According to the federal government's national flood insurance program, meaures should also be taken to protect your home before unexpected floods strike.

(1) Purchase flood insurance. Many people do not realize that their homeowner's policies do not cover flood losses until after their property has been damaged. There is normally a five-day waiting period before policies become effective, so ask your insurance agent if you have flood insurance.

(2) Make a list of all personal property, including furniture, clothing and valuables. Take both interior and exterior photographs and keep the list and the photographs in a secure location such as a safety deposit box. The inventory list and photographs will be useful in filing an insurance claim.

Last year, the National Weather service documented 72 summer floods which caused property damage.

CPSC Checklist Suggests Safety Related Actions

Safety experts at the U.S. consumer product safety commission (CPSC) offer the following checklist of some major electrical hazards to look for in your home:

(1) Has any electrical product shocked you lately? If so, stop using the product and have it inspected at an electrical repair shop or appliance service center; the next shock could be far worse if you continue to use the product.

(2) Are countertop electrical outlets within six feet of the kitchen sink protected by a ground fault circuit interrupter (GFCI)? Probably not, says CPSC, in which case you could be electrocuted by means of a number of product-related accidents.

For example, if an electrical appliance fell into a sink of water and the consumer instinctively reached into the water to remove the product, the consumer could probably be electrocuted, even if the switch were off. However, if the circuit were protected by a GFCI, the power would be shut off before serious harm came to the consumer. The GFCI monitors electricity flowing in the circuit to sense any loss of current, then switches off the power quickly if current is escaping from the circuit. For any circuit or outlet which may pose a risk of electrocution, a qualified electrical repairman should install the GFCI's.

(3) Are all bathroom outlets protected by GFCI's? If your home was built before 1975, CPSC says the outlets probably do not have GFCI protection. Since then, new homes wired according to the national electrical code are supposed to have GFCI protection on all bathroom circuits, plus garage and outdoor circuits. However, not all newer homes have these GFCI's. Find out if your home has them. If your home does not have GFCI protection on these lines, this protection can be added by a qualified installer.

(4) Do you always connect the grounding system when you use a third wire grounded electric appliance, one with a three-prong plug? If you don't you lose shock protection. To reduce the risk of shock when using an extension cord, be sure it is three-wire. If your outlets do not accept a three-prong plug, be sure to use an adapter and connect its ground terminal to the screw of the faceplate. Double-insulated products do not require the three-wire cord and may be used with two-wire extension cords.

Consumers may obtain a free copy of the detailed electrical safety checklist by writing Electrical Safety, Washington, D.C. 20207, or by calling the agency's toll-free hotline at 1-800-638-2772. A slow-play disc record of the checklist is also available for the blind.

AVTI Initiates Project To Help Single Parents

those individuals that meet the program guidelines," Abrahamson said. "We recognize that many people in the midst of personal or family crises have very little preparation in handling the situation; they may be uncertain as to what their options are and, at the same time, aware that they must do something to improve their situation."

Education is often the means by which they can achieve a renewed self-sufficiency and rebuild a shattered self-esteem, she added. Project New Start provides a source of support, counseling and referral to agencies and programs in the area which specialize in needs of the group. For persons wishing to return to school and enroll at the AVTI, over $9,500 in assistance is available, Abrahamson said.

She will attempt to work with local or regional employers to customize the student's training program to meet the employer's needs. By arranging for internships, using training materials from business or industry and making contacts with employers before training begins, the coordinator hopes to give project participants a head start in the employment market.

A special feature of the project is the "quick start loan," designed to assist students who decide to come to the AVTI without completing their financial aid application in a timely manner. Students will be advanced up to $650 to pay for their tuition, books and supplies with no interest charged and the loan to be repaid from financial aid proceeds when they arrive.

"Students are required to complete the ACT family financial statement immediately," Abrahamson said, "but they will have no delay in entry if they are approved for a quick start loan. Since financial aid often takes from four to six weeks to be processed, students will not have to delay their entry into AVTI programs due to lack of funds."

Information is available by contacting Abrahamson at the AVTI, phone 681-5424.

Hattie Mattison Uses Dialysis At Home For 9 Years

Hillcrest nursing home in Red Lake Falls.

It was 10 years ago last June when Hattie was referred to Metropolitan Medical center in Minnesota from her Thief River Falls physician, suffering from severe gout in her left foot. It was determined there that she had only 15 per cent kidney function. She came back to Plummer but returned to Minneapolis in October when testing showed function had deteriorated to only four per cent. She began dialysis treatment at that time.

For about a year she was driven to and from Grand Forks for dialysis treatment, and for a few months she and Ollie lived in Grand Forks, but they didn't like being away from friends and familiar surroundings. Hattie decided to try home dialysis and it has worked well for her throughout the years.

Three days a week Hattie gets up at 5 a.m. to start the unit to get the system ready for use. At 5:45 a.m. Mrs. Gary Brantl, a licensed practical nurse with special training in operation of the dialysis unit, arrives to begin the procedure. Mrs. Brantl has been the operator for the past six years, taking over after the first three years when a technician from Crookston had come to Plummer to provide the service. She trained for four weeks in operation of the machine in Minneapolis.

The 5 a.m. start-up of equipment heats water to sterlize the unit, circulates the sterilizing solution and permits the unit to cool back down after sterilization. Mrs. Brantl switches the machine to dialyze, rinses the artificial kidney (a fiber-filled plastic tube about nine inches long and an inch and one-half in diameter) and prepares the dialysate solution which cleanses the blood.

About 6:30 a.m. Hattie seats herself in a chair next to the machine and Mrs. Brantl inserts two needles into a fistula installed in Hattie's left arm. One of the needles provides blood flow from Hattie's body into the machine; the other returns the dialyzed blood to the body. During the four-hour process the blood is circulated through the unit a number of times, with the dialysate causing unwanted liquids and inpurities to be flushed away.

During the procedure, Mrs. Brantl constantly monitors the procedure and takes blood presure checks. Although some blood is lost with each treatment, Hattie has not required a transfusion for the past two years. During earlier dialysis she required additional whole blood several times a year.

The machine used in dialysis is leased and the supplies are now ordered by Mrs. Brantl from Chicago. The artificial kidneys were originally disposed of after each use, but a backwashing machine allows them to be used three times in Hattie's case and up to a dozen times in some other patients' cases. The plastic kidneys cost about $35 to $40 each. Hattie's total monthly bill is about $2,000 and is covered by Medicare and supplemental insurance coverage.

Because the unit requires very pure water for proper action with the dialysate, a water softener and reverse osmosis (RO) unit have been installed ahead of the unit. The system has been quite trouble free over the years. Because of the need for constant electrical supply during dialysis, Hattie is notified of threatening weather by the weather bureau and of scheduled cut-offs by Otter Tail Power company.

Two of Hattie's four children, Gary Hofius and Mrs. Russell (Donna) Pahlen live in Plummer. Mrs. Clayton (Jacqueline) Moen lives in Rochester and Mrs. Jerry (Gail) St. Michael died four years ago. When Hattie goes to visit her daughter in Rochester, arrangements are made for her to have dialysis treatments at the dialysis unit there.

For the most part Hattie has been able to do her own washing, baking, cooking and housework, although a fall last winter in which she broke her right shoulder has reduced her activity. She watches her diet and medication intake very closely and is restricted to intake of two cups of liquid per day.

In October she will go to Minneapolis for thyroid removal surgery in an effort to correct bone deterioration problems she has experienced lately. She will also have kidney related evaluation at that time and funding from the local Kidney Foundation will help pay for the trip.

Deaths And Funerals

Signe Evenson, 92

Thief River Falls — Funeral services for Mrs. Signe Evenson were held Thursday at 2 p.m. at the Ebenezer Lutheran church. Signe Evenson died last Monday at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls at the age of 92. Interment was in the church cemetery. The Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Rev. Lane Zaffke officiated at the service, with Mrs. Arnold Hammer, organist, providing special music of "In the Sweet By and By" and "Den Store Hvide Flok." Grandchildren sang "Jesus Loves Me."

Honorary casketbearers were Olaf Stolaas, Fred Lundeen, Ole Austad, Martin Wedul, Frank Nelson, Robert Myrum, Fred Wilde, Alvin Klemmentson, Arthur Olson, Adolph Peterson, Malcolm Stucy and Gunder Gunderson. Active bearers were Vance Wiseth, Kurt Wiseth, Brad Nelson, Wesley Brekke, Korydon Chervestad, Lee Hughes and Robert Flaten.

Signe Evenson was born May 3, 1894, in a sod house near Northwood, ND, daughter of Lars and Hege Brekke Ofte Telemark. She was baptized at the West Union church, rural Northwood, and confirmed in 1909 at Aneta, ND. Her family traveled by covered wagon to settle in Kratka township, Pennington county, in 1905.

She attended rural school in Mayfield township and Aneta, ND. The family moved back to Northwood in 1908, and later moved to Spokane, WA in 1912. She attended domestic science school at Aneta in 1913, and was employed at a hat shop and cooked during spring and harvest time at the Kjorvestad farms near Aneta. Feb. 12, 1924, she married Knute Evenson at Moorhead.

They moved to the Ofte homestead in Kratka township and lived and farmed there until 1965. They lived at a resort home near Solway from 1965 to 1969, and then moved to the Orlando Chervestad farm. Knute Evenson died Sept. 15, 1970, and she continued to live there until three years ago when she came to reside at Oakland Park nursing home. She was the oldest living member of Ebenezer Lutheran church and was active in the ladies' aid and other church work.

Signe Evenson is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Orlando (Helen) Chervestad, Oklee, and Ethel Wiseth, Goodridge; one nephew, Roland DeVany Jr., Tacoma, WA; six grandchildren; and 17 great-grandchildren.

Her parents, husband, Knute; and a sister, Ingebord DeVany, in 1931, preceded her in death.

Mary A. Dub, 100

Thief River Falls — Mary A. Dub, former Park River, ND, resident, died Tuesday at Northwest Medical center in Thief River Falls. Funeral services were held Friday at 10 a.m. in St. John's Catholic church in Pisek, ND. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Rev. Leonard Loegering officiated at the service. Pallbearers were John Novak Jr., Joe Dub Jr., Louis Dub, Emil Dub, Joe Cicha and George Novak. The Overbye-Henriksen Funeral home of Park River was in charge of arrangements.

Mary Cicha was born Feb. 2, 1886, in New Prague, to Frank and Anna Cicha. She grew up and attended school in Veseleyville. She married Bohumil Dub June 21, 1905, in Veseleyville, and the couple farmed near Park River, ND, until his death Feb. 3, 1956. She moved into the city of Park River in 1969, and moved to Thief River Falls in 1977. She was a member of St. Ann's Society.

Survivors include five daughters, Mrs. Cy (Mary) Thompson and Margaret Kotaska of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Rudy (Hermina) Jehlicka, San Diego, CA, Lucy O'Regan, Park River, and Mrs. George (Dorothy) Greenway, Columbus, OH; three sons, Joseph and August of Park River, and Leo of Orafina, ID; 17 grandchildren; 17 great-grandchildren; 18 great-great-grandchildren; and a sister, Elizabeth Dub of Park River.

She was preceded in death by her parents, husband, three sons, one daughter, four brothers and three sisters.

E. Karasiewicz, 83

Red Lake Falls — Mrs. Andrew (Esther) Karasiewicz, 83, Red Lake Falls, died Monday at Hillcrest nursing home. Funeral services were held Friday at 10:30 a.m. at St. John's Lutheran church in Red Lake Falls, with Rev. Roger Raebel officiating. Interment was in Oak Grove cemetery. The Petterson Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Melanie Kading served as organist for the service, with music by soloist Delores Kading singing, "The Lord's Prayer" and "How Great Thou Art." Congregational hymns were "Nearer My God to Thee" and "Come Ye Disconsolate." Pallbearers were Ray Perras, Ruben Lehrer, Leo Bendel, Roy Steitz, John Ulrich and Vernon Knaack.

Esther Alma Rogge was born May 22, 1903, in Wylie township, Red Lake county, the daughter of Paul and Bertha Knaack Rogge. She grew up there and married Lloyd "Count" Lonson in Minneapolis in 1943. He died April 10, 1945. She married Andrew Karasiewicz in Red Lake Falls July 3, 1952. He died April 30, 1976.

She had managed Savard's restaurant, owned and operated her own dress shop in Red Lake Falls, and worked for Hunt Brothers and Helms Apparel. She was a member of St. John's Lutheran church and the Red Lake Falls American Legion auxiliary.

Survivors include two sisters, Mattie Rogge, Red Lake Falls, and Mrs. Art (Myrtle) Niemi, El Cajon, CA; a borother, Erwin Rogge, Fort Lauderdale, FL; and several nieces and nephews.

Her parents, both husbands, one brother and four sisters preceded her in death.

Fred Horgen, 94

Warren — Funeral services were held Thursday at 2 p.m. at Our Savior's Lutheran church in Warren for Fred Horgen, 94, lifelong Marshall county resident, who died August 23 at the Good Samaritan nursing home. Rev. Dale Peterson officiated at the service, with Mrs. Richard Karr as organist. Interment was at McCrea Lutheran cemetery. The Quanrud Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Honorary pallbearers were Stanley Truhn, Oscar Backlin, Arthur Vansickle, Orval Wittman, Victor Mortensen and Laurel Wittman. Active bearers were Marshall Sether, Oscar Myrfield, Darrell Qualley, Bob Conely, John Rokke and Harold Haugland. Soloist, Mrs. Bruce Horgen, sang, "How Great Thou Art" and "I Know That My Redeemer Lives."

Fred Horgen was born Apr. 7, 1892, the son of Alfred and Anetta Dicken Horgen, in McCrea township of Marshall county. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith and attended the Horgen rural school. He farmed with his father on the family farm and was employed in the logging business in International Falls during the winter months.

Feb. 9, 1922, he married Stella Qualley at the McCrea church parsonage. They lived and farmed in McCrea township, he officially retired in 1982, and became a resident of the Good Samaritan home in January of 1984. He was a member of the McCrea Lutheran church which merged with Our Savior's Lutheran church in Warren, and served on the Burnside school board.

Fred Horgen is survived by his wife, Stella; one son, Lloyd, Warren; two daughters, Mrs. Tilman (Helen) Peterson, Thief River Falls, and Mrs. Roy (Marlys) Linder, Minneapolis; three grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; five sisters, Mrs. Agnes Sether, International Falls, Mrs. Esther Nygren, Shelton, WA, Mrs. Arnold (Alice) Rokke, Newfolden, Mrs. Evelyn Schaetzel, Hoople, ND, and Mrs. Lola Hedlund, Warren,; and several nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by an infant son, Arthur Fredrick; a great-grandson, Daniel Beatty; four brothers, Carl, Otto, Magness and Clarence; and four sisters, Anna, Sarah, Clarice and Mayme.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sparby, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Sparby and Kallie spent the weekend in Minneapolis at the Robert Sparby and Oscar Sparby homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Johnson took Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hedemark to Thief River Falls on Thursday and they left for Quito, Equador South America to teach school until June.

Mr. and Mrs. Cheslie Ruud, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Lunsetter and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Semko of Thief River Falls all attended the Clearwater County fair at Bagley Saturday evening and attended the WE Festival Kicks in '86 at Detroit Lakes on Sunday, also Karyl Larson, Inez and Lowell Larson. The Back Behind the Barn Boys were on the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Hagen attended the funeral of Ruth Saastad, formerly of Holt, at the Green Funeral home on Monday. Ruth and Eunice were school friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Tieman, Andrea and Brett of Hallock were Saturday overnight guests at the Lyle Blahauvietz home.

Mrs. Ruth Stein of Halstad was the winner of the quilt the senior citizens raffled off at their dinner on August 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan Lunsetter and Ashley of Wahpeton, ND spent the weekend at the Howard Lunsetter home.

Mrs. Alma Berg, Mrs. Inez Taie, Mrs. Ragna Anderson and Mrs. Emma Anderson from Roseau and Middle River enjoyed the senior citizen dinner at the school gym on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Johnson and Troy of Egen arrived after vacationing at Sturgeon Lake. The Johnsons left on Thursday for Detroit Lakes to enjoy Kicks in '86. Troy remained with his grandparents the Delmar Hagens for a longer stay.

Tom Bernstein, Cindy Winger and Logan and Jason of Grand Forks and Melissa Bernstein visited on Thursday evening at the Howard Lunsetter home.

Eunice Hagen accompanied by Yvonne Graneen of Middle River and Ethel Hyatt of Thief River Falls were to the funeral of Ione Holmaas at Green Funeral home and also the luncheon following at Westaker church in Newfolden.

Saturday forenoon Mrs. Dave Mosbeck of Egan, Mrs. Bill Bernstein, Melissa and Logan and Mrs. Harold Klamar visited at the Howard Lunsetter home.

Sunday forenoon visitors at the Clifford Klamar home were Mr. and Mrs. Dave Mosbeck of Eagen and Inez Klamar of Thief River Falls.

Saturday Margaret Grover of Thief River Falls, Tim Bernstein and Mrs. Bill Bernstein drove to Bottineau, ND to visit at the Freeman Hennesson home. Mrs. Bill Bernstein stayed for a longer visit and Tim and Margaret returned home on Monday. Freeman passed away on Wednesday and funeral services were on Saturday.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lunsetter visited at the Wayne Lunsetter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Peterson were visitors on Sunday at the Gary Peterson home near Middle River and brought birthday wishes to Gary.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Paul Klamar and Blair visited at the Gene Peterson home.

Bill Bernstein was a supper guest on Wednesday at the Howard Lunsetter home.

Mr. and Mrs. David Johnson and boys of Newfolden visited on Sunday at the Delmar Hagen home.

Thursday evening a bridal shower was held at United Lutheran church for Colleen Monson, bride-to-be, of Sanford Klamar. Mrs. Peter Aune gave devotions, Mrs. Howard Lunsetter sang a song accompanied by Melanie Lunsetter and Mrs. Cheslie Ruud gave several readings. Several games were played with Mrs. Shannon Ostby and Mrs. Richard Engelstad winning the prizes. Colleen opened her gifts and was assisted by Doris Klamar and her mother, Maxine Monson. Hostesses were Mrs. Rick Larson, Mrs. Robert Engelstad, Mrs. Wayne Larson, Mrs. Richard Engelstad, Mrs. Clifford Klamar and Mrs. Dwayne Nelson.

Sunday Bill Bernstein was a guest at the Howard Lunsetter home.

Tom Bernstein recently spent a few days at the Bill Bernstein home.

A big crowd attended the Pioneer Farm and Village Festival at Roseau last weekend and also at Bemis Hill was the scene of many people who turned out for the Jon Nelson benefit which is a Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy organization.

Mrs. Howard Lunsetter attended the wedding of Christine Petterick of Mahnomen and Keith Lunsetter of Fergus Falls at Mahnomen on Saturday.

Mrs. Dave Irlbeck and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Nordby of Grygla visited on Sunday afternoon at the Clifford Klamar home.

STAR . . .

Those coming Wednesday to help Anna Kriel celebrate her birthday were Mrs. Joe Kuntz, Mrs. Ernie Hout, Gladys Langworst of Thief River Falls, Mrs. Linda Broeker and Veronica of Eden Prairie, Mrs. Tim Radniecki, Sara and Jill, Katie Lerolohl, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Kriel, Mr. and Mrs. Olaf Stolaas, Mrs. Obert Hovet, Mrs. Leonard Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hovet, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Iverson, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Iverson, Roger Kriel and Glennie Iverson. A delicious lunch was served with 3 birthday cakes and she received cards and gifts. Happy birthday, Anna.

Wednesday afternoon Gena Kotrba spent the day with Gilmer Manderuds. In the evening Mrs. Larry Kotrba, Amie and Melinda were visitors there.

Mr. and Mrs. Tim Lundeen were Friday dinner guests with Louella Lundeen in Thief River Falls.

Alfred and Alvina Hanson were Sunday dinner guests at Norman Kriel's.

Mrs. Darwin Eidelbes, Arlen and Michelle were coffee guests Sunday afternoon at Clayton Lolland's.

Jason Naeseth was a Sunday overnight guest at Jean Johnson. Monday morning Mrs. Clarence Johnson, Jean Johnson, Jessica, Monica and Michelle took him home and were coffee guests at Merle Naeseth's. Monica and Michelle remained at the Naeseth home while Jean, Mayne and Jessica went to Thief River Falls. Jessica had to go the doctor as she had broke her arm Friday evening.

Margaret Kjelgren was a dinner guest Saturday at Leonard Johnson's.

Aquifer Heat Storage Test Is Successful

by Deane Morrison
U of M News Service

What if all the waste heat from power plants, garbage incinerators or even home computers could be stored for use in winter? It might happen, now that a system to store heat in underground water for winter use has passed a long-term test at the University of Minnesota.

About 25 million gallons of water were withdrawn from an aquifer under the Twin Cities, heated and returned to the aquifer. After about two months of storage, the water was again withdrawn and about 60 per cent of its heat was recovered. The system would provide a good way to store waste heat, geologist Marc Hoyer said.

He and Matt Walton, both at the university's Minnesota geological survey, presented results of their aquifer thermal energy storage (ATES) project at the intersociety energy conversion engineering conference in San Diego, CA.

ATES holds the most promise as a way to reclaim waste water, said John Splettstoesser, another geologist who worked on the project. Solar heat or heat from power plants, computer centers or garbage incinerators could be stored during the summer and used in cold weather.

"Storing and using waste heat could help people get through part of the cold season before turning to more expensive heating such as coal and oil," Hoyer said. "this could also help a country like Sweden, which gets 60 per cent of its energy from nuclear power and is committed to being nuclear-free by the year 2010. Projects similar to this are going on in Sweden now, and also in Denmark, Switzerland, the Netherlands and other countries."

Hoyer, along with other survey scientists and the staff of the university's physical plant, pumped the water from the Franconia-Ironton-Galesville aquifer, a 200-foot-thick layer of porous sandstone and shale lying 600 feet below the Twin Cities. After heating the water to 240 degrees, they returned it to the aquifer through a nearby well. That phase of the project took from mid-November of 1984 to late January of 1985.

The hot water layed in the ground until April of 1985, when the team began pumping it out again and testing it. When they had pumped out the same amount of hot water that had been stored, they found its average temperature was 167 degrees.

"It showed we can get a significant amount of the heat energy back," Hoyer said. "Conservatively, that comes out to about 60 per cent."

In the university's test, the stored water was hot enough to heat buildings, but it had to be softened to keep from clogging the machinery, Hoyer said. The whole system, including the wells, is on the university's St. Paul campus.

The project has drawn fire from some environmentalists, who claim there is no way to predict the effects of storing hot water in aquifers.

"Our best estimates early in the project showed that there will be no adverse effects, but we can't prove that until our tests are completed," Splettstoesser said.

Civil and mineral engineering professor Steven Eisenreich and his staff analyzed ground water samples for a variety of chemicals. So far, no harmful effects on the groundwater have turned up, Splettstoesser said.

"The volume of underground space used is about the size of a chunk as big as a football field on top and 200 feet thick, and the 25 million gallons of water used over those months is much less than the 196 million gallons pumped every day in the Twin Cities in 1979," Splettstoesser said. "The aquifer has no other users in the vicinity of the project and isn't very heavily used anywhere in this area because other aquifers give more and better water for domestic and commercial use."

The ATEs project began in 1980 with a grant from the U.S. department of energy through Battelle Pacific Northwest Laboratories. The project is managed by the survey and the university's physical plant. Walton was the principal investigator and Robert Miller of the U.S. Geological survey, St. Paul, also participated. Total funding so far is about $3.9 million. Between November of 1982 and December of 1983 the team ran several short-term tests, in which hot water was stored for about eight days.

The ATES team plans a second long-term test soon. The Minnesota pollution control agency and other state regulatory agencies are reviewing the results of the first test before allowing the second. The review process includes a September 3 public meeting, at which first test results will be outlined. A second test is needed to confirm that the results are consistent, which is required for any applied system, Splettstoesser said.

Future tests will determine how much water softening is needed for repeat cycles. And, because rock in the storage area of the aquifer is still warm from the last test, the team wants to see what effect that will have on energy recovery.

One effect of adopting an ATES heating system is already clear: Such a system will require a substantial initial investment. Local geology, water chemistry and environmental regulations may also mean modifications to the system or even a complete thumbs-down in some places. But ATES does work, the university team found, and they hope to prove it will continue to work.

"The initial cost is high, but eventually a system like this could pay for itself," Splettstoesser said.

BOB EKEREN, chairman of special guided tour event at the Heritage Community center in Thief River Falls Thursday, and Kay Wedul of Lutheran Brotherhood Insurance, a volunteer tour guide, discussed some fine points before giving tours at the center. They are only two of the many volunteers to help make the center a reality.

Social Service Ass'n. Conference Slated In Roseau

Members of the Region 1 Minnesota social service association (MSSA) will hold their annual fall conference in Roseau at the American Legion club on Friday, September 19, with registration at 9 a.m.

Members include persons from welfare, social services, county board members, corrections and health workers, administrators and others from public and private agencies, as well as concerned individuals. They represent a broad spectrum of social services in Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

John Gaukerud, Roseau county commissioner and chairman of the Region 1 Minnesota social service association, will serve as chairman of the conference.

Theme for the conference is "People Reform". Mike Campbell will speak in the morning regarding "Dealing with Change and Communication". After the noon luncheon, Campbell will speak on "The People Business; What it Takes to be Successful". Campbell has over 25 years experience in education, sales and leadership development. He is currently the head of the professional sales department at the Detroit Lakes area vocational technical institute.

Lunch will be included in the registration fee of $12 if received before September 15. Registration received after September 15 or at the door will be $14. The conference is open to the public. Adjournment is scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Capitol Grounds Design Selected By Planning Board

A design for the State Capitol grounds which recalls the original plans of State Capitol architect Cass Gilbert has been chosen as the winner in the competition to redesign Minnesota's Front Yard.

The traditional design of architects David Mayernik, 28, of Philadelphia and Thomas Rajkovich, 25, of Chicago, won the international competition sponsored by the Capitol area architectural and planning board. The two are associated with the Minneapolis firm of Hammel Green and Abrahamson.

"Our goal first and foremost was to complete Cass Gilbert's vision for the mall," said Rajkovich. That was the goal, too, of the Capitol area board, which stressed in the guidelines for competitors the earlier plans of Gilbert, the architect who designed the Capitol in 1895.

In addition to recapturing the vision of the Capitol's architect, the redesign of the 36-acre Capitol grounds is expected to increase its usefulness and beauty, as well as provide an appropriate setting for the Capitol building, according to the planning board.

Originally, there were 182 entries in the year-long competition and five were chosen as finalists during the first stage of the competition in May. The months leading up to the first stage jury deliberations were filled with public hearings and presentations aimed at getting maximum input from the Minnesota public, who use the Capitol grounds at a rate of 30,000 per month during peak months.

"The public participation element of this process was crucial to selecting a design appropriate to Minnesota," said Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson, a jury member who chairs of the Capitol area board. "We were committed to the idea that the public which uses Minnesota's front yard would assist the professionals in deciding what was most useful and attractive for this treasured public area."

The jury which selected the winning design was composed of seven design professionals, Lieutenant Governor Johnson, State Representative Mary Forsythe, State Senator William Luther and William Spoor, former chief executive officer of Pillsbury.

"The competition attracted many of the world's top designers," said Gary Grefenberg, the Capitol area board's executive secretary. "This winning design will truly transform the Capitol Mall into Minnesota's front yard."

After the selection of the five finalists, the designs were again put on display and introduced around the state for public comment. The winner ranked highly among the thousands of Minnesotans who viewed the designs.

Important elements of the design include a public square directly in front of the Capitol building, providing a setting for political rallies and outdoor cultural events; raised gardens above the level of the square for relaxing and socializing; decorative fountains and lighting which become ornamentation for the area during the winter months; and gardens, reflecting pool and courtyard near the veterans service building at the lower end of the mall.

Seating is an important characteristic throughout the design, allowing visitors the opportunity to sit and visit, an important omission in the current design of the grounds. In addition, the proposed landscaping will strengthen the links to downtown St. Paul and the Cathedral, as well as often the effect of the freeways which so harshly separate the Capitol from the downtown and Cathedral areas. The new design uses native Minnesota materials and plants to exemplify the project's commitment to Minnesota's tradition.

The Capitol area board will continue to introduce the winning design to Minnesotans through public displays and presentations this fall and winter

Exchange Program Seeks Homes For Foreign Students

International student exchange is seeking families to host students from Brazil, Mexico, Japan, England, Spain and Germany.

One of these boys or girls, individually selected for host families, will live as a member of the family while he or she attends the local high school. These excellent students are very carefully screened, covered by medical insurance and provide their own spending money. They are eager to experience the American way of life while sharing their culture, but they can only do so if host families are willing to open hearts and homes to them.

Those who would like to participate may contact International Student Exchange, P.O. Box 58, Fort Jones, CA 96032.

Nysether Visits TRF In Campaign

Myron Nysether, IR endorsed candidate for Secretary of State, toured northern Minnesota last week to promote his candidacy and "carry the IR message of a new direction of state government in Minnesota."

In Thief River Falls Friday morning, Nysether said the key issues in the campaign are the overall philosophical viewpoint of state elected officials and the impact of that viewpoint on the general direction of state government. He is a former state representative from District 1A.

IRS Seeks More Volunteers For VITA Program

Last year, over 40 per cent of the taxpayers who filed an individual income tax return received professional assistance in preparing their tax forms. The remaining filers either prepared their own returns or sought help through one of the IRS's volunteer income tax assistance programs.

The IRS sponsors a program called VITA (volunteer income tax assistance). VITA is a program designed to help low-income, non-English-speaking, elderly or handicapped taxpayers file their tax returns.

Each year the IRS recruits volunteer individuals and organizations. Individuals assist taxpayers with their tax returns and organizations provide both individual assistors and convenient locations where taxpayers can go to receive tax help.

The IRS provides the training necessary for volunteers to assist taxpayers file the 1040EZ, 1040A, and the basic 1040 with itemized deductions. These trained volunteers will offer help on a one-on-one basis. They will help the taxpayer to take advantage of all legal tax deductions, credits and adjustments.

Volunteers generally receive one week of training during December and are asked to offer only a couple hours a week of their time during the filing period.

Last year 35,000 volunteers working through the VITA program helped prepare over 300,000 individual income tax returns.

Persons or organizations interested in the volunteer income tax assistance program can get additional information by calling their local IRS office

Heart Association Revises Dietary Health Guidelines

American heart association has announced a revision to its "Dietary Guidelines for Healthy Americans" based on the most current evidence about diet and heart health

The revised statement provides more specific guidelines on sodium, cholesterol, alcohol and saturated fat

Sodium intake should be limited to approximately one gram per 1,000 calories, not to exceed three grams per day. Studies show a clear relationship between the incidence of high blood pressure and a diet habitually high in sodium. People with mild to moderate elevations in blood pressure may require more strict reductions in sodium intake.

The recommendation regarding cholesterol intake reflects not so much a change as a more specific guideline. Cholesterol intake should be approximately 100 milligrams per 1,000 calories, not to exceed 300 milligrams per day. This more specific recommendation takes into account the diets of people who consume small amounts of food.

Alcohol is also discussed in the revised statement, and the American heart association recommends that if alcohol is consumed it should not exceed one and one-half ounces (50 cc) of ethanol per day. This translates to two four-ounce glasses of wine or two 12-ounce beers. If alcohol is used, it should not account for more than 15 per cent of total daily calories. In addition, the American Heart association cautions that alcohol should be consumed in a responsible and prudent fashion. There is a significant rise in the incidence of high blood pressure in people who consume more than three or four drinks per day

The new guidelines also restrict saturated fat intake to less than 10 per cent of total calories. Total fat in the diet, made up of saturated, polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats, should be less than 30 per cent of total daily calories. Decreasing the amount of saturated fat in the diet will assist in controlling blood cholesterol levels, and thus lessening a person's risk of atherosclerosis

Atherosclerosis is a buildup of fat and cholesterol in the blood vessel walls. It is one of the leading contributors to cardiovascular disease deaths. This year nearly one million Americans will die as a result of cardiovascular disease. In 1983, 703,500 cardiovascular deaths were directly attributed to athlerosclerosis

Since 1957, the American heart association has made a concerted effort to provide dietary and nutritional guidance to the American public as well as the medical community. And it continues to re-emphasize the merits of a low fat, low cholesterol diet as a means of reducing the risk of coronary heart disease

TV Without Soul

Following editorial appeared recently in the Grand Forks Herald:

The news from Prairie Public Television is disappointing for several reasons, but mostly because it leaves the network without a personality.

Boyd Christenson is a veteran. He has a large following in North Dakota and other areas served by PPTV. That wasn't enough to get him through the latest round of budget cuts, however. Christenson was one of eight people who lost jobs.

The network's management said that financial problems were behind the decision. There is no doubt that PPTV faces a budget crisis. Federal funding has dried up and states in the network's coverage area — notably North Dakota — have been stingy with grants. Some Canadian points no longer receive Prairie Public Television, and this has decreased the take from north of the border.

Poor programming decisions contributed to the network's woes, however. The quality of Prairie Public's schedule has declined noticeably. There is little local content, except the pledge period, and Christenson's departure makes it unlikely that there will be any new commitment to local programming.

Prairie Public Television also has withdrawn from national public affairs programming. The highly acclaimed MacNeil-Lehrer Report, which looks at national issues in depth, disappeared from PPTV two years ago.

To fill its schedule, Prairie Public has relied increasingly on reruns of nature specials and old movies (many of which are available on video cassettes, where they can be enjoyed without annoying interruptions by an announcer begging for money).

Prairie Public Television didn't make very good use of Christenson when he worked there. He had to plead ignorance of the station's needs when he was asked during the legislative session by lawmakers who recognized him. This situation, which Christenson pointed out after he was fired, apparently was representative of Prairie Public Television's relationship with its star. Christenson complained that he had been frozen out of policy discussions for several years.

Under-used while he was with Prairie Public, Christenson apparently was abused when he left. Managers at PPTV gave him an afternoon to clear out. It makes one wonder if PPTV has a heart.

A veteran employee deserves better.

So do the people who watch, and support, Prairie Public Television.

Tax Reform Victory

Following editorial is from the Sacramento Union:

President Reagan has seldom been portrayed as a champion of the poor, but history may regard that as an error. The tax reform legislation approved in the last few days by House and Senate conferees will do more for low-income citizens than any massively funded War on Poverty-type program that comes to mind, and will do it simply and directly.

If the reform package received final congressional approval, many lower-income Americans will be removed from the tax rolls altogether, and others will pay much less to the government.

Permitting poor people to keep more of what little money they have rather than running their confiscated dollars through spongelike agencies that trickle back only pennies' worth of benefits may sound simple, but for bureaucratic Washington it's a somewhat revolutionary idea.

Thinning out the jungle of shelters and tax "breaks" in order to reduce the taxes of the vast majority of individuals also is revolutionary for Washington, no matter how much sense it has always made to most Americans.

Although Congress will get much of the Credit for tax reform, it was dragged to it kicking and screaming by Reagan.

Now that the screaming has subsided, it looks as if the top corporate tax rate will drop from 46 per cent to 34 per cent, and the top individual rate will plunge from 50 per cent to 28 per cent.

While reducing the top corporate rate, the overhaul eliminates or reduces many corporate loopholes, basically swapping a corporate tax increase of $120 billion over the next five years for a tax cut of roughly the same amount for individuals.

Aside from the low-income, the tax overhaul is most generous to middle-income families earning less than $50,000 a year. Individual taxes will be cut an average of 6.1 per cent.

President Reagan made tax reform his top domestic priority, and scored a major victory when congressional conferees agreed to a plan that, although modified, meets most of his major goals, including lower rates, a broader tax base and a system that encourages investment for profit-making rather than for avoiding taxes.

The jury is divided on how well the compromise reform package meets the president's goal of simplifying tax law.

Nevertheless, the Republican president quite correctly called the package "a triumph for the American people and the American system, good for the economy and good for the taxpayer."

"The American people are the big winners," said Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III. He might have added that it's about time.

Final passage of the tax reform measure is expected when lawmakers return from their recess next month.

The reform package is far from perfect, but considering the political realities of Washington, it is pretty good.

Finding One Answer

Following editorial is from the Omaha World Herald:

After 14 years and $160 million, a pilot plant at Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico is demonstrating that heat from deep underground can be used to generate energy on a commercial scale. The experiment indicated that mankind has more than one option for coping with the time when fossil fuels become prohibitively expensive.

The technique being tested at Los Alamos is known as hot dry rock. Water under high pressure is forced down a 2½-mile-deep hole. The water spreads through cracked rocks, which draw heat from the earth's interior. The superheated water is returned to the surface through a second well and produces steam used in the generation of electricity.

The procedure is relatively clean and could be used nearly anywhere in the world. It doesn't send particles into the atmosphere. There would be no danger of radioactivity or problems of waste disposal.

Scientists have had mixed results — but no major breakthroughs — with synthetic fuels, organic fuels and devices to harness energy from the sun and wind on a large enough scale to be commercially feasible.

While tapping the natural heat of the Earth isn't necessarily the solution to all the world's energy problems, the success at Los Alamos puts mankind another step ahead.

Nailing The Coffin Nails

Slang reference to cigarettes as "coffin nails" appears to be more nearly a truthful description with each passing day. Study after study links cigarette smoking with a number of health hazards and the costs to society from resulting health problems are enormous.

Dr. Richard Grimm, president of the American Heart Association's Minnesota affiliate, recently praised the U.S. senate finance committee for its proposed increase of the cigarette excise tax from 16 to 24 cents as part of the budget reconciliation measure.

His letter states the following:

"Each year 350,000 Americans die prematurely because they smoke. Hundreds of thousands more suffer from a variety of smoke-related diseases including coronary heart disease, cancer, bronchitis and emphysema.

"It's time for the tobacco industry to start reimbursing the federal government for the enormous costs that cigarette smoking now imposes upon society.

"The U.S. office of technology assessment estimates that the federal government loses $65 billion in health care and lost productivity costs yearly because of cigarette smoking. That's about $2.17 per pack.

"If the cigarette excise tax is increased to 24 cents, an additional $5 billion in revenue would be raised over three years. That's not enough to reimburse the government for the costs related to smoking, but it's a start."

Retired Educator Conference Set In Bloomington

Annual meeting and fall conference of the Retired Educators Association of Minnesota (REAM) will convene on Saturday, October 4 at Jefferson high school, 4001 W. 102nd Street, Bloomington.

Featured speakers will be O. M. (Mike) Ousdigian, former Executive Director of the Public Employees Retirement Association, whose topic will be "The American Idea", and Dr. William A. O'Brien, M.D., Twin Cities internist who will speak on the question, "What Is Everyone Worrying About?" Members of local retired educator units are urged to attend, and retired educators who are not members of local units or REAM are welcome.

The program will begin at 8:30 a.m. with registration and a social hour, including coffee and refreshments. An informal legislative panel on Minnesota pensions and other issues will take place from 9 to 9:45 to be followed at 10 a.m. by the annual business meeting.

After a noon luncheon, the afternoon session will include the address by Dr. O'Brien.

Inquiries may be directed to local unit presidents or to Mary Knudsen, 9525 Portland Avenue South, Bloomington, MN 55420. Registration deadline is September 26.

State Motorcycle Safety Program Receives Award

Minnesota's motorcycle safety program administered by the department of public safety received two awards from the Motorcycle Safety foundation (MSF) for its education and promotion efforts in 1985.

MSF, a national non-profit organization sponsored by five major motorcycle manufacturers, awarded Erwin Schoppe, the coordinator of Minnesota's rider education program, the John E. Harley memorial award for outstanding achievement in and contributions to the field of motorcycle safety. Only one such award is bestowed nationwide each year.

Schoppe, active in motorcycle rider education for 11 years, is almost solely responsible for creating Minnesota's statewide rider education program. In addition, he has helped design MSF's rider courses, field tested the motorcycle license exam and trained license examiners and motorcycle instructors in several states.

Minnesota also received MSF's motorist awareness award for the state's 1985 public information campaign aimed at car drivers. The "Start Seeing Motorcycles" campaign, developed for public safety by the Minnesota Institute of public health, inclued radio and TV public service announcements, billboards, bus posters, brochures, wall posters, print ads, a mail insert and t-shirts.

Due in part to this extensive awareness campaign, the number of fatal motorcyle accidents involving another vehicle declined in 1985. Last year only 40 per cent of all motorcycle crashes involved another vehicle, while 54 per cent involved another vehicle in 1954.

"We're proud of the advances Minnesota has made in the field of motorcycle safety, and we will continue to work to make the state even more safe for our cyclists," said Paul Tschida, public safety commissioner.

VIKING . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Nelson of St Paul and Mrs. Ella Nelson of Thief River Falls visited at the Glen Moose home Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bock and Kristen Peters of Viking and George Shapley of Greenville, SC, spent the day Sunday at the Paul Miramonte home at Warroad. Kristen remained to spend a few days at the Miramonte home and Jennie Redden returned home with the Bocks after she had spent a few days there this past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean Kukowski and family of Minneapolis spent the weekend at their parental home, the Wayne Peters. Also joining them for lunch Sunday afternoon at the Wayne Peter's was Mrs. Selma Peters.

Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Russell Floberg attended the Old Settlers Fair in Warren and later visited and were coffee guests at the Arthur Lull home in Thief River Falls.

Packing For Travel Changes With Time

by David M. Maxfield
Smithsonian News Service

"Carry-one" has become the travel catchword of the '80s. But what a change today's under-the-seat totes and synthetic satchels signal in the history of travel. Just consider this: In 1715, the third Earl of Burlington reportedly returned to England, after less than a year abroad, with 878 pieces of luggage!

In our own century, news photographs periodically pictured the Duke and Duchess of Windsor waiting on some dock beside a pile of 20 or 30 trunks, each reading, in beautiful white capital letters with serifs, "THE DUKE OF WINDSOR." Their contemporary, playwright Noel Coward, once summed up changing travel styles in some telling dialogue: "How was your flight?" "Well," came the reply, "aeronautically, it was a great success. Socially, it left quite a bit to be desired."

As one wag points out, many species carry food for survival, but the human is the only animal that packs for a trip. And in a sense, to paraphrase the contemporary adage, "You are what you pack." Whereas today's airline passenger often stores weeks' worth of travel needs in that collapsible carry-on, Victorians made do with a tally of trunks — not to mention birdcages, footrests, rugs, portable bathtubs, bedrolls, water bottles and food baskets aplenty.

"Luggage styles over the centuries have accurately expressed both changing social realities and changing modes of transportation," author and educator Paul Fussell comments. From these styles, he says, "a future archaeologist can infer something like the social history of the past two centuries."

Recently, in fact, the Cooper-Hewitt museum, the Smithsonian's national museum of design in New York City, exhibited several hundred travel "artifacts" dating back to the Middle Ages. In the history of travel, director Lisa Taylor says, such a study "has been strangely neglected."

Part of the reason, exhibit curator Deborah Shinn explains, is availability. "This project did require a lot of looking around," she says, since many travel items were never considered valuable and have simply vanished. "It was hard to find objects to illustrate early sea voyages," she notes, adding that even examples of once ubiquitous molded Samsonite in dreamed-for '50s hot pink now appear to be lost luggage.

But there were wonderful discoveries, many found in the collections of local historical societies. A conestoga wagon trunk made by Mark Cross about 1860 turned up, as did carpet bags, a portable sundial, a traveling inkstand owned by Charles Dickens, a traveling bed and a combined walking stick and violin. From our era came such eclectic specimens as a lunar sample container, a portable computer and a wicker picnic basket.

For sheer pizazz, however, honors must go to the extraordinary collapsible tilbury carriage owned by a finicky woman who toured Persia early in the century. Except for the wheels, the whole thing fits snugly into three Chinese-red trunks.

Those were designed by Louis Vuitton, the prestige luggage-maker whose heirs sponsored the museum's exhibit and catalog. In that connection, the firm supplied a ransom of items fit for kings and mere mortals. Among the goods: luggage for a hot-air balloon (c. 1905); and astonishingly elegant traveling case crafted of snakeskin, sealskin, silver, brass and glass for the famed Polish pianist and statesman Ignace Paderewski, and a shoe trunk with slide-out, labeled drawers for 30 pairs of shoes.

Travelers come in many varieties: bindle-carrying hobos, campers bearing back-packs, astronauts swathed in life-sustaining space suits, high society members followed by monogrammed matched luggage and holiday-goers equipped with cameras and guidebooks. For nomads, travel is a way of life that has endured for millennia, while for emigrants, a single voyage can mean a fresh start. Yet it's hard to pin travelers down — to define them — since they may be on their way to work or headed for the moon.

British travel author H.G. Links points out that "traveling" in terms of sightseeing is a concept less than three centuries old. Before then, scarcely anyone took trips who did not have to do so. Ancient Romans journeyed widely on diplomatic missions and military campaigns. Medieval Christians made long pilgrimages from Europe to the Holy Land, and for political purposes Renaissance princes frequently moved their courts from palace to palace.

The impulse to travel solely out of curiosity took hold only when 18th-century English gentlemen completed their educations with a "grand tour" on the continent. Leaving London in 1739, writer Horace Walpole and poet Thomas Gray followed their own tastes. "Except for pictures and statutes," Walpole confessed, "we are not very fond of sights."

But what to pack? As one seasoned traveler, who acknowledges an addiction to browsing for luggage, remarks, "it is surprising how hard it is to decide what to pack and what to pack it in." Portability and protection, however, have always remained constants for people on the go. For centuries leather has been used because it is impervious to wind, rain and snow. But as the critic Brendan Gill recently noted in commenting on the "great revolution of our day — light luggage," leather "weighs almost as much empty as it does full." While fine cases of iron, leather and wood protected precious 15th-century books, today's business people carry their documents and yogurt containers in briefcases with individualized combination locks.

Changes in luggage design have come with the whims of fashion and advances in transportation technology. As curator Shinn observes, the advent of train travel in the 19th century altered earlier shapes that were crafted to fit the contours of horse-drawn coaches. Dome-topped trunks that deflected the elements when stacked on top of carriages gave way to large trunks with straight sides and metal reinforcing mounts that could be stacked in baggage cars. The heyday of the oceanliner called for large steamer trunks designed to serve as closets or dressing tables or even as writing desks in passengers' staterooms.

The trend in luggage design since the early 1900s has "progressed" from heavy to lightweight, from complex to simple, from elegant to plain. There are many reasons for this, according to Fussell. Not long ago, the motto was "Dress Up." Even in second and third-class hotels and pensions, everyone dressed for dinner. Women required dresses for sightseeing, afternoon dresses for tea and, of course, gowns for evening. Also to be packed, Fussell adds, were "lots of beads, handbags, gloves, scarves, together with hats, hats, hats."

The trend now, as Fussell puts it, is to "conspicuously Dress Down," the change showing up in both men's and women's carry-ons. The collar case, a stiff-sided round box made to hold detachable shirt collars, an essential part of a gentleman's luggage early in the century, is now ancient history. Its place is taken by the backpack and the hanging garment bag, not as elegant perhaps, but well suited for today's informality and great change in travel customs. Bon Voyage!

Moonlighting Pay Must Be Reported As Income To IRS

Hundreds of thousands of Americans work at more than one job to help meet their economic needs. When a person takes on more than one paying job, for whatever reason, it's commonly called "moonlighting."

Income earned while "moonlighting" is taxable and must be reported on the tax return, whether received in a regular payroll check, or in cash, the Internal Revenue service says. If expenses are incurred in producing this income, such as special clothing or car expense, they may be claimed as deductions.

Some examples of "moonlighting" include a schoolteacher tutoring students during evenings or weekends; a construction worker doing repairs; a newspaper reporter writing free-lance articles for magazines; a secretary selling cosmetics door-to-door on weekends; or an accountant preparing tax returns during spare time.

If a second employer does not furnish a W-2, "Wage and Tax Statement" to the employee or if the earnings have been in cash, the income must still be reported as "wages, salaries, tips, etc." on the tax return.

Taxpayers who need further information on "moonlighting" and other taxable income should order the free IRS Publication 525, Taxable or Nontaxable Income, by calling their local IRS office.

Long-Term Use Of Ag Land Could Bring Tax Credit

Farmers and forest land owners agreeing to keep their land in long-term agricultural or forest land use could get an additional property tax credit under a program expanded from the metropolitan area to the entire state, according to the Minnesota departments of agriculture and revenue.

The program, which comes under the state agricultural preservation act, means farmers and forest land owners in non-metropolitan area counties can get a property tax credit of $1.50 per acre per year for agreeing to keep their farms in agricultural or forest use. For the average Minnesota farm of 300 acres, this could mean a property tax credit of $450 a year.

To be eligible, farmers must live in designated parts of counties outside the Twin Cities metropolitan area that choose to participate in the program.

Six of the seven metropolitan area counties have participated in such a program since 1980, but a new law that went into effect July 1 expands the program to the other 80 Minnesota counties. The county must have a plan and ordinance protecting agricultural land approved by the commissioner of agriculture to participate. (Ramsey county was not included because it is fully developed for non-farm use.) Five outstate counties — Kandiyohi, Wright, Douglas, Waseca and Winona — have been designated "pilot counties" by the department of agriculture for the new program.

The new law is patterned after a 1980 law, known as the Metropolitan Agricultural Preserves act. In the metropolitan area the program is being administered by townships and cities while the counties will administer the new agricultural preservation program outside the metropolitan area.

Credits for farmers in the seven-county metropolitan area are based on a formula comparing the local tax rate with 105 per cent of last year's statewide average tax rate for townships. As a result, the credit to metropolitan area farmers varies year to year.

To pay for the cost of the program, participating counties will charge an additional fee of $3 on both the registration of a mortgage and recording of a deed. One-half of the fee is for the state conservation fund, which will be used to reimburse counties whose fund is not large enough to cover the cost of the credits. The rest will be used to reimburse taxing districts which lost revenue because of the $1.50 per acre credit. Any money left over in the country fund may be used by the county for agricultural land preservation or soil conservation purposes.

The six metropolitan area counties and the five pilot counties began collecting the fees on July 1. Previously, the credits for the metropolitan area were funded directly by the state.

For participating counties, the $3 fee will be effective as soon as a county's plans are reviewed by the department of agriculture, and farmers could be eligible for the credit for 1987 property taxes payable in 1988 provided the county's plan met the law's standards.

Paul Burns, a spokesman for the department of agriculture, said the program has several agricultural land preservation goals:

(1) To remove some of the pressure on farmers and forest land owners to sell their land for non-farm or non-forest use.

(2) To help prevent encroachment of conflicting land uses that restrict farmers from carrying out their operations, such as hobby farms and non-farm residential developments;

(3) To help ease pressures on farmers in urban fringe areas to sell out for urban expansion; and

(4) To help local units of government keep down public service costs, such as road maintenance, by discouraging such land uses as non-farm rural residences.

Under the program, each pilot county must submit its plans and zoning changes to the agriculture department any time before July 1, 1987, for review. The agriculture department then has 90 days to complete the review.

The counties will have 60 days after receipt of the agriculture department review to implement the plan.

Burns said any county can participate in the program after Jan. 1, 1987.

If a county adopts the program, a farmer who wants to participate must file a restrictive convenant on his land. If a farmer in either a non-metropolitan area county or in the Twin Cities area later decides he wants to remove his land from the program, he must wait eight years before it can be put to a non-agricultural use.

As of early 1985, there were 1,173 farms in the six metropolitan area counties that were registered for the program.

McGann Finishes AVTI Program

Shari McGann of Thief River Falls has graduated from the word processing program at St. Cloud area vocational-technical institute. The program is designed to provide training skills required for working with specialized machines.

State Law Affects Three-Year-Olds With Handicaps

A change in state law, which takes effect as of this school year, will be of interest and importance to parents of younger handicapped children, according to PACER Center, a statewide parents' coalition.

Under the change, handicapped children who are three, rather than four, by the beginning of the 1986-87 school year are now entitled to free and appropriate special education programs.

The change followed numerous research studies which have pointed to the value and benefits of early intervention for preschoolers with handicaps, said Paula Goldberg, PACER co-director. "Studies have shown that early programs can lessen some of the problems associated with various handicapped conditions and, often, decrease the need for continuing special education programs later in the child's life."

Parents of the younger children with handicaps — physical, mental, emotional or learning — should contact their local school district office for more information about the preschool special education programs for each child. Preschool programs can be either home or school-based.

Even though the school year may have begun in a local school district, parents can still contact the school to let them know that their child may be eligible for services and to begin the process now, rather than waiting 'til next year.

PACER Center can also be contacted for more information about preschool services in general. Its number is 612-827-2966, voice and TDD. Parents of children with handicaps who live outside the Twin Cities area may use PACER's toll free number, 1-800-537-2237.

TIMES AROUND THE REGION

Fall Appreciation Day

OKLEE — Annual Oklee Fall Appreciation day is planned for September 27, with activities beginning at 1 p.m. The Community Club will sponsor the event with a more definite schedule forthcoming.

Yellow Ribbons Flew

WARROAD — Northern Minnesota drivers sported yellow ribbons on cars and trucks during the Labor day weekend, distributed through the courtesy of the Farmers Union Oil companies in northern Minnesota. The ribbons were in conjunction with "Project Lifesaver," a coordinated effort to reduce traffic deaths and increase highway safety awareness during the weekend. The yellow ribbon symbolized commitment to a pledge of seat belt use, recognition of posted speed limits and compliance with drunk driving laws.

Wild Rice Season Opens

WHITE EARTH RESERVATION — Wild rice season at the White Earth reservation began September 1, with state harvesting opening September 2. State hours are 9 a.m. to noon on every other day. Only reservation residents may harvest on the reservation.

Fire Truck For Crookston

CROOKSTON — The city of Crookston just purchased a new $100,000 fire truck to replace a 1948 model previously used. The new truck has a 750 gallon water tank and can pump 1,250 gallons per minute.

Efta Named Postmaster

STRATHCONA — June Efta of rural Greenbush has been named postmaster at Strathcona. She grew up in Thief River Falls and graduated from Lincoln high school in 1948. She attended teacher's training in Thief River Falls and taught in the Haug-Leo school. She was principal of that school and also taught in schools in Badger, Greenbush and Roosevelt, as well as continuing her education at Bemidji state university. In 1969, she began working for the United States postal service, and has worked in several post offices throughout the area. She is the mother of eight children.

100th Birthday

WINGER — The Winger post office celebrated its 100th birthday August 27. The first general store and post office there was started in the "sand hills" in Winger township. Ingmar K. Messelt was the first store manager and postmaster. Erik Wold was the first rural mail carrier, serving for 27 years. He covered most of his route with horses, and in the winter used a small sleigh with a built-on cab heated by a small stove. The first letter sent to the city by air was received by John Rice June 9, 1926. The Winger post office is presently located in its new permanent facility built in 1984.

Erskine Exchange Students

ERSKINE — The Erskine school system will have three exchange students through the Educational Foundation for Foreign Studies this fall. They are Oscar Alzate of Columbia, living with the Ronald Nelsons; Peter Ruisz of Austria, staying at the Randy Johnson home; and Antonio Lamparero of Mexico, a guest at the Roger Johnson home.

Ambulance Left Hanging

CLEARBROOK — Discussion between the Clearwater county commissioners and Wayne Halseth of the Clearwater Ambulance Service and some of Halseth's employees ended abruptly when Halseth and his group left the meeting room. Halseth was seeking additional subsidy from the county in an attempt to operate his service at a profit. The commissioners maintained that his purchase of a $50,000 ambulance was a poor investment and he should have consulted the board before the purchase. Halseth stated that the issue was whether or not the county wanted an ambulance service and not how much he paid for the vehicle.

Greenbush Man Injured

GREENBUSH — Curt W. Wojchowski of Greenbush was injured August 26 when his foot was caught in the dual tires of a tractor and he was pulled over and under the wheel. He was transported to the Greenbush hospital and the extent of his injuries was unknown as the Greenbush Tribune went to press.

Former RLF Man Hero

RED LAKE FALLS — A former Red Lake Falls man, Ray Martel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Martel of Red Lake Falls, rescued Ruth Benson of Flasher, ND, from drowning after her parked car was pulled into a ditch by flood waters near Flasher. The car began to fill with water while Mrs. Benson remained in the vehicle. Martel, a rain gutter salesman returning from calls in the southwestern portion of the state, pried open the door of the vehicle as flood waters were lapping at the waist of the 80-year-old woman.

City Council Action

WARREN — A new "get tough" policy was implemented by the Warren city council August 26 with plans to disconnect electricity to 18 users if their accounts are not paid in full by September 2. The accounts total about $12,000. The council also adopted a resolution to encourage the air force to locate the Over the Horizon Backscatter radar project in the area between Warren and Thief River Falls.

Last Day To Go-To-Market

CROOKSTON — Final Go-To-Market day will be September 6 in Crookston. Sidewalk stands will be set up for selling items in front of downtown businesses.

New Business In Lancaster

LANCASTER — A-Aqua Water Filtration of Winnipeg has purchased the former International Harvester Implement building in Lancaster and will open for business this week, according to Lancaster Mayor Steve Lockman. The company will employ up to eight assembly personnel, a plant foreman, secretary, sales person and plant manager, all of whom will be Kittson county residents. A-Aqua Water Filtration manufactures bacteriostatic water filters for home use and is a distributor for an indoor window insulation product. Grand opening is set for late September.

Ada Girl Miss Congeniality

ADA — Kathleen Merkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Merkins of rural Ada, was voted Miss Congeniality during the Princess Kay of the Milky Way pageant on the eve of the opening of the Minnesota state fair. Merkins is a junior at Concordia college in Moorhead, majoring in social work and communications. She is involved in karate, track and was captain and quarterback of women's flag football. Yvonne Moerke of Ashby was crowned the new Princess Kay of the Milky Way.

Tests on Rainy River

INTERNATIONAL FALLS — A series of tests on the water quality of Rainy river will be conducted this week by Boise Cascade Corp. and several environmental agencies in the U.S. and Canada. Primary objectives of the tests are to compare existing water quality conditions with objectives recommended by the International Rainy River Water Pollution board and to assess and evaluate the effect of pollution abatement control measures taken by the International Falls-Fort Frances pulp and paper facilities. The study will examine the condition of the river in regard to water quality, sediment quality and aquatic ecosystem, with the use of clam studies, caged fish exposures and the use of helicopter. A report will be released by late spring, 1987.

Ambulance Funding Denied

HALLOCK — Kittson county board of commissioners denied a request for increased funds from the Tri-County Ambulance service at the regular meeting recently. The ambulance serves Kittson, Marshall and Roseau counties, receiving funding from each county. The board stated that denial was based on Kittson county having already met its contractual obligation and because negotiations will begin soon for another contract.

Death Ruled Overdose

HALLOCK — The death of a Kittson county man July 26 was found to have been caused by an overdose of cocaine, according to county coroner, Dr. Roland Larter. The body of Larry Karol, 28, was found in the back of a pickup near Orleans with no signs of physical injury. Toxological studies were performed by the University of North Dakota pathology laboratory, initially confirming that death was caused by cocaine overdose. Dr. Larter stated that this tragic occurrence should serve as a warning that cocaine use is not just a big city or ghetto problem but can happen in northern Minnesota.

Students From Sweden

KENNEDY — Kennedy high school students will be joined by two Swedish exchange students this fall. Fredrik Arbin and Jeffrey Marlow will stay with the L.K. Larson and Peter Pinnock families. The boys have also joined the Kennedy Rockets football team and are busy learning how to play a game entirely new to them before the football season starts.

Storm Shakes Warroad

WARROAD — Several trailer houses were slightly damaged and trees broken from a violent thunderstorm that swept through the Lakewood trailer park area west of Warroad August 19.

Gonvick Fall Festival

GONVICK — Fall Festival will be held September 12 and 13. Friday there will be a teen dance to the music of "soundsation" beginning at 9 p.m. in the village hall, and "Loco Motion" will play at the Sportsman's Lodge on Pine Lake. Saturday events include parades, street games, money-filled sand pile for kids, horse and wagon rides, and arts and crafts display at the village hall. "Hoot 'N' Toots" will appear at 3 p.m. at the Gonvick-Trail school. Lunches and meals will be served by various organizations throughout the day. The Gonvick Legion post will serve a barbecued beef dinner from 6 to 9 p.m. at the Legion cabin; games will be played in the school gym at 7:30; and several dances will be held during the evening.

Head Lice Surface Again

ROSEAU — Confirmed cases of head lice have been reported in the Roseau school district. Parents are being urged to check all family members thoroughly before the beginning of school, as the lice are easily transmitted by the close contact of students.

Railway Car Derailed

RED LAKE FALLS — A Burlington Northern railway car derailed August 20 near the Brooks Farmers elevator on the south edge of the city of Red Lake Falls. The train remained upright but had sunk into the earth where the track was sheared off.

Kindergarten Plans

ROSEAU — Roseau kindergarten children will attend alternate days from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. this year. Wannaska kindergarteners will be joining the Roseau children as their school is unable to provide a kindergarten this year because of failure to pass an excess levy referendum.

1986 Season Opener . . .

Swimmers Beat Brainerd 87-79

Winning seven of ten swimming events, the Thief River Falls girls opened their 1986 high school swimming season in strong fashion Friday with an 87-79 dual meet victory at Brainerd.

"We were very pleased with our first outing," reported Thief River Falls coach Jay Forney. "We only brought 12 swimmers, and they all contributed to the victory."

Junior Christy Puetz was a double-event winner for the Prowlers, taking the 200-yard individual medley in 2:36.22 and the 100-yard butterfly in 1:10.79.

Other individual winners for the Prowlers were senior Brenda Russell, 2:18.52 in the 200-yard freestyle; senior Laura Beito 6:22.99 in the 500-yard freestyle; and eighth grader Jenny Ness, 1:19.57 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Thief River Falls also took both relay events. Marcie Turenne, Ness, Michelle Turenne and Puetz turned in a meet opening 2:08.6 in the 200-yard medley relay, while Beito, Pete Kuyath, Russell and Heidi Tofte had a 4:16.0 in the meet-closing 400-yard freestyle relay.

"Brenda Russell had an outstanding meet," pointed out Forney. "We have a lot of hard work ahead of us. We know all the girls are willing to put forth the effort. Now we have a starting point, and we know what we're aiming for in November."

Thief River Falls beat Brainerd without a diver, surrendering 10 points in that event, making the final point total even more impressive.

The Prowlers will be at Park Rapids Thursday for a 6 p.m. meet, then participate in a triangular Saturday at Moorhead, where six-time defending Section 8 champion Alexandria will be on hand.

"The Moorhead triangular will be an outstanding meet," noted Forney. "It will give us a pretty good idea where we're at this year in Section 8."

TRF At Warren For Volleyball Opener

Thief River Falls girls will open their 1986 high school volleyball season Tuesday when the Prowlers visit Warren. Junior varsity and C squad matches start at 5:15 p.m., followed by the varsity match.

A preseason jamboree appearance at Red Lake Falls Thursday gave the Prowler a taste of competition as they split a pair of 15-11 one-game decisions, beating Crookston, but losing to Plummer by that score.

Both times the Prowlers rallied. They were down seven points against Crookston before coming back to win, and they trailed Plummer 6-0 at the start before making it interesting.

"We were pretty nervous," said Thief River Falls coach Helen Anderson about the trouble the Prowlers had with the Pirates. "As the game went on, we loosened up and played well as a team."

Mistakes produced the early deficit against Plummer, but Thief River Falls came back to tie it 11-11 before surrendering the final four points.

"I was really pleased with our overall performance," said Anderson.

Opening night Thief River Falls line-up will include seniors Vikki Weigand and Bobbi Thompson and juniors Stephanie Benson, Susie Ulrich and Bekah Bortnem, with the sixth spot up for grabs between senior Shalla Ottesen and juniors Jodi Anderson and Siri Spong.

Junior Jill Olson, who is expected to see considerable playing time this fall, will miss the opener because of an ankle injury, but could be back in uniform Friday when the Prowlers visit Roseau.

Other area Tuesday openers will find Goodridge at Plummer, Grygla at Roseau, Middle River at Greenbush and Oklee at Ada-Borup.

Marshall County Central will wait until Thursday to open at home against Stephen. That same night, Plummer will be at Oslo, Grygla hosts Lake of the Woods, Middle River entertains Roseau, Oklee visits Fosston and Goodridge drives to Redlake.

Youth Firearms Training Program Starts Sept. 9

First session of the fall youth firearms training program will start Tuesday, September 9, in the basement meeting room of the city auditorium.

Registration will take place at 6:30 p.m., followed by the first meeting session at 7. All other meeting sessions start at 7 p.m. and will last two hours.

Other sessions will be held Wednesday, September 10; Thursday, September 11; Tuesday, September 16; and Wednesday, September 17. Other events associated with the program will be announced at a later date.

Registration fee is $5, payable the first session. No registration will be accepted after September 11. All supplies for the course will be furnished unless announced as the course continues. Classes will consists of films, demonstrations and lectures.

Classes are open to all boys and girls ages 12-15. Older persons, and even adults, may take the course, if class size permits.

Irving Swanson, telephone 681-1049, is the course coordinator.

The fall course schedule includes:

Tuesday, September 9 — 6:30-7 p.m. registration; 7-7:15 p.m. introduction by Irving Swanson; 7:15-8 p.m. Minnesota game laws by Mike O'Brien; 8-8:30 p.m. training film; 8:30-9 p.m. film, "At Home With Guns."

Wednesday, September 10 — 7-7:30 p.m. training film; 7:30-8 p.m. hunter ethics by Hardy Hodge; 8-8:30 p.m. film "Sure As Shooting;" 8:30-9 p.m. types of firearms by Harvey Tauer.

Thursday, September 11 — 7-7:30 p.m. training film; 7:30-8 p.m. bowhunting by Dana Klos; 8-8:30 p.m. film, "Trigger Happy Harry;" 8:30-9 p.m. black powder by Howard Hagen.

Tuesday, September 16 — 7-7:30 p.m. training film; 7:30-8 p.m. first aid; 8-8:30 p.m. field care of game; 8:30-9 p.m. film, "The Lost Hunter."

Wednesday, September 17 — 7-7:45 p.m. game management by Larry Lewis; 7:45-8:10 p.m. review; 8:10 p.m. test.

Tennis Team Claims 7-0 Dual Meet Win Against Waubun

Juniors Kelly Cornell and Vicki Grovum, the Prowlers' top two players, weren't in the line-up, but the Thief River Falls girls still overpowered shorthanded Waubun 7-0 Thursday in high school tennis action.

It was the third straight shutout victory of the 1986 season for the Prowlers, who earlier blanked Roseau and East Grand Forks. They host Mahnomen Tuesday in a 3:30 host dual.

Cornell and Grovum were left behind Thursday only because Waubun wasn't expected to challenge the Prowlers. Complicating matters for the Bombers was the fact they could only come up with five players to fill varsity positions.

High School Football Opener Tuesday In Grand Forks . . .

Prowlers Open Against Roughriders

Thief River Falls coach Jeff Mumm has been selling the idea that an expanded weight training and conditioning program, a new wing-T offense and even new attire will help make the Prowlers a better team during the 1986 high school football season.

He's a good salesman. The players, and most of those who follow the team, are convinced the Prowlers are ready to shed the losing image that has been shadowing them for years. Optimism reigns supreme.

But now it's time to return to reality; it's time for the Prowlers to produce on the playing field — produce touchdowns and victories. Both were hard to come by last year when an 0-8 finish included just one touchdown.

Most teams opened their season last Friday, but Thief River Falls' opener was put on hold until Tuesday when the Prowlers travel to Grand Forks Red River. It's scheduled for a 7:30 p.m. kickoff, but the Prowlers and Roughriders are part of a doubleheader at Cushman Field that night, and chances are the game, which follows a Grand Forks Central-Grafton contest, won't get started before 8 o'clock, said school officials.

Mumm is confident the Prowlers can be winners this fall, but admits the opener might be one of the team's toughest challenges.

"Red River will be good, no doubt about that," he warns.

Complicating matters is the fact the Prowlers play again four nights later with a Section 8A Saturday visit to Detroit Lakes. The schedule, set up that way to accomodate the Roughriders, who cannot open before Sept. 2, isn't ideal, admits Mumm.

"I don't like it," he said, "especially with a Section 8 game right after the opener. The first game is important because it sets the tone for the year, but the Detroit Lakes game is much more important to us in as far as the section standings are concerned. It doesn't give us a lot of time to prepare for them (Detroit Lakes)."

But Red River is first. And like Mumm said, it won't be easy. The Roughriders own five straight season-opening wins over the Prowlers, and Thief River Falls wound up with a losing record each time. Red River won 34-2 a year ago. Last Thief River Falls win in the series, a 12-7 victory in 1980, was followed by a 5-4 record — the last winning season for the Prowlers.

"We've got to move the football, score some points and get the kids some confidence," said Mumm, who figures the Prowlers' new wing-T offense, with its variety of formations, shifts and mis-direction plays, will be fully operational. The attack was only partially in place last Saturday for the Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Pigskin Preview scrimmage, when the Prowlers had success with both the run and the pass against Lake of the Woods and East Grand Forks.

Mumm hopes the fact Red River will go into the opener without the benefit of a scrimmage will work in the Prowlers' favor.

"The kids are real excited. They're all set," he said.

A probable starting line-up Tuesday for the Prowlers will include five seniors and six juniors on offense, seven seniors and four juniors on defense, with six two-way starters.

Offensively, junior Chris Bjorgaard (6-2, 166) will start at quarterback, junior Mike Bendickson (5-9, 177) will be the fullback and senior Paul Brandt (6-0, 171) will be the halfback — all positions they held down last fall. Senior Nate Dalager (5-11, 165) and junior Brian Christianson (5-10, 160) will alternate at the wingback spot in the Prowlers' play-calling shuttle system.

Junior Chris Nelson (6-4, 180) and Bill Dicken (6-1, 200) will open at split end and tight end, respectively. Seniors Rod Hinrichs (5-9, 187) and Joe Drevlow (6-2, 236) will be the tackles, juniors Tom Anderson (5-11, 160) and Paul Spyhalski (5-8, 170) will start at guards and senior Jon Erickson (6-0, 170) will be the center.

Defensively, senior Tony Rondorf (5-10, 159) and Junior Jason Lee (5-11, 149) will be the ends, senior Elliot Baker (6-0, 218) and Dicken will man the tackles and Hinrichs will be the nose guard in the Prowlers' new five-man front that succeeds a discarded 4-4 set used last year.

Linebackers will be senior Rick Rosetta (5-10, 175) junior Scott Vedbraaten (5-11, 182) and Erickson, with Bjorgaard at safety, Christianson and Dalager at the corners in the secondary.

Either Rosetta or Nelson will handle the punting, with Nelson doing the placekicking. Brandt and Christianson will be the return men on kicks.

Blue Devils Lose Opener

Goodridge-Grygla made its Top of the State Conference debut Friday, losing a 14-8 decision to Tri-County in a 1986 season-opening high school football game played at Goodridge.

The Blue Devils, who defected from the North Tri-County Conference this fall, spotted Tri-County an 8-0 first quarter lead. Goodridge-Grygla came up with a second quarter safety, which was credited to Tony Moen, to pull within 8-2 at halftime, but gave up a third quarter touchdown to fall behind 14-2.

A 30-yard touchdown pass from halfback Shawn Groven to Paul Holthusen early in the fourth quarter made it close, but Goodridge-Grygla couldn't come up with the equalizer.

"The kids did what we asked them to do," said a Goodridge-Grygla team spokesman. "They did all right."

The Blue Devils host Hallock Friday in a 4 p.m. game at Grygla.

Kittson Co. North 0

Tom Blazek threw a 63-yard touchdown pass to Michael Nelson early in the fourth quarter to provide Middle River with a season-opening 8-0 Northern Lights win over Kittson County North.

Blazek then added the two-point conversion as the Skippers made a successful debut under their new lights and scoreboard. One of the biggest crowds ever to watch the Skippers was on hand under perfect weather conditions, pointed out Middle River coach Eldon Sparby.

It was an impressive performance by the Middle River defense, led by Nelson at an end and Tom Gullikson at middle linebacker. They were both credited with nine tackles.

"Defensively I thought we played a pretty good ball game," said Sparby. "I was very pleased with our defense for the first game of the year."

Gullikson, a 183-pound senior, was also the leader on offense with 18 carries for 79 yards, a bulk of the Skippers' 109 yards on the ground. Blazek was 3-for-5 in the air for 78 yards, getting most of those yards on the one touchdown pass.

"I thought we controlled the line of scrimmage more than they did," pointed out Sparby. "We had two other opportunities to score, but we just didn't get it across the line."

Middle River had a second down at the Kittson County North one-foot line in the first quarter, but picked up a couple of penalties and came up empty-handed. And the Skippers were inside the Cougars' 10-yard line in the third quarter but failed to score again.

The Skippers will be at Oslo-Alvarado Friday for a 3:30 p.m. game.

Stephen 26
Marshall Co. Central 14

Marshall County Central gave up 20 first quarter points and wound up losing a 26-14 Top of the State Conference game to Stephen Friday at Newfolden.

"We weren't very fired up at the start," admitted Marshall County Central coach Sam Gebhart. "We went through this last year, too. We give up a bunch of points right away, then decide to play some football."

Kelly Heggen scored all four Stephen touchdowns on runs of 11, 35 and 14 yards, plus a 35-yard interception return.

Marshall County Central made it easier for Heggen and the Tigers when the Nordics fumbled the ball away on the game-opening possession to set up the first Stephen score; netted zero yards on a punt on their second possession to set up the second Stephen touchdown; and threw the interception to Heggen on the first play of the second quarter for a 26-0 deficit.

The Nordics came back with a 14-point third quarter, scoring on a two-yard Danni Halvorson run and a 14-yard Shannon Leach run. A 38-yard return with a fumble recovery by Tom Bolstad set up the first Marshall County Central touchdown.

"At least we played better in the second half," said Gebhart. "We played fairly decent in the third quarter."

Marshall County Central picked up 146 yards rushing and 19 passing, with Halvorson netting 76 yards on 10 carries. The Nordics surrendered 250 yards on the ground and 31 yards in the air.

Defensively, Greg Grahn was the leader for the Nordics with 14 tackles starting at linebacker, but finishing at nose guard. Halvorson had 11 tackles, while Corey Peterson and Bolstad both had 10.

Marhsall County Central hosts Argyle Friday at 7:30 p.m.

Ulen-Hitterdahl 22
Oklee 8

Oklee coach Dale Svaren said before the 1986 season opener against Ulen-Hitterdahl that he was concerned about the Bobcats' lack of quickness, and that problem surfaced Friday in a 22-8 loss to the visiting Spartans Friday.

"We've got to get our feet moving," he said.

It wasn't a very good season-opening performance, offered Svaren. "Overall, our intensity has got to be there if we're goping to be successful," he explained.

Ulen-Hitterdahl scored single touchdowns in the second, third and fourth quarters. Oklee answered only with a 7-yard third quarter touchdown run by Todd Bergeron.

Greg Bishop led the Bobcats with 114 yards on 21 carries. Oklee totaled 155 yards on the ground and only four yards passing.

Defensively, Bergeron and Bishop, the linebackers, has 20 and 19 tackles, respectively, and cornerback Jeff Hamm had 14.

Oklee will be at Nevis Friday for a 3:30 p.m. game.

Plummer 28
Laporte-Akeley 24

Plummer gave up 24 first half points, but shut out Laporte-Akeley in the second half Friday for a season-opening 28-24 win at Laporte.

Laporte-Akeley scored on their first two possessions for a quick 16-0 lead, then after falling behind briefly, went into halftime with a 24-20 lead when quarterback Chris Oslin hit Rob Clyde with a 52-yard touchdown pass with just 14 seconds left in the first half.

Plummer did the only scoring in the second half, though, when the Cardinals took the second half kickoff downfield on a strong drive that produced a four-yard touchdown run by John Fisher.

Prowlers Face Test

Much emphasis has been put on improving the Thief River Falls offense going into the 1986 high school football season, which starts for the Prowlers Tuesday when they visit Grand Forks Red River.

And when you're coming off a winless 1985 season that saw the Prowlers score just one touchdown all year, you have to be more than a little concerned about your point production.

Installation of a wing-T offense with its deception designed to freeze the defense for a moment to give your blockers and backs an edge, plus the return of veterans who have made themselves bigger, stronger and faster with a weight training and conditioning program, should restore the Thief River Falls offense to respectability.

However, just as important to the success of the Prowlers this fall will be improvement on defense, where, without offensive support, they gave up an average of 27½ points per game a year ago. There's been a switch on defense, too, where the Prowlers have left a 4-4 set used in recent years in favor of a five-man front with three linebackers.

That defense will get a big test in the opener against Red River because the Roughriders feature a veteran, and talented offensive backfield.

"As a group, this might be the best overall backfield I've had," Red River coach Nick Cichy told Greg DeVillers of the Grand Forks-Herald.

Heading the backfield is Greg Murphy, who earned all-conference honors in the tough Eastern Dakota Conference as a sophomore last year. He has both speed and size, much in the same mold as the Prowlers' Paul Brandt, recognized as one of the top track sprinters in the area.

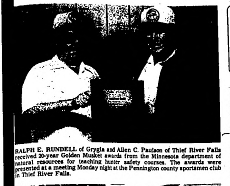
Tony Payne returns at fullback for the Roughriders, Dean Ramsett is back at slotback and Chris Barta is at quarterback, where he had two late-season starts a year ago.

"Murphy is as good as any runningback we've had," said Cichy, "maybe the best. Barta is as good a quarterback as I've had. He'll allow us to do more things like sprint-outs and play action. We'll get him outside, where he's a threat to run or throw. And Payne and Ramsett are both good backs," he told Devillers.

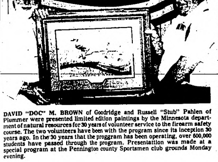
It'll be a tough opener for the Prowlers, one that will test both the Thief River Falls offense and defense.

Miscellaneous

+ Six Thief River Falls girls met post-season Section 8 qualifying times in the Prowlers' first outing of the 1986 high school swimming season Friday, an 89-79 win at Brainerd. The group included Laura Beito, 200-yard freestyle and 500-yard freestyle; Brenda Russell, 200-yard freestyle and 100-yard freestyle; Christy Puetz, 200-yard individual medley and 100-yard butterfly; Michelle Turenne, 100-yard butterfly; Marci Turenne, 100-yard backstroke; and Jenny Ness, 100-yard breaststroke.



RALPH E. RUNDELL of Grygla and Allen C. Paulson of Thief River Falls received 20-year Golden Musket awards from the Minnesota department of natural resources for teaching hunter safety courses. The awards were presented at a meeting Monday night at the Pennington county sportsmen club in Thief River Falls.



DAVID "DOC" M. BROWN of Goodridge and Russell "Stub" Pahlen of Plummer were presented limited edition paintings by the Minnesota department of natural resources for 30 years of volunteer service to the firearm safety course. The two volunteers have been with the program since its inception 30 years ago. In the 30 years that the proggram has been operating, over 600,000 students have passed through the program. Presentattion was made at a special program at the Pennington county Sportsmen club grounds Monday evening.

Volunteers Help Make Safety First

by David Hill
Times Reporter

Firearm safety in Minnesota reached a mile mark in its history recently when it turned 30 years old. Firearm safety courses in Minnesota began in 1956 and, since then, have seen nearly 600,000 students pass the course.

But without volunteers it probably would not have been possible, said Dave Carpenter of the Minnesota department of natural resources regional office in Bemidji. Last Monday two volunteers from this area were given special recognition for 30 years of service.

Dr. David M. "Doc" Brown of Goodridge and Russell "Stub" Pahlen of Plummer were presented a limited edition painting by the Minnesota department of natural resources recently during a banquet at the Sportsman's club in Thief River Falls. Each has voluntarily participated as an instructor in the Minnesota department of natural resources safety courses for 30 years.

Carpenter said he is aware of only two 30-year instructors — both in this region. Carpenter added that he is not sure, but believes they may be the only two 30-year instructors in the state.

About 18,000 to 20,000 students pass through the courses each year. Carpenter believes accident statistics support his claim that Minnesota has one of the best safety programs in the country; and, volunteers like "Doc" Brown and "Stub" Pahlen and many others are the ones who make it all possible.

Last year, Carpenter said, there was only one fatality during hunting season. There wer signigicantly more fatalities each year before the program was implemented 30 years ago.

But only with the help of volunteers has the program continued to serve public safety. The cost to teach students, if Minnesota took it upon itself to pay for educating students; would be incredible if not impossible, Carpenter said. In this region, composed of 22 Northwestern counties, there are over 400 volunteers.

"Stub" Pahlen said he is a firm believer in the program. He strongly believes in its value to students and instructors. Pahlen said that no matter how long a person teaches he will always find something new to learn from the course.

He can't remember how many students he has taught in the past 30 years and believes the number of instructors he has taught is anywhere from 10 to 15. The program as he remembers it from 1957 has seen very few changes. There have been a few changes, but not many, he said, from the one that was once directed by Lee Kuluvar, which is a credit to him. Overall, he believes that it began as an excellent program and continues to be an excellent program today.

At the end of the banquet where he was honored, he said "Doc" Brown and he agreed that the teaching experience has been a very rewarding one. When asked what it takes to be a volunteer, Pahlen said, "It doesn't take an extreme amount of work, but you have to enjoy kids and be able to communicate with the students and teach them responsibility and importance of what they use and carry."

Mike O'Brien, an enforcement official with the Minnesota department of natural resources, believes all of the volunteers should be commended for the effort and sacrifice they make to educate the youth of today. They show them how to carry themselves and their firearms in a manner that is safe and responsible toward others and the environment.

Since the program began it has also grown, O'Brien said. Today it also encompasses a snowmobile and ATV safety course. The ATV safety course is the newest addition to Minnesota's public safety programs.

All-terrain vehicle or ATV safety courses are now mandated by law in Minnesota for drivers age 12-16. These courses will begin this fall. Carpenter and O'Brien said there is a need for volunteer instructors. Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer safety instructor should contact the nearest Minnesota department of natural resource enforcement official. Carpenter said the certification process only takes about two to three hours and can be a valuable service to youngsters in Minnesota.

DNR NEWS

Several important dates are approaching for hunters planning to sign up, for drawings to obtain permits during the coming seasons, the Department of Natural Resources reminded this week.

Firearms deer hunters who want to apply for an anterless permit in Minnesota this year must have their application for the drawing in no later then September 8.

On week later, on September 15, will be the deadline for goose hunters who want to apply to reserve a shooting station at the Lac qui Parle and Thief Lake Wildlife Management Areas.

Details on how to apply for these various permits are available by contacting the Department of Natural Resources Information Center. Phone 296-6157, or out-state toll free 1-800-9747 (ask for DNR).

Permits to take anterless deer and to participate in special deer hunts will be mailed out about October 25 to persons who were successful in the permit drawings.

DNR Wildlife officials said those who applied for permits should not call the Department to see if they were chosen in the drawings until at least October 28 because the information will not be accessible in the computer before then.

"By that date," said DNR Wildlife Chief Roger Holmes, "the successful applicants will have received their permits in the mail."

Thereafter, he said DNR personnel will handle questions from applicants who believe they should have received a permit because of their presumed preference rating in the drawing system.

Lead Shot Phase Out

Minnesota waterfowl hunters have been reminded by the Department of Natural Resources that this is the last year lead shot may be used anywhere in the state to hunt ducks, geese and coots.

Starting in the fall of 1987, steel shot will be required to hunt waterfowl everywhere in Minnesota. Currently, steel shot is required on all state wildlife and federal waterfowl management areas administered by the Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and on certain other waters, zones and refuges as spelled out in the waterfowl hunting regulations.

(Copies of the 1986 regulations should be available from county auditors and license agents about September 20, said DNR wildlife officials.)

DNR Wildlife Chief Roger Holmes, said hunters buying quantities of shot shells, or components to load their own shells, should bear in mind that any lead shot purchased for waterfowl hunting must be used up this year.

He noted that Iowa and Nebraska have already banned lead shot and many other states plans to do so in 1987.

"Under a recently announced federal regulation," said Holmes, "steel shot will be required nationwide to hunt waterfowl by 1991."

DNR Auction

A public auction of firearms, fishing equipment and other items used in the outdoors will be conducted by the Department of Natural Resources in St. Paul on Saturday, Sept. 6.

Items were confiscated from violators of Minnesota game and fish laws, and money received from their sale is deposited in the state game and fish fund.

The auction will be held at the St. Paul Capitol Hill National Guard Armory Auditorium, located at 12th and Cedar streets, starting at 9:30 a.m.

Items will be sold on a cash only basis; no checks will be accepted. No firearms will be sold to any person less than 18 years of age and nonresidents must have a firearm dealers license.

No physical inspection of the items will be permitted due to security considerations. A list describing the items will be available at the door.

Included in the auction are 116 firearms (45 shotguns and 71 rifles) 79 fishing rods reels, four compound bows and one canoe.

Also up for auction are various miscellaneous items consisting of two aluminum boats, 25 horsepower motor, clay pigeon thrower, speargun, gill nets, ice auger, spears and flashlights.

Boating Death Toll Down

Department of Natural Resources reports that there have been 12 boating fatalities on Minnesota waters so far this year, down 40 per cent from the 20 deaths in the same period last year.

"We feel that the strengthened boating while intoxicated (BWI) law is playing a significant role in reducing the number of watercraft fatalities," said Tim Smalley, DNR boating safety specialist.

"Media coverage of the changes in the law, continued emphasis on boater education and stepped up enforcement efforts have all helped make this one of the safest boating seasons so far."

Revised BWI law, signed into law this spring, makes it mandatory for a boater suspected of operating a motorboat under the influence to submit to a test to determine the level of intoxication. If found to be over .10 per cent, the operator may be subject to a fine, the loss of motorboat operating privileges and a possible jail sentence.

There have been about 60 BWI arrests since the law went into effect.

"It's interesting to note that only 16 per cent of the boating deaths this year are alcohol related, while last year it was over 50 per cent," said Smalley. "That indicates to me that folks are being a lot more careful when it comes to using alcohol while operating motorboats."

He said non-fatal watercraft accidents have also dropped in the same period, from 139 last year to 113 so far this year.

DNR Tree Orders

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources has announced that orders for tree planting stock to be shipped the spring of 1987 will be acepted by the Department's Forestry Division beginning Sept. 1, 1986.

Orders will be accepted until March 20, 1987, or until supplies are exhausted. Orders for tree seedlings to be planted in the designated 14 southeast Minnesota counties will be accepted until February 15, 1987. Minimum order is 500 seedlings.

Tree seedlings are sold for the purpose of reforestation, erosion control (windbreaks — shelterbelts), soil and water conservation, and for permanent food and cover for wildlife. The trees may not be planted for ornamental purposes or resold or given away with roots attached.

Cancellation or substitutilns of any order will not be permitted after 30 days of receipt of original order or March 1, whichever comes first.

Prices for seedlings are:

Conifer seedlings — $75 per 1,000; $40 per 500; $11 per 100.

Deciduous seedlings — $95 per 1,000; $50 per 500; $14 per 100.

Conifer transplants — $165 per 1,000; $85 per 500; $21 per 100.

Wildlife Packet — $67 per Packet.

Norway Pine seedlings, when ordered in quantities of 10,000 or more and in multiples of thousands, are available at a cost of $60 per 1,000. These seedlings will be "bed-run, estimated stock; they will not be counted nor sorted at the nursery.

Species available this year are:

Conifer seedlings — White Pine, White Spruce, Norway Pine, Colorado Spruce, Jack Pine, White Cedar, Scotch Pine (Riga), Norway Spruce, Black Spruce, Balsam Fir, Red Cedar.

Deciduous seedlings — Green Ash, Siouxland Poplar, Silver Maple, Poplar, Black Walnut, Caragana, Ginnala Maple.

Conifer Transplants — Norway Pine, Colorado Spruce, White Spruce.

Wildlife Packet — 500 trees; a mixture of White Spruce, Caragana, Wid Plum, and Ginnala Maple.

Price lists and order forms can be obtained from DNR Forestry Offices, ASCS Offices, SCS Offices, County Extension Offices, or by contacting DNR Forestry, P.O. Box 95, Willow River, MN 55795, (218) 372-3183 or DNR Forestry, DNR Building, 500 Lafayette Rd., St. Paul, MN 5515-4044 (612) 296-4480.

Blue Devils Lose Football Opener 14-8

"We had trouble stopping the three-four-yard runs in the first half," explained Plummer coach Gary Brantl, who said the Cardinals were hurt by the power football of Laporte-Akeley at the start. "But we adjusted, and did a pretty good job stopping them in the second half."

Earlier Plummer touchdowns were scored by Joe Peters, on a 15-yard pass from Wade Grinde; Jim Skjerven, a five-yard run after he had recovered a Laporte-Akeley fumble at the five-yard line; and Peters, on a 23-yard pass from Grinde.

Skjerven, a 5-6, 160-pound sophomore was impressive with a hard-running style that netted 115 yards on 20 carries. Fisher added 60 yards on 19 tries as Plummer collected 173 yards on the ground. The Cardinals also netted 111 yards in the air as Grinde completed 9 of 20 pass attempts. Peters caught 4 passes for 67 yards and Shane Freyholtz caught 3 for 24.

Defensively, middle linebacker Neil Huotari was in on 18 tackles. Freyholtz, an end, was in on 10 stops, including three behind the line of scrimmage, and linebacker Lonnie Longtin was also credited with 10 tackles.

"You've got to be pleased with the win, of course," said Brantl. "But we've got lots of things to work on yet."

Plummer visits Clearbrook Friday for a 7:30 p.m. North Tri-County Conference opener.

Area Sports Briefs

Junior Varsity, Sophomore Football

Thief River Falls sophomore football team will open its 1986 season Thursday with a 7 p.m. game against East Grand Forks at Prowler Field.

A schedule change will find the Thief River Falls freshmen delaying their season opener one week to Thursday, September 11, when they visit Grand Forks Schroeder Junior High for a 4:15 p.m. game.

Shortage of players because of vacation schedules forced Thief River Falls officials to postpone a scheduled Thursday, Stepember 4, opener against Crookston to September 25.

Hole-In-One

Frank Womack recorded a hole-in-one Friday at the Thief River Golf Club.

Womack aced the 146-yard No. 4 hole with a 5-wood.

He was golfing with J.J. Womack, Bob Jury, Bob Bridges and Grace Bridges.

Ducks Unlimited Banquet

There are still advance sale tickets available for the Northwest Chapter of Ducks Unlimited annual fund-raising banquet and auction, scheduled to be held Tuesday, September 9, at the Thief River Falls Curling Club.

Advance sale tickets are priced at $30. Tickets at the door the evening of the banquet will be priced at $35. Tickets are available at Sjoberg's Cable TV, TG Sporting Goods, Thune-Upham Insurance and from members of the Ducks Unlimited committee.

A ladies and couples night is set for Monday, September 8, and the annual Greenwing banquet for youngsters will be held Sunday, September 28, at the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls.

Media-Photo Night

Thief River Falls football coach Jeff Mumm wanted an opportunity to offer a public thank-you to the people who made the Prowlers' first media-photo night a success Thursday.

He said the players enjoyed the opportunity to present themselves to representatives from The Times and KTRF-KSNR Radio, and to pose for family pictures in their game uniforms.

"It was great," said Mumm. "We're looking forward to doing it again."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Notice is Hereby Given That default has occurred in the conditions of that certain mortgage, dated the 18th day of June, 1979, executed by Rayton Dargon and Doreen Dargon, husband and wife as mortgagors to Red Lake County State Bank as mortgagee, filed for record in the office of the County Recorder in and for the County of Pennington, and State of Minnesota, on the 27th day of June, 1979, and recorded in Book 158 of Records, page 468; that no action or proceeding has been instituted at law to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof; that the original principal amount secured by said mortgage was Twenty-five Thousand and no-100ths ($25,000.00) Dollars; that there is due and claimed to be due upon said mortgage, including interest to date hereof, the sum of Eight Thousand Nine Hundred Fifty-three and 54-100ths ($8,953.54) Dollars, and that pursuant to the power of sale therein contained, said mortgage will be foreclosed and the tract of land lying and being in the County of Pennington, State of Minnesota, described as follows, to-wit: Lots Ten (10), Eleven (11), and Twelve (12), of Block Fifty (50) in the Townsite of St. Hilaire, according to the official plat thereof on file and of record in the office of the Pennington County Recorder, will be sold by the sheriff of said county at public auction on the 30th day of October, 1986, at 10:00 o'clock A.M., at Thief River Falls (Lobby of the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center) in the City of Thief River Falls in said county and state, to pay the debt then secured by said mortgage and taxes, if any, on said premises and the costs and disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption by the mortgagors, his personal representative or assigns within one year from date of sale.

PART OF THE PROPERTY TO BE SOLD CONTAINS YOUR HOUSE. YOU MAY DESIGNATE THE AREA OF HOMESTEAD TO BE SOLD AND REDEEMED SEPARATELY.

YOU MAY DESIGNATE THE HOUSE YOU OCCUPY AND ANY AMOUNT OF THE PROPERTY AS A HOMESTEAD. THE DESIGNATED HOMESTEAD PROPERTY MUST CONFORM TO THE LOCAL ZONING ORDINANCES AND BE COMPACT SO THAT IT DOES NOT UNREASONABLY REDUCE THE VALUE OF THE REMAINING PROPERTY.

YOU MUST PROVIDE THE PERSON FORECLOSING ON THE PROPERTY, THE SHERIFF, AND THE COUNTY RECORDER WITH A COPY OF THE LEGAL DESCRIPTION OF THE HOMESTEAD YOU HAVE DESIGNATED BY TEN (10) BUSINESS DAYS BEFORE THE DATE THE PROPERTY IS TO BE SOLD.

Dated July 31, 1986.

Area 4-H Exhibitors Place Well During Minn. State Fair

Pennington county had 55 4-H members represented during the first encampment of the Minnesota state fair August 20-23. They are among the several thousand 4-H'ers from every county in the state participating in the fair.

Heather Olson of the Kratka 4-H club received a purple ribbon on her child development project — the highest award given at the state fair.

Other 4-H'ers exhibitors and their ribbon placings were:

Black River Club — Kyle Kisch, computers, red ribbon;

City View Club — Julie Berard, clothing, blue;

Happy Acres Club — Cory Bugge, small engines, blue; Troy Carlson, indoor gardening, blue; Robby Finstad, crops, blue; Paul Johnson, forestry, red; Lorie Mostrom, needlearts, blue; Carla Sorenson, home environment, blue; and Mike Halsa, bicycle contest, second place;

Highlanding Club — Derek Howard, geology, red;

Kratka Club — Tim Parnow, fishing, blue;

Satellite Club — Brett Mills, electric, red;

Silverton Club — Patti Bjerke, wildlife, blue; Karla Rupprecht, food preservation, red; Brenda Russell, photography, blue; and Heidi Shafland, food revue, red;

Smiley Club — Faye Erickson, conservation, blue; and Kenneth Geske, shop, red;

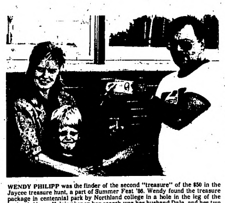
Steiner Club — Mike Jorde, vet science, blue; and Jennifer Ose, food education, blue.

Demonstrating at the state fair were Marie Gonsdrowski of the Silverton club who received a blue ribbon in the clothing project; Karla Rupprecht, Silverton and Jenny Ose, Steiner, who received a red ribbon for their team demonstration in the foods project; and Susanne Johnson of Happy Acres and Marie Gonsorowski of Silverton who received participation ribbons for their youth-in-action demonstrations.

The following also received participation ribbons for their activities during the first encampment: Nickolena Mostrom-Ose, Steiner, creative arts; Tammy Alberg, Happy Acres, fashion revue (clothes you make); Jolene Gonsorowski, Silverton, creative arts; and Susie Thune, Happy Acres, fashion revue (clothes you buy).

Happy Acres 4-H club represented Pennington county with their share-the-fun act entitled, "Welcome to the Human Race." Members who participated were Erica and Tammy Alberg, Sara Batalden, Stacie Hansen, Jana Johnson, Karina and Melanie Krepp, Rachael Marshall, Lorie Mostrom, Sarah Mugaas, Kimberly and Allison Myers, Cami and Carla Sorenson, Tany and Nick Stickler, Tom and Jeny Stumpf, Sheila Wheeler, Adam and Cory Bugge, Matthew and Troy Carlson, Mike and Steve Conley, Jared Ellingson, Chrtis Ellison, Robby Finstad, Mike and Tony Halsa, Tony Mapes, Scott Mostrom, Wyatt Smith, Kelly Swanson and Brett Torkelson.

Adult chaperones accompanying the first encampment of 4-h'ers to the state fair were county extension director Deb Zak, Bev Rupprecht, Kathy Carlson, Marlene Johnson, Madalyn Vigen, Linda Ulrich, Sharon Bugge and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Halvorson.



WENDY PHILIPP was the finder of the second "treasure" of the $50 in the Jaycee treasure hunt, a part of Summer Fest '86. Wendy found the treasure package in centennial park by Northland college in a hole in the leg of the horizontal bars. Helping her on her search was her husband Dale, and her two nephews, Hamilton and Chane. Shown presenting her with a $50 bill is Brent Waale, chairman of the event. The Jaycees congratulate the finders, Wendy Philipp and Shelly Stenberg, who was the $100 treasure finder.

Area Students Receive Degrees At Moorhead SU

Several Thief River Falls area students received their degrees from Moorhead state university during summer commencement exercises August 15 in the center for the arts auditorium.

Included were Michael Contos of Fergus Falls, 1981 graduate of Lincoln high school and son of Richard Contos of Thief River Falls and Annette Contos of Fergus Falls, bachelor of arts degree in biology; Corey Nelson, 1980 graduate of Lincoln and child of John Nelson, bachelor of science degree in accounting; Mark Grabowska, 1981 graduate of Goodridge high school and son of Albert Grabowska, bachelor of science degree in medical technology; and Joy Larson, 1981 graduate of Lincoln and daughter of Duane Larson of Thief River Falls, bachelor of social work degree.

Public Meeting On Aquifer Heat Storage Sept. 3

Results of the first long-term aquifer thermal energy storage project will be discussed at a 7 p.m. meeting September 3 in the University of Minnesota St. Paul student center.

The meeting is part of the review of the project, which involves removing and heating groundwater, storing it underground for two months and drawing it out again to measure the heat recovery. University of Minnesota scientists recently completed one round of such tests and need permission from the Minnesota Pollution Control agency and other state agencies for a second round.

Storage of excess heat in groundwater for winter use may be feasible in some areas, the scientists say.

Riverland Ass'n. Brochure Gives Area Information

Red Lake Riverland association has developed a brochure which contains information of interest to tourists about the cooperating communities of Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Crookston and East Grand Forks.

According to Susan Lillevold of Thief River Falls, publicity chairman for the association, the brochure includes a calendar of events for the region and a map listing historical sites. Copies are available from chamber of commerce offices in the four communities.

Marjorie Espe Attends Future Homemaker Meet

Marjorie Espe, Thief River Falls, attended the Future Homemakers of America August planning workshop held recently at the College of Saint Benedict. District and state officers from all over the state attended the workshop to plan for the FHA fall conventions, held in each of Minnesota's 13 districts during October and November.

State officers presented workshops to district officers on such topics as community service, nutrition and families of the future.

Marshall History Society Moves To Winter Hours

Marshall County Historical society will begin new winter and fall hours after the Labor Day weekend. The office at Settler's Square will be open: Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in Warren from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. until June 1, 1987.

The staff is available for special programs for organizations or groups. For further information contact Jean Ranstrom, curator-director, during office hours at 745-4803.

Waste Management Board To Meet In Crookston Sept. 11

Minnesota waste management board will hold a special meeting in Crookston from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Thursday, September 11, in the Anglers' Haven room of Northland Lodge.

The board is expected to act on Polk county's request for a $1.5 million dollar grant to help develop a solid waste resource recovery facility in Fosston. The proposed $7.9 million incinerator is designed to convert most of the solid waste currently produced in Polk, Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater and Beltrami counties into steam energy for an adjacent Land O'Lakes milk processing plant.

The waste management board is responsible for developing and overseeing solid and hazardous waste management programs in Minnesota as it emphasizes waste reduction, recycling and other alternatives to landfills.

The board oversees a program which has available a total of $15 million in grants to local governments to help fund solid waste projects.

Grant Received For Program In Homesharing

Northwest Minnesota multi-county housing authority recently received a grant to establish an elderly homesharing program. The housing authority was established to assist in providing safe, appropriate and affordable housing for low and moderate income residents of Northwest Minnesota.

The grant will be used to develop and operate an elderly home-sharing program throughout Region I which includes the counties of Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau. The program is intended to make it possible for more elderly homeowners to remain in their homes by matching low to moderate income elderly homeowners with homeseekers who will contribute rent or services in exchange for sharing the home. This service should help the elderly homeowners stay in their homes longer than they would have without the tenants and improve their quality of life at home.

The homesharing program will be operated by the three community action agencies serving Region I, including Northwest community action, Badger (528-3258); Tri-Valley opportunity council, Crookston (281-5832); and Inter-County community council, Oklee (796-5144).

The program will be operated through the outreach staff of these community action agencies. Anyone interested in participating in the program, or anyone desiring more information should contact the appropriate community action agency listed above.

EPS And WIC Programs Slated For September

Early and periodic screening will be offered in September along with the Women, Infants and Children (WIC) supplemental nutritional educational program.

Screening checks will be held on hearing and vision, hematocrit determination, urinalysis and physical assessments, Denver developmental testing, dental assessments and instruction in care of teeth. Schedule dates and places include the following:

September 4, Red Lake Falls community center; September 9, Oklee community center; September 18, Redeemer Lutheran church in Thief River Falls (WIC only); and September 19, Redeemer Lutheran in Thief River Falls. Immunization will be given at all clinics from 9 to 9:30 a.m.

Applications For Job Training And Green Thumb Taken

Staff member from the Thief River Falls job training office will be available to accept applications for enrollment into the job training and green thumb program from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., September 11 at the Greenbush city clerk's office and 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. September 9 at the Grygla civic center building.

Job training is for unemployed, unskilled, semi-skilled and disadvantaged residents who are seeking permanent employment. Job training services are free, confidential and tailored to the individual. Green thumb is a part-time employment program to provide additional income for persons 55 and over who are living on fixed incomes.

For more information, contact the staff person at the location listed, or call the job training office in Thief River Falls at (218) 681-7350 or, in the Roseau area, call (218) 463-2411.

Clawson Directs State Council For Handicapped

Minnesota state council for the handicapped has named John Clawson as its new executive director.

Clawson received his bachelor of arts degree from Augsburg college and his master of divinity degree from Northwestern Lutheran Theological seminary. Upon graduation he served as a staff chaplain at the Hazelden foundation. From 1975 to 1984 he was the state representative from District 19B, and most recently was assistant commissioner of the Minnesota department of human services.

Bemidji AVTI Offers Workshop

Bemidji AVTI adult extension division is offering a "Teaming Up for Sucess" workshop to be held Wednesday, September 24, from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Bemidji Holiday Inn. For more information and registration call the Bemidji AVTI adult extension office at (218) 751-4137.

More Said Than Done At Area Farm Session

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

After all was said and done, more was said than done.

That circumstance prevailed again Tuesday when approximately 80 farmers and other interested persons gathered at the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute for an informational meeting on Farmers Home administration procedures and programs.

If anything constructive for debt-plagued Minnesota farmers came out of the meeting, it was assurance that the state attorney general's office and department of agriculture administration would investigate the state FmHA's apparent interpretation of federal FmHA regulations on debt settlement and liquidation.

In essence, it was pointed out by several people at the meeting, the state FmHA office has directed county supervisors to advise farmers that they must liquidate before getting into debt settlement. But nobody knew for sure that the interpretation was being made nationally or if, indeed, the regulations require that type of procedure.

"If you people up there at the table can't agree among yourselves what the regulations are," one bewildered farmer in the audience asked, "How in the world are we farmers supposed to know what they mean?" The question struck a responsive chord among the farmers in attendance who broke into supportive applause.

The "people at the table" included Jim Nichols, Minnesota commissioner of agriculture; Jack Tunheim, representing the state attorney general's office; Jerry Carlson, district director of the Farmers Home administration; Francis Koehmstedt, assistant district director of FmHA; Jim Massey, executive director of farm legal services; Rep. Wally Sparby; Thief River Falls; and Sen. LeRoy Stumpf, Plummer, who arranged and moderated the meeting.

Sen. Stumpf said the meeting had been called as a result of the large number of "adverse action" letters which had been sent to delinquent FmHA borrowers in recent weeks. There was much confusion about what might be happening and what options such borrowers might have, Sen. Stumpf said, and it was decided to involve people who should have he answers in a general meeting.

It soon became apparent that there are no clear-cut answers and the three-hour meeting affirmed that fact.

People conducting the meeting skillfully avoided allowing discussion of personalities, including earlier demands made by a group of borrowers for dismissal of Pennington county FmHA director Randy Hemmerlin. Commissioner Nichols emphasized that the goal was not to get involved in personalities but to talk issues. He said that the Farmers Home administration has been a great help to many farm operators, citing his home county where he said "a third of the farmers wouldn't be farming today without the FmHA."

Jerry Carlson of the district FmHA office said that some 50 to 60 per cent of the borrowers in his district were delinquent by $100 or more as of Dec. 31, 1985, and that they were the ones who were receiving adverse action letters. He said it was likely true that more of those letters were being sent in Pennington and Marshall counties because there is a greater degree of delinquency here.

Carlson emphasized that FmHA is required to look at every borrower exactly the same way and does not have the authority to pick and choose who to take action against. He also admitted that county and district personnel are inexperienced or untrained in bankruptcy or tax requirements and that they are working with regulations either being currently formulated or which have been issued and then withdrawn.

He also cited a problem with regulations whereby a property owner is required to vacate the property under a voluntary conveyance procedure, but is required to be living on the property to qualify for dwelling retention provisions.

Jack Tunheim of the attorney general's office, a former Newfolden resident, said that the "whole question is one of fairness." He said the mediation system set up by the legislature is being challenged in the courts by Farm Credit services and there is a major question if the state has the authority to do what it did in requiring mediation. He also said the state attorney general's office has a hotline number available and attorneys experienced in agricultural law available.

Jim Massey of farm legal services said that Farm Credit services has taken the "gentlemanly approach" to mediation by challenging the system in the courts but participating in the procedure. Farmers Home administration, he said, has simply refused to participate and claims the state has no authority to compel compliance.

Massey said he has been working with farmers for four years and it is hard to figure out where the problem is. He said it doesn't make sense to him for FmHA to dispossess a farmer, take a loss by writing off the debt, then selling the land to someone else at a low interest rate who can show a cash flow that the original operator could have with the same write-off.

If there are "bad guys in the scenario," he said, it appears they are in Washington, DC. He said it doesn't appear that FmHA considers debt

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

JERRY CARLSON, district director for the Farmers Home administration (FmHA), responded to questions Tuesday morning at an informational meeting conducted at the Thief River Falls AVTI. About 80 people, primarily interested farmers, attended the meeting.

JIM MASSEY, executive director of farm legal services, gave some views on his interpretation of FmHA regulations at Tuesday morning's meeting at the Thief River Falls AVTI. His main advice to farmers facing foreclosure or other action was to go slow.

Area Schools In General Holding Enrollment Well

Area school officials were generally surprised on opening day when enrollments turned out to be somewhat higher than expected, according to information received by the Times in a telephone survey.

Marshall county central schools, which includes the high school in Newfolden and elementary schools in Viking and Newfolden, had total enrollment of 465 this year, including 212 in the high school, 160 at the Newfolden elementary and 87 at the Viking elementary. An increase to about 490 students had been expected.

Plummer school had total enrollment on opening day of 235, one more than the 234 projected and down seven from the 241 enrolled on opening day a year ago.

Goodridge school had 250 enrolled on the first day, a drop of 20 from 1985 opening day, and just under the 253 projection made by school administration.

Oklee schools had 347 enrolled for opening day of 1986, a decline of three students from the 350 enrolled last year and slightly above preschool expectations.

Grygla, Gatzke and Skime schools had combined enrollment of 294 this year, a drop of 16 from the 310 enrolled on opening day of 1985.

At Middle River there were 219 enrolled in all classes, including a projection of 19 in kindergarten which will not start until later. The 110 in high school and 109 in elementary compare with a total enrollment of 231 a year ago.

Strandquist school district held up well and was the only district in the area to show an increase in enrollment, advancing from 115 on opening day a year ago to 116 this year. The count was higher then expected.

CONCENTRATION was evident as Heather Hallstrom worked to fill out a peg board during opening day of school Tuesday. She is a student in the kindergarten program at Washington elementary school. Kindergarten enrollment totaled 167 this year, down 19 from a year ago, as total K-12 enrollment in Thief River Falls public schools was down 26 students to 2,348.

TRF School Enrollment Slides For Ninth Year

Twenty-six fewer students than a year ago attended Thief River Falls public schools on opening day Tuesday — the ninth successive year in which enrollment has declined. The drop of 26 was the largest number since a loss of 99 students from the 1982 and 1983 year.

Most notable decrease this year is in kindergarten where total enrollment on opening day was 167 — down from 19 a year ago. The kindergarten total includes eight pupils in a special developmental kindergarten program at Knox elementary school where there are also two regular kindergarten classes of 21 pupils each.

Opening day enrollment this year benefits from 21 students in pre-school classes which are included in the opening day total. Last year there were about 30 students in pre-school programs but the classes did not start until after the school year begun. If the pre-school total was deducted on a comparative basis this year, enrollment would be 2,327 and the difference between 1985 and 1986 would have been 47 instead of only 26 students.

Actual enrollment of 2,348 was above the estimated enrollment of 2,317 which had been projected by school officials. Administrators had said the enrollment of students whose parents would be attending the AVTI would be an unknown number, and AVTI enrollment is expected to hit near record totals this year. First day AVTI enrollment was the second highest ever and only 10 behind the previous record established in 1981 (see separate story in this issue).

Enrollment of students in grades one through five dropped by 23 students from 873 a year ago to 850 this year. Both totals include the special education students which are not counted in the K-5 grade count. Franklin middle school enrollment is down only four students from 539 to 535 while Lincoln high school is down only three students from 778 to 775.

Dr. Leo Ruberto, superintendent of schools, noted that the kindergarten numbers this year were reduced by the decision of a number of parents to withhold their children because their birth dates were close to the September 1 enrollment deadline. He also said that opening day enrollments are subject to fluctuation for a number of causes as they are every year, but that the later start this year (after Labor Day) would minimize the effect of such events as the state fair on opening day attendance.

From a financial standpoint, Dr. Ruberto said that the decrease in number of kindergarten students affects the district the least since they are counted as only one-half unit on the basic aid formula. Elementary students are counted as on unit and high school students in grades seven through 12 as 1.4 units on the state aid reimbursement formula.

It was 13 years ago when the Thief River Falls public schools established the record enrollment of 3,295 on opening day — 947 more students than attended on opening day this year. Since the record was set, enrollment has declined every year with the exception of 1978 when enrollment gained by one student over the previous year from 3,051 to 3,052.

Rate of decline has eased considerably in the past several years. This year's drop of 26 students compares with a decline of 10 in 1985 and seven in 1984, while in 1983 the drop was 99 and in 1982 it was 176 the largest decline in any one year since enrollment began its down hill slide.

A list of enrollment by schools this year is as follows with last year's comparative figures in parentheses.

Northrop — Total enrollment 282 (303); kindergarten, 45 (52), grade one, 49 (53), grade two, 52 (52), grade three, 50 (52), grade four, 43 (44), and grade five 43 (50).

Citizens Raise Stink Over Lagoon System

by David Hill
Times Reporter

It probably wouldn't surprise anyone if it was suddenly announced that the sewage lagoons stink. After all it is sewage. But, "it's enough to make a person gag," said one city councilman who visited a resident's home near the Thief River Falls lagoons.

At the Thief River Falls city council meeting last Tuesday night many councilmen mentioned objections to the smell were brought to their attention by area citizens. While citizens brought it to the attention of councilmen, southerly winds apparently brought it to the attention of residents near the lagoons.

Enid Sande, who lives with her husband Rolland just north of the lagoons, said she feels like a prisoner in her own house. Not only is the smell bad but the bugs are so thick they drape over her house and when washed off leave stains. On warmer evenings she can't go outside because the bugs are so thick. Sweeping is a daily and tiresome chore.

Arlene Brandt, who also lives just north of the lagoons, is also disturbed by the smell. Although Arlene believes, as does Enid Sande, that the smell and bugs are worse in spring and fall....and any warm day the wind blows from the south. They both believe that this year has been especially bad.

Bud Enge, waste water superintendent, said the smell and bugs are usually a periodic problem. But he doesn't believe it has changed significantly over the past few years. He is checking into the problem, however.

Enge said he is not sure where the suspected increase is coming from and just doesn't want to blame anyone for the smell and bugs at this time. He also isn't convinced the problem is as bad as some people seem to insist it is. He believes the worst period was two weeks ago when there was too little sun and wind to help the lagoons do their job, which is to process sewage.

Thief River Falls city council pointed a shaky finger last Tuesday at the expanded Land O'Lakes turkey processing in Thief River Falls as the possible cause. However, they held off on any formal accusations until test results are completed.

Two types of tests through a private firm are being done on the lagoons. The first determines the BOD or Bio-chemical Oxygen Demand level, which by law can be 15 milligrams or less. The BOD test determines how much oxygen the bacteria uses. A BOD level that is too high could spell the death of a lagoon. Bacteria is needed to help the shallow pond process sewage.

The second test determines the total suspended solids, which can be 30

Diane Narlock And Brian Rokke Celebration Of Marriage

Diane Mary Narlock and Brian Keith Rokke joined in the celebration of marriage June 7 at St. Peter and Paul Catholic church in Warren. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Syl Narlock, Warren, and Violet Rokke of Richfield and the late Einar Rokke.

Rev. James Bernauer and Rev. Steven Estrem officiated at the double ring, 3 p.m. ceremony. Scripture readers were Shawn and Mike Hagstrom, friends of the couple. Donald Narlock, brother of the bride, sang "O Lord Most Holy" and Wendy Balzejewski, friend of the couple, sang "How Majestic Is Your Name" as the prelude. They sand "The Gift of Love" in duet during the lighting of the unity candle. All present at the celebration joined in the hymns, "Let All Things Now Living" and "God of Love by Your Indwelling." Pianist was Suzette Judovsky and organist, Sheila Nelson, both friends of the couple.

The bride and groom welcomed the guests as they arrived.

Piano and organ joined together in playing the processional, Pachelbel's "Canon in D" as the bride was escorted to the altar by her parents. The altar area was graced with two candelabra of interlocking rings, decorated with sprengeri, and flower arrangements of peach gladioli and white crysanthemums. Darrel Narlock, the bride's brother, served as altar boy.

The bride wore a white matte taffeta gown featuring a natural waistline and fitted bodice with sheer insert and lace medallion at the throat, and leg-o-mutton sleeves detailed with fabric bows and cut lace work that extended over the hand. Double rows of taffeta ruffles and Chantilly lace formed an apron effect at the front of the skirt, flowing to a semi-cathedral train. In her hair she wore a floral bridal wreath with attached pouf veil, and carried a tapering cascade bouquet of Sonja roses, stephanotis, white pixy carnations, babies' breath and sprengeri.

Matron of honor was Carol Novacek, sister of the bride. Serving as bridesmaids were Deb Stone and Karen Nelson, friends of the couple. They wore teal gowns of scalloped lace over satin taffeta with a V-shaped back neckline, a tea-length skirt, and satin cummerbund with soft back bow. To complete the outfit, they wore matching teal slippers. In their hair they wore combs of Sonja silk flowers and babies' breath and sprengeri.

Kirsten Rokke, the groom's niece, was the flower girl, wearing a teal satin and lace tea-length gown similar to those of the bridesmaids. She wore babies' breath in her hair and carried a basket of Sonja silk flowers and babies' breath.

The groom, accompanied to the altar by his mother, wore black tails with white bow tie, vest and pocket square, and a boutonniere of a large white rose nestled in babies' breath. His brother, Jerome, of Minneapolis, served as best man. Other groomsmen were John Rokke, cousin of the groom, and Jerry Narlock, brother of the bride. All wore black tails with teal bow ties, cummerbunds and pocket squares, with white sweetheart rose and babies' breath boutonnieres.

Ushers were Donald and Dean Narlock, both brothers of the bride, John Novacek, brother-in-law of the bride, and Paul Holmes of Minneapolis, a friend of the couple. They wore black tuxedos with black bow ties, cummerbunds and white pocket squares, with boutonnieres of Sonja carnations.

Both mothers were presented corsages of white sweetheart roses, white pixy carnations and babies' breath. The mother of the groom wore a pink georgette street-length gown and the mother of the bride wore a green silk, street-length gown.

Honored guests were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Rustan.

Following the ceremony, a reception and dance were held at the Alvarado community center. Host couples were Mr. and Mrs. Gary Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Amundson. The wedding cake, baked and decorated by Vonnie Narlock, aunt of the bride, was a three-tiered white creation trimmed with peach roses and greenery, topped with a pair of white wedding bells. A flowing fountain decorated the base. Two side cakes were topped with a silver candelabra and a silver "25" in honor of the June 1 25th wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

Vonnie Narlock and Nora Rokke, aunts of the bride and groom respectively, cut and served the cake; and Seline Narlock, godmother of the bride, and Orlette Waller and Tillie Amundson, poured. Punch was served by Judy Bakken and Connie Steffan, and Teresa Duchescher and Mary Lou Leier served champagne. Janice Narlock, sister of the bride, attended the guest book. Waitresses were Jody Osowski, Janine Narlock, Kristen Narlock, Patricia Amundson, Jennifer Dietrich and Nicole Judovsky.

The bride's personal attendant was her cousin, Elaine Iverson. Flower hostesses were Darlene Shereck and Denise Rokke, and Brenda Watt and Gaylene Narlock attended the gift table.

The couple honeymooned at Banff and Lake Louise, Alberta, and Vancouver, British Columbia, and are at home in Newfolden, where the bride is a social worker for Marshall county and the groom is engaged in the practice of law.

Peterson And Dalager Wed At Grace Lutheran In Grygla

Sherry Rae Peterson and Steven James Philip Dalager exchanged marriage vows May 17 at Grace Lutheran church in Grygla. Parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Peterson of Grygla, and Mr. and Mrs. James Dalager of Thief River Falls.

Rev. Percy Smerek officiated at the double ring ceremony. Prelude music included an oboe solo by Holly Dalager, sister-in-law of the groom, accompanied by pianist Anne Bergsrud, cousin of the groom. The processional, "Sheep May Safely Graze," was played by Anne Bergsrud, along with the recessional, "Prelude in Classic Style." Kurt Vandermeer, friend of the bride, served as trumpeter for "Trumpet Voluntary" as bridal processional.

Scripture was read by Pam Worth, friend of the bride, and Sheila Drugan, friend of the couple, followed by a duet, "Dear Jesus" by Stew Sandstrom, friend of the groom, and Ruth Dalager, sister of the groom. The congregation sang "Now Thank We All Our God" following the message, which was given by Karl Dalager, brother of the groom.

The groom sang a song he had written to the bride, and accompanied himself on the guitar, prior to the marriage vows. "Make Us One" was sung by Ruth Dalager during the lighting of the unity candle, and Stew Sandstrom sang "May the Lord Go With You" as benediction. All songs were accompanied by Kurt Vandermeer on guitar.

The church was decorated with candelabra, greenery and bows. A basket of flowers was placed on the altar in memory of the bride's grandfather, Clarence Peterson.

Escorted by her father, the bride was attired in a white taffeta gown with sweetheart neckline, short ball gown sleeves and a dropped waistline. The bodice was adorned with Venise lace and seed pearls, and the full, gathered skirt flowed to a chapel-length train. To compliment her gown, the bride wore a Venise lace-covered hat with upturned side brim and back veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of lavender roses and white pixy carnations.

The bride's personal attendant was her sister, Jodi Nelson.

Kristy Peterson served as her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ginny Hulm, friend of the bride; Sue Larson, cousin of the bride; and Ruth Dalager, sister of the groom. They wore daphine rose-colored taffeta gowns featuring sweetheart neckline and fitted basque bodice, with back interest of a deep V, and spaghetti straps worn over the shoulders. Sleeves were wire-hemmed, ruffled taffeta. Long, full skirts gathered at the waist with large taffeta bows at the back. Each attendant carried three long-stemmed white roses.

Missy Anderson, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of daphine taffeta similar to those of the other bridal attendants. Jeremy Weis, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer. He wore a gray tuxedo with daphine rose tie and cummerbund.

The groom wore white tails with a boutonniere of two lavender roses. Nathan Dalager attended his brother as best man, and other attendants were Stew Sandstrom and David and Karl Dalager, brothers of the groom. Kevin Nelson, brother-in-law of the bride, and Alan Lull, friend of the groom, were ushers. All gentlemen wore gray tuxedos with white shirts and daphine rose bow ties and cummerbunds, with boutonnieres of white roses.

Donna Landers and Laura Granger, friends of the couple, distributed programs. The bride's cousin, Gary Wilkens, was candle lighter.

The mother of the bride wore an off-white street-length gown, and the mother of the groom wore a blue print. Both wore corsages of daphine rose-colored pixy carnations and white roses.

Guests of honor were the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Wilkens and Alice Peterson, and the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sletten.

The bride and groom ushered the guests from the church to the reception held in the church fellowship hall. Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wilkens and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bergsrud, uncles and aunts of the bride and groom, were host couples. Kim McLean presided at the guest book, and Tammy Nordby and Jean Verbout served the punch. All are friends of the bride. Norwegian wedding cake was served by Kari Larson, cousin of the bride.

The four-tiered wedding cake highlighted the serving table, with a flowing fountain, bridal stairs extending from both sides, and a bridge connecting bottom tiers. Fresh flowers and greenery topped each tier and surrounded the base. The cake was baked and decorated by the mother of the bride.

Pat Anderson, aunt of the bride, and Delores Saul, friend of the bride, cut the cake. Pouring were Shirley Westacott, aunt of the groom, and Luella Solberg, friend of the bride. Serving as waitresses were Shawna Wilkens, cousin of the bride, and Kari Torkelson and Tammy Holmgren, friends of the bride.

Gifts were carried by Angie Weis and Jennifer Wilkens, cousins of the bride, and rice-filled daphine silk roses were distributed by Crystal Hoffman and Anna Anderson, cousins of the bride, and Cindy and Katie Hagen, friends of the bride.

The evening before the ceremony, the groom's parents hosted a dinner at the church for the bridal party and immediate families.

Following a wedding trip and summer at the University of North Dakota, the couple now reside in Shiprock, NM, where they are both teachers.

More Said Than Done At Area Farm Session

settlement to be a form of loan servicing, although he believes the statute does not require that hard a line.

Massey cautioned farmers being pressured to liquidate not to be rushed and he advised them not to vacate their property. He claimed that regulations are designed to prevent the law from working, and that where law and regulations appear to be in conflict, put confidence in the law. The pressure from Washington is for farmers to liquidate, he said, adding that "Washington's mess is your nightmare." He also said that verbal agreements between farmers and FmHa personnel are not legally binding.

Rep. Wally Sparby said he would have liked to see more businessmen at the meeting. "If main street business feels it can avoid the same problems which farmers have been facing the last few years, it is very much mistaken," he warned.

Several individual questions were asked but answers could be given only in generalities. "Every case is different," FmHA director Carlson said. "There are no two situations exactly the same and it is impossible to compare one borrower's situation with another."

Asked to what extent FmHA would attempt to recover delinquent loans if a farmer elected to "sign and walk away," Carlson said he had heard that the FmHA may attempt to use commercial collection agencies to recover what losses it can. Previously, he said, such situations would be reviewed about once a year and little effort was made to collect unless the debtor had experienced substantial financial success elsewhere.

"Before deciding to make a voluntary conveyance," he said, "it would be a good idea for the farmer to talk to competent people who can give knowledgeable advice."

Kevin Duffy, Thief River Falls attorney, said that in his experience he has found most of the difficulties to have stemmed from the FmHA offices in Thief River Falls and Warren and that better advice and suggestions were being made from offices in Crookston and McIntosh. He said people are being intimidated by the adverse action letters being received.

Carlson responded that liquidation on a large scale is new to both FmHA personnel and area farmers. "We don't know how to ask the questions, much less give the right answers," he said. "And I don't intend to jump down any supervisor's throat on the basis of general statements." Carlson maintained that although he has heard some general complaints, no one has come forward with a specific name or case that he can follow up to determine if complaints are valid.

In summary, Massey said he believes it is no accident the way things are happening and that the directive from Washington is to collect. He advised farmers to not act until they know their options, that they will have their day in court and not to leave their farms.

Jack Tunheim said the attorney general's office would seek a meeting with Russ Bjorhus, state director of FmHA, before the week is out to find out if the rules are being interpreted any differently in Minnesota than elsewhere in the nation.

Commissioner Nichols said he believed farmers have a right to apply for debt settlement without first submitting to liquidation and he urged everyone to apply for debt settlement so the requests could be forwarded.

Carlson said the county and district offices are bound to follow the direction received from the state office. "If that direction changes, we will do what we can do to follow the new direction," he said. "Those of us in the field don't want accelerations and foreclosures. We don't need any more property held by the FmHA; we don't know what to do with what we already have."

Sen. Stumpf said agencies have to recognize that they are dealing with people rather than numbers and it is necessary to keep rural communities alive.

Prior to the start of the meeting, Commissioner Nichols presented a $10,000 check to the area ag information center from the state contingency fund. Willard Brunelle of Crookston accepted the check on behalf of the center's board of directors.

Citizens Raise Stink Over TRF Lagoon System

milligrams or less by state law. A higher level could mean that the sewage would need to be in the lagoon a longer period of time.

The three city lagoons, two primary and one secondary, are located outside of Thief River Falls past Arctco and off highway 32. The lagoons, built in 1973, were designed to last 20 years and handle 1.4 million gallons of waste water per day, according to Dave Kildahl, consulting city engineer. The two primary lagoons receive the first discharge and eventually the water is moved to the secondary lagoon, then to the ditch system which eventually leads to the river. By the time the water reaches the river it is at safe levels.

With seven years left to the projected life of the design, the lagoons are at capacity now, Kildahl said. But Kildahl isn't advising that a new lagoon should be built right now. There are many alternatives that should be explored first. The city could artificially aerate the lagoon with an air pump, forcing air into the lagoon; dump the waste water faster by putting in a concrete pipe; or increase the size of the dikes. But first they should find the source of the suspected increase, Kildahl said.

Kildahl said industrial users, like cities themselves, create a substantial amount of waste, and must have permits from the government to allow them to dump waste into the sewer system. If a user goes above a permit level something usually gets done.

Options for industrial users could include additional screens or even adding their own lagoons. Kildahl said many cities are much tougher on industrial users than Thief River Falls. Maybe the city will have to get tougher.

NCC And College Foundation Plan Artist Series

Northland community college and the Northland community college foundation have announced the 1986-1987 artists series which will feature programs and exhibits in the visual and performing arts and be open to the public.

Programs planned for the series include two theatrical presentations — "Eleanor: A Celebration" on September 20 and "Expressions of Aging" on April 11; two musical productions — a recital by classical guitarist Eric Mollerstrom on October 14 and the jazz festival on January 22; plus a full art gallery season which will begin in October and feature eight professional exhibits. (A pre-gallery season exhibit and grand opening are also planned as an introduction to the gallery season.)

This year's artists series is the first inter-disciplinary coordinated series the college and the Northland community college foundation have sponsored. A schedule of the entire series will be available from the college offices the week of September 15.

Happy Belated Birthday!

State 'Grass Tax' To Hit Dealers In Illegal Drugs

Dealers of cocaine, heroin, marijuana or other illegal drugs will be required to buy state tax stamps under Minnesota's new "grass tax" law that took effect on August 1, according to Minnesota department of revenue.

The 1986 Minnesota legislature passed a law that says that no illegal drugs can be brought into the state by a dealer unless a tax stamp is attached to containers used to transport the drugs.

The new law applies to any marijuana, whether real or counterfeit, and any illegal drug, whether real or counterfeit, that is held, possessed, transported, transferred, sold or offered to be sold in violation of Minnesota laws.

"Although these products were always subject to tax, we now have a mechanism to collect it," said Dorothy McClung, director of the revenue department's legal and legislative affairs division.

The new law gives the revenue department the authority to immediately assess this new tax if the drugs in the dealer's possession are not appropriately stamped. Law enforcement agencies would notify the revenue department when someone is arrested with the minimum amount of marijuana or other illegal drugs in his or her possess on.

The department may assess the tax whether or not the dealer is successfully prosecuted on other drug charges. In addition to the tax, the revenue department can assess a 100 per cent penalty.

The law affects any dealer who violates Minnesota law by manufacturing, producing, shipping, transporting or importing into Minnesota, or who acquires or possesses more than 42½ grams of marijuana, or seven or more grams of any illegal drugs, or 10 or more dosage units of any controlled substance that is not sold by weight.

Stamps are being sold in denominations determined by package size or dosages, however, minimum purchases will be required.

The rate for marijuana is $3.50 per gram, with a required minimum purchase of $150 worth of stamps; the rate for a controlled substance by grams is $200 per gram, with a required minimum purchase of $1,400 worth of stamps; and the rate for dosage units is $200 per unit, with a required minimum purchase of $2,000 worth of stamps.

All information that dealers provide to the department of revenue is confidential, the department said. No information in a report or a return required by the department under the new law can be used in a criminal court proceeding, unless the information is independently obtained. The information, however, may be used in connection with a court proceeding involving taxes a dealer owes under the new law.

The law provides that the commissioner of revenue may examine a dealer's books, records, papers and memorandums to ensure the proper amount of tax has been paid.

Two other states — South Dakota and Arizona — passed similar laws, however, South Dakota's law was struck down by the courts because of possible self-incrimination.

"The South Dakota law was struck down for reasons we covered nicely in our law," McClung said. "Ours is very tight."

Use Of Pesticide Isn't Over Until Clean-Up Is Done

Safe pesticide use doesn't end with application. Proper cleanup and disposal is necessary to ensure that humans and livestock are not unnecessarily exposed to agricultural chemicals.

Often farmers return from the fields with empty and left-over pesticide bags and small amounts of pesticide residues on truck beds, machine parts and clothing. After long, hard days in the field it's only human nature to let down a little — to think of the job as finished.

But with pesticides, the job isn't over until all the left-over product has been properly stored or disposed of and pesticide-exposed clothing and equipment has been properly cleaned.

Left-over pesticides must be put under lock and key out of harm's way. A separate, well-marked and locked storage area is best.

A 10x10 metal shed works well for pesticide storage. It should be placed far away from any well, and situated so that runoff is away from any water supply, housing or livestock.

The storage area should be clearly marked. One good idea is to use the part of the pesticide label that says "pesticide - Poison" for this purpose. Several of these labels and an emergency telephone number should be placed where they can't be missed by anyone approaching the shed.

The storage area should be kept locked at all times. A good, sturdy padlock will discourage curious children.

Improperly stored pesticides can find their way into animal feed with fatal results. Unused pesticides should never be left in barns or yard areas where they can be spilled and accidentally mixed with feed.

The separate storage area should be far enough away from livestock to eliminate any chance of accidental contamination of feed with pesticide.

Any pesticide spilled should be cleaned up immediately. Spilled pesticide should be returned to the bag or buried. If buried, it's best to place it in a hole at least 18 inches deep in a field away from livestock and wells. Tools used for the pesticide clean-up should be locked up in the separate storage area used for left-over product.

Truck beds and other equipment used to apply or transport pesticides should also be throughly cleaned out and the residues disposed of in the same way as spillage.

It may seem like good economics to make use of left-over or spilled pesticides by applying them to home garden or other uses, but this would be a mistake. Pesticides should be used only as described on the label.

Proper pesticide procedures include careful handling and disposal of empty bags. If allowed to blow around, empty pesticide containers could come within reach of children, livestock or pets.

Empty bags demand the same respect as full ones. They should be disposed of in a sanitary landfill or by incineration. Untill they can be disposed of properly, the empty bags should be placed in the locked storage area with the left-over pesticides.

Protecting yourself and your family from exposure to agricultural chemicals requires careful consideration to personal hygiene and common sense.

Never pick up or hug little children when you first return from the field. If you do, you will expose your young ones to pesticide residues which remain on your clothing and hands.

All clothing worn while handling pesticides should be washed separately from the family's regular clothing and the machine should be rinsed immediately afterward.

A good shower, with lots of soap and running water, will remove last traces of pesticides. Then you can finally say "the job is over."

Median earnings for families with wage and salary workers were $501 a week in the second quarter of 1984, 7.1 per cent higher than a year earlier. Median earnings for individuals holding full-time wage and salary jobs were $325, up 5.4 per cent over the year, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Labor Department.

Kidney Benefit Auction To Offer Hundreds Of Items

Annual benefit auction conducted by the Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls Saturday and Sunday promises to be an active event, according to local foundation officers who have been accumulating items for the sale. Sale hours are Saturday from 1 to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. until all items are sold.

The auction will be conducted in the sports arena with area auctioneers donating their services to sell the more than 300 new items and hundreds of used items donated to the event. The arena will be open prior to the sale for several hours both days to permit bidders to inspect the items offered for sale.

"People have been just great again this year," stated Web Maves, who has been chairing the auction event for the foundation. "Cliff Bredeson and Morrie Howick have worked exceptionally hard in obtaining items to be auctioned and area business places have responded in extremely generous fashion with new merchandise.

"Ther will be a number of us happy to have the sale completed because we have all available storage space filled with donated merchandise," he added. "All we need now is to have a large number of enthusiastic bidders to turn out on Saturday and Sunday and make the auction a huge success."

Among the items to be auctioned are a 1971 Rupp snowmobile in excellent condition, two round-trip airplane tickets from Thief River Falls to Minneapolis and return, davenports, television sets, electric stoves, record players, carpet and many other appliances and furnishings.

"There will also be large white elephant sale," Maves said, "with probably about 20 tables of items at ridiculously low prices. The foundation will also be serving hotdogs, barbecues, bars and coffee so people attending the auction won't have to leave to get something to eat."

Again this year there will be chairs set up for bidders and items to be sold brought to the auctioneer rather than the bidders going to the items. Auctioneers donating their services include Maryel Anderson, Dave Bruggeman, Dale Svendsgaard, Lloyd Otteson, Johnny Clow, Rosalind Keefe and Ron McKercher.

The Kidney Foundation of Thief River Falls presently is assisting 10 kidney patients in northwestern Minnesota to the extent of about $99 per month. Goal of this year's fund-raiser is $10,000 to continue the assistance program at about the present level. All of the funds raised are used in this seven-county northwest Minnesota area from highway 2 north to the Canadian border. Dialysis patients are presently being assisted from as far away as Hallock and Wannaska.

Ruth Nepper is chairman of the foundation's board of directors with LaVonne Haraldson as vice chairman, Sue Schulthorp as secretary and Marilyn Winters as treasurer. Other board members ar Bob Bergan, Morris Howick, Klem Gigstad, Cliff Bredeson and Web Maves.

IRS Cross-Checks Federal Returns Against Reports

At the beginning of every year, employers, banks, companies and others send statements showing wages, interest, dividends and other income they've paid the previous year. Taxpayers must include this information on their federal income tax returns.

For every statement sent to a taxpayer, a copy is also sent to the Internal Revenue service on either magnetic computer tape and disks or on paper forms. The IRS matches these income statements against the amounts taxpayers report on their income tax returns to determine if the returns have been properly filed and income properly reported. IRS calls this the "information returns program."

By matching of information returns against tax returns, the IRS can find apparent reporting discrepancies or cases of failure to file a tax return. Notices are sent to follow up on apparent discrepancies.

In 1974, when the information returns program began, the IRS matched 35 per cent of returns received. Since then the percentage has risen steadily. By 1985, almost all information returns were matched. In 1984, approximately four million taxpayers were notified of potential discrepancies between income reported on their tax returns and income reported to the IRS. In addition, over three million taxpayers received notices of apparent failure to file tax returns.

Tax Deferment On Home Sale Can Save Dollars

Your home is an excellent tax shelter, as well as an important asset that is likely increasing in value. Selling it may give you a handsome gain — and a hefty tax bill, too. But with some knowledge of the way capital gains are treated when a home is sold, the Minnesota Society of CPAs says it's possible to defer or legally avoid much of the tax.

Under current tax law, when you sell your home, the entire gain on the sale may not be taxed if you buy or build and occupy a new principal residence two years before or after the sale. The new residence must cost at least as much or more than the adjusted selling price of your old home. Any gain that is not taxed must be subtracted from the cost of the new home. Any gain that is not taxed must be subtracted from the cost of the new home, giving you a lower "basis," defined as the amount you are considered to have paid for the new home.

If you sell the new home later and buy another one, you may continue to defer the tax. If you do not buy a new home, or if the cost of the new home is less than the adjusted sales price of the original home, then part or all of your gain is taxable as long-term or short-term capital gain, depending on how long you owned your home.

Profits on home sales are taxed the same way as capital gains on other investments. If you own the home for more than six months it is taxed as a long-term investment, thus only 40 per cent of the gain you make on the sale is taxable. But if you own the home for six months or less, all of your profit is taxable.

The capital gain from a prior sale can be reduced or eliminated by increasing what you originally paid for the home by amounts paid out within the 24-month reinvestment period through home improvements. The resulting figure is the "adjusted basis." If you added to your home a porch that cost you $10,000, you can add that to your basis.

Home sellers can also benefit by sprucing up their old place. Maintenance or "fix-up" costs can be subtracted from your home's selling price if they're done within 90 days of the sale and paid for within 30 days of the sale. But you must keep receipts.

Another major tax break coming from the sale of a home is the $125,000 tax-free profit allowed if you or your spouse are 55 or older. You must have used the home as your principal residence for three of the five years before the sale. Since the exclusion is only good once, it's wise to consult your CPA if you are not absolutely sure when you should take it.

Cost Of Owning, Operating Car Remains Constant

Even with gas prices down significantly, the cost of owning and operating an automobile has remained steadv over the past year, according to Minnesota AAA.

It costs an average of 23.2 cents per mile to own and operate a car in 1986 — the same as a year ago.

"Over the last six years, AAA's driving cost estimates show the average has remained at about 23 to 24 cents per mile," said AAA spokesman Mark A. Larson. "Steadily-increasing insurance premiums, licensing, taxes, depreciation and purchase cost offset the gasoline savings this year."

The average per-mile cost is determined by combining operating and ownership costs. Oprrating costs include gasoline, oil, tires and maintenance. The expenditures relate directly to the number of miles driven.

Ownership costs include insurance, license and registration fees, taxes, depreciation and finance charges. They are not significantly affected by the number of miles driven.

Cost figures are based on a composite national average for three 1986 Chevrolet models: a four-cylinder Chevette, six cylinder Celebrity and six-cylinder Caprice, driven 15,000 miles per year.

Computations for the AAA report are made by Runzheimer International, of Rochester, WI, a management consulting firm that specializes in measuring travel and living costs.

When AAA began issuing reports in 1950, driving a car 10,000 miles a year cost nine cents per mile. Gasoline, at that time, was 27 cents per gallon.

Wheat Groups To Support Interim Classification

Wheat commissions and councils in North and South Dakota and Minnesota have agreed to support an interim position and further study of the wheat classification issue. Representatives of the three boards met with wheat industry representatives recently in Fargo, ND, to discuss classification alternatives and the economic and marketing considerations involved with current procedures and proposed alternatives.

Minnesota Wheat council chairman John Oberg said, "A consensus opinion was reached that the hard red spring class must be retained and will not be surrendered under any circumstances." The wheat groups recognized that a problem of mixed wheats entering the market exists, and that no study is currently underway to provide a long-term solution to the situation.

Oberg said the wheat commission and industry representatives agreed to continue support for the interim system to classify wheats issued by FGIS on June 19, 1986 until all proposals for change can be carefully studied and evaluated. "It is extremely important to determine the possible impacts on premiums, discounts and marketability of U.S. wheats before any changes are agreed to and implemented," Oberg said.

North Dakota wheat commission chairman Cecil Watson explained that the FGIS interim procedure identifies wheat classes by kernel characteristics for varieties with traditional kernel types and uses a combination of kernel characteristics, geographic origin and intended class for varieties with traditional kernel types and uses a combination of kernel characteristics, geographic origin and intended class for varieties with non traditional kernel type.

Although kernel characteristics do not measure milling and baking quality, customers buy U.S. wheat by class because of established and predictable performance. Watson added that export sales of hard red spring wheat have increased at a greater porportional rate than for any other class of U.S. wheat except durum over the past 25 years.

Watson concluded by restating the regional commitment to retention of the hard red spring wheat class, hard red spring or dark northern spring as it is known in commercial channels, is a unique trademark identifying it from other wheats for very important reasons other than hardness and color. Producers cannot afford to lose that selling point, he said.

Education Dep't. Seeks Application For Pilot Projects

Minnesota Board of education has invited school districts in Minnesota to propose their own performance-based alternative education programs even though it could mean that state education rules might not be followed.

Up to 15 such proposals could be approved for 1987-88 by the board, which would waive the requirement of the district to follow selected state rules. Initial proposals must be submitted to the Minnesota department of education by Oct. 3, 1986.

"The state board strongly believes that while existing rules are necessary to ensure a minimun quality of education, other approaches properly developed may prove more beneficial," said Ruth Myers, Duluth, president of the board. "A pilot demonstration program needs flexibility to develop alternative education programs without being hampered by restrictive and possibly counter-productive rules.

"The basic requirement for a proposed program is that learning outcomes be identified and that the purpose of any rule to be waived be addressed by the proposed program and its outcomes," she added.

Examples of rules which might be waived by the state board of education include one that secondary students participate in four full years of communications skills classes.

"The reality of education is that no amount of rules or criteria can ensure that each individual or group of students receive quality education," said Myers. "We are taking the iniative to seek pilot programs which will implement and study alternatives to the current system."

Pairs or groups of districts may join to make a proposal and every effort will be made to approve proposals for districts of varying sizes and in all regions of the state, according to Wayne Erickson, manager of the education department's curriculum services section.

Materials have been provided by the department to help schools design their programs, but each is expected to develop its own local, performance-based proposal.

In making application, districts must describe how learner outcomes will be designed for each subject area in the program, how instruction and assessment will be aligned with proposed outcomes, how individual differences will be addressed, and how needed staff development activities will be identified and provided.

Districts whose initial applications are approved will be invited to make second-phase applications by February 1987 and will be offered technical assistance from staff of the department.

"The state board of education, the Minnesota legislature, and the Minnesota department of education have a constitutional responsibility to provide a general and uniform system of public education," said Commissioner of Education Ruth E. Randall.

"Performance-based education may be a better way to achieve goals than working with the current system of rules and requirements. This program could have a significant long-range impact on the way our educational system is structured and our students learn. I commend the state board of education for its leadership in this program and I look forward to the results of the pilot demonstration program," Randall said.

Architect For State Historical Building Named

Hammel Green and Abrahamson, Inc., Minneapolis, was the winner among six finalists in the Capitol Area Architectural and Planning board's competition to design the new $50 million Minnesota history center in St Paul. The center will be home of the Minnesota Historical society, which since 1917 has been housed next to the Capitol in a building that will be renovated as the new home for the Minnesota supreme court and court of appearls.

Historical society staff members had meticulously analyzed each of the six history center design submissions and concluded that the winning design would serve the society's program well. A nine-member jury of state officials and nationally known architects selected the history center architect, and also gave MHS high praise for its careful work. Historical society deputy director Nina Archabal said the HGA design provides for the functional requirements of the society's program in a building that is both inviting to the public and respectful of the collections.

The history center will be built on the old Miller hospital site, along John Ireland Boulevard just south of Interstate 94 and between the Capitol and the St. Paul Cathedral.

The design "expresses both the openness and energy of historical inquiry and the permanence and stability of historical conservation," according to the architects. It preserves a park-like pedestrian precinct linking the history center to its historic Summit Hill neighborhood and allows visitors to stroll freely from the history center to the St. Paul Cathedral, the James J. Hill mansion and the nearby historic district along Summit Avenue.

The building is an "L" form which presents formal facades to the north and west and encloses an informal, activity-oriented courtyard to the southeast. This form responds to its varied immediate context and to the climate of the region as a whole. To the river of highways to the north, the history center presents a broad, curving facade, punctuated by a grand bay window: a gesture of welcome to the Capitol building and a picture frame for it.

Building materials indigenous to Minnesota will be used, including Minnesota granite with accents of Kasota stone and Oneota dolostone. "The blue-green patina of weathered copper will provide a colorful contrast to the subtle pinks and greys of the native stone while relating back to the copper roofs of the Cathedral and the buildings of the State Capitol complex," according to the design description.

"The Minnesota history center design of HGA responds in a remarkably complete way to the intricate requirements of the MHS," said Russell W. Fridley, MHS director. "The resulting building will take its place as a distinguished structure, joining the State Capitol and St. P[illegible] imaginative [illegible] Minnesotans [illegible]

AVTI Enrollment Second Largest In School History

Second largest enrollment in the history of the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical institute was noted Tuesday when 507 students began classes in 21 departments, according to Dr. Orley Gunderson, director.

"We're extremely pleased with the acceptance of AVTI programs and the number of students choosing to attend classes here," he said, "although we recognize that at least to some extent the numbers are related to adverse economic conditions in the area.

Dr. Gunderson said the is particularly pleased with the growth in the aviation program which more than doubled from 73 a year ago to 113 this year. Other major gains were made in cosmetology which increased from 48 to 62 and drafting which increased from 21 to 30.

Other departments showing growth were auto body, from 29 to 30; accounting II, from 13 to 20; legal secretarial, from 11 to 18; medical secretarial, from 14 to 17; secretarial non-shorthand, from 21 to 22; and practical nursing, from 29 to 32.

Departments with enrollment decreases were auto mechanics I, from 31 to 24; auto mechanics II, from 22 to 21; broadcasting, from 22 to 21; accounting I, from 25 to 19; electronics I, from 29 to 22; electronics II and III, from 24 to 18; sales and marketing, from 33 to 22; and welding, from 20 to 16.

Average daily membership (ADM) is expected to reach an all-time high this year, Dr. Gunderson said, because the membership is based on 175 school days and a number of the programs have extended school years. Aviation, for instance, is a 212-day program and enrollment in that program has doubled.

"Our previous high ADM was 571 in 1983," Dr. Gunderson said, "and I am projecting that we will hit at least 600 this year. Our previous high in enrollment was 517 in 1981, but our ADM that year was reduced to 549 because we lost 25 days of classes due to a strike by faculty members. In 1982 we had only 463 enrolled but maintained a 549 ADM.

Opening day enrollment was 496 in 1983, 450 in 1984 and 467 last year. In a note to faculty and other staff members Tuesday, Dr. Gunderson issued congratulations on the opening day enrollment. "When we add the number of late starting students who will enroll between Wednesday and Friday," he said, "and if we concentrate on retention, this will be the best and biggest year in our history."

The director emphasized that there is still time for students to enroll and that the only program which can be considered filled is the nursing program which is limited by clinical stations available to a capacity of 32. It is possible to take other course work in the nursing program, he said, and persons with questions about that possibility may contact the AVTI.

Dr. Gunderson said that loan funds are available on an immediate basis to help students enroll and get started in classes. The loans are to be repaid from student assistance funds when they are received at a later date. He invited anyone considering enrollment but holding back because of lack of finances to contact the AVTI for assistance and information.

N.A.H.

I wouldn't find grounds for complaint in coffee prices of three pounds for 65 cents at Geo. Peter and Sons Grocery.

Labor Day picnic items were the buy of the week at most stores with assorted cold meats at the Hartz Store for 38 cents per half-pound, featuring a mix or match variety of roast beef loaf, corned beef loaf, pressed ham, baked veal loaf or baked tongue loaf. Your best buy on the bread for sandwiches was at Hartz, two for 19 cents. A quart jar of mustard could be purchased for 15 cents at Johnson's Food Market; a quart of crisp dill pickles for 39 cents; five ounce, foil-wrapped bag of potato chips at 21 cents; and red hot, tender and juicy weiners were 49 cents a pound. The beans to go with the weiners were three cans for a quarter. Dessert could be angel food cake, large size, 56 cents; a dozen assorted cookies at 20 cents; or marshmallows for roasting at 5 cents a quarter pound package, while they last.

Labor Day entertainment included dances at Goodridge hall, Timm's Barn, Oklee Hall, Kulseth Pavilion, Louis Carpenter's Barn, Pine Lake, Halma, Engles, Singer Barn, Elks, Malung Oslo, Clearbrook and Fourtown. For a more sedate evening, both theaters offered continuous showings Sunday and Labor Day, with the Avalon featuring, "Boy's Ranch" with the new star, Jackie "Butch" Jenkins; and the Falls', "Jane Gets Married," starring Leslie Hutton.

A big $10 cash prize was offered in a contest to "Name the New Addition" of extensions of Kneale, Maple and Spruce avenues to Nora Street and the extensions of Hughes, James and Nora streets to Spruce avenue. The nine new blocks were limited to "construction of new, moderately priced dwellings and garages."

A peek in the want ad real estate section showed some of those dwellings for sale: five room house, partly modern, desirable location, $2,900; seven room house with basement and furnace, barn, chicken house, large garage and 27 acres of land, $4,000; and an attractive bungalow-type home in neighborhood of fine homes with a built-in apartment and 75 foot lot priced at $9,300.

Most of the waitress positions were filled by this week, but there were jobs for women and girls to do housework, kitchen and floor work at Oakland Park Sanatorium, a saleslady over 20 years of age at the Junior Shop, typist at Berge Finance, and someone to operate the "do-nut machine" at the Red Owl store (experience not necessary). Gentlemen could apply for work in plowing, potato picking, short order cooking, bartending or selling insurance. Applications were also being accepted at the American Crystal Sugar company in East Grand Forks for the manufacturing season.

Deductions Vary For Business Travel Abroad

Planning to attend a convention in the Bahamas? Does your business trip to Europe include sightseeing plans? The Internal Revenue service suggests taxpayers familiarize themselves with the tax laws concerning business travel outside the United States

Generally, individuals may not deduct expenses for attending a foreign convention, seminar or similar meeting unless the meeting is directly related to their trade or business or income producing activity. If the convention is held on a cruise ship, taxpayers may deduct up to $2,000 in expenses if several specific requirements are met.

Individuals who travel outside the United States and spend the entire time on business may deduct all ordinary and necessary travel expenses. If the travel was primarily for business but there were some nonbusiness activities, such as sightseeing, the taxpayer may have to divide the expenses, including travel, between business and nonbusiness activities.

If the travel was primarily for vacation and some time was spent attending brief professional seminars or meetings, the entire cost of the trip is a nondeductible personal expense. Only registration fees and other direct business expenses may be deducted.

For more information, business travelers should order a copy of Publication 463, Travel, Entertainment & Gift Expenses, by calling your local IRS office.

Treatment Helps Many Infectious Arthritis Cases

For most kinds of arthritis there is no known cause or cure, according to the Arthritis foundation. There are some exceptions, however, and these include the disorders known as infectious arthritis.

Infectious arthritis is an illness in which joint problems are brought on by an infection caused by disease agents such as bacteria, viruses or funguses, agents that can cause many different diseases. One example is Lyme disease, spread in Minnesota by the bite of a tiny tick. Diabetes and kidney disease can also increase the risk of infection.

An Arthritis foundation spokesman observed that just as anyone can catch a cold or the flu, anyone can get infectious arthritis. That's the bad news. The good news is that something can usually be done about it. Tests can fairly quickly determine the cause, the treatment can be specifically designed for the particular case. Treatment may include medications, including antibiotics, drainage and joint rest and protection.

The Arthritis foundation has a special message on infectious arthritis that may be heard by calling the foundation's toll-free number, 1-800-552-1278. A free booklet on infectious arthritis is available to callers.

Export Of Dirty Grain Can Hurt Foreign Markets

State Senator LeRoy Stumpf of Plummer believes that the United States will not be able to improve its export trade "unless and until we clean up our product by enforcing tougher grain standards."

Stumpf said he has heard from commodity groups, farmers and many others affected concerning the growing evidence that U.S. farm exports have been hurt by the export of dirty grain. "This is not coming from our fields, but is leaving our ports," he said.

"A recent article published by the Farm Journal on a study of dirty grain concluded that, while U.S. grain from the farm is as clean as any in the world, by the time it leaves U.S. docks and arrives in another nation's port, it is the dirtiest," Stumpf said.

"This situation not only hurts the reputation of our farmers, who are the best in the world, it also puts us at an economic disadvantage as an international trading partner."

That study compared U.S. grain to waste or foreign material found in grain shipments from Canadian and Australian wheat cargoes arriving in Japan between 1982-1985. It showed that the U.S. delivered nearly six times more waste dockage than Canada, and more than twice as much as Australia.

"Farmers' cries to cleanup this situation are now being joined by many others in the industry, and in government, who believe we must immediately improve our grain exports or face the prospect of losing more valuable overseas markets," Stumpf added.

Stumpf said that farmers are calling for direct solutions to this problem: Growers and U.S. Wheat Associates are recommending the elimination of dockage in wheat; tighter limitations on foreign material; a specific moisture content for protein; premiums for "too-dry" grain; laws prohibiting adding screenings, dockage or dust to wheat; and a program to pay producers for the market value of the clean wheat they deliver.

"Critics in the industry who claim it will create an 'economic disadvantage' by improving foreign material standards should take another look at our American tradition of quality control to improve the nation's competitive standing," Stumpf said.

In the debate on the issue before the U.S. Congress, the only action taken thus far has been an amendment passed requiring a study of the impact that grain quality has on U.S. grain exports.

"While grain quality is not the only factor affecting our grain sales, it is probably fair to say it is becoming more important with each passing shipment made — or not made — to a potential buyer," Stumpf added.
